THE SISTERS' EMPORIUM

RAINBOW FARM CENTER

Lambda Sigma

—Becky Lidas, reporter

The December 10 meeting of the Lambda Sigma Chapter of the Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority was held at the home of Lynn Bercaw.

14 members recited the pledge and answered roll call. Linda Kandel reported that we have $89.89 in our treasury.

Sally Bercaw gave a report on bylaws. Lyndia Suntken read a letter from our International Service Chairman and a letter from our assigned center. Deanna Jennings read a letter from Dee Elkins.

Cathy Nichols was appointed to serve as vice president for the remainder of the year. Denise Baird, a new pledge, will take a written test before our next meeting.

Lynda Holdeman and Sheila Holman are the elected delegates to province. There will be three more workshops to complete all our projects. They will be as follows:

January 7 at Nora Raney's at 1:30 p.m.

January 14 at Lynda Holdeman's from 7 to 9 p.m.

January 21 at Lynn Bercaw's at 1:30 p.m.

The Christmas party held December 13 at Sunset Inn was a lot of fun for all. Everyone really enjoyed their meals, too.

The next meeting will be on January 8 at Lynda Holdeman's at 7:30 p.m.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Rivere Brush, reporter

Hostess Annabelle Culler took several group pictures and also one of late comers, after a delicious potluck dinner was enjoyed by the Newville Township Home Ec Club.

President Doris Hart called the meeting to order and several Christmas carols were sung. Devotions were given by Lucile Nelson who read the story, "Heavenly Child," from Good Housekeeping magazine. She asked Mary Platter to read the Christmas story from St. Luke.

Several more carols were sung, including the song of the month, "Silver Bells." Singing was led by Dorothy Meek with Dorine Singer accompanying on the accordian.

Christmas cards were sent to Cynthia Sipe who is now in Florida and to associate member Dessie Osmun. Katheryn Kreig led two contests and Lois Guiff had each person tell about a Christmas they remembered in the past.

Lella Collins acted as Santa's helper and distributed the 75 Secret Pal gifts.

The next meeting will be held January 14 at 11 a.m. with a potluck at the home of Rosella Mickelson.

The Eastside Reserve basketball team finished runnerup in the second annual Fremont Junior Varsity tourney held recently. Blazers upset a tough Hamilton team 28—27, then lost to Fremont 45—36 in the final game.

The Hamilton game was close all the way as neither team was able to gain offensive control. Eastside's tight defense held the Marines in check but the Blazer shooters were extremely cold from the field. Jeff Hudson and Jim Burns controlled the backboards for Eastside while Jeff Berndt turned in a fine defensive game.

Fremont gained a 14—6 first quarter lead and held on for the remainder of the contest to capture their second championship in a row. The young Eagles, coached by Ken Wirtz, were never behind as they canned 21 of 32 free throws. Danny Shaffer kept the Blazers in the game with some hot first half shooting. Dave Fee and Randy Cook keyed a second half comeback which saw Eastside close to within 3 points several times.

ASC Committee Named

Kenneth Holman, well known DeKalb County farmer, was named to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee by delegates to the ASC county convention December 16 in the county ASC office.

The delegates also elected Donald Johnson and George Henry as first and second alternates to the committee.

The DeKalb County ASC Committee for 1976 includes:

John D. Smith, chairman.

Kenneth Holman, vice chairman.

Walter Reinhart, regular member.

Donald Johnson, 1st alternate.

George Henry, 2nd alternate.

The committee is responsible for local administration of government farm programs such as: Agricultural Conservation Program, Facility and Dryer Loan Program, Commodity Loan Program and Wool Program.

The vacancies were filled by farmer delegates who are newly elected ASC community committeemen for 1976. Community committees assist the county committee in farm program administration and help keep farmers informed of program provisions.

Did you know—

—that former Governor Edgar D. Whitcomb, who seeks the GOP nomination for U.S. Senator, says the city of Indianapolis should stay out of the newspaper business to avoid competing with private business. His observation came as a result of the city's use of federal funds to publish the "Indianapolis Journal." Similar publications are in circulation in other cities.

—that recent claims that hundreds of large tankers have been smashed, disabled or lost in storms off South Africa since 1968, published in a book, have been refuted by the petroleum industry. The magazine "Petroleum Today" says, "The truth is, not one tanker of 200,000 deadweight tons or larger has ever broken up in a storm anywhere in the world."

—that I&M recently filed a supplemental petition with the Public Service Commission in response to a May 28 order which granted the utility interim emergency rate relief.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Well, how do you like this new type face? It's more readable, and although larger than what was used before, still allows for very close to the same amount of copy.

—It better be good. I hate to spend $240 for nothing!

I am 'way behind again, this time because a virus hit me last Friday and I was unable to work again until Monday.

Until Ila Coburn brought in the following, I didn't know she was responsible for helping out the Hospital Guild in doll repairs. Ila says:

"We would like to, thank everyone for the dolls and toys donated this past year.

"A special thank you to MM. Joe McNamara and MM Greg Stoffer.

"Donated dolls are repaired and dressed for 'The Curiosity Shop,' also the toys. In case you didn't know, the Curiosity Shop is managed by the DeKalb Memorial Hospital Fund Raising Guild.

"Thank you for your patronage the past year. Happy New Year.

"North Side Doll Hospital & Gift Shop"

The following note came last week from Leota Gruber in Fort Wayne:

"Dear friends,

"Thank you so very much for remembering mother throughout the holidays with gifts, cards, calls and prayers. You were very kind and thoughtful. I would like to write to each one of you individually but that is impossible.

"Mother is better but tires easily, but when you are 92 years old, I think that can be expected.

"May God bless each one of you.

"With love to all,
Leota and mother
Lizzie Milliman"

Time magazine picked 12 "women of the year" instead of a "man of the year." That must have been welcomed by women's liberationists especially since Time explained it's action because "it was a year of retrenchment and reappraisal." The publication said 1975 was "not a period in which a single man of the year could decisively emerge."

However, Time also said that it selected the 12 women, including Betty Ford, "for good or ill" who have most significantly affected the course of the year's events.

This is a good example of how our language has been corrupted—when personages are called "outstanding" for their significant affect on society "for good or ill."

The list included Addie Wyatt, head of the new Coalition of Labor Union Women; feminist author Susan Brownmiller; tennis star Billie Jean King; Alison Cheek whose ordination as an Episcopal priest shook up that denomination; and others in education, business and government.

My nomination for "man of the year" would be the average American male who is being "put down" by government, by the church and by educators in his proper role as "head and master," generally speaking. If that outlook is wrong, then the Bible is wrong.

If it's power and control the libbers are really concerned about, they have forgotten (if they ever learned) the meaning of the saying, "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." They consider this an example of "sexism" and "role-playing" because it infers that women are just for having kids and taking care of them, with the male not obligated to such domestic assistance.

It's disappointing to see so many women, young and not so young, being led away from femininity and womanliness under the guise of "liberation."

It's disappointing to see woman bringing herself down to man's level, forgetting that "sameness" and equality are not synonymous.

I don't know—something is getting way out of whack.

Roger Coburn Elected Board Pres

—report from the Town Board

The first meeting of 1976 of the town board of St. Joe was held Monday, January 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the fire hall.

Bob Wilder was present to administer the oath of office to Emma Frank, clerk of the town of St. Joe. Emma then gave the oath to the newly elected trustees: Fred Rayle, Roger Coburn and Loretta Loy.

The new board voted Roger Coburn chairman of the board.

Fred Rayle was approved as fire chief.

Regular board meetings are held the first Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the fire hall. The public and press are invited to attend.

Harry D. Loucks

Funeral services were set for Thursday for Harry D. Loucks, 66, of Saint Joe. He died Monday at his home at 1:30 a. m. on his birthday.

Mr. Loucks was born in Saint Joe January 5, 1910, and was a retired carpenter as well as a lifelong resident of Saint Joe.

Funeral services were set for Thursday this week at 2 p.m. at Church of Christ in Saint Joe where Mr. Loucks was a member. Edward Schantz, pastor of the church, will officiate. Burial will be in Scipio Cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, Mabel Boger Loucks; three sons, Robert in Connecticut, Richard of Fort Wayne and Terry of Saint Joe; four daughters, Mrs. Harriet Perry, Mrs. Barbara Kimmel and Mrs. Phyllis Bittner of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Carol Herschberger of Saint Joe; two brothers, Lavon of Fort Wayne and Walter of Hicksville; a sister, Mrs. Alda Ruppert of Harlan; 18 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

EHS Reserves 2nd In Tourney

The Eastside reserve basketball team recorded its second runnerup finish in tournament play this season in the Leo Holiday Reserve Tourney.

The Blazers looked strong in their opener as they defeated a good Churubusco team 47-44, then cooled down considerably in the final, losing to Woodlan 51-40. The Warriors won their second consecutive tourney.

Eastside defeated Busco with good defense, rebounding and a balanced scoring attack led by sophomore center Jeff Berndt with 12 points. Danny Shaffer and Randy Cook scored 10 each to support the Blazer effort while Dave Fee turned in a fine job on defense along with a steady floor performance.

The championship game was a different story as Eastside was not able to cope with Woodlan's aggressive zone defense. The Warriors took 12 shots more than the Blazers in gaining the victory. After an even first half which ended at 21-all, Woodlan went to work and steadily pulled away from the Blazers.

Jeff Hudson was the lone bright spot in the tourney for Eastside. The six-foot sophomore forward registered 30 rebounds and 21 points for the two-game tourney.

Snow And Cold

Hopes for a "White Christmas" were fulfilled this year, with a snowfall of some seven inches locally.

Then during the past week temperatures dropped to near the zero mark. And with some steady winds, the "chill factor" zoomed downward.

Blazers Win 3

The basketball picture turned rosier the past two weeks as the DeKalb Eastside Blazers won their holiday tourney with wins over Fremont 67-61 and Hamilton 72-64. Then they took their third win January 2 53-47 over Churubusco.

In the Fremont game, Dave Kandel hit for 28 points on 12 fielders and 4 free throws. Gary Dielman scored 14 with 6 buckets and a pair of free throws.

In the tourney championship game, Kandel ripped the nets for 35 points on 11 field goals and 13 free throws in 15 attempts. As a team the Blazers hit 24 of 29 free throws.

Rick Rinard scored 15 on 5 fielders and 5 free throws.

Against 'Busco, the scoring was again led by Kandel with 19 points on 9 fielders and one free throw. Jeff Freidenberger had 14 on 7 fielders and Rinard 11 on 4 field goals and 3 free throws.

The Blazers shot at just under the .500 mark, getting 24 fielders in 50 attempts.

New Court Dedicated

The new DeKalb County Court was dedicated in formal ceremonies Monday at Auburn. Charles Quinn will serve as judge in the court which replaces functions of the justice of the peace.

The new court will also eventually replace city courts.

The DeKalb County Court is located on the south side of the third floor of the courthouse in facilities which had been used by the DeKalb County Council since 1966. The courtroom was intended by the original architects of the courthouse to be used as a courtroom, but it was never formally dedicated as such until Monday.

The DeKalb County Court is part of the state-wide county court system and will have civil jurisdiction to the extent of $3,000 and criminal jurisdiction in sentencing to one year and/or fines up to $1,000.

DeKalb Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump led the dedication ceremony. Speaker was Professor William A. Kerr, executive director of the Indiana Judicial Center which was instrumental in formulating the legislation creating the county courts.

Junior Leaders

—Roy Prosser, reporter

The annual County Junior Leader Christmas Party was held December 10 at the exhibit hall in Auburn.

Members brought guests who planned to become Junior Leaders in 1976.

The decorations committee was Richard Miller and Roy Prosser.

Punch and cookies were served by Jerry Reipoehl and Jerry Sigler.

Games were led by Tim Parr, Larry Kummer and Kevin Bowman. Then Santa came and visited the Junior Leaders and passed out candy canes.

Betty Rediger Fatally Injured In Car-Train Accident At Spencerville

A "jinxed" railroad crossing brought death this week to Mary E. (Betty) Rediger, 52, of Saint Joe. Mrs. Rediger was seriously injured Wednesday afternoon of this week when her car skidded into the path of a Norfolk & Western train at a crossing west of Spencerville. She was on her way home from work at the Rhinehart Company located near the railroad.

Massive head injuries caused her death Thursday at Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Rediger was seriously injured at the same crossing, at the same time, in February of last year when frosted windows reportedly prevented her from seeing the approaching train. She suffered serious injuries in that accident, also.

The crossing is one which has been designated to receive a flasher signal sometime in the future. However, investigating police said the absence of a flasher was not a contributing factor in this week's accident.

Funeral services were set for Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. at the Spencerville United Methodist Church with Rev. Terry Rhine offiating. Burial is to be in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe. Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home will provide funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Rediger was born February 22, 1923, the daughter of MM Hearsel Shockley. She was a member of Spencerville United Methodist Church and the Spencerville Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star.

Survivors include her mother, Kathryn Conwell Shockley of Spencerville; a son, Randy, of Saint Joe; a daughter, Mrs. James Norris, of Saint Joe; three brothers, Hearsel Shockley of Saint Joe, Roland of Leo and Robert of Auburn; and two sisters, Mrs. Francis Conner of Blountsville, Indiana, and Mrs. Dallas Zimmerman of Spencerville.

Donors Exceed Gift Quota

President Art Rahe of the DeKalb County Association For Mental Health announced this week that the local chapter exceeded the state quota for gifts to mental patients at Christmastime. A total of 496 gifts were donated with 242 going to the state hospital in Fort Wayne and 254 to nursing homes in DeKalb County.

He expressed thanks to the 20 volunteers who worked a total of 130 hours collecting, wrapping and delivering the gifts.

Carolyn Watson of Auburn was general chairman for the annual project. She was assisted by Mrs. Richard Lieb and Mrs. John Foley in Auburn, Mrs. Steven Ross and Mrs. Larry Reynolds in Garrett, Mrs. Thomas Poinsett in Butler, Mrs. Kenneth Ireland in Waterloo and Ted Haberkorn in Saint Joe.

Collection centers were the Boston Store in Auburn and Garrett, Kandel Insurance Agency in Butler, Ireland's Store in Waterloo and the News Office in Saint Joe.

Mr. Rahe expressed thanks for the efforts of Mrs. Kenneth Allison as publicity chairman and to the county news media for their cooperation.

CC News

Attendances December 26 were 66 in Sunday Bible School and 66 in morning worship.

Book of the month is Matthew chapters 11-16.

The Willing Workers Class will have its meeting January 18 with a potluck after morning worship. New officers will be chosen at that time.

Attendances January 4 were 65 in Sunday Bible School and 76 in morning worship. Visiting us for the first time were Mrs. Mooneyhan and several children of Saint Joe.

The women of the church have chosen Jean Shockley as their new leader with Sheila Holman as assistant.

Betty Noragon submitted to surgery January 5 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

A new series of sermons on the Ten Commandments will begin January 18 and run through March.

School Play Presented

A play entitled "White House Christmas" was presented by the Riverdale School fourth grade during a recent assembly program. It was given in conjunction with the December red, white and blue day as part of the school's bicentennial celebration.

The play was based on a Christmas in 1905 when Theodore Roosevelt was president of the United States. Main characters were Craig Lake, Jody Lepper, Steve Lengacher, Monte Lothamer, Penny Graves, Laurie Kessler, Shafter Baker and Jeff Parker.

Other students were narrators, scene announcers and stage helpers.

The program concluded with the fourth graders singing "Silent Night" and the remainder of the student body joining them in singing "Away In the Manger."

Betty Wagner and Donna Jewel were in charge of the play.

Engaged To Wed

PHYLLIS ANN EDGAR

MM John W. Edgar have announced the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis Ann, to Philip Charles Kubik of Butler. The couple are both graduates of DeKalb Eastside High School. Phil is employed at Max Platt Ford in Kendallville. Phyllis is employed at Harkey's at Hicksville.

May 15 has been set as the date for the wedding.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau board of directors met December 29 at the Farm Bureau building. Bruce Provines gave devotions, reading from Luke on the old and the new. He closed with prayer and the pledge to the flag.

Francis Nelson presented the 1976 General Budget which the board approved.

Popcorn has been reduced and is now three pounds for a dollar, available at the Farm Bureau office.

The membership committee presented plans for this year. The committee included Roger Stebing, chairman, Mrs. Wilma Armstrong, Mrs. Edna Stahl, Jim Goller, Mrs. Francis Nelson, Floyd Pfierman, Francis Nelson, Mrs. Carl Perkins and William Mertz.

February 9th at 7:30 p.m. will be the membership "kick-off" meeting. February 20 at 4 p.m. will be the final day of the drive to report any new members. March 2 will be a District II recognition meal in Churubusco. Final plans for the drive will be made at the next board meeting January 28.

The award program provides that each unit reaching 100% of its quota will receive $10. A person writing one new voting member will be awarded $3, for two new members $6, three new members $10, four $15 and 5 $25. These must be voting members.

District fieldman Marvin Metzger announced that April 1 is a District II evening meeting at the Shrine building in Warsaw. March 17-18 is the annual meeting of the Indiana Co-op, also their 50th anniversary. It will be at the state fairgrounds in Indianapolis. Glen Campbell will entertain. President Gerald Ford plans to attend.

Beverly Blech will have devotions in January.

Recent Article Contained Errors And Misinformation

—by The Editor

On December 18, 1975, an article appeared here concerning a proposed "Child and Family Services" bill. Reference was made to an information sheet submitted by a reader. It was reported to have been distributed to members of Immaculate Conception Church at Auburn.

A second copy of the information sheet was sent to the News Office by an unknown person. So, it is obvious that not only church members and a News reader were taken in by the flyer, others were, too.

Apparently the same, or a similar, sheet has been distributed elsewhere and was referred to in an Amish publication. Other newspapers and at least one TV station brought the information to the public's attention.

Due to investigative efforts by two ministers in LaGrange County, one of them Leslie Strong, formerly of Saint Joe and now minister of the Stroh Church of Christ, it appears that much misinformation was disseminated by the involved news media. It appears that some misguided (or purposely deceitful?) people took advantage of the trust and integrity of other people to raise a protest over the proposed legislation, using erroneous information.

According to Pastor Strong, page 44138, referred to in the flyer, does not appear in the Congressional Record. Also, Senate bill S262 is totally unrelated to the questioned act. He could find no "Charter of Children's Rights" nor "The National Council of Civil Liberties" referred to in the flyer.

One Section of the proposed act quoted in the Congressional Record of February 7, 1975, in fact contains statements exactly contrary to the accusations made in the flyer. Section 301 says:

"(a). Nothing in this Act shall be construed or applied in such a manner as to infringe upon or usurp the moral and legal rights and responsibilties of parents or guardians with respect to the moral, mental, emotional, physical, or other development of their children. Nor shall any section of this Act be construed or applied in such a manner as to permit any invasion of privacy otherwise protected by law, or to abridge any legal remedies for any such invasion which are otherwise provided by law."

Other media which used the opposition material included WSBT TV, the LaGrange "Standard," the Goshen "News," the Warsaw "Times-Union," the South Bend "Tribune" and the Grand Rapids "Press." Retractions have been made by those media to correct misinformation originally published.

Third District Congressman John Brademas (D), who authored the bill, said the misinformation was an effort to "smear both me and my work in Congress."

No one seems to know who prepared the document which contains misinformation.

Pastor Strong qualified his investigative efforts by saying:

"I oppose this bill as another expensive, unnecessary, federal welfare program, but I resent the use of misrepresentation and scare tactics to drum up opposition on false grounds."

".....Again, I oppose this act which is estimated to cost $500,000,000 in the first year, and $1,000,000,000 in the second year. But let us voice our opposition for relevant reasons."

I am grateful to Pastor Strong for providing the material he gathered and bringing it to me so that a partial wrong could be righted. It's too bad there are those people who have legitimate arguments to back their opposition, but they aren't satisfied—they must resort to falsehoods to push their case. And the trust of those who pass such opposition along is violated, making the really legitimate opposition weaker.

It should be noted, however, that part of the article which appeared here also referred to the comments of the Boston judge who took over a school and removed the administrators from that school to other Boston schools because forced busing to accomplish integration wasn't moving fast enough for the judge. His comments were quoted from a legitimate Washington publication and are, therefore, to be remembered. He said in effect that the state comes before the parent in providing for the education and welfare of children.

It is this undercurrent idea which seems to hover over the proposed "Child and Family Services" bill, despite the protests of Mr. Brademas and, yes, even despite the paragraph quoted earlier which seems to protect parents in their responsibilities.

(Incidentally, that Boston judge has been upheld in his actions by a Court of Appeals decision. That scares me.)

I can't help wondering why it takes 71 pages (that's how long the bill is) to make provision for services which AREN'T going to infringe on parental rights nor invade the privacy of the family home. I can't believe that, with all the social legislation enacted during the 40 out of 44 years' control of the Congress by one party—I can't believe there isn't already some agency now in existence to provide the supposedly needed child and family services.

Pastor Strong's opinion that the bill is just another expensive federal welfare program is right on target, in my opinion.

I have further suspicions, in spite of the above quoted paragraph which supposedly prevents infringing upon or usurping the moral and legal rights and responsibilities of parents or guardians. Those are just words, empty words. Why? Well, how much control does today's parent have about moral, mental, emotional, physical or "other development of their children" when the civil rights movement has granted teachers and educators the privilege of experimentation with students WITHOUT SEEKING THE CONSENT OF PARENTS? When a teacher takes time in a classroom to discuss a potential teachers' strike and my son is in that class, I consider that "usurping the moral and legal rights and responsibilities" of the parent. I consider it "brainwashing." But no one stops it.

The "new ideas" we've had in schools the past 10 or 15 years are in reality experimentation without parental consent. But no one stops it.

When tax-supported universities change their rules to allow coed housing in dorms—that is, boys and girls in the same building—and when curfews are virtually eliminated if not totally removed, I consider that "usurping the moral and legal rights and responsibilities of parents." What's more, such changes are made without asking the taxpayer if it's OK. The argument is used that today's students are more mature, they can and should make their own decisions. So, they have a major voice in such matters as curfews and coed housing. Then we wonder why venereal disease is increasing, why there are so many illegitimate children, why half the marriages now end in the divorce court, why young people turn to drugs!!!

Despite what the "Child and Family Services" act says, I consider it a foot in the door to further removal of parents from their rightful place as the prime authority regarding their offspring. We're not talking about whether or not all parents will do a good job. We are talking about RIGHTS and RESPONSIBILITIES.

I am fearful of that foot in the door. Consider this. When Social Security began, the maximum tax was $30 a year. The purpose was to aid the elderly indigent and infirmed. It was NOT originated as a pension program for all.

But look at what has happened. Any criticism of the Social Security program today brings the wrath of the retired on the shoulders of the critic. "How would you like to try to get along on (so many) dollars a month?" is the challenge thrown at the critic—because, over the years, through Democrat sponsorship and control, Social Security has been changed, to such an extent that it cost us something like 60 BILLION dollars last year, as I recall. And the coverage is so widespread that more than half the Social Security benefits go to persons UNDER 60 years of age! Yet, Social Security is generally considered a national "pension" program.

And the poor elderly fail to realize that their plight is due to the cost of the vast welfare system we now have. They're on welfare because of welfare! Taxes have taken away what they ought to have been able to keep to care for themselves.

And it all started with a little thing like $30 a year maximum Social Security tax. But today, increasing numbers of people are paying MORE in Social Security taxes than in income taxes!

It is unfortunate that this paper was party to the use of information of very questionable nature. Such a situation takes away the effectiveness of legitimate opposition because people begin having doubts about EVERYTHING they hear or read.

However, the fact that some of the information was erroneous should not eliminate concern about what is happening to individual liberty and parental and family strength.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

In the previous issue, I commented about the cost of having this new type face for readers' benefits. Costs are a problem in all businesses, and sometimes the public is not aware of the extent to which "overhead" is a factor in the price paid for goods or services.

For instance, last week Pat Crow mentioned that the cost of freight on a single railroad carload of potash from Canada is $3,000. With 100 tons comprising a carload, that means that whatever the farmer pays for a ton of potash, $30 of it is for the shipping costs alone. And when the carload is delivered, the money for the freight bill must be at hand. Railroads don't "carry" their customers for weeks or months.

Pat also gave a bit of advice on how close a car should be to a railroad crossing when waiting for a train to pass—or rather how far away the car should be. Why? Well, little bits of debris come sailing off the trains from time to time. And he had a piece of a spring from a railroad car axle to show what he meant; it was in the Farm Center's yard. There are only about three coils in the piece of spring, but it is 5/8" steel and has some heft. You can imagine what it would do to a windshield or other portion of an automobile if it happened to fly off at a crossing.

Pat says give the trains plenty of room to pass at a crossing. From the looks of the broken spring, it's good advice.

Headline: "Union Leaders Resign Over Veto." No, they didn't resign from their union leadership—they walked out on the administration's labor-management committee. They remind me of one who says, "If you aren't going to play my way, then you can't play with my ball."

Why did they walk out? Because President Ford vetoed a bill (involving "common situs picketing") which would have allowed building trades union pickets to shut down an entire construction site in a dispute with only one subcontractor.

Headline: "Hospitals Hire Emergency Help." It's about the situation in Los Angeles in which doctor's have gone on strike because of a 327 percent increase in malpractice insurance premiums.

The blame is directed toward insurance companies. But the real reason is that the public expects to have someone else pay for every adversity, and there are attorneys who specialize in representing such people, and the courts and juries have gone overboard in awarding damages. How can you expect an insurance company to pay out astronomical settlements or awards without having astronomical premium increases???

At the center of the whole problem is the "no fault" idea which has been promoted in recent years. It's supposed to be cheaper just to pay the bill and forget who's at fault—if there is any fault. But the idea is bad, because (1) there isn't much restraint exercised when you're shelling out somebody else's money, and (2) the basic element in carrying out justice lies in determining fault.

The public is getting what it asked for, if you ask me.

Hep's Plan Grand Opening

Hep's Dairy Store in Saint Joe will have a grand opening next weekend to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The former two story frame building, used as a grocery by several owners through the years, is now a one-story building. The second story was removed during the past summer.

Other changes have been made to make the store more comfortable and to save on the use of energy to heat the establishment. There are now no large windows on the store front. Wood paneling has been installed. The ceiling has been dropped to add to comfort and efficiency.

A new tile floor has been installed, as has a walk-in cooler.

In addition, the store now has a donut franchise to provide a a daily supply of fresh donuts. Fresh popcorn is another new item at the store.

The store will have specials next weekend, announced in an ad elsewhere in this issue. And attendance-purchase prizes will be given Saturday.

The remodeling and renovating has been done by Snyder Construction Company of Saint Joe.

Blazers Win 4th In Row

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers won their fourth game in a row last Friday, defeating favored Woodlan 42-40 at Butler. The Blazers had lost their first six games before starting their winning streak.

With 8 seconds remaining in the game, Rick Rinard hit on a fielder and Gary Dielman made a free throw to win the game.

Dave Kandel led scoring with 16 points and had 10 rebounds.

The Blazers sank 12 of 20 free throw attempts while their opponents got 6 of 9. Woodlan outscored the Blazers 17-15 from the field.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted:

The untimely death of a friend, Betty Rediger, has caused me to pause and reflect on philosophy of life.

I knew Betty from high school years on and the manner in which she lived has many lessons for all of us. She exercised courage and determination in facing life's problems. Her ready smile was proof of her willingness to be a sincere friend.

Her voice has been stilled; her place in church choir will be empty, but her sense of loyalty, positive attitude, lack of criticism, and sincerity will remain as guidance signals to aid us in life's passage.

Yours truly,
Virginia Laux

On January 12, 1976, the first meeting of the new year was held at the Spencerville United Methodist Fellowship Hall with 30 members and one guest, Randy Reinhart, present.

To start the new year off with a bang, the president, Lion Jerry Storer, arrived early for the first time in recent history, causing everyone present to check his clock to see exactly what time it was, but the meeting was called to order at 6:30 p.m.

Following a delectable meal, the first order of business was on International Youth Exchange. Each year, Lions International helps to make arrangements for young people to travel to many various countries of the world. It is the responsibility of the local club to sponsor such youths that are deemed worthy of such a rewarding experience. A young lady has asked our club to sponsor her so that she may have an opportunity to go to France this summer. The local club may, at their own option, elect to provide some financial aid to that person. The local club has decided to sponsor the young lady and will report more details of her trip at a later date.

Next was a report on Lions Komet hockey night. Several of the local club are going to the game. Our local club receives one-half credit for the purchase of these tickets and the money will go this year to help purchase renal care equipment at one of the Fort Wayne hospitals.

A note to all Lions: January, February and March are new member months, so if you know of anyone you wish to sponsor as a member, start the ball rolling now.

The den should be full for our next meeting as our guests will be the Cedar Creek Lions Club. All St. Joe Lions should plan to attend to show our guests the kind of club we really are. Also, don't forget, February 9 will be Ladies Night.

Lion Harold Murphy then presented Lion Andy Crow with the Key Award for sponsoring two new members.

Lion Murphy then inducted our newest member, Jerry Markle of Spencerville, into the club. Jerry's sponsor is Howard Timmerman.

The meeting then adjourned as the program committee had a mixup in their dates. (Hope they contact their speaker so he doesn't show up to an empty meeting hall next week.)

In a brief board meeting there was some discussion on a particular member of our community who needs some help.

It was decided to help this individual by having a work session Saturday, January 17, at Jerry Storer's at 8:30 a.m.

Did you know—

—that Jack Frank of Saint Joe is reported to have been injured this week in an accident in Georgia.

—that the Eastside freshman basketball team beat Hamilton Monday at Butler 42-40.

—that Brian Cook of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that Ronald Lee Eddy of Butler and Robyn Spencer Bard of Corunna were married Saturday in the Missionary Church at Auburn.

—that Mose Yeiser was taken to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week for observation.

—that schools closed two days this week due to snow.

—that State Representative Katie Hall (D-Gary) has introduced legislation to allow teachers to retire at age 62. Rep. Hall is a teacher.

—that George Horn, 61, of Garrett died Sunday at Angola. Included in the survivors is a son, Robert, of Spencerville.

—that the Garrett-Keyser-Butler Community School District school board has voted to proceed with improvements and construction estimated to cost $1.6 million. However, a group of citizens, with attorney H. Charles Winans as spokesman, is opposing the move.

—that 8th Congressional District Representative Philip H. Hayes (D) seeks nomination as the candidate for the U.S. Senate, a post now held by three-term Senator Vance Hartke.

—that the federal excise tax on phone bills dropped to six percent January 1. The World War II "luxury tax" is being phased outout year by year, to end in 1982.

—that farms without a feed grain allotment may have an allotment for the 1976 program year established if they meet eligibility requirements. Deadline for filing is February 17 at the ASCS office at 400 Erie Pass in Auburn.

—that the Environmental Protection Agency has "urged" engravers to use magnesium instead of zinc in making photoengravings for such publications as this paper. The reason: to eliminate any source of pollution. Magnesium requires special care for storage.

—that members of the Indiana Soybean Growers Association meeting at Lafayette January 26 will be urged to boost their membership and strengthen the soybean farmers' voice in political matters.

—that former Governor Edgar D. Whitcomb has criticized the use of federal funds to publish the Indianapolis Journal and similar "community newspapers" in other cities. He is a candidate for GOP nomination for U.S. Senator. He says Uncle Sam "has absolutely no business spending tax dollars to get into the publishing field with private business." He said he was amazed to read that the Indianapolis Journal was established with the leadership and backing of Mayor Richard Lugar, who is also a candidate for the Senate nomination, and the City Council

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

The Christmas Party of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Kline December 17.

A delicious planned potluck was served at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Robert Musser gave thanks.

A short Christmas program was given. Mrs. Kline read the Christmas story from Luke 2: Mrs. Musser read the story of the first poinsettia. Each member made a telegram from the word Santa Claus and also determined how many words could be made from it.

Members answered roll call by recalling a Christmas of long ago.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Musser and Mrs. Kline.

The club met January 7 at the home of Mrs. Kline. Mrs. Musser gave the lesson on "quack medicine." She told how susceptible we are to ads or new things on the market.

Mrs. Carlos Church had a medicine contest for enter tainment.

After discussion Mrs. Kline moved the election of officers be postponed two weeks. The motion carried.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The regular meeting of the Fifty Plus Club was held at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville Thursday, December 18. Marie Ward, MM Arthur Bottoms and Elizabeth Hart were hosts.

The room was beautifully decorated for the Christmas season.

At 6:30 p.m. the group was called to order and after prayer by Sarah Amstutz, a delicious potluck supper was enjoyed by all.

President Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. Greeings were extended to those present. She then read several poems: "December," "Here's To Christmas" and "A Toast To the New Year." She paid tribute to our deceased members and expressed best wishes for a speedy recovery to those who are ill.

She then read a letter from Dorothy Smith, chairman of the Flower and Altar Committee of St. Peter, thanking us for the beautiful poinsettias which we presented to the church.

It was voted to hold our meetings at the community building next year. The business meeting was adjourned and the meeting was then turned over to Marie Ward who had charge of the white elephant exchange which created much fun and laughter and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be held at the community building on Thursday evening, January 22, with Gaylon Markle, Ida Reed and Mary Rutherford as hostesses. See you there.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I broke the law last week.

Postmaster George Armstrong pointed out this week that the grand opening ad of Hep's Dairy Store contained a "lottery-type" drawing at the store for Saturday night, and postal regulations prohibit such information.

Naturally, you can't argue with postal regulations. But the fact of the matter is, people are not buying a chance in that drawing; they are buying merchandise which carries with it an opportunity for a prize. That is not a lottery, it is not gambling. Everyone gets what they pay for and maybe more.

If the U.S. Postal Department were as diligent in seeing to it that they get a day's work from all their employees as they are in keeping tabs on a small business in a small town trying to compete with the big guys in the big city, everybody would be much better off.

When you read stories about "illegal" political campaign contributions by corporations and the criminal prosecution involved, and if it makes you anti-business, keep in mind that "illegal" is used without reference to whether or not the law violated is fair. And keep in mind that, under postal regulations, there is a crook doing business under the name "The Saint Joe News."

—And don't blame George; he didn't write the rules.

Mark and I attended the ACAC tourney Wednesday night when the Blazers were defeated. There were three games played that night.

What struck me was that none of the six schools participating that night had a "cheer block" readily identifiable by identical clothing. There were cheering sections, yes, but no "cheer block" as seen in years past.

It made me wonder. Is it coincidence that everyone that night did without the organized type of cheering evident before? Or is this a matter of legal restrictions, a "civil rights" type of thing so that students are not forced to conform?

Also, all the bands have gone TOTALLY to the thump-thump-thump repetitious and unmusical beat. One band did do a bit of dixieland. But not one march was played. The closest anyone came was in playing the school songs, one of which was our old Riverdale Comets tune and I recalled: "We are here to cheer our Comets on to victory - - -".

And it brought back memories of Riverdale's last graduation ceremony when I played piano accompaniment for the processional and recessional. The usual and customary music was "Pomp and Circumstance" and the like. But I did something different when the graduates started the recessional. I went into the school song, and I saw several heads, including some of the students', look at me in surprise, then smile. My motivation was that this would be the last time we would gather as Riverdale High School and it seemed appropriate— as well as a surprise—to close the book of Riverdale High School with its school song. It appeared others got the message —and were pleased.

—Memories.

—And I wish the band directors would put some variety into music at ball games with some good old Sousa. Do they hafta do what the kids want ALL the time???

Variety is the spice of life.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Betty Rediger wishes to thank friends and neighbors for food, cards, gifts and their prayers. Also, thanks to the ladies of the church for the dinner and Rev. Rhine for the kind words at Betty's death.

God bless every one.

Grievance Withdrawn After Hearing; Student Seizures Cause Problem

In what appears to be the first use of the school grievance committee, the school board of the DeKalb eastern district devoted a portion of its meeting Monday night to review of a grievance submitted by James White of the Eastside faculty. A statement was read from Mr. White who was absent due to a Butler City Council meeting.

The grievance committee is composed of two teachers, Jerry Zonker and William Peden; two parents, Jeri Sechler and Gayle Koeppe; and two students, Dawn Billings and Eric Johnson. Principal Robert Williams was also at the meeting

Mr. White was called from the city council meeting to the school board meeting, and according to the unofficial minutes of the board meeting, then withdrew his grievance after a discussion involving the committee, school board and school administrators.

There is no statement in the minutes to identify the nature of Mr. White's grievance.

In another matter, Superintendent Kenneth Cole explained to the board that Robyn McCann, a senior, had been withdrawn from "on campus" participation to "homebound tutorial" status due to at least two occasions when the student lapsed into unconsciousness, as long as 70 minutes or more.

In the absence of a statement from a medical doctor that the student could safely participate in campus activities, the superintendent took action to protect the entire school system. A statement had been received, but it was stamped, not signed. He said he had consulted with the school attorney and with the parents of the student. It was stated that she could return to campus activity only if the parents signed a "Release and Hold Harmless Agreement." The school board directed the superintendent to continue the course of action undertaken.

Conservat'n Club A Busy Place

—Paul Fetters, member

A calendar for regular uses of the St. Joe Valley Conservation Club follows:

The club officers and members meet the 2nd Wednesday of each month to take care of current business, pay bills and formulate future events.

There is a bingo party every Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. You can get a lunch and/or plenty to eat at the club these nights. This activity is well-attended, the building being almost filled each party.

The gun club has a shoot on the 1st and 4th Sunday of each month, except August. These are merchandise shoots. On the 2nd Sunday registered shoots are held. On the 4th Friday evening, there is a "Calcutta" shoot.

The clubhouse is used almost every Sunday and often during the week, especially for evening events.

To rent the clubhouse, contact Donald Sechler at 337-2929. There is a fee to help pay for lights, heat and custodial care.

The club is solvent with no indebtedness.

The annual membership drive is now underway. Why not become an attending member and help us keep this a good place for community meetings.

EHS To Host Wrestling T'ney

The fifth annual ACAC wrestling tournament will be held at DeKalb Eastside High School at Butler January 31.

There will be a morning round, followed by the championship matches for the top four places in the afternoon.

A total of six teams will participate, including Adams Central, Carroll, Churubusco, Norwell, Woodlan and the host school.

Adams Central is the defending champion and is expected to be strongly challenged by Carroll and Woodlan.

Doors will open at 8:30 a.m. for the morning session and 1:00 p.m. for the afternoon session. Refreshments will be available throughout the day.

Admission prices are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Dr. Coleman Not A Candidate

Dr. Floyd B. Coleman of Waterloo, State Representative from this area for the past eight years, will not seek re-election. Dr. Coleman issued the following statement this week:

"I will not be in the 1976 race for re-election to serve as Joint State Representative for House District 13 (Steuben, DeKalb counties, Springfield Township of LaGrange County and Scipio Township of Allen County). I have made this decision seeking more of God's guidance for my life. I have served on the Public Health and Environmental Affairs, Public Safety, County and Township Business and Insurance and Corporations committees. The past eight years have been a valuble experience for me but my effectiveness in state government is directly proportional to my declining zeal and enthusiasm to serve. I plan to devote more time to my family and family practice of medicine while seeking a closer walk with God. Our nation needs more prayer that God may save this land. I trust that my replacement will be able to support Governor Bowen's administration."

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK—

Muskie Reply Deceptive

In the Democrat party's reply Wednesday night by Edmund Muskie, in answer to President Gerald Ford's "State of the Union" message, there are some puzzling comments which are absolutely contrary to fact.

For instance, in commenting on how to deal with problems, Senator Muskie said we shouldn't push the "panic button" every time. The inference is that President Ford has taken quick action on many occasions to cope with a situation—too quick, in panic, and unwise.

However, this observation is totally inconsistent with the criticism coming time after time from Senator Muskie's own Democrat colleagues. They have been highly critical of the President's alleged lack of action in dealing with problem situations. Indeed, Presidential hopeful Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana has been consistent and persistent in his public statements criticizing the President's "failure to take action" in this or that situation.

Democrat criticism of the President's "State of the Union" message consistently included the main point that the speech was general in nature and offered no specifics.

But Senator Muskie's speech also was general in nature and offered no specifics. For instance, concerning the removal of price controls on oil and gas (a move President Ford favors), Senator Muskie said only that prices must be kept "at a reasonable level."

What IS a reasonable level? The public is impressed by such a comment because the public is thinking in terms of "reasonable" as related to their own pocketbooks.

But what about the "energy industry" which also must receive "reasonable" prices for its products in order to expand to meet energy needs.

Was the President speaking in general terms to advocate removal of controls? Absolutely not. Whether you agree with him or not, the fact of the matter is that a request from the Congress was (and has been in the past) made by the President. He spoke to the point. But Senator Muskie spoke in general terms of such a nature that the average American likes what they hear. BUT IT DOES NOT TELL THEM ANYTHING.

I do not like everything I have read about the President's speech. I didn't listen to it because I consider the "State of the Union" messages from ANY President as a means of speaking in general terms basically, simply because whatever is done thereafter depends almost entirely on the Congress. "State of the Union" messages are a dime a dozen. And the time spent persistently criticizing such speeches is so much wasted effort. Words are cheap; it's the action that counts.

No, I wouldn't do away with the traditional "State of the Union" message by the President to the Congress. It serves the purpose of setting a "tone" for the coming year in general terms.

However, that "tone" is useless without some "harmonizing" from the Congress—including Senator Muskie.

On Growing Older - or -

Super Bowl 'Super Baloney'

I suppose it's a sign of growing older — to have the "ups and downs" of daily living seeming to occur at a constantly increasing rate. It becomes even more upsetting to realize that things "get to you" more than they did in the past, and with greater intensity. The only comforting thought, which doesn't always help much, is that the upset and concern are over those things which are not due to personal concern for self only but also personal concern for others. If that's bragging, so be it.

About the time I am ready to close shop and quit fighting what seems to be a losing battle, someone says or writes a word of encouragement. And I say to myself, "You can't quit." Even though, as someone points out from time to time, "You can't change anything; why try, why keep pushing?", and it seems they are correct, I wonder what would have happened if some of the historic personages we remember for their contribution to individual liberty and freedom had said, "Well, I guess it's no use. It's a waste of time to keep fighting, to keep trying. We're losing all the time." I wonder if the reason we have such a negative look about legislators, about business, about government, isn't because so many people have said, "It's no use" ..... and by so doing, give greater influence and power by default to those whose ideas are apparently, and sometimes obviously, contrary to what we call "the American way."

Even though Americans generally recognize the virtues of what we call "good sportsmanship," the importance of winning seems to corrupt our efforts so often today. One good example in my opinion occurred in the so-called, "Super Bowl" pro football game Sunday afternoon. Late in the game, a Pittsburgh player and a Dallas player were shown as they attempted to get through one another's block. The two fell in a tangle, and as the Steeler player got up, he gained leverage by puting his knee on the back of the Cowboy player's neck. The latter didn't get up, required assistance from the bench as he remained on the artificial turf, then was assisted off the field. About two plays later as I recall, the Steeler quarterback, Terry Bradshaw, was "creamed" from behind as he threw a long pass. He, too, was helped from the field after receiving attention from the bench.

Since we did not have the audio turned up, I do not know what the TV announcers said about the two plays. But I do know that earlier in the game, four different replays were made on a pass play. But the play in which the Cowboy was injured was run but once, the play in which Bradshaw was injured was run but once and it did not show too pointedly the force of the impact when he was "tackled." In my book, it was a deliberate coverup of two "cheap shots."

As far as I am concerned, the Super Bowl is far from "super" in terms of quality. Only the pay is "super." The announcers (why do they need a half dozen announcers, including a good-looking chick whose presence is mostly an imposition because of "women's lib") do their best to make the game worthy of the word "super." But then, that's what they're paid for and what they say is very definitely prejudiced. It takes someone like sports columnist Jim Murray to tell it like it is.

And the way it was Sunday at the Super Bowl was no more than a football game like dozens of others during the season. Other than some four or five super catches by the game's most valuable player, there was nothing outstanding. (I must state, however, that I did not watch the entire game.) Quite the contrary. The potentially exciting closing moments were totally marred by two "cheap shots" which were uncalled for. The first might have been explained as just an accident, except for the fact that Pittsburgh prides itself on its ability to "intimidate" their opponents. This point was emphasized several times in the interviews after the game with Steeler players in their locker room. For them, intimidate means play rough and scare 'em.

And it was obvious that sacking the opposition quarterback so violently moments later was outright retaliation by Dallas. It is significant that Mr. Bradshaw was not interviewed in the locker room, even though he was the winning quarterback. He wasn't even mentioned, not by the announcers, not by the club owner, not by the coach, not by the other players, to the best of my recollection. Monday I read that he was hit so hard, he "saw stars" or "heard the bells" or some such description. My conclusion — he was in no condition to be interviewed. Attention was diverted to other people as part of the ballyhoo to promote as a high class contest what really was a third rate exhibition of "sportsmanship."

Newspaper accounts of the game have also been noticeably devoid of any significant reference to the plays involved.

Especially irritating to me is the fact that members of the winning team got something like $15,000 each for that one game—and it takes me a year to earn that much, while trying to be a "good sport" about the knocks which come in everyday living and not retaliate — a situation shared by millions of other Americans.

So—once again I feel compelled to speak out, to say what must be said, appearing to be "negative" in my criticism of an obviously popular event while striving to preserve the "positive" in the virtue of good sportsmanship. Despite the two-week buildup for the Super Bowl, including a front page picture of a bikini-clad cutie with a football, being chased on the beach by three Super Bowl pro football studs, despite the willingness of the public to shell out millions to attend the game and others to believe the propaganda put out to promote the game, the whole thing centers on getting as many as possible of the almighty dollar from sports fans' pockets for the group of people who, last Sunday, contributed not one constructive iota to American culture and the sense of fair play.

Super Bowl? Super baloney. There's nothing "super" about "intimidation" leading to injury or intentional retaliation to get rid of the quarterback.

It served one good purpose, though — to show how NOT to play ANY game. including the game of life.

Money 'Mitigates' Morality

One of the things which Hoosiers take pride in is the general outlook that morality and principles are important factors in government. No, we don't always do the right thing; but most of the time, Indiana residents are guided by motivations coming from higher than their own human nature.

Therefore, it is disappointing to say the least to have our State Legislators giving favorable consideration to pari-mutuel betting on the horses. Both Republicans and Democrats are on the betting bandwagon, though the Senate vote this week was close. It causes one to fear the apparent pattern that, if you don't get a bill through the first time, try again—and again—and again. Eventually you'll get a majority just by wearing down resistance.

Most Hoosiers know that, in principle, involvement by government in gambling is totally wrong. Yet, we have now a foot in the door to legalize pari-mutuel betting. Why? Apparently the main reason is to get more money in state government coffers by an "easy" way rather than raise taxes.

Under the Senate proposal, 55% of the state's "take" would go into the general fund, 7.5% would go to another category, another small percentage would go elsewhere.

But the real eye-opener is that 25% would go to the horse breeding industry.

Since when did we make private enterprise a responsibility of the state? If someone wants to raise race horses, let 'em do it. That's THEIR business, not the state's. There is nothing which prohibits such endeavors in Indiana. Why split the profits through the state government in a program which has no redeeming value, no constructive effect on the average citizen?

I'm amazed that any Indiana legislator, regardless of party affiliation, could give even a second thought to such a proposal, having taken an oath to protect the public welfare in legislative matters. As some of the opposing State Senators pointed out (opposition in both the Democrat and Republican parties), states with legalized pari-mutuel betting are having problems, and those problems are related to corruption in the state-controlled betting system. Don't we have enough troubles already, without asking for more????

Governor Otis Bowen vetoed a similar bill before. He says he will veto this one if it gets by both houses of the state legislature. I say, more power to him. And if you are of the same opinion, drop him a card or letter and let him know you're backing him.

It might also help to get some of the names of those who propose and support pari-mutuel betting (from the daily papers) and let them know your concern and dissatisfaction. If government is to be responsive to the people, the people must be responsive to legislative proposals or we will have increasing minority rule rather than majority rule.

P.S. A state lottery is also still on the legislative griddle. Once again, despite the problems in other states with corruption in lotteries, the appeal of more money is evident. Particularly, with police and firemen pension funds heading toward astronomical sums and cities unable to provide for such liberal benefits as the pension programs entail, the lure of lottery receipts is very real in the minds of some legislators. Apparently, some of them might do anything to get the money to cover the program, rather than question the program itself and determine if it is unreasonable as far as the liberal benefits are concerned, paid for by taxpayers.

Anderson's Total Error

In a recent column, Jack Anderson, the noted Washington columnist, listed reasons why President Gerald Ford faced trouble in seeking election, why Republicans in general faced the same trouble.

I run "hot and cold" as far as Mr. Anderson's views are concerned. I'm with him when he exposes wrongdoing or unethical tactics on the part of our federal government. At times, he seems to show no favorites. At other times, it seems apparent that he especially likes to embarrass Republicans. His recent column was an example of this leaning, in my opinion.

Mr. Anderson stated generally that unless a big improvement came in the next few months in our total national situation, President Ford (if he gains his party's nomination) will have a rough time getting elected. Mr. Anderson said the unemployment picture must improve, the rate of inflation must be lowered, and a few other things—or the American public will do what it always does—turn to the party not in power. Mr. Anderson said this means trouble also for Republicans running for both houses of Congress.

I think Mr. Anderson is totally misleading his readers because the inference is that Republicans are in control at the national level. Such is not the case. A Republican President is NOT in control of the United States. We are controlled in fact by a Democrat Congress. Presidents don't legislate; the Congress does. While the President does have certain powers, including the veto, much of his effort is subject to the FINAL decision by Congress.

One of the unique qualities about the republic established by our forefathers was a system of "checks and balances" through our executive, legislative and judicial branches of government. One cannot go unchecked in its activities; there is a way to stop it—theoretically speaking. It's not a perfect system obviously, because of certain circumstances from time to time when authority is exceeded. But that occurs only when the other two branches fail to function in their responsibilities.

Unfortunately, many citizens have gotten the idea that having a President from one party and a Congressional majority from the opposite party is an essential part of the system of checks and balances. But the general public, and Mr. Anderson, persistently overlook the fact that criticism of President Ford for not "dealing forcefully with national problems" is unfair. If he has a program in mind to cope with a situation, approval must be given by Congress. He gets blamed for not dealing with inflation. Yet, when he asked to have a pay raise for government workers reduced, the Congress said "no"—and the Congress is controlled by Democrats. The public generally was aroused last year when a proposal was made to give Congress another pay raise. Congress did vote itself more money for expenses though backing off on the salary increase. And some of that expense money need not be accounted for by members of Congress; they can draw on it as they wish. Keep in mind who controls Congress. Is it reasonable and fair to criticize the President but let Congress go scot-free????

It is beyond me how Republicans can be blamed for our ills, how the public can feel justified in "checking and balancing" the President with an opposition Congress when they have done exactly the opposite for every Democrat President in the past 44 years. EVERY DEMOCRAT PRESIDENT (Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy, Johnson) IN THAT PERIOD HAS HAD A DEMOCRAT MAJORITY IN CONGRESS TO WORK WITH. But—a Republican President for some reason must be denied that advantage. Then we wonder why he "doesn't do anything"!!!!

It has been 20 years since Republicans controlled the federal government, despite what Mr. Anderson may say. Yet, when miracles aren't performed, when recovery doesn't come fast without anyone getting hurt in the process, Republicans get blamed. I recall that a few years ago, a farmer friend of mine—and a Democrat—was positive and outspoken in his opposition to Richard Nixon at campaign time. My friend's comments ran along the line: "Just watch—elect Nixon and we'll have dollar a bushel wheat in a year's time." You know, I never heard a peep from my friend in the years that followed and farmers saw their income go up. He is now retired and able to spend his winters in Florida. The point is, despite the fact that Democrats had controlled farm programs for years and farmers weren't too happy with the results, a Republican got blamed before he even got in office.

What ought to be done in 1976 is elect a Republican President (Ford or Reagan) AND a Republican Congress. If, as the public opinion polls indicate, the average American considers himself more "conservative" than "liberal," then the generally-conservative Republican party ought to be given a chance to run the show.

Liberal Democrats and some liberal Republicans (don't mention Rockefeller, Brooke, Javitts, Percy, Lindsay, etc., to me) have had their way for years in sponsoring and promoting government programs sold on the idea of bringing "a better life." Our problems today are the fruits of one-sided legislative efforts for the past 44 years. Their high-sounding ideas have not worked. Our society today is worse off than before, worse even than in the depression years of the 1930's. At least you could walk the streets then in safety. At least what income you had then you could call your own. The New Deal, New Frontier and Great Society didn't make it. The massive social welfare programs have not improved anything. Instead, they have taken away individual liberty, rights and responsibilties by COMPULSORY participation by our citizens.

In 1976, it would be particularly appropriate to give the conservative, individualistic, realistic philosophy of the Republican party an opportunity to prove itself. The Democrats have had their chance, for 40 out of the last 44 years. Remember that—Democrats and liberals have had their way 90% of the time. But Republicans and conservatives get blamed for "not doing anything" to correct our ills, having had only a 10% opportunity.

But—to take such a step, Americans must be prepared for rough times. When you have "overdosed" on the drug of false prosperity as long as we have, withdrawal will be painful. But it's the only cure.

Last Member Of Older Local Family Dies

Mildred Jarrett provides the News with the information that Anne Curie Henderson, youngest daughter of Christian and Catherine Curie, who formerly lived just south of Saint Joe on a farm now owned by Franklyn Sechler, died December 30. She was born September 12, 1882, and married Harry W. Henderson of Spencerville April 22, 1903. Mr. Henderson died in 1969. The couple had lived in Muskegon, Grant and Newaygo, Michigan.

Mrs. Henderson was a housewife and, in later years, helped with the family business, Henderson & Sons Grocery Stores in Grant and Newaygo, until their retirement.

Survivors include a son, Frank; two grandsons, Jerry and Jim; and four great grandchildren, all of Newaygo.

Mrs. Henderson was a "Gold Star Mother" from World War II.

The funeral and burial were in Newaygo January 2, 1976.

Of related interest is the fact that, from the time the first school was opened in Saint Joe, there was a "Curie" in attendance until Carlton Curie, son of Charles Curie and grandson of Frank Curie, graduated in 1951. This information came from Mrs. Amanda Curie Klophenstine the year Carlton graduated. A few years ago, Mrs. Klophenstine died at the age of 104 years.

There were no more of the Curie family in Saint Joe schools until Charles Curie, son of Harold and Emily Curie, started school in 1961. He is now a junior at Huntington College.

A sister, Leota, will graduate from Eastside High School with the Class of 1976.

Blazers Drop 2

After taking four in a row to break a six-game losing streak, the DeKalb Eastside Blazers were downed Friday of last week by Adams Central 62-55.

The Blazers led 43-39 going into the last quarter. Adams Central then rallied and scored 23 points to the Blazers' 12 to take the win.

Rick Rinard had his highest point total this season, getting 26 points on 10 field goals and a half-dozen free throws.

The game was won at the free throw line with the winners getting 20 of 24. Eastside scored on 9 of 13 attempts.

In the ACAC tourney this week, the Blazers lost to Carroll 67-53 in a game played Wednesday night at the Coliseum at Fort Wayne.

Rinard again led scoring on 5 buckets and 10 free throws for 20 points.

Down 35-29 at the half, the Blazers opened the third period by pulling to within three points. However, Carroll's obvious height advantage regained control on rebounding and the winners outscored Eastside 16-12 in each of the last two periods.

UF Meeting

The annual meeting of the United Fund of DeKalb County, Inc., was held January 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the United Fund office at 118 West Sixth Street in Auburn.

Elected to the board were Jerry Markle of Spencerville, Paula Slentz of Waterloo and Barbara Oren and Bill James of Auburn. There are still three vacancies to be filled for the Garrett-Keyser-Butler area.

Conrad Hafner was re elected president; Gerald McNerny re-elected vice-president; Nancy McNabb secretary and Bill James treasurer.

The 1975-76 campaign has reached $82,500, 90% of the goal. Some contributions are still coming in.

Special thanks were given to campaign chairmen: Barbara Oren for the DeKalb Central District; Ralph Best for the Garrett-Keyser-Butler District and Jack Bercaw for the DeKalb Eastside District.

It is hoped that a reduction in campaign and administrative costs plus continuing contributions will allow the UF to fully cover the approved budgets of all participating agencies.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

In case there is a misunderstanding—my remark last week about the Postal Department being more diligent in getting a day's work from its employees was NOT prompted by conditions in our local post office.

Since others have been talking about it, and it involves a public meeting, I ought to have the privilege of pointing out that when the town board held its January meeting, Fred Rayle nominated Roger Coburn for president—and Loretta Loy nominated herself!

—And some folks call ME pushy!

Also, a notice appeared in this week's Wednesday issue of the Auburn Evening Star advertising for bids for an addition to the Saint Joe fire hall. No such notice has been given to the Saint Joe News, however.

Thanks to the student who sent the articles about the National Honor Society and the "Who's Who" in high school. I am pretty sure I recognize the handwriting and appreciate the volunteer effort to shari the information with other readers.

Dawn Beaty Is Installed By Rainbow Girls

Dawn Beaty was installed as Worthy Advisor of Rainbow Assembly 104, Spencerville, on Saturday night, January 24. She is the daughter of MM Chalmer Beaty of Saint Joe. Installing officer was her sister, Sharon Collett, of Fort Wayne who served as Worthy Advisor in 1962.

Another sister, Sue Beard, was Installing Recorder and she is a former Rainbow girl.

Other installing officers were Alice Hollabaugh, chaplain; Sandy Lechleidner, musician; and Kathy Jacquay, marshall.

Other girls present to be installed were Sandy Mansfield, Worthy Associate Advisor; Tammi Campbell, Charity; Nancy Heffelfinger, Hope; Anita Hudson, Faith; Sandy Heffelfinger, Recorder and Historian; Brenda Beaty, Treasurer and Service; Margaret McCullough, Chaplain and Fidelity; Marsha Busche, Drill Leader and Our Hoosier Promise Reporter; Cheri Melchi, Rose Lecturer and Nature; Renea Chappell, Immortality; Aleta Brown, Musician and Patriotism; Melinda Cannady, Confidential Observer; and Barbara Mumma, pro-tem.

Mrs. Darrell Heffelfinger was installed as Mother Advisor.

Board members present to be installed were Beverly Heffelfinger, Darrell Heffelfinger, Mary Ellen Beaty, Mike Beaty, Alice Hollabaugh, Charlotte Campbell, Charlotte Hudson and Vic Timmerman.

Those unable to attend will be installed at a later date.

Girls' Sectional Next Week

The girls basketball sectional will be held at DeKalb Central High School next week.

On Wednesday, February 4, Garrett faces DeKalb Central at 7 p.m. Fremont will play Hamilton at 8:30 p.m.

Thursday night finds Angola facing DeKalb Eastside at 7 p.m. and the winners of Wednesday's games play at 8:30.

The championship game will be played at 8:15 Saturday.

The winner will advance to the Fort Wayne Northrop regional the following weekend.

11 At EHS In 'Who's Who'

Eleven DeKalb Eastside students have been selected for the ninth annual edition of "Who's Who Among American High School Students." The listing is published by Educational Communications, Inc., of Northbrook, Illinois, and is the largest high school recognition program in the nation.

Students are nominated for the honor by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups and churches, or by the publishing company based upon the student's performance in scholarship or award contests.

Weather Rough On Streets

Recent snow, slightly melted on a moderate-temperature day or two, has turned county roads into a sheet of ice. School closed Monday and had not reopened by Thursday this week.

The weather conditions have played havoc with State Road 1 in Saint Joe. Numerous chuck holes of considerable size are now evident. And with winter only half over, it appears that this may be one of the most destructive seasons experienced as far as highway maintenance is concerned.

NHS Members Inducted At EHS

DeKalb Eastside High School National Honor Society held its induction ceremonies November 24, 1975.

Second NHS members are Sherry Alloway, Brenda Armstrong, Dawn Billings, Julie Bungard, Leota Curie, Scott Graham, Cheryl Kandel, Kevin Likes, Kim Phillips, Mike Roop, Tammy Rowe, Bernadette Rubalcaba, Rita Willibey and Darlene Wolf.

Students who were inducted into NHS are: Linda Ahrndt, Laura Bevington, Bruce Bowman, James Burns, Lisa Ferguson, Kenda Ginder, Laura Hook, Cindy Hudson, Eric Johnson, David Kandel, Tom Kimmel, Susan McCann, Diane Peden, Tamara Rayle, Lorna Reinhart, Chris Sipe, Gary Sipe, Phil Staley and Jeff Yates.

Officers serving NHS for the 1975-76 school year are: Cheryl Kandel, president; Darlene Wolf, vice-president; Sherry Alloway, secretary-treasurer; Kim Phillips, reporter.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to friends, neighbors and relatives for their donation of food, cards of sympathy and floral offerings. We also wish to thank the Baillinger & Walter Funeral Home for their kindness and sympathy.

And thanks to Pastor Schantz for his kind words. Especially do we appreciate the efforts of the Ladies of the Church in providing the family dinner.

Our thanks and appreciation go also to the Saint Joe firemen for their help.

God bless each and every one.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

Musical evening of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser January 21.

Mrs. Forrest Bevington, as leader, gave the early history of music in America. Then she played a recording of Purdue Choral Collections made in August 1975. It was in commemmoration of the American Bicentennial celebration and consisted entirely of American folk songs and works by American composers, with a special emphasis on patriotic songs. Some of the songs were: Heritage; My Johnny's A Soldier; Cotton Needs Pickin'; Were You There?; America; etc.

Election of officers was held with the following being elected: president, Mrs. Robert Musser; vice-president, Mrs. Forrest Bevington; recording secretary, Mrs. Maurice Kline; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser; treasurer, Mrs. Carl Perkins; parliamentarian, Mrs. Carlos Church; critic, Mrs. Roy Baker; and historian, Mrs. Harold Hamman.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

Norman Gerig Seeks House Seat

Norman L. Gerig, now completing eight years as DeKalb County clerk, has announced his candidacy for the nomination as Representative for the 13th District, Indiana House of Representatives, on the Republican ticket. Dr. Floyd B. Coleman of Waterloo now holds that seat in the state legislature, but has stated he is not a candidate for re-election.

The 13th District is made up of DeKalb and Steuben counties plus single townships in both Allen and LaGrange counties.

Raised in Allen County, Mr. Gerig was educated in the Woodburn schools where he graduated in 1941 at the age of 16. He was immediately employed in farming, an occupation he has retained for the 35 years following. He has also been self-employed in trucking, has been a school bus driver and occupied public office.

Mr. Gerig and Mary Lou Williamson of Allen County were married in 1946. They have three children, Kathy Bowman, Gail Bratton and Michael. The two daughters are licensed teachers.

Mr. Gerig's participation in politics began with membership and office in the Allen County Young Republican Club. Since moving to DeKalb County 21 years ago, he has served a four year term on the Union Township Advisory Board followed by his two terms as county clerk.

Mr. Gerig stated his philosophy as follows: "I sincerely believe that home rule is the best rule; the governmental body nearest the people is the most sensitive to their needs, and the most economical. I classify myself as a progressive-conservative; that is, I believe in progressing with the times as is necessary, while protecting the needs of the future. I believe in being as conservative with the public's money as with my own."

In Letters To The Editor—

Reader Concerned About Discipline, Congressman About Misinformation, Another Reader 'Fed Up' With Editor

Dear Ted:

Jan. 20, 1976

In reading The DeKalb County Herald of 1913 I ran across an item that was very interesting to me, and I felt that it had a little story behind it. Not long ago a boy in the third grade at St. Joe was told to sit down at his desk and put his head down on the desk as punishment for something he needed punishment for and this little impudent student said, "I'll have my parents sue you." This was the tyrannical attitude his parents had instilled in him. Disregard for all manner of law and order, which every society MUST have to survive, is the WORST training any child can have. We are reaping the results, in our society today, of the delinquent parents and children of the last 50 years. Unless our country returns to the law of the rod for both criminals and children we are going to see worse things and more of it than we have now.

The article names the teachers for the different districts as follows:

"Miss Cordice Hallett is teaching the Tamarac school and makes the trip over the interurban every day. The Ridge school has Miss Ethelwin Rowe for a teacher this year. Jessie Fleming, after a year's absence, returns to the Stroh school and James Husselman SWINGS THE ROD at the Husselman school. This is the line up for Grant this year and the teachers are all experienced."

More power to Mr. Husselman! God knew what He was saying in Proverbs 22:15:

"Foolishness is bound up in the heart of a child; the rod of discipline will remove it far from him."

It is the downfall of our nation that our teachers are not allowed to "swing the rod" and teach a child what he has not been taught at home.

While I'm talking to you I want to tell you I have really appreciated many of your editorials this past year, which reminds me it is time for renewal so enclosed find check for same.

Yours truly,
LuReign Strong

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515
January 22, 1976

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Your article concerning the Child and Family Services Act of 1975 in the December 18, 1975 edition of your newspaper has recently come to my attention. I believe your article is inaccurate and misinterprets both the language and intent of this proposed legislation.

This bill is designed to strengthen family life and to insure decision-making at the community level, with direct participation by the parents of the children served. It would also make available a wide range of health services so that parents could obtain expert assistance in detecting physical and mental handicaps early in a child's life.

Unfortunately, much inaccurate information has been circulating on this bill, including two mimeographed pages which contain a series of erroneous statements. The mimeographed pages make reference to page 44138, a page which appeared in the "Congressional Record" four years ago. At that time, Senator Curtis of Nebraska was commenting on a totally different bill in 1971. Furthermore, the "Charter of Children's Rights" which Senator Curtis cites is identified on that page as the "Charter of Children's Rights of the British Advisory Center of Education." This British draft of proposals has absolutely no relation whatsoever to the legislation in the United States.

I am deeply and sincerely concerned that all of our nation's children be given equal opportunities to grow and enjoy all the benefits living in the United States can offer. I should note that this bill is still at the Subcommittee level in both House and Senate, so no vote on the measure is expected soon.

I hope this information aids you in correcting your article.

Yours sincerely,
J. Edward Roush
Member of Congress

P.S. This letter should not be taken as an indication that I would vote for the legislation. I am interested in accuracy of information.

January 24, 1976

Dear Ted,

I am fed up with the way you continue to degrade teachers.

Now you want us to consult the taxpayers before we do anything in the classroom. Can you imagine how boggled down education would get? In the first place, we couldn't begin to please everyone. Secondly, so much time would be consumed in determining what the public wanted us to do in any specific instance that we would have no time left to do it.

We have a representative government. You elect the school board, which in turn puts much thought and effort into hiring qualified teachers.

It is not possible to please everyone, but it seems that when it comes to the schools, it is almost impossible to ever please you.

Ruth Shilling

$5,000 Given By Cancer Unit

The DeKalb Cancer Association, Inc., at the request of Caylor-Nickel Clinic in Bluffton, recently donated $5,000 to fund a special research project on early detection of lung cancer.

Because lung cancer is one of the forms of the disease with a relatively poor recovery rate, the National Cancer Institute has been coordinating tests for early lung cancer detection. Participating in the program are the Mayo Clinic, Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. The groups are reporting a high incidence of early detection, and 60% of these patients have an optimistic outlook, a figure much higher than normal.

High-risk patients are those over age 45 who smoke a package or more of cigarettes per day. Tests are conducted on these patients every four months, and Caylor Nickel contemplates the addition of a spontaneous rosette formation and rosette inhibition test to the usual testing procedure.

It is to finance this extra testing that the DeKalb Cancer Association granted the funds to the well-known area clinic.

The association is one of the agencies of United Fund. Additional funds come from memorials, bequests and other contributions. No direct solicitation is ever made.

Established in 1965, the local association's purpose is: (1) to provide financial aid (up to $75 per month) for home cancer care to needy patients whose incomes and insurance benefits have proved inadequate; (2) to donate funds to county hospitals for purchase of equipment and instruments used in cancer detection or care, and also to provide funds for cancer research projects; and (3) to inform and educate the public regarding the importance of early detection of the disease.

The association does not provide funds for hospital or doctor bills, or for nursing care, but will make every effort to aid the patient in securing assistance through the proper agencies.

Officers are Dr. Don Derrow, president; Mrs. J. D. Brinkerhoff, vice-president; Michael Haggarty, treasurer; Mrs. Roy Williams, secretary; Mrs. F. J. Longden, memorial chairman.

Other board members are Mrs. Forrest Bevington of Saint Joe; Mrs. Darrell Miller and Mrs. Otis Fisher of Butler; Mrs. Wiley Phillips of Ashley-Hudson; Mrs. Walter Haislip and Mrs. H. N. Grimm of Waterloo; and Mrs. James Carper, Dr. C. B. Hathaway, Rev. George Schuette and Donald Mefford of Auburn.

All inquiries to these representatives are confidential.

Smoking Moms Affect Health Of Infants

(A health message from your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana)

Undersized babies have a tougher time coping with life than normal-sized babies. And mothers who smoke face an increased risk of delivering small infants.

The more an expectant mother smokes, the more carbon monoxide she absorbs. Carbon monoxide forces oxygen out of the red blood cells and cuts down the supply of oxygen in the mother's body and delivery to the fetus. The effects are shocking.

According to Dr. Neville Butler at the University of Bristol in England, when a pregnant woman smokes only one cigarette, the carbon monoxide level in the maternal and fetal blood increases 10 percent for SEVEN HOURS. Studies of the umbilical cords from newborn babies also show injury to the arteries when mothers smoke.

A mother's smoking may even affect the breathing movements of her developing fetus, according to Dr. Butler.

A study of fetal movements during the last ten weeks of pregnancy showed that these movements decrease markedly after the mother smokes only two cigarettes. The movements are a kind of muscle practice, a preparation by the baby for breathing on its own.

There are hundreds of harmful chemicals in cigarette smoke. Nicotine may cause the placental blood vessels to narrow and thus further diminish the supply of nourishment and oxygen to the unborn baby. In animal experiments, nicotine injected into the bloodstream of pregnant monkeys produced an impairment of the heart rate, blood pressure, oxygen supply and acid balance of the unborn infant.

Babies deserve the best chance they can get for health and life. Contact your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana, 802 West Wayne Street, Fort Wayne 46804, the "Christmas Seal people", for more information about all kinds of effects of cigarette smoking. They have the facts. It's a matter of life and breath—everybody's.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

In going through the 1971 volume of The Saint Joe News last week, I came across the photo run when Jiggs' Motor Service observed its 25th year in business. It's late, but just for the record, Jiggs' Motor Service observed its 30th year on November 26, 1975.

Jim Kroemer, editor of the Auburn Evening Star, had a bit in his column, "Window On Ninth Street," this week with which I am in complete agreement.

He spoke of pageants and opined that a good thing can be carried too far. What prompted his remarks was publicity on the "Little Miss Nationwide Talent Contest." It's for girls ages 5 to 12. Indiana had its contest December 20 at Indianapolis.

Jim points out that a girl can compete in pageants for 21 years. And with the number of contestants who have been in the Miss Indiana contest for the third or fourth time, such participation can become almost professional. He concludes:

"Extending pageantry downward to little girls only five years old cheapens the whole concept of pageantry.

"But primarily I disagree with it because I don't feel it is right to subject children to the kind of pressure such competition naturally creates."

—Amen.

—I wonder what he thinks of vocational training for kindergarten students, recently publicized in his paper about a Garrett project.

—What's the hurry with our kids, anyway???

Walter Smith, postmaster at Butler since December 1, 1950, and a substitute carrier before that since December 1, 1937, retired recently and had a letter to Butler area residents published in the Butler Rec — oops, excuse me — in the DeKalb Record-Herald. One paragraph impressed me, to show that, thank goodness, there are those public servants who are not grabbing every dollar they can. The paragraph reads as follows:

"In Government service we have what is known as 'sick leave accumulation' for the protection of an employee during periods of illness. This is sometimes abused due to the motto: 'If you don't use it, you lose it.' I have been grateful for this protection. The good Lord has been good to me and no serious illness has occurred. It is with a deep and sincere sense of gratitude for this blessing that I am delighted to remit to the taxpayers over 2700 hours of sick leave which approximates $26,000."

Unfortunately, there aren't many Walter Smiths in the world.

Reader Says Editor In 'Dark Ages'

Dear Ted, Feb. 3, 1976

I'm surprised at you. Come out of the Dark Ages. If Loretta wants to be a candidate for president of your town board, why shouldn't she announce it? That's the way our Presidential Candidates do it. And when the Press shows them standing first in line to cast their votes, who do you think they're voting for?

Don't you think that you might be served far better by someone who wants the job than by someone who was railroaded into it? I'm glad to see that Loretta was big enough to turn the other cheek, as evidenced by the enclosed clipping from the Evening Star. Would you or I have done the same?

Yours truly,
Dorothy Vendrely

(The clipping referred to is a bordered ad with the words, "Loretta loves Ted anyway.")

In 1964, the Butler PTA (which included the high school and therefore the Riverdale area was a part of the group's membership) held election of officers. Candidates for president were Clare Bonecutter of Butler — and yours truly. We were late getting to the election meeting; the balloting had been done but the results not yet announced. As we entered, Mrs. James Angelone walked over and handed us a ballot. We marked it and returned it to Mrs. Angelone. Later, when the results were announced, Mr. Bonecutter was named president—by one vote. After the meeting, Mrs. Angelone came up to us and said, "Until you came in, the vote was tied."

Why did we vote for the other candidate? Well, somewhere back in our childhood someone instilled the idea of some sort of courtesy which said, "You don't vote for yourself." It stuck with us. Whether it was from a Sunday School teacher, or a school teacher, we do not remember. But it was definitely a point made by someone concerned with higher standards for young people than self-sought leadership.

Apparently, others in the Butler PTA knew of the situation, because the following year we were elected president. Incidentally, we were a candidate in 1965 because Dr. Clifford Shultz asked if we would allow our name to be placed on the ballot. We agreed.

There are times when voting for one's self is not a selfish gesture, as for instance, in the case of running for political office and a person is one of several candidates on a party ticket and a vote is cast for the entire group. The selection of officers of a group is, however, a different matter, in our opinion. And we did not say it, someone else did back in history someplace, in commenting on quality of leadership: "The office seeks the man, not the man the office."

Obviously, by today's standards, our philosophy is out of step, perhaps even subject to ridicule. It's old-fashioned; you just don't do things that way any more. Perhaps that is why the public is so "down" on today's governmental leaders; so many are where they are because of their own pushing to gain office. And that same leadership puts down anyone who suggests getting back to "the old way." The past wasn't perfect, by any means; but we are inclined to believe it was better in many respects.

We do not claim to never have wanted to be placed in a position of leadership or responsibility. We have; and that includes the town election last fall. We waited for someone else to ask, "Will you accept?" But no one asked and we did not push ourselves in—though the temptation was there!

Our comment about the naming of town board officers was to indicate to residents of Saint Joe what might be expected in the next four years. Others were aware of the possibilities at the November election, to the point of urging voters to vote for a candidate who had already left the community or was about to leave. I did not agree with that opposition to Mrs. Loy just on principles—why vote for someone who isn't here? Mrs. Loy's aggressiveness in seeking to be board president gives those who opposed her reason now to say, "See, what did we tell you?"

We did not see the notice in the Auburn paper. We note that it did not appear in the Saint Joe paper. That's turning the other cheek???

As for turning the other cheek, ours have smarted many times in recent years, due oftentimes to the passing of incomplete or false information behind our back, from one individual to another, leading the latter to have a less than friendly outlook toward us. But we haven't made it a public issue. —Ed.

Short-Term Loan Needed By EHS

The DeKalb Eastern Community School District is feeling a financial pinch at the present time. This fact was brought to the attention of the school board this week by Superintendent Kenneth Cole at the board's Monday night meeting.

However, the pinch is due to lack of coordination between the time financial obligations must be met and the time when the school corporation receives its funds.

As a result of the situation, the board authorized advertising for interest rates to be paid on a loan of $240,000. The notice appears elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. Cole noted that for two years, the state has been issuing school reimbursements on a monthly rather than a quarterly basis. This has caused problems in meeting financial obligations. Other schools have had the same problem in the past. But this is the first time the eastern district was faced with the need to borrow on a short term basis.

A bright spot in the business of the meeting was the report that there will be probable national publicity in the "American Education Week Observance Manual" related to programs in the Butler and Riverdale elementary schools. Principal Charles Ray was in charge of the effort which has been considered so creative that national recognition will probably be given.

The board also authorized a study of boy and girl intramural athletics. The study committee includes Linda Newnum, principal Robert Williams, athletic director Bill Peden, board members Connie Hollabaugh and Lynn Fuller, counselor Jerry Zonker, students Eric Johnson and Dawn Billings and parents Jeri Sechler and Gayle Koeppe. James White, who recently presented a grievance on the matter, was named chairman.

Blazers Win 62-47

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers got back on the winning path Friday night, defeating Prairie Heights 62-47 on the Blazer court. The locals are now 5-8 for the season.

The second half proved the difference, as the score was tied 25-all at the half. The Blazers hit on 25 of 53 field goal attempts for 47 percent. Their opponents had 20 of 51 for 39 percent.

Rick Rinard led scoring for the game, getting 8 fielders and 3 free throws for 19 points.

Prairie Heights had 23 turnovers while the Blazers erred only 8 times.

The Blazer reserves took the opener 31-30.

WOWO Aces To Play EHS Faculty

The DeKalb Eastside faculty will face the WOWO Radio Aces Thursday, February 19, at 8 p.m. in a benefit basketball game to be played in the Eastside gym at Butler.

Money raised will be used for band uniforms and athletic equipment.

The hotshots from WOWO will be led by Bob Sievers and Jack Underwood. Other players for WOWO include Chris Roberts, Calvin Richards, Ron Gregory and Ken Moore, plus news staffers Dugan Fry, Art Saltsberg, Jerry Hoffman, Doug Fisher and Rosemary Haddad.

While the Black and Blue Brigade doesn't pretend to set the world on fire with breathtaking basketball skills, they are proud of their record as fund-raisers. The group has helped to bring in close to $100,000 for high schools over the past seven years.

Tickets are available from any adult band booster or band member, any adult athletic booster or athletic student member. Adult tickets are $1.50 and student $1.00. Tickets may also be purchased at the door.

Russell Arnett

Funeral services were set for Thursday of this week at Mt. Pleasant United Methodist Church for Russell E. Arnett, 74, of near Saint Joe. Mr. Arnett died Monday at 4:30 a.m. at DeKalb Memorial Hospital where he had been taken six hours earlier after experiencing tightness in the chest and difficulty in breathing. He reportedly had had a light stroke a few years ago but had been active since that time.

Born February 10, 1901, in Mercer County, Ohio, Mr. Arnett was the son of Orsen and Pearl (Rinard) Arnett. He married Forest Fern Haines in Celina, Ohio, July 19, 1919. The couple resided at Saint Joe since 1944.

Mr. Arnett was a retired farmer. He was a member of Mt. Pleasant United Methodist Church and had served as Republican precinct committeeman for Concord Township.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Luella Maloey of Columbia City and Mrs. Charlene Lochner of Gsabill; two sons, Russell, Jr., of Spencerville and Eugene of Angola; a sister, Mrs. Cleo Lee of Fort Wayne; 20 grandchildren; and 9 great-grandchildren.

Another son, Charles, died just recently.

Johnson Funeral Home of Butler is in charge of funeral arrangements. Rev. Jeffrey Snyder will officiate at the funeral at the church and burial will be in the church cemetery.

Steven Krafft

Steven Joe Krafft, 18, of R2 Auburn died Sunday in Indianapolis. He had been ill for five months. His illness had been diagnosed as cancer, and he had just undergone surgery for removal of a kidney tumor.

Mr. Krafft was a student at IU-PU at Fort Wayne and a 1975 graduate of DeKalb Central High School.

Born in Auburn June 18, 1957, the young man was the son of Gerald and Jennie (Haiflich) Krafft of R2 Auburn.

Other survivors include two brothers, Randall and Robert at home; a sister, Mrs. Karen Buschman of Auburn; and the grandparents, MM Ray Krafft of R1 Butler and MM Jesse Haiflich of Bluffton.

Steve was a member of the Indian Village Church of God and the Order of DeMolay.

Funeral services were held at the church Wednesday with Rev. Carroll McNutt and Rev. James Habischman officiating. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery at Auburn.

Funeral arrangements were made by Johnson Funeral Home of Butler.

County Stray Dog Info'n Ignores—

Saint Joe Has Stray Dog Answer, Not 'CETA'

—by The Editor

Considerable publicity has been given to the matter of stray dogs in DeKalb County in recent weeks. Much of it has been prompted by the reported presence of two packs of roving dogs near Butler and the fact that Butler's pet deer, Susie, has not been seen for the past two weeks.

The sheriff's department and the police departments of cities in DeKalb County have been contacted for interview information. And one point is made by all—that if they did not have dog complaints to follow up on, they could devote more time to more important matters.

As a consequence of the current publicity elsewhere, the impression is being built that (1) DeKalb County needs a county humane shelter and (2) the control of dogs is a full-time matter.

Because there has been little if any information to challenge some of the statements made by those involved in the matter, DeKalb County faces the prospect of being "railroaded" into a program involving thousands of dollars. But the cost matter has been softened by the suggestion of Lee Ellen Ford of Butler that CETA funds could be used to pay for a humane officer.

Miss Ford, who returned to Butler a few years ago after an absence of many years during which she was teaching, purchased the Butler newspaper. She immediately began pushing the city fathers to seek government grants for this or that project, and her influence has been considerable. She also served as an administrative advisor for Governor Otis Bowen for some three years for which she was paid in the $25,000 to $30,000 bracket. She was recently dropped from the administrative staff and immediately received area-wide publicity through an interview in which she spoke in anything but complimentary terms about the governor.

An activist for women's lib, she talks of "women power" as the answer to many of society's ills. Not all Butlerites have taken kindly to her words and actions; some of them have actually fallen away from projects in which they were originally interested, fallen away because of Miss Ford's uncompromising attitude. She complained in her recent interview that she never became a member of the governor's "team" and blamed it on the fact that she was a woman. However, word from the State House from more than one source a year ago indicated: "She's antagonized every office in the State House by her attitude."

What does this have to do with stray dogs?

Miss Ford is a pusher for every kind of federal or state aid. Having been in an occupation where there is little need to worry about where the money will come from on payday and having been at the public trough in addition, Miss Ford is not inclined to consider the questions: "Do we need it? Can we afford it?" Instead, the question is: "How fast can we set up this or that group to qualify for a grant?"

An article in the Auburn Evening Star by Jim Bartos this week begins:

"A solution to Butler's dog problem may be at hand, thanks to Dr. Lee Ford and the county Humane Society."

The article goes on to say that the solution is to get CETA to pay for a humane office in Butler. CETA is the "Comprehensive Employment Training Act" financed by federal funds. Butler already has almost all its street department employees paid through CETA, the Butler Park Board has had a dozen paid through Ceta, the high school has had some 15 students paid through CETA. Originally intended to assist low-income and minority groups, the CETA program obviously has gone far afield, to become merely a jobs-creating public works project. Saint Joe had two CETA employees for a while last year. The selling point was and is: "It doesn't cost you anything." That is a falsehood.

Since CETA funds are federal, it means that CETA recipients are being paid by the taxpayer in every community. It becomes not a question of fulfilling a community need by the community, but rather providing tax money for projects which for the most part are not justifiable because the involved community can't pay for the program on its own. It is a cancerous program which leads every community to say, "We better get some or somebody else will." The effect is that a community prostitutes itself for the sake of the almighty public works dollar.

Garrett has a humane officer who is on a 40-hour week—paid by CETA. That means paid by you and me.

Auburn has an executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce—paid by CETA. The Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg Historical Society has an "artist in residence"—paid by CETA, despite the fact that the organization received nearly $50,000 from its annual September Labor Day weekend festivities.

The summer recreation program at Riverdale had two youth leaders—paid by CETA. The program had in the past been a community project of the local Lions Club.

In every one of these instances, communities and individuals have been prostituted because they didn't really need the money; communities should be able to pay their own way. However, if they are not able, there is reason to question whether a project involves NEED or WANT. The answer is the difference between living within the capabilities of the community—or becoming dependent upon the state and asking that others pay our bill.

In the dog publicity, no notice has been paid to the Town of Saint Joe which has the answer and it costs a fraction compared to what has been suggested. However, there is one important ingredient involved or the example set by Saint Joe is worthless. That main factor is: an individual interested in doing something for the welfare of the community without being paid a large amount of money.

In 1971, the Town Board of Saint Joe was given a big assist in seeking to control dogs in town by the willingness of Ervin Fetters to serve as dog warden. The Town Board purchased a tranquilizer gun to assist Mr. Fetters in picking up strays of questionable temperament. The board also installed kennels in a small building which is now located at the west end of town. The building had been on property now owned by Knisely Branch Bank.

Since Mr. Fetters took over, the number of stray or loose dogs has been minimal. He has indicated it took a little while for dog owners to realize that he "meant business" in carrying out his duties. But once the program was generally known, dog owners generally kept their pets confined or under control. "There are always a few exceptions," he noted.

Mr. Fetters has cooperated with dog owners in those instances where he is certain a loose dog is an unintentional occurrence. He has not conducted the program in an arbitrary manner in which no consideration is given the dog owner.

The result has been one of general cooperation by the public, resulting in no strays seen in town, except on rare occasions.

The program has cost the town taxpayers a basic $150 per year for the dog warden, plus a $5 service fee for each dog he picks up. Strays are kept for three days, during which a notice is posted on the town hall door (in recent months on the fire hall door). Dogs not picked up in that time are taken to the Auburn veterinarian for disposal. It costs $3 for an owner to reclaim a dog the first time it is picked up. Subsequent violations cost $5 each.

Thus, the success of the Saint Joe program, which admittedly relies a great deal upon the willingness of an individual to provide a service to the community with the pay being of secondary importance, ought to be considered by other communities in DeKalb County. They are larger, yes. But surely there are two or three civic-minded people in each city who are willing to do something for the community welfare, not for money. Compare this with the current suggested approach: paying the cost of setting up and maintaining extensive humane shelter facilities, providing a vehicle and its upkeep, and paying a full-time wage which would almost certainly be accompanied later by the "need" for part-time help.

The Saint Joe program has provided a necessary service at the lowest possible cost. There are no federal grants involved, no wages paid by a federal program. It has been an example of a community taking care of its needs, of an individual volunteering to serve the public.

Before any program to establish a county humane shelter is undertaken, before a city gets involved in making a full-time obligation for what is in reality a part-time need, before running to Uncle Sam for a handout of CETA funds to pay a full-time dog warden, a close look ought to be taken at the idea of letting the communities take care of their own needs, of giving citizens an opportunity to answer the challenge of good citizenship by volunteering to fill a need as a need arises..

This is the least costly way to approach the stray dog problem, and the best way.

Right now, in DeKalb County, Saint Joe "leads the pack." But only because a citizen has been willing to get involved on a continuing basis. Mr. Fetters has done an excellent job of controlling strays in Saint Joe and working with the public to do so.

Historic Series For Bicentennial

"THE ROAD TO INDEPENDENCE"

"No morn ever dawned more favorable than ours did; and no day was ever more clouded than the present. Wisdom and good examples are necessary at this time to rescue the political machine from the impending storm."

These gloomy words were written by George Washington to James Madison near the end of the story which begins here today. It is the story, simply told, of the origin of our nation and how we came to have the form of government we have today.

Washington was not characteristically a pessimist but he was a realist. He was a person who would be described in today's parlance as one "who tells it like it is." What Washington saw of the condition of his country after more than five years had passed since he watched the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, will be covered in this series as we report on the events which occurred between the Declaration of Independence and the beginning of Washington's first administration, thirteen years later. But we need to back up some.

In the beginning there were Tories, otherwise known as Loyalists, because of their loyalty to the King of England; the Whigs, or Separatists, because they wanted to separate the American colonies from English rule; and the rest of the people, poor for the most part and living on or near the frontier, who did not care one way or the other. By the time the American Revolution got under way, John Adams estimated each of these groups as one-third of the population.

Prior to the announcement of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, the argument over separation or loyalty waxed hot and heavy in the colonial taverns and inns, and wherever people congregated. News traveled slowly in those days, only as fast as a horse could run or a ship could sail. There was no radio or television then, of course, and the newspapers were not only primitive by the standards of today, but they were mostly local in their coverage. As a consequence, these heated discussions were not aided or hindered, depending on your point of view, by distant political commentators. Rather, it was a grass roots foment led for the most part by the more eloquent and more influential of the local citizens. True, the iconoclast*, Tom Paine, was a considerable influence with his writings, but this didn't happen until the cauldron was near boiling.

As might be expected, the Separatists were in a minority from the very beginning. Only the most radical voices, men like Patrick Henry and Samuel Adams, demanded immediate independence, and their rabble-rousing disturbed a lot of people. After all, revolution did not appeal to those who reverenced their government, or to those who preferred the security of the status quo to the uncertainties and instabilities of an unknown and unpredictable future. And truth to tell, many of the pre-revolutionary American colonists did not have it all that bad. Whatever woes they had were not attributed by them to British tyranny.

If their diet could be improved, or their shelter made better, or if their clothing was less than adequate, these could be remedied by hard work, if they could be remedied at all. The Puritan (Protestant) ethic was in full bloom during this period, and if a fellow American did not have it so good, it was probably his fault. God rewarded industry and punished sloth, everybody knew that! The best criterion of a person's willingness to work hard was his material wealth. Being a British subject had little or nothing to do with it.

Nevertheless, as so often happens in history, those who at first found little enthusiasm for war and revolution discovered themselves slowly and inexorably drawn toward it by events they could not control. British economic restrictions might cause the merchants to chafe, and political limitations on local leaders might generate unrest there, but that was of little concern to the average colonist. It was only when he came to believe that his own best interests were linked with theirs that separation gained the strength and popular support necessary to produce the Declaration of Independence.

This came about through a series of events which included Lexington and Concord, and the Battle of Bunker Hill. But the publication of Tom Paine's "Common Sense" in January 1776 was the catalyst that joined the merchants, the political leaders and the common people in sufficient numbers for a concerted effort against English domination. Within a few months this remarkable document sold over 100,000 copies and converted thousands of colonists to the cause of independence.

Michelle Murphy Has Photo Contest Winner

Michelle, a teaching assistant-graduate-student in Spanish at Purdue University, is represented by a "grab shot" of a pig with a muddy snout. The color photo was a winner in the Marion Chronicle-Tribune summer snapshot contest, and as such was submitted to the international competition where it won a $100 Special Merit Award. KINSA last year drew more than 300,000 entries.

In describing her prize-winner, Michelle, who has been taking pictures for about 15 years, said, "I'm a farm girl at heart and have quite a collection of animal studies. We were driving along the fence and we startled this pig. Just as she looked up, I snapped the picture. The hog was so close to me that I couldn't resist."

Michelle's picture is featured at the Kodak Photo Gallery, 1133 Avenue of the Americas at 43rd Street, along with the black-and-white and color photography of photo amateurs from throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico. The Gallery is open to the public from noon to 5 p.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Michelle's parents are Bob and April Davis of R1 Spencerville.

—that average attendance at Coburn Corners Church of Christ for 1975 was 153 for Bible School and 166 for morning worship. Larry Carter is pastor of the congregation.

—that Keith Ulm of R2 Butler is among those selected for the fund drive committee for the 1976 Northeastern Tri-State Regional Science Fair at Angola April 9-11.

—that it costs Social Security $12.39 to process every Medicare claim, but private carriers can do the same job for $6.45, according to a government study. Reason? Inflated wages. Federal auditors average $21,600 in salary and fringes vs. less than $14,000 at commercial firms. Another factor is low productivity. Each government worker processes only 2,500 claims a year vs. 3,900 to 6,600 for private carrier employees.

—that Gertrude Reinhart of R1 Saint Joe was not injured Monday when her car slid off icy pavement on State Road 8 and struck a traffic sign east of Auburn.

—that a meeting will be held February 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Publix Cafe in Kendallville for Democrats from DeKalb, Noble, LaGrange and Steuben counties. The purpose is to begin the "Educational Program for the Democratic Party's Affirmative Action and Delegate Selection Plans." A series of 25 meetings will be held throughout the state in preparation for the 1976 Democratic National Party Convention.

Yoder Business Ends Due To Union Vote

Yoder Ready Mix & Supply of Auburn has gone out of business. The reason: 12 of 14 employees voted in favor of representation by Teamsters Local 414 which also represents three large cement contractors' workers in Fort Wayne. And such a commitment would force the Yoder firm to pay Fort Wayne wages. Owner Everett Yoder said his business included from 35 to 50 percent from Fort Wayne because of his ability to underbid. With identical wage scales, he said that advantage would be lost. He told his employees of the situation in a letter before the workers voted on union affiliation.

The business started in 1944 with Noah Yoder, the founder. In 1963 the son took over. And two of his sons worked for the firm.

In a reaction to the move, Teamsters Local 414 has filed an unfair labor practice charge against the Yoder family firm. Freeman Busche, secretary-treasurer of the union, reportedly said the charge was filed "for threatening and closing down because of the union." He termed the action a "lockout."

However, Yoder's attorney, S. Douglas Trolson of Fort Wayne, said the Supreme Court has held that an employer can go out of business in such a situation. Going out of business had been considered a refusal to bargain under the Taft Hartley Act, until 1965. Then the court said that an employer has an absolute right to go out of business for whatever reason.

Yoder is planning for the disposition of assets and equipment. Beyond that, he has no definite plans.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Global Garbage Dumping

(A health message from the American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana)

The stratosphere has become the new global garbage dump. And our lungs and lives are at stake.

The controversy is still raging about ozone depletion and the effect of chemicals used as propellants in spray cans. The debate specifically centers on the use of chloro-flurocarbons, compounds containing chlorine, fluorine, and carbon. These chemicals from spray cans can actually penetrate the protective layer of ozone, which is between 10 and 25 miles high.

Ozone is a bluish gas with a penetrating odor which is created by the breaking apart of oxygen molecules bombarded by ultraviolet light. The combination of one atom with one molecule of oxygen (two atoms) produces ozone. This action takes place continuously above that side of the globe facing the sun. At night it stops.

Ozone absorbs high-energy ultraviolet light from the sun and protects the earth from these rays. Most ozone is produced near the equator where the ultraviolet intensity is greatest. But it is carried to both poles, where it actually becomes more dense, by high altitude winds.

Nitric oxide, formed when an atom of nitrogen and one of oxygen combine, is the dominant natural factor governing ozone levels. This gas can be produced by invisible organisms in the oceans and in the soil. Oxides of nitrogen are also created by supersonic transport exhaust and by nitrates used in fertilizer. Dr. Michael B. McElroy of Harvard University believes these oxides are affecting the ozone level. Another threat, he says, is the amount of chlorine employed in chlorinating water supplies and by sewage and power plant operations. This amount, he says, is hundreds of times greater than the amount produced by spray cans.

Threats to our lungs are all around. Find out more about them from your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana, 802 West Wayne, Fort Wayne 46804. We are the "Christmas Seal" people.

It's a matter of life and breath — everybody's!

BANKING IS EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Credit Opportunity—It's Come A Long Way

By Willis W. Alexander
Executive Vice President
American Bankers Association

On Oct. 28, 1975, an act of Congress formally decreed that all U.S. citizens — both male and female — should have equal access to credit opportunity.

The basic intent of the 1974 Equal Credit Opportunity Act, which went into effect Oct. 28, 1975, is to make it unlawful for any creditor to discriminate against any applicant for credit on the basis of sex or marital status in any credit transaction. The act and its regulations, completed by the Federal Reserve Board 12 days earlier, apply to all banks, finance companies, credit card issuers, department stores and other major lenders.

Credit applicants should know, however, that all of the provisions of the new law will not go into effect immediately. A transition period has been built into many of them to allow for time consuming changes that will have to be made in printed forms, computer programming and staff education.

Among the major provisions, and their effective dates, are these:

- Questions cannot be asked about birth control practices or childbearing capabilities or intentions, effective Oct. 28, 1975.
- Credit-scoring systems may not include sex or marital status, effective Nov. 30, 1975.
- When a husband and wife apply for a loan together, the lender must take into account all the income of the wife, even if it is from a part-time job, as long as the job is likely to continue, effective Nov. 30, 1975.
- A creditor must count income received from alimony in determining eligibility for a loan as long as the payments are likely to be made consistently, effective Nov. 30, 1975.
- When requested by an applicant, creditors must provide the reasons for terminating or denying credit. This may be done either verbally or in writing, effective Jan. 31, 1976.
- To provide a credit history for women, information given to credit reporting agencies will have to be given in the names of both the husband and the wife, effective Nov. 1, 1976.

In addition, the act provides that individuals who feel they have been discriminated against may file suit in federal court for damages of up to $10,000.

All of this is not to say, however, that everyone who applies for credit in the future will automatically receive it. While the Equal Credit Opportunity Act provides for equal access to credit, it also preserves the lender's ability to distinguish, in his or her own judgment, between applicants who are creditworthy and those who are not.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

All of the fuss about girls being able to participate in athletics and the current discussion by the school board about providing personnel as well as facilities—all this has possibly given a lot of young people—and maybe some older ones, too, the impression that girls have been denied such athletic privileges in the past.

Tain't so.

The February 4 issue of The Hamilton News has a front-page picture of the Hamilton High School girls basketball champions—not intramural but Steuben County champions.—45 years ago!—in 1931-32!

And it seems to me that I have seen photos of girls basketball teams in school annuals going back to the days of Saint Joe and Spencerville high schools.

One of the criticisms made oftentimes about the Nixon-Ford Presidential years is that they vetoed right and left. It is significant that most of those vetoes were upheld. So the veto-less Congress that labor thought it had elected, that teachers campaigned for and thought they had elected, just didn't turn out that way—thank goodness.

Here's some information on the matter of vetoes from the Newspaper Enterprise Association, as published last week in the Auburn Evening Star:

"From George Washington to Richard Nixon, American presidents cast 2,257 vetoes, and only about six per cent of them were overridden by Congress. . . . .

"The use of the veto has been on the increase since the Civil War.

"DEMOCRATS USE IT MORE THAN REPUBLICANS (Grover Cleveland and Franklin D. Roosevelt have been the biggest veto-wielders).

"Presidents who are elected with substantial electoral vote majorities use the veto more often than others.

"Congress tends to override vetoes more often when times are bad.

". . . .In his (Gerald Ford) first full year in office, he used the veto on some 16 bills, only three of which were overridden by Congress."

As far as I know, Abe Lincoln is the only patriot who hasn't felt the sting of today's journalism or history buffs who delight in destroying a man's character. At least, I don't remember any scandalous accusations recently, directed toward the man whose birthday we observe this week.

They've dug up some dirt on George Washington (that he "played around" and was extravagant in providing for his needs while his troops suffered). But so far Abe has been left alone. But he wasn't left alone while he was President. Cartoons of the 1860's were every bit as nasty about him in some papers as are the cartoons we see today about contemporary personages.

It occurred to me—when I heard a review of Lincoln's experiences in running for public office. He must not have been a sweet-talker in his campaigning, because he lost more times than he won. His greatness is, quite possibly whether we recognize it or it, in being honest in what he said and did politically. "Honest Abe" is THE appropriate name for him. A principle was more important than a vote, is what I get from the story of his failures. And to top it off, he came back from a nervous breakdown to become President of the United States, possibly bearing more burdens, personal and political, than any other President in our history.

Wouldn't you know it?

Within minutes after I had set the type for the above comments about Abraham Lincoln, I opened the Fort Wayne evening daily to see on the front page an article telling of a historian's questioning the homespun type of character we have traditionally attributed to Lincoln. That historian also pictures Lincoln as a shrewd politician.

Something doesn't fit. Shrewd politicians aren't defeated more times than they win in running for office.

What a shame that so many of the large news media give time and space to tearing down American institutions. A sad way to observe a birthday year for this nation is to focus on its failures.

PUBLIC RELEASE

DeKalb County Eastern Community School District today announced its amended policy for free and reduced price meals, free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch, and Special Milk Program. The school administrators point out that this amended policy is in compliance with Public Law 94-105.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility:

A Family size Parents, Children and others	B Required Income scale for free meals and free milk	C Required Income scale for reduced price meals
2	4,240	6,620
3	5,250	8,200
4	6,260	9,770
5	7,190	11,210
6	8,110	12,650
7	8,950	13,970
8	9,790	15,280
9	10,550	16,460
10	11,310	17,640
11	12,060	18,820
12	12,810	20,000
Each additional family member	750	1,180

Eligibility determinations are made on a family basis, that is, all the children in the same family attending schools under the jurisdiction of the same school food authority are to receive the same benefits, Free Meals and Free Milk or Reduced Price Meals.

Columns A, B and C represent the family-size, income scale below which Free Meals, Reduced Price Meals, and Free Milk must be provided.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for (free or reduced-price meals or free milk). In addition, families not meeeing these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms for Free Meals and Free Milk or Reduced Price Meals are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application forms is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, the family should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy either Principal Charles M. Ray, Jr. or Principal Robert E. Williams will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Kenneth L. Cole, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721, telephone number 868-2125, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals and milk if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding pregrams, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

WOWO Aces To Play EHS Faculty

The WOWO Radio Air Aces basketball team will face the faculty of DeKalb Eastside High School, called "The Burnt Out Flames," in a benefit basketball game Thursday night, February 19, at 8 p.m.

The game will be played at the Eastside gym with proceeds from the game to go for athletic and band equipment.

The hotshots of the hardcourt will once again be led by Bob Sievers and Jack Underwood. Other players include Chris Roberts, Calvin Richards, Ron Gregory, Ken Moore and newsmen Dugan Fry, Art Saltsberg and Jerry Hoffman.

The WOWO group has helped to raise nearly $100,000 for high school projects in the last seven years in the tri-state area.

The local faculty will include Mike Cleveland, John Fallis, Rex Bolinger, Jim White, John Zimmerman, Pete Hancheck, Mark Childs, Al Peugeot, Bob Brown, Ken Olin, Dave Thrush, Tim Mershon, Leon Strange and coach Mark Bixler.

Tickets can be purchased from any athletic or band student. Prices are $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students. Tickets may also be purchased at the door.

Monday Is A Postal 'Holiday'

There will be no window service or rural delivery on Monday, February 16, the designated date to observe the birthday of George Washington.

Postmaster George Armstrong said maill will be received and dispatched, as usual. Patrons should place outgoing mail in the courtesy box in front of the post office before 4 p.m.

The lobby will be open from 7 to 9 a.m. to allow lockbox patrons to pick up their mail.

Vocational Ed Week Feb. 9-13

National Vocational Education Week is being observed this week, February 9-13, at the DeKalb Eastside Vocational Agriculture Department.

15 different courses are offered, from the study of plants and soils to the study of farm animals, large and small.

Approximately 75 students are enrolled in these courses. The ag program also offers FFA to its students. The 81-member roster is one of the largest in Eastside's history.

A few activities that ag students participate in are: the building of small structures, overhauling machinery, and following markets.

FFA offers activities in nearly all leadership functions and contests. They also sponsored a leadership conference for the Eastside student body, along with participating in basketball, attending leadership camps and state and national conventions.

Michael Cleveland is vocational ag instructor at Eastside.

Ishmael Smith is coordinator of the divisions involved in vocational training at Eastside.

In addition to Mr. Cleveland in Vocational Agriculture, the leadership includes Lorene Franklin in Vocational Steno-Office Lab; Carol Rufner in Home Economics; and Mr. Smith in Diversified Cooperative Training.

Principal Robert E. Williams stated this week that the faculty stands ready to help with answers to any questions about vocational education. The public is invited to visit the schol and see firsthand what the program involves. Additional information can be obtained by calling 868-2187.

Snow, Winds Hit Area

About five inches of snow last week, following by gusty winds Saturday night, closed many county roads in the area and portions of state roads.

Saturday night's winds were reported in gusts up to 45 mph. North-south roads were most affected by the winds, especially at sheltered areas near hills. Snow was blown from the fields across the roads and in places the snow drifted halfway or completely across the road.

School remained closed Monday due to the snow problem, after having been closed all last week due to ice and snow packed roads.

Temperatures rose Wednesday this week to around 50 and much of the ice and snow melted. Thursday of this week brought more sunny mild temperatures.

Fire Guts Rural Home

The home of Dave and Sherry Arrants, located at the intersection of state roads 8 and 1 north of Saint Joe, was gutted by fire Saturday night.

Saint Joe, Auburn and Butler fire departments were called to the scene. But drifted snow caused a delay in reaching the fire.

The fire apparently started in the garage and probably would have been of minor consequence had it not been for gusting winds and drifted snow on the highways.

It was reported that all contents of the home were destroyed.

The family, which includes three small daughters and a dog, are staying at the home of Mrs. Arrants' mother in Butler.

Sp'ville Phone Use Improved

Bell Telephone's Spencerville exchange will get an automatic number identification for long distance calls. The project involves a cost of $22,000, according to Bell manager Nick Parrott.

One and two-party-line users in the exchange will be able to dial long distance calls without the necessity of giving operators the calling number.

The new equipment will automatically record the phone number from which the call is made, the called number, and the length of time for the call.

Bell expects to spend $141.7 million during 1976 to expand and modernize its services throughout the state.

Butler Group Decides To Seek $90,000-plus Federal Grant

At a meeting attended by 30 persons last Saturday night at Butler, approval was given to plans to apply for funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Lee Ellen Ford is chairman of the application committee and Mayor Joe Baldwin is assisting in the project.

At another meeting held Tuesday of this week, it was decided to apply for over $90,000 for construction of a community center in Susie Park and installation of sidewalks on both sides of Walnut and Federal streets in the southwest part of the city, which Miss Ford has described in the past as "Butler's ghetto."

Estimated cost of the center is $85,000.

There was no apparent opposition to the plan. However, it was noted that most of those attending Saturday's meeting were from the Walnut-Federal street area.

The grant sought was described by Mayor Baldwin as a "part of the community development block grant program which was initiated in 1974 with the enactment of the Housing and Community Development Act." In order to receive funds, the city must first file a preapplication which is reviewed by the HUD Northeast Coordinating Council in Fort Wayne.

A city the size of Butler can ask for up to $100,000, and the money must be spent within a year. The money must also be used in a "blighted" or low-income area.

Park Director and Planner Rudy Fabik said the community center would be used primarily for senior citizens' activities, although it would also include a gym and a social room for use by the public.

Fabik said the idea for a community center came from a survey made in 1974 which reportedly indicated 10 needs in the community. Eight of those needs would be met with the proposed community center.

Miss Ford said of the grant, "This is federal money, not state money. It is already allocated or spent by Congress, so we can't save it by not spending it; someone is going to get it."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted,

Thank you for continuing to send us the St. Joe News. I can't remember if we paid you for last year. So, am enclosing payment for 2 years. We really enjoy the paper. Thanks again!

Sincerely,
MM George Abel
Auburn

Dear Ted:

These facts and figures may shock you . . they did me. But when you add them up, they sure help explain the trouble this country is in.

Since 1969, the last seven Republican administration years, we have been governed by:

A President and a Vice-President who were forced to resign (both should have gone to jail);

One appointed President and two appointed vice-presidents;

Six Attorneys General;

Five Secretaries of Commerce;

Four Secretaries of Defense;

Four Secretaries of the Treasury;

Four Secretaries of Labor;

Four Secretaries of HEW;

Four Secretaries of Interior;

Three Secretaries of HUD;

One Attorney General was convicted of several felonies, another pled guilty to perjury!

Add to this, three CIA Directors; three FBI Chiefs; four Directors of the Office of Management and Budget; four Directors of Energy policy; and we don't know how many top White House aides. More than 50 major changes at the highest levels of our government!

Is it any wonder that we have had wrong policies and more often no policies to deal with our national problems?

Is it any wonder then that we continue in deep recession, high unemployment and record inflation with no end in sight?

Is it any wonder that many people have lost faith in government, feel let down and ripped off?

Perhaps the real wonder is that we have survived at all.

If this nation is to recover from the blows of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, and start moving forward again, the instability and mis-management of two successive Republican administrations must be ended . . . and a Democratic victory in November is the only sure way.

Presently the U.S. Gov't public debt is in excess of ½ a trillion dollars of which approximately ½ was incurred during the Nixon and Ford administrations. Don't try to tag the blame on the Democratic Congresses. Only a couple appropriation bills were passed over the Presidential vetos. Therefore substantially all of the spending has been WITH the approval (bills signed) of Nixon and Ford.

Perhaps your readers would appreciate knowing these facts.

Best regards,
Dick Shook
(Washington, D.C.)

Most of the statistics quoted above are in a newsletter obviously sent to members of the Democrat Party to help get their campaign in gear.
We share the concern about the national debt, but have yet to hear a suggestion from major candidates of either party as to how to reduce it. As long as we have social welfare programs proposed, passed and expanded, the annual federal budget will increase, deficit spending will continue, and the national debt will increase.
We still contend that the budget and spending are products of the Congress, not the President. It's "the President's budget" mostly in the sense that he must come up with ideas on where to get the money to pay for programs instituted by the Congress.
If Social Security benefits are to go up (and who ever heard of a Democrat opposing an increase?), then there must be more money taken in. But what happened when President Ford last week proposed a Social Security tax increase? We had none other than Senator Hubert Humphrey, a Presidential hopeful, saying, "This is no time for a tax increase." Just where would the Senator get the additional money to cover the increase in benefits which he did not oppose???
The above newsletter is referred to as "facts." We submit that they are statistics, for the most part. The fact that some of those involved were less than admirable in their conduct in office does not mean that ALL are "the guys in the black hats." There HAVE been a lot of changes. In a way that is NOT good. On the other hand, the number of changes indicate a flexibility—changes can be and have been made. And one of the principal gripes of the average citizen, regardless of party, is: "Once they're in, you can't get 'em out." Not literally true, but still indicating the frustration at not being able to do anything about this or that situation.
There is another factor involved more and more these days. It is fear—not of being caught in a criminal act but of being headlined for activities which are beyond the top official's control. To illustrate, the woman who has been serving as Secretary of the Mint is recuperating from a nervous breakdown caused by the theft of a few coins. She stole them? No. Members of Congress did! And she is subject to a Senate Committee composed of some who are suspect in the theft.
Also, Daniel Moynihan, a "no-nonsense" United States representative to the UN, quit last week, unofficially due to criticism and lack of support from his own national news media and the notoriety given to the statements of his critics.
And look at what is happening to Henry Kissinger—crucified in recent months by media and Congressional critics who have quickly forgotten that Mr. Kissinger, under directives from Richard Nixon, got us out of Vietnam. And that is what the public AND THE CONGRESS were hollering for.
No wonder there is a continuing turnover in the administrative offices—pressure. But it didn't occur under Democrat Presidents. Why????
A syndicated columnist recently pointed out that had major legislation proposed by the top contenders for the Democrat Presidential nomination been put in effect (Kennedy, Muskie, Bayh, etc), federal expenditures in the past few years would have been OVER 100 BILLION DOLLARS MORE than what we are having trouble with now. —Ed.

Historic Series For Bicentennial

"THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE"

"This is the most extraordinary collection of talent that has ever been gathered together at the White House, with the possible exception of when Thomas Jefferson dined alone."

President Kennedy was addressing a White House dinner gathering of Nobel Laureates in April 1962, when he made that observation. From a lifetime of major accomplishments, Jefferson chose only two for which he wished to be remembered. His epitaph contains the words, ". . . Author of the Declaration of Independence and Father of the University of Virginia."

There were four other prominent men on the committee appointed to draw up a declaration of independence. They were John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman and Robert Livingston. The latter two receive their due, along with the others, in the musical, "1776," but they are largely forgotten otherwise. There will be more about them in this series, however. Jefferson, the youngest at 33, was chosen to write the draft because his "felicity of language" was well known from the pamphlets and documents he had written before 1776.

The committee had been appointed in response to a resolution introduced on the seventh of June by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, another important figure of that day, all but forgotten now, and eclipsed in American history by Robert E. Lee, the son of his first cousin. Lee had intended for the Second Continental Congress to act on his resolution immediately, but other voices cautioned delay. Nevertheless, in case a declaration was needed, the draft-committee was appointed.

The delay is puzzling when considered against the backdrop of all that had happened in the previous fourteen months. Lexington and Concord, "the shot heard 'round the world," was first and it occurred on April 19, 1775. This was followed a month later by the seizure of British forts at Ticonderoga and Crown Point. The Battle of Bunker Hill (in reality, Breed's Hill) was fought on June 17, and in August, King George III, thinking he read a message in these activities, declared the American colonies to be in a state of rebellion. And, as the year ended, as though to prove King George's point, an American force under a colonel named Benedict Arnold attacked Quebec. Despite the valor of the leaders, the attempt to capture Canada failed.

George Washington, appointed commander-in-chief of the Continental Army the previous June, drove the British from Boston on March 17, 1776. In April, Congress declared American ports open to all nations except Great Britain, and followed this act of war with a resolution in May urging all the colonies to establish independent governments. And as June drew to a close, the American defenders at Charleston successfully repulsed a British land and sea attack. With the exception of the Quebec expedition, success had crowned all American military efforts since the firing began in that April of 1775, so much in fact that on the first of July when Congress began debating Thomas Jefferson's draft, not a single British soldier or sailor remained on American soil.

After much hot discussion, the Congressional delegates of twelve colonies approved the declaration, and it was duly announced on the fourth of July, as every school child knows. Although the document begins with a proclamation of unanimity, as of the fourth, that was not the case. New York's delegation was instructed to delay and did not vote its approval until nearly a week later. As a matter of fact, the exact date each man signed the Declaration of Independence, and thus immortalized himself, is still shrouded in mystery.

The words of the declaration are too well known to be included here, even if some of them are still honored more in the breach than in the observance. What isn't too well known, perhaps, is the strong anti-slavery section which was deleted by the Southern delegations, just as John Adams predicted it would be when he first read the draft. Although it was written by a fellow Southerner and a slave-holder at that, its wording was considered too much of an argument against the institution of slavery to let stand. The perversity of man apparently knows no time or season.

One cannot help speculating today, however, that if indeed the pen is mightier than the sword, what might have happened later in our national history if Jefferson's words had not been deleted. Would the terrible swift sword, the Civil War, have become necessary?

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau board of directors met January 30 at the Farm Bureau Building.

Beverley Blech opened the meeting with devotions from Acts I on "Power." She closed with prayer and the pledge to the flag.

President Francis Nelson introduced Paula Hook from the Extension Service. She talked to the group about getting a rural youth club started again in the county. She also announced that DeKalb County has met its quota of $1500 for the 4H Foundation. There were four organizations in DeKalb County who contributed $100 or more. They received a gold medalion. Smithfield-Grant was one of the groups receiving a medal.

March 17-18 is the annual meeting of the Indiana Co-op. This is also their 50th anniversary. They are providing buses to take people to the Indianapolis fairgrounds. They would like to get 135 from DeKalb County to go. The only expense will be the noon meal, everythings else is furnished. To go you need tickets which are available free at the co-op office, Credit Union, Farm Bureau office or from any co-op director. They will leave the co-op elevator east of Waterloo at 8 a.m. March 17 and will return by 11:30 p.m. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz is one of the speakers. Glen Campbell will be the entertainer.

Marvin Metzger, District II fieldman, told of a Young Farmer meeting at the Miller Truck Stop in Kendallville on February 10. Marian Stackhouse was the speaker.

Edna Perkins, Woman Leader, announced that April 9 will be the District II Woman's Meeting, held at the Woodruff Church. This will be a cookie contest.

March 15 from 10 to 3 will be a District II meeting at the Methodist Church east of Albion on State Road 8.

In discussing the upcoming membership drive, Marvin Metzger said as of January 28 we now have a total membership of 1593 in DeKalb County. We have a goal set to have 1671 total by February 20.

Mr. Metzger, reported on the National Convention to be held in Hawaii. Reservations must be made within the next couple of weeks. It requires a $100 deposit which will be refunded if you can't go. Indiana can only accommodate 800.

Gertrude Reinhart will have devotions in February.

I am sure there never was a people who had more reason to acknowledge a divine interposition in their affairs than those of the United States; and I should be pained to believe that they have forgotten that agency, which was so often manifested during our revolution, or that they failed to consider the omnipotence of that God, who is alone able to protect them. – George Washington

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I received an unsigned note, postmarked "Butler", this week. It says, "Enclosed are items which you might wish to check." The items listed were as follows:

"1) The school now owns two trucks. The first was purchased to remove snow. It was purchased from a board member. The truck, however, was not able to be used for this purpose. Thus, truck number two was purchased, and truck number one sets idle.

"2) The North Central Evaluation is back, and the findings are not being released entirely. It is rumored only a summary will be released since some of the findings are not popular with the administration.

"3) The school is borrowing money. This is not news, but if the school needs money so badly, how can five board members be sent to a meeting in San Francisco? It seems that one could attend and take notes. What must this cost?"

It is not considered ethical to publish unsigned letters as a general rule. They can get an editor behind the eight-ball, as was the case recently when I published an editorial about proposed Family Services legislation.

However, it is also true that information obtained from "official" sources can be as misleading as anonymous letters. And this is not to say our school board and administration are prime examples. It IS to say that, when you make a mistake, you don't make a news article about it—unless you're the Editor and the public has a record of what you said.

As for the trucks, I don't know anything about the matter. The anonymous writer of the letter can check just as easily as I can.

Concerning the North Central evaluation, I commented about the matter several weeks ago, noting that an effective and really gutsy evaluation would include participation by parents and patrons AND students who have graduated from the school. That the findings may not be "popular" with the administration is indicated by the contents of the school board's unofficial minutes of Monday night's meeting, referred to in an article elsewhere in this issue.

As for borrowing money, the school is not without funds. It is a matter of timing in the distribution of state reimbursements. The amount involved in sending five board members to a convention is a drop in the bucket compared to total expenditures for the school corporation. And it is necessary to be represented at such conventions to keep up with what is happening in education. Usually such conventions include "workshop" sessions on various topics running concurrently. It is impossible for one person, therefore, to report in depth as can two or more.

I publish the note not to embarrass the board and administration but to illustrate that there are "rumors" about school matters (which is normal) and that lack of information is a prime factor in promoting rumors. It has been my prime contention for years that school patrons have a right to know more than such-and-such a matter was discussed. The pros and cons, the problems or difficulties, all this is essential to have an understanding and a cooperative public. School board minutes have been too general in nature, leading to a suspicious public.

I appreciate to a point the letter sent by the anonymous writer, but don't relish the prospect of being the "goat" in asking questions and trying to find out unknown details. Every citizen has the right to ask questions—reasonably and without malice. Such participation makes a conscientious public official more aware of and responsive to the interests of the public.

Incidentally, despite my opinion in the past that the school board has at times abused the executive session privilege in which it can prohibit anyone from attending except those specifically invited, I do not go along with the passed or proposed legislation which compels any public board to discuss and vote in open session. I think there are times when private discussion by the public officials is a necessary occurrence and is oftentimes a protective shield not for themselves but for others as well. It has seemed adequate to me that executive sessions could be used only for discussion purposes. Official action could not be taken in executive session; such action was required in open session. We're going off the deep end if you ask me as far as this "public's right to know" bit is concerned; some discretion must be exercised.

It is strange that, at the same time, the right to privacy is also of prime concern. There is an inconsistency in the whole matter as things are going now.

To illustrate, an announcement of honor students at Ball State, received this week, has this at the bottom:

"NOTE TO EDITOR: This office is complying with the 'Family Rights and Privacy Act of 1974.' News stories are released only on students who, in the process of enrolling for classes at Ball State University, have filled out a student information card and have given us permission to release news stories to hometown news media. This story may not reflect all those from your readership area who are on the autumn Registrar's Roll of Honor listing."

So now we have legislation (or regulations due to legislation) which requires notice to be given to all news media that the information supplied conforms to those regulations. Time was when public recognition of scholastic achievement was looked for with anticipation. Now, educational institutions must be careful not to violate the "Family Rights and Privacy Act of 1974."

So, if you don't see as many "good" things about youth as you did in the past related to education, remember it's not the editor's fault. It's the result of the civil rights movement.

Things are getting more ridiculous every day.

Loan Bid Accepted By School Board; Evaluation Report Held Over

At Monday night's meeting of the local school board, a bid from Fort Wayne National Bank for a short-term loan was accepted by the board. It was the only bid received.

The loan was made necessary because monthly reimbursements from the state do not provide enough funds at all times for current obligations. The DeKalb Central District is also taking the same step to meet its obligations.

The bid offered a $240,000 loan with an interest rate of 4 percent per annum with a June 30, 1976, maturity date.

The matter of Director of Athletics was discussed and again carried over for further consideration.

The board voted not to become a direct affiliate of the National School Boards Association.

Discussion was held about an Evaluation Report recently received from the North Central Committee. Superintendent Kenneth Cole had prepared a five-page document for each board member about the report. However, the unofficial minutes of the board meeting do not reveal the content of the evaluation or the superintendent's document. The matter will be reviewed with Principal Robert E. Williams at the March 1 meeting of the board, after board members have time to consider the matter.

Girl Scouts To Sell Cookies

Limberlost Girl Scout Council announces its 1976 Cookie Sale. Five thousand Girl Scouts will be taking orders door-to-door between February 27 and March 7 in Adams, Allen, DeKalb, Huntington, Steuben and Wells counties.

A new company, Little Brownie Baker, is offering five varieties at $1.25 per box. Included are samoas, assorted sandwich cremes, peanut butter waffle cremes, mint and butter-flavored trefoils.

Cookies will be delivered between April 5 and 25. Girl Scouts can accept cash only for the cookies.

In addition to enjoying the tasty cookies, residents will be supporting a recognized organization and providing funds for Limberlost Girl Scout Council as well as local troops.

Those who may not be contacted in person during the order-taking period may call 337-3401 to place their orders.

Singers Sought For Cantata

Jay Blauser, organist and choir director at St. Peter Lutheran Church at Spencerville, has announced that the cantata, "Hallelujah for the Cross," by John W. Peterson, will be presented in the church Sunday, April 25, by a community chorus.

Anyone interested in singing the cantata is invited to join in rehearsals beginning Sunday afternoon, February 29, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the church sanctuary. The choir will not rehearse Easter Sunday.

For more information, contact Jay.

Fire Hall Bid Consideration Cancelled

Monday night, February 16, was the advertised date for the local town board to receive bids on proposed construction of a fire hall addition. The News inquired of clerk-treasurer Emma Frank about the matter and learned that the meeting was cancelled. She stated that only one bid had been received but there were reportedly two others who were interested in submitting bids. She said the board was "supposed to meet sometime next week" to consider pressing matters, including advertising for bids on the trash collection contract. The current contract with Merritt, Inc., runs out in April.

At the present time, local residents pay only $1.50 per month for trash removal under a four-year contract. It is expected that a new contract will be substantially higher, due to the drastic increase in labor and equipment costs in that four-year period while the per household charge remained the same.

At least two other firms are reported to be interested in submitting bids for trash removal.

Generally speaking, the Merritt firm appears to have done a good job under the current contract, including seasonal courtesies such as trash pickup at the local ball diamond and periodic emptying of litter collection barrels on the main street.

In the matter of bids on the proposed construction at the fire hall, a new bid date must be advertised to allow any new bidders to submit proposals. These additional bids cannot be accepted after the original advertised date to protect any bidders who have submitted proposals by the originally announced date.

Science Fair Tuesday At Riverdale School

The Riverdale School Science Fair will be held Tuesday, February 24, at the school.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted:

Despite the fact that I haven't seen you for a couple of years now, or even visited the Nucor plant for the last year, I still keep in touch with the goings and comings of the town through the weekly perusal of "The Saint Joe News" which still arrives on my desk each Monday morning.

Most times I respond to your editorials with an approving nod or a chuckle; but this time I feel constrained to let you know that even "down South" there are people who agree whole heartedly with your down-to-earth reaction to the events which occur on the local and national scene.

Your three editorials: "On Growing Older - or - Super Bowl 'Super Boloney' "; "Money 'Mitigates' Morality" and "Anderson's Total Error" were masterpieces in my book and you are to be commended for saying publicly what many of us only think. Keep up the good work!

I certainly plan to visit the St. Joe Plant sometime this year and will hope to sample some of your home made "Joy Juice" - that is, if I am invited. Give my best regards to your good wife.

Cordially,

Historic Series For Bicentennial

(As a special feature for the bicentennial year 1976, The News presents a series of historic articles prepared by Ernest A. Vass, Jr., government teacher in the New Albany-Floyd County Consolidated School Corporation at Floyd Central High School.)

"THE DIE IS CAST—THE GREAT DEBATE IS OVER"

". . . .these united Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states; . . . . . they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown and . . . . all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved . . . ."

At last, the argument was over. The Declaration of Independence spelled it out in terms everyone could understand and it was a bitter pill for the Loyalists to swallow. In one fell swoop, they went from loyal citizens to traitors and they were suddenly faced with a genuine dilemma. They had two alternatives from which to choose and neither was desirable.

They could now say that since the colonies had made independence official, even though they personally preferred to remain in the British empire, they would nevertheless support the independence effort. Some took this choice. Or, they could persist in their declared loyalty to King George III and take the consequences. Many decided on this course of action and the consequences were not long in forthcoming.

Those who supported independence are referred to as Patriots in our history books, but it's likely the Loyalists had other names for them. For it became the pattern for the Patriots to visit the unreconstructed Tories and inform them that if they valued their lives they were to ride or sail to the nearest British force or government. Protestations about needing time for last-minute personal affairs or to dispose of their property were to no avail. They were forced to leave immediately with whatever they could carry. Some fled to Canada, some to England and some to the West Indies.

Once they were gone, their property was confiscated and re-distributed on generous terms to fellow patriots to help finance the war effort. The bitterness engendered by this policy was to delay the signing of the peace treaty for nearly two years after the Revolutionary War ended. It also later led directly to some embarrassing trouble for the fledgling United States government, as we shall see.

The Declaration of Independence had other results not anticipated by those who viewed it merely as a statement of separation from England. There were many others who viewed it as the first step toward democratic government for the new states in which the people were to be really equal. Therefore, vestiges of the old Kingdom laws, some of which dated from feudal times, had to be abolished if they contributed to inequality. Primogeniture, entail and quitrents had allowed economic power to be concentrated in the hands of a few, and it was argued that if the people were to be equal, they must start equal.

Primogeniture required by law the passing on of an estate to the oldest son, or if none, then entail applied, that is, it must pass to the lineal descendants. Quitrents were feudal taxes paid by poor farmers to the owners of the estates. Quickly abolished by the new state governments, these Old World practices never again were required by law in America.

Not all private property was under attack, by any means. After all, the men who had promulgated the Declaration of Independence were property owners themselves. Its author, Thomas Jefferson, the leader for economic reform in the new state government of Virginia, claimed that private property was such a good thing that everybody should have some, but no one should have too much.

Benjamin Franklin thoroughly agreed, and his ideas on how to handle enormous concentrations of wealth would do credit to a latter-day socialist.

But the Declaration of Independence had other immediate implications. It was one thing to declare independence from Great Britain, and another to have it. And so the first order of business for the government of the new United States of America - the Second Continental Congress - was the prosecution of the Revolutionary War.

Another immediate implication for each of the states was the forming of new governments and the writing of new constitutions. Two states were to continue to use their royal charters because they were democratic enough to suit the new independent mood of the country. But for the other eleven, new documents would be necessary.

Principal Named Editor

Charles M. Ray, Jr., principal of the Riverdale and Butler elementary schools, has been named editor of a semi-annual publication of the Indiana Association of Elementary Schools. The magazine will feature reports from various districts in the state as well as articles by prominent education administrators and professors throughout the state.

Mr. Ray is a former associate publisher of a large suburban weekly newspaper in New Jersey. He is a life member of The Society of Professional Journalists Sigma Delta Chi, a member of the National School Public Relations Association as well as a member of the state and national associations for elementary principals.

Mr. Ray received a BA degree from Indiana University in journalism and his MEd degree from Springfield College, Springfield, Massachusetts, where he also was involved in the National Teachers Corps project for two years. In addition, Mr. Ray has completed post graduate work at the IUPU campus at Fort Wayne, Saint Francis College in Fort Wayne and Newark State College in New Jersey.

In 1966 Mr. Ray received the Distinguished Service Award from the New Jersey Jaycees. In 1968 he was listed in the edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America." At present he is a member of the Evaluation Advisory Council for Title I programs in Indiana as well as treasurer for District 4 of the state elementary principal's association. He is also active in his local Masonic lodge.

Gladys Griffin

Funeral services were set for Thursday this week at Dilgard & Cline Funeral Home in Auburn for Gladys Irene Griffin, 64, of R1 Saint Joe, who died Tuesday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. She had been ill six months and a patient at the hospital a week.

Mrs. Griffin was born March 3, 1911, in Hicksville, Ohio. In 1931 she married Ray Ivan Griffin. He died in 1971. Parents of the deceased were Ora and Mildred Johnson Alger.

Survivors include five sons, Clayton of R2 Angola, Norman of R1 Saint Joe, Ivan of Goshen, Hobart of Fort Wayne and Allen of California; a brother, Glenn of Union City; two sisters, Erma Howey of Hicksville and Ida Kline of Waterloo; nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild. A brother preceded her in death.

Mrs. Griffin was a member of the Auburn Missionary Church.

Clergyman officiating at the funeral is Rev. Carl Wirey and burial will be in Cedar Chapel Cemetery.

Flena Rubalcaba A Candidate

Flena Rubalcaba, presently employed in the DeKalb Circuit Court and Clerk's Office, has announced her candidacy in the May primary for the Republican nomination for the office of Clerk of DeKalb County. She will seek nomination and election to the position presently held by Norman L. Gerig, who has announced his candidacy for the Indiana House of Representatives.

20 years of experience in office and administrative assistant positions has prepared Flena for the type of record keeping and procedural duties required of a county clerk. Two of those 20 years have been spent employed in the DeKalb Circuit Court and Clerk's Office.

Married to Peter Rubalcaba, Flena is the mother of two children, Bernadette and Tim. The family resides on a farm south of Butler.

The candidate is active in 4H work as a leader and a member of the 4H Sponsoring Committee and Advisory Board of Wilmington Township. She has been an active member of and is secretary of the Auburn Business and Professional Women's Club. At fair time, she assists her husband as Assistant Superintendent of the 4H sheep barns and has recently become a member of the newly-formed Toastmasters Club in Auburn.

Blazers Drop Pair

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers lost two games over the weekend. Friday they were stomped 73-58 at Hamilton. Saturday night, they came close to surprising the DeKalb Central Barons with an upset win, but were finally downed 73-67.

Rick Rinard continued his scoring spree, coming up with 18 points against Hamilton and then netting a total of 32 against the Barons.

Jeff Freidenberger scored 16 and Gary Dielman 11 Friday night. Saturday night Freidenberger had 10.

Rinard hit on 12 of 19 attempts from the field and 8 of 11 free throw attempts.

Dielman had nine assists and also six rebounds. The Blazers had only four offensive rebounds the entire game, the Barons having a distinct height advantage.

RESERVES SPLIT

The DeKalb Eastside reserve basketball team split a pair of games over the weekend as they upended Hamilton Friday 39-33 and lost a tough 46-38 decision to DeKalb Central Saturday. The loss to the Barons was especially "tough" as a victory would have evened the Blazers' record for the season.

Eastside led throughout the Hamilton game as 12 players saw action in the low-scoring contest. The Blazer defense, which has become a trademark for this year's team according to coach Mark Bixler, allowed the Marines only 8 buckets from the field. Hamilton converted 17 of 25 free throws as Eastside could manage only 3 of 10. Randy Cook and Danny Shaffer led a balanced scoring attack with 16 points each. Phil Staley turned in a fine defensive job and Jeff Yates and Bob Myers provided good overall support in substitute roles.

Saturday night's game was close for 2½ quarters before the Barons took control of the game for good. The Blazers had trouble containing the quicker DeKalb Central team and a cold-shooting third quarter spelled defeat for the Blazers.

Cook led Eastside scorers with 15 points. He, Jeff Hudson and Jeff Berndt combined to grab 22 rebounds. But as has been the problem all year, ball handling and shooting were the primary reasons for the Blazer loss, coach Bixler said.

Eastside will travel to Westview this Saturday morning, then to Carroll Friday of next week to conclude their season. The junior Blazers hope for two wins and a 10-10 season.

Vocational Ed Week Feb. 9-13

Another phase of the vocational training program at DeKalb Eastside High School is related to on-the-job training and is directed by Ishmael Smith.

The program allows students to explore careers in the various vocational disciplines with the cooperation of local business and industry.

The objectives are to enable the student to learn to work through actual job experience, integrate classroom learning with on-the-job training, bring to the student firsthand understanding of the problems of the community's economic life, of labor and management, of industry, to enable students to quickly and successfully adjust to the world of work, to aid the student to develop in personality, character and good citizenship, and to utilize community resources to the fullest extent in the training of youth.

Temperatures in the 50's and heavy rain during the past several days have raised the leval of the St. Joe River to overflow its banks. Ponds are noted extensively through the area with several instances of water standing across not only county roads but state roads as well.

Just east of Saint Joe; employees of the Vulcraft plant must make a round-about trip to get to Saint Joe. Water stands nearly two feet deep across the county road just south of the old steel bridge across the river.

As noted previously in this paper, weather is playing havoc with streets and roads. State Road 1 through Saint Joe has probably one of the worst instances of broken pavement in the area. From the east railroad crossing to the stop sign at the west end of town, hundreds of holes have appeared in the blacktop pavement. Highway crews have attempted to repair the damage. But excessive water and moisture prevents any effective results thus far.

Lungmobile At Butler Tuesday

The Lungmobile is scheduled to visit Butler next Tuesday, February 24. It will be in operation from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Meadow Haven Nursing Home.

Adults may get x-rayed with no appointment needed. A fee of $1.50 is now charged for the chest x-ray service to supplement funds from the annual Christmas Seal program to cover the x-ray costs.

A report is mailed to each individual x-rayed. If the physician reading the film decides the chest area is normal, a negative report card is sent.

Any abormality or pathology noted is reported to the person's family physician for medical attention. The films are kept on file for possible future review by the individual's doctor.

The unit is sponsored by and is one of the services of the Christmas Seal People, covering a nine-county area. It has replaced the familiar DeKalb County TB Association.

District offices are in Fort Wayne.

Other activities offered by the association include a county-wide school testing program, education promoted on all phases of respiratory disease, and support of medical research in lung diseases.

Local representatives presently on the directorate of the area association are Mrs. Dale Thomas and Mr. L. K. Mason of Auburn, and Mr. Charles Davis of Garrett.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I don't know if I've gotten all the details exactly straight, but I hear Runt Deventer lost a bet here a week or so ago. With the high water closing the county road east of town which goes over the river bridge and is a route taken by a lot of Vulcraft workers, Runt and Bill Miller apparently had opposite opinions about the ability of Runt's new pickup to get through the water across the road. So they went out to see who would win the bet.

Runt said he could get through.

Runt lost.

Just by looks (I was out there to look at the high water once myself), you wouldn't know how strong a current was going across the road. So when Runt started through, the current got hold of the truck and carried it off to the side.

Dick Fogel's four-wheel-drive pickup and Tom Hollabaugh's tractor got the truck back to dry land. Tom said the water was about two feet deep in the middle of the flooded section of the road.

It wasn't a big bet. And Runt claimed afterwards that, in a way, he DID win the bet—he hadn't said HOW he'd get the truck across!

This was a refreshing week.

First April Davis came to work at the Sisters' Emporium in a two-piece outfit with a short skirt, then Mary Beatty had two straight days of above-the-knee skirts to bring those lovely pins into view once again—after a long, hard winter.

I'm not the only one noticing such things. April said husband Bob commented one evning recently at home when she walked past in slacks, "Hey, it's about time for skirts again, isn't it?"

When I picked up one of those Simplicity fashion bookets the Emporium has and leafed through the spring issue, I moaned, "Oh — no —" when I saw the below-the-knee fashions therein. Without looking to see what I was moaning about, April said, "Doppy—doppy—doppy!" She knew. And that's just the right word for it—doppy. It's one of those words you can't really define—but you know what it means.

My gosh. If Jan and Arla and Norma and some of the others around here get hooked by the "new" length, what a disaster!

Local Booster Club To Elect Next Wednesday

The Booster Club of Saint Joe will meet next Wednesday, March 3, at 7:30 p.m. at the Knisely Branch Bank at Saint Joe.

Part of the business to be transacted will be election of board members.

Also on the agenda will be a discussion of a bicentennial observance program for the Fourth of July and any other matters related to the club's overall program and purpose.

Dues are $1.50 per year and can be paid at The Sisters' Emporium. April Davis is secretary of the club.

GS Troop 192

Monday, February 16, 1976, the St. Joe Cadette Troop met at the home of Pat Osmun. We now have six girls which are divided into two patrols. Lisa Parker and Regina Schlatter are patrol leaders.

February 28th we are going to start selling cookies. Also on the 28th we are going to a song-fest. More about cookies. They are $1.25 a box. You may order any cookies from any Cadette Girl Scout or call 337-3401.

On March 12 we are going to celebrate the Girl Scout birthday. Every able Girl Scout will light a candle at 5 p.m. This candle signifies the flame of freedom.

On March 20 we are going to the Klondike Derby to test our skills.

On March 6 we are going by bus to see two operas and visit some museums. This will be an all day event. We will be tired but happy.

Lions Donate Mannequin to County EMS

The St. Joe Lions Club recently donated a life-size mannequin named "Resusci-Anne" to the DeKalb County Emergency Medical Service (EMS) program.

Bill McAlpin, director of the DeKalb County EMS unit, received the figure at a recent ladies' night meeting of the local service club.

The mannequin is used for the realistic teaching and training of cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) which includes mouth-to-mouth ventilation and external cardiac compression (ECC).

Money used to purchase "Anne" was part of the profits from the successful DeKalb County Fair food stand operated by the club for many years. Lion President Jerry Storer indicated in his presentation remarks that the club is happy to do some small part in the training of technicians in life-saving techniques.

As part of the ladies' night program, those present heard Sandy Cole from the Fort Wayne Lutheran Hospital talk on the Regional Coordination and Training of Emergency Medical Technicians. A special emergency vehicle was on display. The mobile self-contained station is used to carry intensive care patients (premature babies, cardiac patients, etc.) between hospitals and has all the life support systems necessary for safe and careful transportation. Miss Cole is the daughter of Lion Charles Cole of R1 Auburn.

The News is indebted to Robert Wilder for the photo and Mr. Hart for the information.

General Tel Is On Schedule At New Office

Last week General Telephone business customers were informed by letter of number changes to come in July with the new exchange now being installed in the company's new building at Saint Joe. Also included was the information that construction and installation of the $500,000 project is on schedule.

Features of the new switching system include:

Faster call completion;

Automatic number identification on direct dialed calls on one-party lines without interruption by an operator;

Touch calling available for all lines.

All telephone numbers will be changed effective July 17. Residential changes are yet to be made. Business number changes have been made, as stated above.

Bill Richardson, Doug Voirol Win Riverdale Science Fair Top Honors

The Grand Champion winners of the Riverdale Science Fair were sixth graders Bill Richardson and Doug Voirol. They entered a project on dams and how to turn a useless river into a useful one. Judging was held Tuesday night.

Karen Back, also a sixth grader, was awarded the Reserve Grand Champion plaque. Her project was on solar heat.

Other blue ribbon winners were Mark Kessler and Valery Federspiel from the second grade; Barbara Haines and Toby Shinaberry from the third grade; Jody Lepper and Susan Newport from the fourth grade; and Ellen Garman, Tammy Gilvin and Becky Olson from the fifth grade.

All of the above contestants are eligible to enter the Tri-State Science Fair April 9, 10 and 11 at Angola.

Judges for the Riverdale Science Fair were Betty Wagner, Angela Hose, Bill Guinther and Bill Kriener.

Nancy Hennon was in charge of the event with assistance from Kenneth Olin of the high school faculty.

Mr. Lugar - On Target

Former Indianapolis mayor Richard Lugar made a strong point at his appearance last week at the annual Lincoln Day Dinner in DeKalb County. The point had to do with a very important positive and necessary characteristic of the American economic system, a characteristic which has been driven into disfavor and disrepute by those who seek to capitalize politically on such actions.

Mr. Lugar emphasized the importance of "profit" in a free society, in a capitalistic society, in American society. National columnist William Safire spoke somewhat along the same lines in a column this week in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette. It is a ray of hope that there are those, both in the field of politics and of journalism, who recognize the damage done to America's outlook toward business and "profits" by those whose remarks have doted on alleged favoritism toward 'big business' and its profits, those remarks containing criticism of tax laws, tax "breaks" and deductions, without giving recognition to the risks involved in the operation of a business, large or small.

Mr. Lugar referred extensively to the practical experience he and his brother gained in farming through the encouragement of their father. He noted the first effort the two boys made in farming, each "buying" an acre from a 50-plus acre field of their father's to plant in wheat. Heavy rains flooded the field and the boys were discouraged; Dad told them could make some money farming but instead they lost all they had invested. That was hard to take — until Dad pointed out that he had lost all the remainder of the wheat field himself because of the high waters.

Later encouragement in raising hogs brought ups and downs for the two boys. But the ups more than compensated for the downs and they developed a profitable business through the years which created jobs for other people.

"Profitable" is the key word in that episode because, as Mr. Lugar pointed out, without profits there is no growth and expansion. Without growth and expansion, there are no jobs created.

With concern expressed about today's unemployment rate, Mr. Lugar's remarks become very relevant to the manner in which this nation is attempting to correct the situation. The Congressional majority is inclined to look at government programs to create jobs. This is a false solution to unemployment because it does not involve profit; rather, it involves the expenditure of tax money to keep people busy. It is not a lasting solution, but it is costly.

President Ford has been criticized by Indiana Senators Birch Bayh and Vance Hartke and Fourth District Congressman J. Edward Roush for his veto of a $6 billion bill which was proposed to create jobs through public works programs. They have stated, as have other supporters of the bill, that 600,000 jobs would have been created. Mr. Lugar pointed out that this would hardly be a significant contribution to the unemployment problem since there are millions of unemployed. And it would be a costly program, adding $6 billion to a budget already overwhelmed by deficit spending. Also, he challenged the 600,000 figure, saying at the very most 300,000 people could be put to work by the government program. Other critics have said the figure would be closer to 120,000 or so. In addition, it would take months to implement the program. With an upturn in economic matters in recent weeks, it appears such a government program would be unwise. And even Senator Hartke, though supporting the government jobs bill, has said it is not the solution to the problem. But he apparently has no qualms about spending another $6 billion of taxpayers' money.

It would appear that Mr. Lugar, in seeking the GOP nomination for U.S. Senator, will use the matter of "profits" as a major point of his campaign. Such a move would be more practical than political, inasmuch as public opinion surveys show the general public has a low opinion of business, having been influenced by a repetition of accusations of "exhorbitant" profits associated with so-called "fat cats" in the economic and business world. Such a campaign based on the importance of profits in our American society would serve as an education for a lot of people who have either forgotten or never learned of that importance.

To bring "profits" right into our own back yard, last week a list of high school students was published in this paper in connection with the on-the-job training program from which they benefit. Too often it is forgotten that "business' is providing that opportunity and can do so only because of "profits." The firms which participate in the program are in reality providing a service which represents a loss rather than gain, in the long run. Unless a trainee stays with a firm and unless the firm needs his or her services, each participating local business has an annual turnover of untrained personnel, a condition which is far from efficient or profitable. But it is done to provide opportunities to young people to learn some vocational skills, and that represents a gain for the total business world. And "profits" make the program possible.

It is important to give credit to local businesses for providing such opportunities. It is also important to remember that, as Mr. Lugar pointed out, profits (not government programs) create permanent and productive jobs.

Honor Roll Of Businesses

Just for the record, the names of businesses providing job training opportunities for students at DeKalb Eastside High School are repeated herewith, in recognition of their cooperation in the on-the-job training program in the school:

Newscaster's Feet Of Clay

News stories the past two weeks about the "leak" of a confidential government report is the latest in a series of incidents to confirm suspicions in the minds of some that the news media are slanted and biased in their approach to political and governmental matters. In particular, CBS radio and television has been criticized for its slanted presentation of news. A survey of last year, during which news broadcasts and documentaries of that network were monitored, showed the amazing statistics that comments critical of the United States were heard something like 80 to 90 percent of the time, while favorable comments had the remaining 10 to 20 percent. In other presentations, those conditions which put someone or something in a bad light were publicized nine times more than "the other side." The victims included the state department, the United States in general, Richard Nixon, Republicans, business, conservativism.

Among the CBS staff members who dug for intimate details of a one-sided nature was Daniel Schorr. He was seen on numerous occasions during the Nixon-Watergate affair, always with some evidence of wrongdoing, of coverup, of whatever activity might have the slightest chance of being interpreted as condemning for the administration at that time. (Remember that one item "coverup.")

Now Mr. Schorr finds himself on the receiving end, because he has been caught as a part of the recent "leak." Mr. Schorr was given the confidential report by someone and he gave it to a Washington, D.C., publication which then printed it for public consumption, or at least gave a resume of the contents.

Mr. Schorr's explanation for his participation was his belief in the public's "right to know."

Mr. Schorr denied any knowledge of the matter — until a week ago when he admitted he had passed the document along to the publication. He said it was no longer useful to deny his part, since it would be found out eventually.

On a recent "Sixty Minutes" TV program on CBS, a drug company representative was "set up" by the network in collusion with a doctor who had told of kickbacks in the drug industry. A camera was hidden behind a see-through mirror to film and record the appearance and conversation anticipated between the doctor and the salesman. I did not see the entire program, but from what others have said, CBS got what they wanted.

Please note. When Richard Nixon or anyone else involved a couple of years ago thought certain accusations should be denied, Mr. Schorr was among those who dug and dug to trap the culprits. But when Mr. Schorr participated himself in an, if not illegal, then certainly unethical act, he denies any knowledge, then admits his participation with the explanation that it no longer serves any purpose to deny it.

In other words, Mr. Schorr sees no wrongdoing on his part, a judgment based on his personal opinion as to what the public should know. But anyone else — particularly Richard Nixon — who tries to prevent a scandal and becomes more incriminated by such action — that "other guy" is wrong.

Also, when the national news media decide that extensive publicity should be given to the FBI and the CIA and their methods to cast condemnation on those agencies — and particularly the late J. Edgar Hoover whose presence as leader of the FBI for years probably is more valuable to every American than is now recognized—when CBS thinks these should be "exposed," it's all right. It's all right to prevent wire-tapping, it's all right to condemn infiltration of certain organizations of questionable character; no "tricks" should be used. But when CBS gets a "hot potato" like abuses in medicine, it's all right to resort to trickery, to trap an unsuspecting individual, to thus lay suspicion upon the entire drug industry, all doctors—medical care as a whole.

I wonder if the Severeids, the Cronkites, the Mudds, the Wallaces and so on are going to use the term "plumbers" now as often as they did in the past. It certainly would be appropriate, because CBS has taken steps to repair the "leak." Mr. Schorr has been relieved of reporting duties by the network, or so it says.

The militant, probing high-and-mighty powers in the national news media must now eat crow. One of their own kind has been caught doing EXACTLY what he condemned in others. What is worse, he had time to think it over, to consider the possibilities. He was under no public pressure.

There is one difference. Richard Nixon resigned from the Presidency in disgrace, threatened with impeachment. And while there is a motion by the U.S. House of Representatives to hold Mr. Schorr in contempt of Congress, he hasn't lost his job; he is still working.

It requires patience to wait, but time does tell — and truth will prevail.

Yen For The High Life

—Jack Anderson in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette of Monday, February 23, 1976.

Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., came to Congress last year as one of the is most promising freshmen. He has been assigned to the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

But this aggresive young Congressman regrettably has a weakness for high living. He also placed his leading campaign contributors, or their proteges, on his government payroll.

Because they did little work, he raided the federal manpower training program for office workers. This, unfortunately, violates federal law.

The 30-year-old Ford financed his campaign, in large part, from the contributions he received from his campaign manager, C. Eric Lincoln, the Rev. R. C. George, dentist Robert Tharpe, Memphis realtor Sam Dattel and their intimates.

On the day Ford was sworn in, he immediately put Lincoln, Rev. George Tharpe's wife and Dattel's protege, William McSwain, on the Congressional payroll at salaries up to $1,633 a month.

By all accounts, only Mrs. Tharpe worked an eight-hour day for the new Congressman. It looked suspiciously as if Ford were trying to repay his campaign contributors by putting them on the public payroll.

The working members of Ford's office, meanwhile, were assigned such unusual duties as driving around a pretty, young Delta airline hostess who frequented the office, chauffeuring Ford back and forth from Capitol Hill and babysitting his children.

All of this caused such a heavy drain on Ford's staff that he had to find someone to keep his congressional office going. He discovered the perfect solution, with the help of friends in the city and county governments back in Memphis.

Under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), funds are provided to train workers for local governments. Ford cajoled local officials into assigning the workers to his offices in Memphis, far enough from Washington possibly to be overlooked by the Justice Department. For this misuse of the training program happens to be illegal.

Clearly, the Congressman suspected that he might be violating the law. For he asked the Law Division at the Library of Congress for a ruling. The Library sent him a private, unconditional report last September that "such employment, as a benefit to the Member, would be in violation" of the statute.

There can be no question, therefore, that Ford knew his employment practices were against the law. Nevertheless, he continued to keep at least three of the federally-paid workers in his office. The penalty is a $3,000 fine, plus repayment of the salaries.

The Congressman's personal spending habits are equally curious. He professes to be broke, yet he scatters money around as if it were confetti.

In 1972, he signed a pauper's oath. His campaign committee is still more than $6,000 in the hole. He is being sued for lawyer's fees in a redistricting case.

At one hotel, he piled up a debt of more than $1,000. At another, he was required to pay in advance when his wife passed a bad check. At times, he has been obliged to borrow cab fare from bellhops and office aides.

In the House stationery store, he was "red-listed," thereby barring purchases until he personally deposited money in his account. He spent his entire $8,500 stationery allowance during his first few months in office, part of it to buy hundreds of cuff links and other trinkets for his friends.

Yet despite all the wolves at his door, he has managed to purchase on $80,000 house and furnish it lavishly. He granted an $18,000 loan to his campaign committee, and he splurges on clothes at Georgetown's most fashionable shops.

Ford has also been extravagant with the taxpayers' money. Once he tried to charge the taxpayers for political mailings, promoting a "Harold Ford Day." Even the timid House Folding Room turned him down, refusing to let him use his free mailing privileges to promote himself.

At first, Ford conceded that he realized his use of county workers violated the law. Later he recanted and claimed it was legal. However, he abruptly stopped using the manpower training funds to pay his staff after we questioned him about it. Ford also denied impropriety in any of his staff arrangements. His financial affairs, he insisted, are now in order. Lincoln has also started working full time for his congressional pay.

Footnote: Ford has claimed to the press that he holds a master's degree from prestigious Vanderbilt University.

When we inquired, he said his M.S. came from Cupton College, Nashville. At Cupton, we learned the Congressman's M.S. stands for an arts degree in Mortuary Science.

Lambda Sigma

—Becky Leas, reporter

The Lambda Sigma Chapter of the Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority held their February 11 meeting at the home of Denise Baird at 7:30 p. m. Eleven members were present for roll call. Lynne Bercaw then read the secretary's report. Linda Kandel reported that we have a total of $1,011.97 in our treasury.

As for committee reports, Lyndia Suntken passed out the programs for the year to each member.

President Sally Bercaw read a letter from the Pi Chapter from Garrett.

A check for $10.00 has been sent to Dave Arrants whose house was completely burnt down in a fire.

Last minute details were then discussed concerning Province Weekend.

The meeting was then adjourned and hostess Denise Baird served very delicious refreshments of cake and soft drinks.

I&M Employees Issue Statement About Current Strike Conditions

In these depressed economic times that our national, state and local areas have been facing, it seems almost bizarre that anyone fortunate enough to be employed would ever dream of involving themselves in a strike. And yet, the past few days have witnessed our area thrown into the midst of what seems to be a bargaining impasse between the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and Indiana & Michigan Electric Company, a subordinate of American Electric Power; an impasse big enough to effect 400,000 citizens throughout Indiana and lower Michigan. Because this bargaining breakdown could potentially effect so many people in such a drastic way, and because I feel the effected public should be informed on both sides of any issue, I will attempt to explain my views as a striking employee of I&M.

One of the basic legal channels open to any organized Union by Federal law, is the legal right to collectively bargain for higher wages, pension plans and other fringe benefits at the time of contract renewal. The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 1392, in the interest of keeping 800 skilled workers on the job, has repeatedly offered to arbitrate any differences between the bargaining units represented and Indiana & Michigan Electric Company. This Company, however, has ignored the offer and has publicly stated their refusal to arbitrate the issues. Previous to December 31, 1975, Indiana & Michigan Electric Company refused to release elected Union members of the bargaining committee from work for purposes of contract negotiations. In a letter to employees dated November 10, 1975, officials of I&M stated that "the managements of Fort Wayne and Muncie Divisions have no obligation to excuse their employees . . . to attend the negotiations of your (South Bend) bargaining unit. To do so would be contributing to an attempt by the Union to unlawfully merge the bargaining unit." However, on December 31, 1975, the National Labor Relations Board, after a full investigation of this situation, ruled that they found insufficient evidence of violations by the Union to warrant charges by I&M that the Union had "unlawfully merged the bargaining units" by requesting that all representatives of Local 1392 be present at one bargaining session. If the final ruling on this matter is a further refusal to accept the Companys charges against the Union of "illegal collective bargaining," officials of I&M have made it perfectly clear to employees that they will "ultimately appeal through the courts." It appears that Indiana & Michigan Electric Company would rather spend time and tax money with court hearings and needless appeals than grant the Union its rightful position under the law.

Just as needless use of the court system means wasted tax dollars, the Pension Plan offered to striking employees of I&M is yet another example of strain on federal tax money. Based upon projected increases in Social Security benefits, the Company argues that they should have to put less revenue into employee pension accounts, trusting that the federal government will have sufficient funds to make up the difference. Recent news articles by noted economists and government officials have warned that Social Security in this country will colapse of we continue to demonstrate our growing dependancy on the Social Security system. At a time when all American institutions should be working together for a brighter economic future, this Company refuses to recognize its corporate responsibility to life-long employees by placing undo burden on federal agencies for individual retirement support. This means therefore that Union employees of I&M will be paying more for their own retirement through an increased tax structure needed to support a growing Social Security system left unchecked by wealthy corporate institutions.

Since the onset of this strike by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 1392, Indiana & Michigan Electric Company has spent an exorbitant amount of its own revenue and tax dollars appealing to courts for numerous restraining orders, needless injunctions, etc. in lieu of using their legal talent and money at the bargaining table. The 800 employees of I&M who are currently out of work without benefit of strike pay are not asking for large salary increases that they know will eventually be passed on to the consumer in higher electrical costs. Time and again through newspaper and television coverage, officials of I&M project to consumers the image that most of their employees are earning top wages when in fact the average hourly rate of the striking employees is $5.85 per hour. To my knowledge, nobody, company or union, really likes striking conditions. However, in this situation, the issues of collective bargaining, decreased Pension Plans, and decent living wages for the type of skilled labor electric utilities require, added to the reluctance of the Company to arbitrate such issues, makes work stoppage, in my opinion, the only viable alternative open to union employees.

Blazers Lose

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers got a 24-point game from Jeff Freidenberger Saturday night. But it wasn't enough to bring home a win. Westview gained a 65-58 win at Topeka.

Rick Rinard had 15 and Dave Kandel 11 for the losers.

The game was won at the free throw line with Westview getting 13 of 24 while the locals hit 6 of 10. Both teams had 26 field goals.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

An item about an opening in the Butler post office for substitute rural carrier reminded me that I wrote a lengthy editorial about such matters when the Saint Joe Post Office publicized a similar opening not too long ago. Tom Hollabaugh is the new local sub rural carrier and my remarks have nothing to do with his appointment. (I never published the editorial.)

What I reacted to was the contradiction practiced by the postal department as follows:

". . . . and all qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, political affiliation, OR ANY OTHER NON-MERIT FACTOR."

(The capital letters are mine.)

But, also stated is the following:

". . . Additional points are added to the (exam) score of veterans."

Does the postal department mean that someone who has been in service is more qualified than a non-veteran? Or that a veteran is a better citizen than a non-veteran?

Talk about discrimination, here is a good example of governmental double-talk. Under the draft, every male has been subject to call into the military service. They have had no choice in the matter; someone else decided whether they were "in or rejected."

What the postal department is saying in effect is: if you did not pass military standards for the draft, you are a second-class citizen.

Military service is as much a "non-merit factor" as is sex, race, national origin—because the individual had no choice.

After reading about some of the courses in "vocational" home ec as described elsewhere in this issue, I wonder what qualifications are required to teach about marriage, the family, learning to know one's self, and so on. I am especially interested in the religious ties of any involved teachers because I believe such matters are based in the Judeo-Christian religious background.

Nothing personal—but since it's my kid who has such courses offered to him and his religious training is my responsibility—and no one asked me what I thought about including such courses in public schools—I think I am entitled to ask about instructors' religious beliefs and background.

CC To Meet

The Spencerville Community Club will meet next week on Thursday, March 11. The meeting will be held in the Community Club Building starting at 7:30 p.m.

Glen Moore, president of the club, invites all interested persons to attend.

Local Booster Club To Elect Next Wednesday

Due to Ash Wednesday this week and the beginning of the Lenten season, the Booster Club of Saint Joe meeting was postponed until Wednesday of next week, March 10, at 7:30 p. m. The meeting will be held at Knisely Branch Bank.

Membership is $1.50 per year. Membership cards can be obtained from April Davis at The Sisters' Emporium.

With election of board members an item on the agenda, an invitation is extended to those in the Saint Joe area to join and attend Wednesday's meeting. Membership can be obtained at the meeting.

The election will include voting for three board members. The board is composed of six members with the officers of this year automatically on the board for next year. The other two current officers are April Davis and Mose Yeiser. The remaining current board members are Ivan Brown, Roger Coburn and Tim Kuker.

With a Fourth of July program having been discussed at a recent meeting as a possibility for local observance of the nation's bicentennial, discussion is anticipated next Wednesday on such a project, according to club president Ted Haberkorn.

An invitation is extended to the town board, the fire department and auxiliary, Scout groups and any other local organizations and clubs to be represented at the meeting and participate in the discussion about a bicentennial Fourth of July program.

Leo Auxiliary Spirit of '76 Day

"Spirit of '76" will be the theme of the Leo American Legion Auxiliary Unit 409 Bicentennial Celebration for Saturday, March 13, at the American Legion Home in Leo. The public is invited to attend the day of fun and festivities.

The program begins at 1:00 p.m. with a checker and euchre tournament. Prizes will be awarded to the winners.

The Country Store will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. with many home baked and bazaar items for sale.

A quilt raffle will also highlight the day.

A Colonial Dinner will be served from 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets are $2 per person and may be purchased at the door.

"The Teardrops" will furnish music for the "Spirit of '76 Dance" beginning at 9 p.m. Authentic dress is optional. Tickets for the dance are $5.00 per couple and may be purchased in advance at Cedar Creek Real Estate in Leo or by calling 627-3286.

Door prizes will be included in the one-day event.

World Day Of Prayer Service Friday At Sp'ville

World Day of Prayer is celebrated each year on the first Friday of March.

Since the first small gatherings in the United States 89 years ago, this prayer movement has captured the imagination of Christian Women in local communities everywhere, across continents and islands, to include 169 countries around the world.

In every state in this nation, World Day of Prayer is sponsored by Church Women United —a movement of Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic women.

Local residents are invited to participate in World Day of Prayer Friday, March 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Spencerville United Methodist Church.

Another Paper To Serve Butler

Announcement was made this week of plans to begin publication of a new weekly neswpaper in Butler, "The Butler Bulletin."

Max Gray, formerly associated with the Auburn Evening Star and an insurance representative of late, is to be the publisher with son-in-law Jim Shelton to be editor. The wives of both men will also be on the paper's staff.

The announced reason for the establishment of a second newspaper in the city was the anticipated growth of the community. However, unofficial sources of information indicate that dissatisfaction with the operation of the DeKalb Record-Herald under the recent ownership of Miss Lee Ellen Ford is the prime factor. The present paper was known until just a few months ago as the "Butler Record-Herald." The change to "DeKalb" indicated a desire to become a county weekly. However, the size of the paper kept dwindling and advertisers quit using the paper. Circulation is reported by some Butlerites as "way down."

Policies followed by the paper the past few years alienated the general public as well as the business community. A prime factor in getting another newspaper started was the effort of the Butler Chamber of Commerce.

Years ago there were two newspapers in Butler. The Butler Herald was first published June 16, 1866. The Butler Record was first published February 15, 1877. Both merged January 1, 1929, as The Record-Herald.

Until the present paper was purchased by Miss Ford in September, 1972, it had been in the Powers family of Butler for three generations.

The new newspaper will begin publishing late this month or early in April. New equipment has reportedly been purchased to set up the paper. It will be printed elsewhere, however.

Music Winners

Riverdale and Butler students participated in the District Music Contest February 7 at Lakeland.

Gold award winners were:

Renee Chew, clarinet; Cindy Yeiser, clarinet; Robin Miller, oboe; Patty McDowell, clarinet; Diane Smith, clarinet.

Silver awards went to:

Lynette Longardner, clarinet; Frank Longardner, cornet.

The News is indebted to Tonda Miller for providing the information.

Blazers Lose

The Carroll Chargers broke the game wide open in the third quarter Friday night at Huntertown to take an 83-49 win from the DeKalb Eastside Blazers. The score had been tied 18-all at the end of the first quarter.

Though Carroll gained a 35-28 lead at the half, it was in the third period that the Chargers really took over, scoring 24 points to the Blazers' 8. In the final period Carroll came up with another 24 while Eastside scored but 13.

Jeff Freidenberger led Blazer scoring with 16.

Reserves Win

Coach Mark Bixler's reserve basketball team finished the season Friday evening with a 37-25 win over the Carroll Chargers. The victory gave the young Blazers one of the best reserve seasons in the school's history with a 9-11 won-lost record.

Defense was again the primary reason for victory as Carroll was limited to just 9 points in the first half. Eastside took a 21-9 lead to the locker room and held onto that margin for the remainder of the game.

Ed Moughler and Danny Schaffer combined for 20 points from their guard positions to lead the Blazer scoring effort. Moughler was particularly outstanding in his first important role since moving up from the freshman team. Jeff Hudson and Jeff Berndt did an excellent job of controlling the inside game both defensively and on the boards. Berndt played his best game of the season and has shown vast improvement since October.

The team closed with a better record than was expected. The 9-11 record is the best in 10 years at Eastside for a reserve team.

Bloodmobile To Be Here March 31

The Bloodmobile will be at the Riverdale School this year on Wednesday, March 31, from 1 to 6 p.m.

Delores Hicov, chairman of the Riverdale blood donor program, said the need is urgent again this year for replacement of blood used by residents of the area. Last year's special and urgent appeal resulted in the donation of 114 pints of blood.

Anyone 17 years of age and older can donate blood. Exceptions are related to past medical history or recent or current intake of drug medications.

Those who have questions about their ability to donate may call Mrs. Hicov at 238-4891, Lois Hook at 657-5492 or Jessie Baxter at 925-4566.

To Re-vitalize Lent....

'Forgive them, Father...'

Members of certain denominations within the Christian world are beginning to observe "Lent." This is a period of time prior to the celebration of the festival of Easter when quiet meditation on the meaning of The Cross has traditionally been practiced. While some denominations give no particular attention to this season, they still maintain an overall devotion to that symbol of sacrifice which brings all Christians together in the name of Jesus Christ.

Unfortunately, something has happened in Christendom to the observance of Lent, as has happened to some of the traditional practices associated with this free nation. That "something" is: the original traditional practices and observances have been changed in the name of "progress." In recent years, the trend in too many churches has been to direct attention away from that Holy Figure on The Cross and direct attention to the world today, particularly with a strong stress in some instances toward "social action" and "social involvement." Such a diversion is virtually a sacrilege, because that one particular death on The Cross can hardly be classified as "social action." It goes 'way, 'way beyond that earthly endeavor.

The result of such diversion has been a falling away from the church by those Christians who have felt something taken away but nothing of equal or greater meaning put in its place. "Social action" is variable with the times, but salvation is eternal and unchanging.

"The Seven Words From the Cross" were for years and years the basis for evening mid-week services in those denominations observing Lent. The importance of self-sacrifice, forgiveness, tolerance, compassion, devotion to duty for the sake of others — all these parts of the Christian witness were reviewed year after year as a means of strengthening the faith of those who call Jesus "Lord and Saviour."

As a look is taken at the Christian world in general, there is strong reason to doubt that Lent has the impact and the effect on Christians today as it has had in the past when, year after year, believers gathered for the season of quiet meditation, to direct their attention away from themselves and toward that redeeming grace symbolized by the suffering of Jesus Christ prior to His crucifixion, death and resurrection.

Not too many years ago, some Christians deprived themselves of a worldly pleasure during Lent, as a means of not only showing their faith but also of serving as a reminder for themselves of the love which God bestowed upon them through Jesus Christ. Today, that practice and teaching appears all but forgotten, except perhaps in scattered congregations where the traditional observance has been preserved. Generally, instead of a stronger influence on society, the so-called "progress" represented by changes in worship practices, including those during Lent, has brought a weakness, a looseness, which finds people frustrated, sometimes hopelessly mired in their worldly problems, looking for something to cling to, to hold onto, to help them accept their burdens and face those burdens with assurance and hope.

When Jesus looked down upon those gathered near that area called Golgotha, in agony, nails driven through flesh and bone and affixing Him to The Cross, think of the selflessness represented by the traditional "First Word from The Cross": "Forgive them, Father, for they know not what they do."

How many of us today "know not what we do" and need to forgive one another—through a constant and persistent reminder of that need?

I think the earthly church has lost its influence because it has been talked into directing members' attention to matters, such as social action, which are a part of the Christian's responsibility — but only a part. When we split the whole into individual pieces, there is greater chance of losing some of the pieces. I believe the Christian witness is the same way. And many of our troubles in the church and in secular matters are due to de-emphasis of "the whole" and concentration on but a part of the whole.

Nowhere can we find exact recognizable answers to our problems, our frustrations—not even in the Bible. However, only in the Bible do we find outlook, attitude and motivation, leading to our own answers which, while not perfect, still are certain to be better because they are directed away from self and toward others.

Lent, and contemplation of that lonely figure on The Cross, can help lead us to cope with life's problems.

On Irresponsible Drivers

Insurance seems to be in the news more and more nowadays. Two areas especially have come into public scrutiny — malpractice and automobile.

This week I received a phone call from a Butler resident who was upset, and understandably so, because that family (with two cars) had had three incidents involving auto insurance. One car has been in two accidents, the other car in one. Both cars were involved in one of the two recent incidents.

The complaint was not that the insurance companies were causing a problem. The upset was due to the fact that the two accidents involved other uninsured drivers and car owners. The other parties were at fault in the two accidents, one of which involved one family car being hit hard enough to bang into the other family car while both were parked. Damages have run from over $300 up to over $700 for each car.

What's the problem? The problem is that it is costing the innocent and faultless party $100 each time because they carry a $100 deductible policy. And unless their insurance company makes a move to collect the total amount of damages or unless a court (one driver has been booked on about three charges but reportedly could have been charged on 15 counts) requires payment of the innocent party's $100 obligation, the caller stands to pay $300 for damages not their fault.

It is true, they knew when they took out insurance that the first $100 of damages would be out of their pocket. If it was one accident, it wouldn't be so bad — although it is a matter of fact that the other driver was at fault and was uninsured. In the other case, the driver was alone but driving on a beginner's permit which requires a licensed driver to be present when the beginner is driving. In both instances, the cars were borrowed from someone else and they too were uninsured.

The question in the mind of the caller is, "Can't something be done about such people as those who don't get insurance — can't a license be denied or some such control?"

No one has yet found the answer, obviously. Mandatory insurance laws do not solve the problem, simply because there is no way to stop a person from getting behind the wheel and driving, literally speaking. Those who exercise such a privilege, generally speaking, have little in financial resources from which a wronged or injured party can collect. The innocent car owner or driver, such as my caller, who is not at fault comes up with a financial responsibility not of their doing.

In my book, this experience illustrates the fallacy of so-called "no fault" auto insurance. "No fault" has been pushed the past few years as a remedy for high insurance rates. Under it, the insurance company of each involved driver pays the damages related to their individual policyholders' cars with no argument as to who was at fault. The theory sounds good, but it does not work quite so effectively. The fault in "no fault" is that it sets aside and ignores the true basis of justice in the collection of damages, that basis lying totally on determination of fault.

Unless the innocent party's insurance company or a court of law (presuming that charges have been filed for traffic violations) take action to make the party at fault reimburse any deductible amounts to the dammaged party, there is on occasion little comfort in the knowledge that the major part of damages will be covered by the innocent party's insurance.

This is an unusual case, obviously — two accidents in a short time involving uninsured drivers who cause considerable damage to cars owned by one family. However, it points out the shortcomings of deductible coverage provisions when the insured party is not at fault. It also points out the possible injustice in "no fault" automobile insurance programs.

Your Freedom 'To' The Press

Readers may be asking, "Why did a Butler resident call the editor of The Saint Joe News about an auto accident and insurance problem, to get some information to the public about such problems?"

The answer is: because that Butler resident could get such information in the Butler paper ONLY if they subscribed to that paper—which they refused to do.

"Freedom of the press" is usually thought of in terms of newspapers' rights to publish what they think and to question, probe and gather information related to the welfare of the public.

There is another facet to "freedom of the press"—the newspapers' responsibility to publish what the public presents for publication, whether the public subscribes to any papers or not. The condition put to that Butler resident—pay $7 to subscribe and we'll publish your story—is totally contrary to the concept of "freedom of the press." It is, as the Butler resident called it, "bribery."

It is significant that the owner of the Butler paper has pushed and intimidated that city to the point of going for every dime of state and federal grants available for every possible program in typical liberal fashion, and has been an outspoken pusher for women's rights and women's "liberation." But a Butler resident is refused space to point out an injustice which affects virtually every citizen — unless that person takes a subscription to the Butler paper.

This is not just a supposition on my part. This is what I was told directly by the affected Butler resident.

Question: which newspaper serves the public—one which publishes the thoughts of I&M strikers (even though the editor does not agree with all of them), or one which refuses to publicize a citizen's plight (potentially affecting almost all citizens) unless that citizen becomes a subscriber?

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Bivera Brush, reporter

Due to the weather the Newville Home Ec Club had no meeting in January and they met one week late for the February 18 meeting in the Newville UM Church for an all day meeting. Rozella Mickelson and Leta Shaffer were hostesses.

After a delicious potluck dinner 1st Vice President Zella Collins opened the meeting by reading the poem, "The Gift of Spring." Then all repeated the club collect. President Doris Hart was in the hospital.

The club calendar was read and old and new business taken care of.

Lois Guiff gave devotions, using Psalm 111 and the article, "He Goes Before You."

Several hymns were sung by all with Rozella Mickelson as leader and Lois Guiff at the piano. 18 members and two guests, Marie Buckio and Edna Mickelson of Antwerp, gave the first name of a president's wife.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to the January and February birthday gals. A get-well card was sent to Doris Hart. After the meeting there was an auction of articles made by the members. In March there will be a white elephant sale. So gals, don't forget your elephants, please!

Gladys Impton and Mary Platter are March hostesses. It will be an all-day meeting in the Newville UM Church at 11:30 a.m. March 10.

Lambda Sigma

—Becky Lees, reporter

The Lambda Sigma Chapter of Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority hosted a Beta Province February 14 and 15. The Province weekend was held at the Marriott Inn in Fort Wayne.

Evelyn Esselburn presided at meetings held Saturday and Sunday. Ways and Means reports totaled $6,472.24 and Service reports totaled $4,687.57.

Saturday evening, all the girls who were registered enjoyed a delicious dinner and a dance held in the Ball Room.

Sunday morning, there was an election of new officers. They are as follows: president, Verdonna Fox; organizer, Judy Svelzer; editor, Betty Woodard; secretary, Cathy Schaffer.

Betty Uber, International President, was the visiting International Officer. We were very honored to have her as our guest.

We also thought it was a privilege to have Violet Tindall of Fort Wayne attend Province weekend. She is one of our five Life Founders.

The candlelight service was truly a great way to climax the weekend Sunday. All the girls made a lot of new friends and the weekend was full of rewarding experiences for all.

The "Spirit of '76" was a great theme for this year's Beta Province.

Vocational Home Ec Described

The vocational home economics program at DeKalb Eastside High School directed by Carol Rufner has many subjects to offer students in grades 9-12.

A student can advance from the beginning cookery in Foods I to Foods II and then to Advanced Foods. The Foods I program has been extremely popular for both boys and girls. This year there were four Foods I courses. All home economics classes are open to boys and girls.

Another popular class offered is Child Development. In the two classes offered this year, the students studied birth defects, heredity, prenatal development, and problems of growing children through the years.

Knit embroidered shirts and bib pants plus other garments were made in the Clothing I class. Clothing II should be of interest to many students with the emphasis on more advanced projects such as American crafts and clothing for the individual.

A large number of students were enrolled in the Marriage and Family Living class. In this class, an attempt is made to help the individual understand themselves, their family and the marriage problems of today.

With the living room as a center, the Home Furnishings class learns the basics of interior decorating plus projects such as refinishing furniture, rug making and accessory construction.

Two freshman courses, Consumer Foundations and Interpersonal Relationships, have been of interest to students. The consumer class works with buying principles, advertising, labeling and rise of resources. The interpersonal class aims to understand self, family members and peers. Also included are dating and social adjustments.

The FHA (Future Homemakers of America) organization has been busy this year with many activities. At Christmas time, FHA adopted a family, wrapped presents and collected food to make their Christmas a happier one. The FHA is a vocational home economics organization, open to boys and girls.

On March 18, Eastside High School will host the District 3 FHA meeting, including meetings and a meal. FHA members are planning to make red bib jumpsuits to wear at this meeting. They will also plan the meal.

FHA members are selling popular cookbooks again this year. The first order was sold out, but later in the spring additional copies will be available to sell. Some popular ones are: Quick and Easy, America, Bicentennial Cookbooks.

4H Dog Club To Start March 8

Enrollment for the DeKalb County 4H Dog Club will be held Monday, March 8, at 7 p.m. in the Assembly Room of the Auburn courthouse. The south door will be open to allow entry to the meeting.

Membership is open to all youngsters ages 10 to 19 or who will have birthdays within the year. They should be accompanied by a parent.

Please DO NOT bring pets to this meeting.

Training of pets will start Monday, April 5, at 7 p.m. in the Exhibit Hall on South Union Street in Auburn.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Mary VanHorne, who is a candidate for nomination as Republican candidate for DeKalb County recorder, stopped in recently for a brief visit. She informed me that former U.S. Fourth District Representative E. Ross Adair is recovering from a heart attack suffered recently as he and his wife, Marian, were on their way to a prayer breakfast in Washington, D.C. For any of their friends who may wish to send their best wishes, Ross and Marian now reside in the Three Rivers Apartments.

Also a visitor in the News Office the same week was Flena Rubalcaba who had then announced her candidacy for nomination for Republican candidate for DeKalb County clerk. We had a pleasant visit.

Burtis Dickman, Bob Baker, Francis Dulle and Cy Richmond are behind efforts to have a reunion of the Class of 1951 of Saint Joe High School. They have run into a snag on locating three teachers who were here at that time.

Burt called last week and asked that anyone knowing the whereabouts of the following contact him at Auburn:

John Nettleton, music teacher; Helen Stutzman, typing, shorthand and English teacher; and Mildred Leever, music teacher.

Burt also said I pulled the props out from under him in a letter to the editor of the Evening Star in which I opined that $4-plus a month was not too much to pay for trash removal.

Burt operates two mobile home courts at Auburn, and the contract signed by the city classifies his operation as residential, not business. As a result, residents of his mobile home courts have the trash fee tacked on their electric bill every month. But they don't have door to door pickup. They take their trash to only four pickup shelters and do it themselves. This rids the court of unsightly trash cans; there are no alleys in the courts.

The mobile home courts are not provided with street maintenance and lighting by the city; Burt takes care of that and wants to keep it that way.

But he has been fighting a losing battle in reducing that residential trash pickup fee, and I'm sorry I made it more difficult for him because I think he has a point. Burt is especially concerned about the trash collection fee as it effects those on Social Security incomes.

Burt knows what it means to have limited resources. When he attended high school here, he found himself an orphan and dreaded being put in a children's home before graduating from high school.

The late Derwood Ridgway was trustee at that time, and, according to Burt's account to me a few years ago (I didn't know about the situation before), Derwood "looked the other way," allowed Burt to finish school even though he was alone in a house in town—and Burt got his diploma. In telling the story to me, Burt said he knew what it was to "live on macaroni seven days a week because you don't have any money."

This background is probably a basis for Burt's concern about trash collection fees for the elderly; he knows the value of a dollar.

From that deprived childhood, Burt became a self-made business success. By the 1960's, married and with a lovely family including a knockout of a daughter who was beauty contest material, and he had slowly but effectively become the owner of two mobile home courts at Auburn, a mobile home sales company, a laundromat and car wash in conjunction with the courts, a Dairy Queen leased to another party, and a couple of other ventures, totaling eight, as I recall.

He was the first to begin a shopping center complex at the west edge of Auburn a few years ago. But for some reason a couple of big operations who planned to lease space pulled out, and Burt was in trouble. By coincidence (?), a shopping center right across the road from him was successfully developed thereafter. And now, there is a shell of a building only partially erected which has been standing there the past few years as testimony to another jolt for Burt Dickman.

But he is still in there pitching, and is chairman of a committee to investigate the establishment of an overnight travel trailer park at State Road 8 and I-69 to help draw interest to the city he know lives in. He had this idea five years ago, I'd say, because he told me about it. At the same time he was a big booster for ACD days, expressing hopes for a plan to have a glass-enclosed classic car on display to attract the attention and interest of travelers on I-69.

Why go into so much detail? Because Burt is an example of a self-made success, overcoming handicaps in the past not by excessive handouts or government assistance programs but by his own hard work and initiative. A sympathetic and understanding trustee helped out by recognizing constructive ambition.

I don't want to stick my nose in what's not by business. But I do wish there could be an adjustment worked out between businessman Burtis Dickman, businessman John Merrift and the City of Auburn fair to everyone involved, current contract or no current contract.

Vulcraft Helps Local Students In Spelling

The local Vulcraft steel girder assembly plant assisted the first and third grades Monday in a spelling lesson, as did CB (Civilian Band) radio enthusiasts.

With a lead car to clear the way, the Vulcraft semi, loaded with steel girders, went to the Riverdale Elementary School. The truck was equipped with a CB radio as was a pickup truck manned by Carol Seiler and Donzella Graham. The CB radios were demonstrated for the students and "sight words" were incorporated into the demonstration to assist the youngsters in learning those words through application to a visual and everyday part of today's living.

Girl Scouts Have Bicentennial And Birthday Prog'm

—by Judy Tejan

March 12 will find the Girl Scouts celebrating two big birthdays, the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. 64th and America's 200th. All Girl Scouts in the nation will join hands to celebrate the strength of their sisterhood and the freedom of America by lighting a candle at 5 p.m.

The candle will symbolize a pledge to carry forward the light of freedom for all people as the nation enters its third century of existence.

The birthday celebratian began in October at the Girl Scout National Convention in Washington D.C. At that time, First Lady Betty Ford lighted the symbolic torch of freedom in honor of Girl Scouts around the world. Six regional chairment lighted similar torches and then a candle was lighted for each council president. The council tapers were taken home to be relighted March 12 along with every other Girl Scout.

Locally, Girl Scouts will be lighting their "flames of freedom" at the Community Building in Spencerville. Starting at 4 p.m., parents will view their Girl Scouts in a ceremony based on freedom. It will be a serious ceremony, including songs, poems and readings, some written by the girls themselves.

It will begin with a flag ceremony and end with the candle lighting at 5 p.m.

All the Girl Scouts of the Riverdale area will then carry their "flames of freedom" out into the community to show their pride in being Girl Scouts and Americans.

PTO Carnival

Lynn Kaiser, president of the Riverdale PTO, has announced that the group will have a carnival Saturday, March 20, from 1 to 5 in the afternoon at the Riverdale School.

Tickets will be 11 for $1 and will be good for fish pond, dart toss, sponge toss, cake walk, spook house, pop ring toss, ping pong shoot, oddessy, gold fish, beanbag toss and sucker ring toss.

Mrs. Kaiser said, "We are asking the parents to send to school any white elephant item which they may have around the house. We need items that can be used as prizes for the fish pond and other games."

Joyce Cook Is Spelling Winner

Joyce Cook, a fifth grader at Riverdale School, won the local spelling contest this past week. She is the daughter of MM Richard Cook of Spencerville.

Joyce will now advance to the DeKalb County contest to be held April 3 at 10 a.m. in the Academic Building at DeKalb Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School. The spelling bee will be in Room 170.

Runnerup in the Riverdale contest was Joe Wojciechowski, a sixth grader, the son of MM Ralph Schoof of R1 Auburn.

More than 50 students from the fifth and sixth grades took part in the Riverdale contest.

Local Girls' Basketball — In 1913

Girls basketball in 1913? In DeKalb County? Involving Saint Joe girls?

The answer to all three questions is "yes" and Effiebelle McCann provides the above photo to prove it.

Mrs. McCann got the picture from her mother, Emma Wineland Strombeck, who was on the team and is at the left in the front row of the above photo. At the right front is Bernice Perry Baker.

Mrs. McCann relates that the girls went by train to Butler to participate in a game, remained there overnight in order to have the above photo taken the next day, then returned home.

To provide their uniforms, including brown serge bloomers, an oyster supper was served at Saint Joe.

Ronald Lee Smith

An aneurysm (burst artery) reportedly caused the death last weekend of Ronald Lee Smith, 32, of Black Creek Flats at Hamilton Lake. The fatal condition occurred Friday evening as he prepared to attend a basketball game. He was taken to Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne and declared dead Saturday morning.

Born in Hicksville, Ronnie was the son of Virgil F. and Pauline Warstler Smith who now reside at Auburn. He was a graduate of Riverdale High School at Saint Joe and married Sharon Kay Halt, also a Riverdale graduate, in Spencerville March 31, 1962. The couple have three daughters, Anita 12, Becky 8 and Cindy 6. Ronnie was employed at the B.F. Goodrich plant at Woodburn.

Kay is owner-operator of a beauty shop at Saint Joe, and until moving to Hamilton Lake, the Smiths resided at Saint Joe.

In his high school days, Ronnie was a high-scoring star on the basketball team and had a particularly outstanding junior year on the court. Thereafter he participated in church league softball at Saint Joe, playing with the Saint Joe Church of Christ team.

Other survivors include a brother, Melvin of Wawkarusa, Indiana; two sisters, Marilyn Schaub of Williamsport, Pennsylvania, and Linda Haines of Skokie, Illinois; and his grandmother, Ethel Warstler, of Butler.

Calling was at the Graffis Funeral Home at Waterloo. The funeral service was held at the Hamilton Church of Christ with Ronald Moomaw, minister of that church, and John Paul Hill, minister of the Hicksville Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was in Roselawn Cemetery at Auburn Monday afternoon.

Rainbow Girls' 'Rock-A-Thon'

Rainbow Girls Assembly 104 of Spencerville will participate in a fund raising drive for muscular dystrophy Saturday, March 13, from 9 a.m. until ?

The project is a "Rocking For Muscular Dystrophy" rockathon to be held at the new Murphy Mart in the Auburn Plaza, in downtown Auburn and downtown Butler.

Donations will be greatly appreciated by the young ladies.

Second Word From The Cross—

'Verily I say unto you . . .'

". . . . .this day shalt thou be with me in paradise."

The Second Word from the Cross, as thought of and observed in the past by many in the Christian world, has insight into the unbelievable magnitude of God's mercy.

After His betrayal by one of His disciples in the Garden at Gethsemane, after scourging, after a trial in which the magistrate gave his wisdom second place to the vengeful cries of the mob, after carrying His own Cross most of the way to Golgotha, after being nailed to that Cross, after being taunted by many who went to watch and after being mocked by the soldiers on duty, after being cursed by one of two thieves hanging next to Him in punishment for their misdeeds (although one Biblical account says both thieves cursed Him)—after all these indignities and moments of physical abuse, it is unbelievable that Jesus Christ could say, much less even think of, such words as: "This day shalt thou be with me in paradise." It is unbelievable—except that it is God speaking through His Son. And whether they can always comprehend the love of God, Christians are still aware that, with God, anything is possible.

There is a practical side to this episode. If one wonders, "How long can I be 'bad' before God's forgiveness is no longer open to me?", the answer from this episode is—right up to the last minute.

There is a "catch," however. You can't "plan" on being irresponsible and "out-for-the-fun-I-get" for a certain segment of your life, at which time you then "repent" and receive God's grace. It just doesn't work that way. The worldly sins which God forgives are those made in ignorance, in blindness to their damage to self and others. The repentance which leads to God's forgiveness must be genuine or it doesn't count. It takes more than just saying, "I'm sorry" or "I guess I made a mistake." Nowhere in Scripture does God tell you and me that being one of his faithful children is easy. Quite the contrary; it's the roughest road to follow. That's why The Devil has such an easy time of it, tempting people in ways which are sinful. It's easy to sin; you don't even have to try—and it's so much "fun"!

Having been disgusted for some time with the large amount of "junk" seen on television, showing a constant stream of excitement and thrills which are not real stories but just someone's imagination (and even some of the true stories are embellished with a bit of fiction to make them more exciting), I have wondered what there is about Biblical stories that is not "exciting"—if you consider the people, the circumstances, the actions and reactions. In this case, consider the fact that we have two thieves. One by his words is obviously not about to believe what he has heard about Jesus Christ. He curses the Son of God.

But the other—he evidently has heard, but has not believed. His conversion obviously comes when he is hanging on a cross, perhaps contemplating the wreck he has made of his life. His attitude is so different as compared to the other thief. This one says, "Quit your griping! We're getting what we deserve, but He has done nothing wrong."

Then to Jesus he says, ". . . . remember me. . . ." And the Son of God rewards the repentance of that thief with: "Verily I say unto you, this day shalt thou be with me in paradise."

That gives me goose bumps when I think about it. What a story! What a climax! What a thrill! For here we have Truth, not a fairy tale, not fiction. Here we have the last minute reprieve, but it's the kind of reprieve not found anywhere else, because it comes from God through Jesus Christ.

In preparing for the joy of the Easter festival celebrating the Resurrection of Christ, remember this episode, one so unbelievable because it tells us God waits for us right up to the last minute.

But what is so everlastingly thrilling is—it's Truth!

Cut Postal Wages

Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar has been in the headlines of late getting mileage out of a threat to reduce postal service from a six-day to a five-day week, among other things. He noted that 85% of the cost of the department is represented by labor costs, in a recent comment.

I know it's going to be 'way out of step to make such a suggestion; there will be hundreds or thousands mad because of it. But — if the postal department finds itself getting farther and farther behind, and if the major item of overhead is labor, why not reduce the cost of labor—no, I don't mean the number of employees—I mean the amount they are paid.

Consider this, from James L. Kilpatrick in "Nation's Business," March 1976:

". . . . .the business managers of the Postal Service are fairly subject to question on the labor contracts that they signed. Wages and salaries make up 86 percent of the operating budget. Four major unions are involved—the clerks, with 306,000 members; the letter carriers, with 196,000; the rural employees, who have 53,000; and the mail handlers, with 39,000. The union leadership is strong, shrewd, and savvy. Postal union members' wages were pushed up 60 percent in the period 1970-75. In this same period, wage rates for federal civilian workers went up 38 percent. The typical mail carrier now starts at $11,444 a year. The mean salary is $13,800. The union contract provides built-in cost-of-living increases, and it forbids layoffs."

The postal department is now in the process of closing smaller post offices in trying to cope with the red-ink problem. It was ordered by Congress in 1970 to make adjustments resulting in a deficit-free operation by sometime in the 1980's. A so-called "independent" postal department was authorized by the 1970 act. But that was just so many words, it would seem. How can you make a government agency "independent" in the same sense that a private business is "independent" when it involves federal employees???

Another solution is to raise the postage rates. Even the Postmaster General recognizes that this would make the use of the mails virtually a "luxury." Volume would drop, as it already has the past few years.

It seems to me that there are some glaring omissions in the publicity now coming from government officials and some of our elected representatives. How could Congress, for instance, order the postal department to set up its budget to "break even" when the same Congress won't do the same thing with the total federal budget? How can anyone with knowledge of the importance of a postal system for the distribution of public and private information set aside the responsibility of the American public to pay part of the expense through general tax revenue? Operating "in the red" in the postal department is NOT something to fear in a free society, it is to be expected. But it must be kept within financial reason.

The biggest question, however, is the one which no one is tackling head-on, not only in postal matters but in all other matters related to costs to the public. That question is: when are new labor contracts going to be renewed WITHOUT any further increases of any kind?

The basic cause of inflation is: more money or benefits for the same or less work. Today's cheap dollars are the penalty for not facing the one fundamental reason for our economic woes: too much pay and not enough work. It isn't just the postal department that's in trouble; we all are. And until we return to the basic fundamental of relative value of jobs to determine pay rates rather than the number of years a person has been working, the problem will not only continue, it will grow as it has for several years.

We're in trouble, deep trouble. And the problem lies at the feet of the leadership of the big and powerful labor unions.

Cut Teacher Pay Scale

The DeKalb central school district recently was informed by its superintendent that $200,000 had to be cut from the school budget in the next year in order to stay within revenue receipts. The teachers' union responded last week with its answers, point by point, to the superintendent's suggestions.

I don't recall the total number of revisions the superintendent suggested (maybe 15 or more). But I did note with pleasure that the teachers agreed with him on the first eight points. Thereafter, they had other suggestions.

It was refreshing to read of the teachers' reaction to the money matter. When have you ever heard of a union group saying, "We agree with management on half of management's proposals"? It doesn't happen very often. It should be noted, however, that in this case, it is difficult to take exception to proposed changes simply because the money isn't going to be there, and the situation involves a loss of some teaching positions. One of the things the teachers agreed to was the elimination of "department heads." This is one "frill" brought into all school systems in recent years which has been a puzzle to me. Too many positions (not just in schools but also in government) involve more "title prestige pay" than actual productive work. Too many part-time jobs have full-pay scales.

I imagine our own DeKalb eastern district may find itself in the same bind in the future, as will every school. So, I have a suggestion to make. Why not reduce the salary schedule for teachers by 10%? This, plus eliminating some of the frills, would go a long way toward preserving the basic curriculum. And it would keep some teachers from losing their jobs.

If workers in some industries have offered to accept fewer hours' work a week in order to keep their total force employed, why can't teachers take less pay, if their union-membership concern for one another is real???

Judge Stump Is Candidate

JUDGE HAROLD D. STUMP

Judge Harold D. Stump has announced his candidacy for nomination for Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court as an incumbent candidate on the Democrat ticket.

A lifelong resident of DeKalb County and the son of the late Judge Walter D. Stump (former judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court) and Clementine Stump, the judicial candidate is married and has two daughters, Carolyn, who graduated magna cum laude from Western Michigan University, is married and teaching at Schaumburg, Illinois, and Dianna, a nurse, married and residing near Knoxville, Tennessee.

Judge Stump is a graduate of Auburn High School and received an A.B. Degree from Indiana University and an L.L.B. (J.D.) Degree from Indiana University School of Law. He was a special agent with the FBI for two and one-half years and served in the U.S. Marine Corps with the Third Marine Division and the Third Amphibious Corps in the Pacific Area during World War II. He practiced law in Auburn from 1946 until election to his first term as Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court.

Community and club activities of Judge Stump include: member and president of the board of trustees of the Eckhart Public Library, Auburn YMCA Foundation, County Chairman of the Red Cross, Boy Scout Commissioner, president of the DeKalb County Bar Association, member of Post 97 American Legion, Auburn Lions Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars, DeKalb Lodge 214 F&AM and Scottish Rite. He has also been active in many civic and community groups and activities, including veterans, Farm Bureau, literary, fraternal, school, 4H and other youth groups. He has been selected as special judge in many important cases in several counties in northeastern Indiana.

Judge Stump states he would continue to "maintain, without fear or favor, a judicial forum where all litigants from all walks of life and all lawyers may continue to come with assurance that their cause will be heard justly, fairly, promptly and impartially."

Craft Display Area At Bank

A pegboard display area is available to the public at Knisely Branch Bank in Saint Joe

Mary Beatty, branch manager (or should that be "womanager"?), is responsible for seeing to it that the area was provided on one of the building's interior walls for public use to display handcrafts.

At the present time there are two paintings by Ardeth Ely of the "Newport House" at Harlan and two by Mary herself.

Other items will be coming in at future dates, Mary says, and the public is invited to view them.

Bible Evening of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser with Mrs. Robert Musser as hostess. The pledge and collect were given in unison.

For her lesson, Mrs. Harold Hamman gave a book review of "Jesus and Women" by Lisa Sergio. She told how Christ performed the first healing miracle for a woman and revealed His Messiahship to a woman at the well.

For entertainment, Mrs. Forrest Bevington played a tape entitled "Sounds of History" from the National Archives.

Mrs. Ray Baker gave the critic's report.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

Gentlemen's Evening was held at Richard's Restaurant in Auburn February 25.

Mrs. Hamman gave grace. After a delicious dinner, Mrs. Bevington gave the welcome and Mr. Carlos Church gave the response.

Mrs. Carl Perkins introduced MM Richard Ring who work with EMS. He told of their duties and responsibilities and service to the community.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Carl Carpenter.

EHS To Host FHA Meeting

On March 18 the DeKalb Eastside FHA (Future Homemakers of America) will host the District 3 FHA chapters and advisors.

Registration will be from 4:30 to 5:00 p.m. in the hall of the cafetorium. The meeting will start at 5 p.m. followed by dinner at 5:45. The Foods II and Advanced Foods classes will prepare and serve the dinner in the cafetorium under the direction of the home ec teacher, Carol Rufner.

The business meeting will start at 7:00 p.m. with reports, skits, roll call and a speaker, Mr. Al Black, Campus Life coordinator. The installation of District 3 officers for the year 1976-77 will end the session.

Byron Woodcox

A heart attack Friday was fatal for Byron A. Woodcox, 65, of Hicksville, a former resident of Saint Joe.

Mr. Woodcox had complained of not feeling too well. He was lying on a couch when his wife, Isabelle, heard a thud. She found him on the floor. According to their son, Jack, his father gave two sighs and was gone.

Mr. Woodcox was born June 15, 1910, at Saint Joe, the son of John and Daisy Dibert Woodcox. In 1929 he and Isabelle Boone were married at Fort Wayne where they started housekeeping. In 1943 they moved to Saint Joe where they resided for a time, then in Fort Wayne, then back to Saint Joe before moving to Hicksville last October. The Woodcoxs operated a grocery in Saint Joe in the late 1940's. Mrs. Woodcox managed the local Hep's Dairy Store a couple of years ago or so.

Mr. Woodcox had been an industrial engineer until retiring in 1972 after a heart attack. Recently he had had part-time employment at Vulcraft as a security guard. He was a member of the Fort Wayne Masonic Lodge and the Luthern church.

Other survivors include a daughter, Joyce Koch, of Hicksville; two brothers, Gray Woodcox of Garrett and Joe Woodcox of Bethany, Kentucky, a sister, Mrs. Arnold (Mary Louise) Olson of Kendallville; and three grandchildren.

Calling was at Brown Funeral Home in Hicksville. Funeral services were held Monday at the funeral home with Rev. George Campbell, pastor of Grace United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial was in Forest Home Cemetery.

Blazers Drop Tourney Game

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers droped their sectional tilt with Hamilton last Thursday 49-41.

Scoring only 14 points in the entire second half, the Blazers saw Hamilton's zone defense eliminate a 27-25 halftime Blazer lead.

Leo won the sectional in an overtime game against DeKalb Central.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I hope the item about the proposed increase in teachers' pay soaks in the minds of readers. At a time when school financing is such a problem and the solution no longer is a simple "get more money," it would seem our local teachers are oblivious to what is happening.

The central district has now CUT about $145,000 from its budget for next year, eliminating activity buses, assistant coaches and some teaching positions.

But over here in the eastern district, our teachers want another member on the administrative staff ("Dean of Students")—well, poop-poop-e-doop—aren't we getting fancy!

Please note—the teachers suggest eliminating study hall. They don't want to be bothered with it—it might make them use some of their own time after school for grading papers and so on.

This is puzzling. Are classroom studies and assignments at the junior high and high school level supposed to be completed during the school day only? For several years, teachers at the upper grade level have been told NOT to give outside assignments. This means a pattern is established in high school years whereby the student has little responsibility for outside study. Yet, the biggest factor in freshman dropouts at the college and university level relate to the student's inability to adjust to college and university study patterns which require more study outside class than in class! In other words, high school students of university potential are being double-crossed by their own younger-generation high school teachers. By having less and less outside work, they don't know how to study on their own. And—this is a subtle but effective way to indoctrinate students into the teachers' modern philosophy that learning and helping to learn is done by the clock—which is a falsehood.

Think I'm kidding? Just ask some of the high school grads about what they run into in college.

That was a nice dinner the Crows at Rainbow Farm Center had for their customers and friends last week. Those ladies at the Spencerville United Methodist Church really put out a feed.

It was thought-stimulating, too. While the ladies were busy serving the dinner, I recalled my fifth grade geography book and a map of Germany. Why? Well, it occurred to me that the Germans have nothing on us as far as scenery is concerned, what with the curves drifting by on the Rhine at Spencerville.

PTO Carnival

Lynn Kaiser, president of the Riverdale PTO, has announced that the group will have a carnival Saturday, March 20, from 1 to 5 in the afternoon at the Riverdale School.

Tickets will be 11 for $1 and will be good for fish pond, dart toss, sponge toss, cake walk, spook house, pop ring toss, ping pong shoot, oddessy, gold fish, beanbag toss and sucker ring toss.

Mrs. Kaiser said, "We are asking the parents to send to school any white elephant item which they may have around the house. We need items that can be used as prizes for the fish pond and other games."

Junk Car Ord'ce To Be Enforced

The Town Board has asked that the local "junk car" ordinance be published. Board president Roger Coburn said this week, "This is a reminder to property owners of the Town of Saint Joe, that the town does have a junk car ordinance. The Town Board will be making a tour of the town the week of April 12 to post notices on junk cars. Owners of cars covered by the ordinance are asked to please remove them and avoid any legal action the board might be compelled to take."

"ORDINANCE NO. 40
AN ORDINANCE DEFINING JUNK CARS, REQUIRING THEIR REMOVAL AND FIXING PENALTY

"Be it ordained by the Board of Trustees of the town of St. Joe, Indiana:

"Section I.

"For the purpose of this ordinance 'junk car' shall mean any motor vehicle which:

"(a) Does not bear a currently valid license plate

"(b) Is not in a garage or other building

"(c) Shows any amount of damage, such as broken glass, wheels off, fenders or body extensively damaged, or

"(d) Will not pass the State Standard Vehicle Safety Check, or

"(e) One that is being overhauled in the street or yard of any residence.

"Section II.

"Because of the danger to health from vermin and insects and to children attracted by such cars, junk cars are declared to be a nuisance except in lawfully operated junkyards or yards lawfully operated for vehicles awaiting permission for junking from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

"Section III.

"Any member of the Board of Trustees may order any junk car removed within ten (10) days.

"Section IV.

"Notice of such order shall be placed upon said junk car. Copies of said notice shall be served upon any adult occupying the real estate on which the junk car is located and upon the owner of the junk car if known. If no occupant of the real estate or owner of the junk car can be found, a notice affixed to any building on the real estate shall constitute notice to the owner and occupant of the real estate and to the owner of the junk car.

"If there is no building on the real estate, said notice shall be affixed elsewhere on the real estate.

"Section V.

"If said junk car is not removed within the time so fixed, any member of the Board of Trustees may cause said motor vehicle to be removed at the expense of the owner of the real estate, which expense shall constitute a lien on the real estate.

"Section VI.

"If such order is not obeyed within the time fixed, the owner of the junk car and the occupant of the real estate upon which it is located shall each, upon conviction, be subject to a penalty of $50.00. Each day on which the junk car is permitted to remain upon the real estate after the time fixed in said order shall constitute a separate offense.

"Section VII.

"The ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage and publication as required by law.

"Passed and adopted this first day of August, 1966.

Maurice F. Kline
President of the Board of Trustees of the Town of St. Joe, Indiana

Teachers Seek $54-$84 Per Day Base Pay, Another Administrator

Teachers in the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District have presented a proposed new salary schedule to the school board which would provide salaries ranging from $9.00 per hour for a teacher with no experience and a bachelor's degree up to $14.00 per hour for a teacher with 22 or more years' experience and a master's degree.

The above hourly pay rates are based on a 180-day school year and 6 hours per day of "school time." The actual number of days and hours is less, due to half-day sessions for teacher professional meetings and those indefinite numbers of days when bad weather forces school closings.

These figures are base pay only and do not include additional income for extra-curricular leadership activities on the part of faculty members.

These extra-curricular pay scales have not been made known by the teachers.

Thus, an inexperienced teacher would receive about $54 per day, under the teachers' proposal, while the experienced faculty member would get around $84 per day—again, these are base pay salaries.

Superintendent Kenneth Cole reported to the board that the teachers' proposal would increase the total teacher salary expenditure for next year by some $149,000. This is about $39,000 more than the school system will receive next year through a $5 per-pupil increase voted by the Indiana General Assembly in recent session. The $5 per-pupil increase must be used to cover operating expense increases in all categories, not just teachers' pay.

The figures were presented on a teacher by teacher resume to the school board this week as negotiating gets underway for a new contract.

Individual pay increases for teachers in the eastern system would run from a low of $1,488 to a high of $2,228.

Beginning teachers would thus receive over $1,000 per month under a nine-month contract.

In addition to a recommended new salary schedule, the teachers have proposed regulations ranging from grievance procedures to use of school facilities to sick leave.

One item is as follows:

"Item 2. The Board shall hire an administrator in the high school. This may be in the form of a Dean of Students. This is not to imply that the present administration should have a member of its staff replaced; it means that an additional administrator shall be hired."

Another item states:

"Item 4. The Corporation shall either: (1) hire a study hall aide, (2) eliminate study hall, or (3) pay teachers for the hourly rate and time spent in managing the study halls. The reason for the third choice is that when teachers have study halls they must use much of their own time outside of school to do school work. Also, if teachers planning includes library materials or audio-visual materials, there is NO time to get this prepared."

"Item 10. The Board will continue to maintain the position of social worker for the school system. (This is in case CETA funds are not available. The teachers feel that this has been a great improvement in teacher-child-parent relationships, especially in the elementary.)"

"Item 17. Paternity Leave. When a child is born to the wife of a male teacher, he shall be granted five (5) days paternity leave with pay. Such leave will begin on the day of birth of the child and continue uninterupted for five days."

"Item 22. The Board shall agree to form a committee of board members, teachers and parents to discuss alternatives in the area of discipline. The teachers feel that this is a priority item. The suggestion also arose that this committee meet regularly throughout the school year to discuss other problems and difficulties that may arise and could be handled in this manner."

In next week's issue, The News will give the complete proposed salary schedule, the teacher-by-teacher resume related to the salary schedule and the other proposals contained in the material submitted to the school board.

60 Attend Ag Producer Dinner

Some 60 persons attended an ag producers' meeting last week held at the Spencerville United Methodist Church. The meeting was sponsored by the Rainbow Farm Center at Saint Joe.

Following a dinner served by ladies of the church, those attending viewed slides and heard information concerning various herbicide and pesticide combinations. Such variations are needed due to the various types of soil in this area. The type of crop rotation is also a factor in chemical combination choices.

Dick Crow, Pat Crow and Andy Crow from the Farm Center served as hosts.

The Third Word. . . . . .

"Woman, behold thy son . . . behold thy mother. . ."

It is easy to forget the "everyday" type of existence experienced by Biblical characters. In studying the Scriptures to learn about the Word of God, names are read and talked about in relation to religion. What is forgotten is that those people didn't spend a lifetime just going about the city or the countryside having religious experiences. They were engaged in occupations, in providing for family needs, in raising children. They were no different from you and me.

Mary was the mother of Jesus. She and Joseph had other children. Jesus had brothers and sisters. There are times when it sounds as if Jesus was being arrogant in his replies to puzzling questions from both his mother and father. For instance, when they noticed Jesus' absence on one occasion when departing from Jerusalem, they returned to the city and found Him at the temple talking with the priests and scribes, who were amazed at His profound observations at the age of 13. When Mary and Joseph expressed their concern about Jesus' whereabouts, he said (in today's manner of speaking), "You shouldn't have worried. You ought to have known were I'd be."

Was this arrogance, or "smart-aleck" talk? No. Jesus was stating what to Him was a normal outlook—having the knowledge of a divine purpose. And although Mary and Joseph knew Jesus was an "unusual" child, having been spoken to by angels prior to Jesus' birth, they were still human beings, likely to forget momentarily at times because of their responsibilities and burdens as parents.

On another occasion, when the wedding feast had run out of wine and Jesus said, "Fill the vessels with water," Mary was puzzled. And Jesus knew it. His admonition to do as He requested was not disrespectful, because He knew what His purpose was, what He could do. Mary's bewilderment is understandable.

When Mary and John, one of Jesus' disciples, stood near The Cross at Golgotha, Jesus spoke to them and acknowledged two things. One was that their relationship as mother and son was ending with that death on The Cross; she needed someone to keep her "family" intact, to give continued meaning to her existence. The other purpose served by Jesus' words was to give to a disciple the responsibility of caring for someone in need—both instances pointing out for Christians a useful purpose life can have despite losses and sorrows, by directing one's attention outward and away from self.

Jesus' words to Mary and John serve as a message that death is not the end—it is a new beginning.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS ON SCHOOL BUS CHASSIS AND SCHOOL BUS BODIES:

The Board of School Trustees of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, DeKalb County, Indiana, will receive sealed bids until 8:00 P.M. on April 5, 1976, at its office at 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721, for two (2) new chassis to fit two (2) new 66 passenger school bus bodies. Said new chassis and new bodies shall meet all specifications as set out in the "State of Indiana Bulletin No. 271," School Bus Standards including the January 1975 revisions, and said chassis and bodies shall also meet any and all additional specifications as spelled out herein.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS:

All bids are to be submitted on State Board of Accounts Form No. 96, all parts of which are to be attached and properly executed. All bids are to be binding for a period of ninety (90) days from the day of bidding.

All bids by companies with representatives based other than in the State of Indiana must be accompanied by an acceptable certified check made payable to the order of said school corporation for an amount not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the proposal which check shall be forfeited as liquidated damages in case of failure of the successful bidder to enter into contract within ten (10) days after notification of the acceptance of his proposal. All bidders with representatives within the State of Indiana must submit with their bids an acceptable certified or bank officer's check made payable to the order of said school corporation or they shall submit with the bid an acceptable bid bond in favor of said school corporation and said check or bid bond shall be for an amount of not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the proposal, which check or bid bond shall be forfeited as liquidated damages in case of failure of the successful bidder to enter into contract within ten (10) days after notification of the acceptance of his proposal.

All bids are to be submitted in appropriate sealed envelopes plainly addressed to the school corporation and clearly identified on the outside of the envelope as to what bid is contained therein.

These two (2) 66 passenger complete school buses are to be built and completed prior to October 15, 1976, and delivery is to be ONLY after January 1, 1977.

Payment by the school corporation is to be made to the successful bidders within thirty (30) days after delivery of the complete units (chassis and body married as one unit) to the school corporation at 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721.

The Board of School Trustees of the said school corporation reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities therein.

All bidders must state the model and the year of manufacture of their equipment.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO CHASSIS BIDDERS:

Each bidder is to include as a part of his bid cost as quoted the cost for delivering the two (2) chassis to the site of the successful body bidder and for delivery of the completed school bus units from the successful body bidder's site to the Office of the School Superintendent in Butler, Indiana. In this regard, chassis bidders may elect to bid a different chassis amount for each potentially successful body bidder. Body bids are expected from the following:

1. Superior—Lima, Ohio.
2. Wayne—Richmond, Indiana.
3. Carpenter—Mitchell, Indiana.
4. Bluebird—Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.
5. Thomas—High Point, North Carolina.

Any qualified company which company could in fact fulfill such a contract may elect to bid delivered two (2) complete 66 passenger school buses provided all specifications herein set out and implied can be met.

Any qualified company may elect to show deductions individually spelled out for one (1) used school bus trade-in. One (1) used school bus trade-in is to be a bus numbered 9 which is a 1967 Chevrolet chassis with a 66 passenger Bluebird body.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BODY BIDDERS:

Any qualified company which company could in fact fulfill such a contract may elect to bid delivered two (2) complete 66 passenger school buses provided all specifications herein set out and implied can be met.

All school bus body bidders must reflect in their bids the real cost per individual unit and show the dollar amount deduction for one (1) trade-in as said trade-in is described elsewhere in this document.

ADDITIONAL SPECIFICATIONS FOR CHASSIS ARE AS FOLLOWS:

I. AXLES—7,000 pound front axle or more.

17,000 pound, single speed rear axle or more with a 7.2:1 ratio.

II. Bidder is to specify front spring thickness, width, length and number of spring leaves. Stationary eyes shall be protected by a full wrapper leaf in addition to the main leaf. Rear springs are to be progressive type and heavy duty.

III. Front and rear double acting shock absorbers shall be provided.

IV. Propeller shaft with guards and brake shield shall be provided.

V. Chassis fenders shall be fully undercoated.

VI. INSTRUMENTS—Gauges on the instrument panel shall be furnished instead of lights as signals, and the gauges shall include speedometer, odometer, ammeter, volt meter, oil pressure, water temperature, fuel, vacuum and upper beam indicator.

VII. TRANSMISSION—Five (5) speed, full syncromesh, direct drive.

VIII. Thirty (30) gallon fuel tank minimum.

IX. BRAKES—Brakes shall be full, cam type, air brakes, with illuminated gauge on the dash, audible low pressure indicator, and automatic alcoholic evaporators to reduce freezing. Front drums shall be a minimum of 3"x15", and rear drums shall be a minimum of 6"x 15". The compressor shall be a Wagner Rotary-Vane Compressor or its equal. (Everything connected with the air brake system shall meet State of Indiana and Federal school bus brake specifications.)

Emergency brakes shall be hand operated. Alternate: anchor lock, air emergency brake system.

X. ENGINE—V-type, 360 cubic inch capacity or more; full flow oil filter; quart oil bath air cleaner; engine governor.

XI. ELECTRICAL—Delcatron alternator (or its equivalent) with 12 volt system. 205 Amp. hour battery —12 volts.

XII. TURN SIGNAL SWITCH—Chassis shall be equipped with self-cancelling turn signal switch which is to be mounted on the left side of the steering column, immediately below the steering wheel. The switch shall be an integral part of the steering post on the chassis. Strapped on or bonded type will not be acceptable.

XIII. Chassis shall be painted to conform with the specifications set forth in the Indiana State School Bus Committee Bulletin No. 271 as revised in January 1975.

XIV. TIRES—900x20, tube type, 10 ply nylon tires, MUD AND SNOW TYPE ON THE REAR.

XV. WHEELS—Wheels are to be appropriate for 900x20 tires—not less than 7" rims. Wheels are to be black, ten (10) stud disk type.

XVI. Power steering is required.

XVII. Chassis shall be complete with front and rear towing hooks.

XVIII. Chassis shall be complete with mud guards or extended front fenders.

SPECIAL CONDITION FOR THE BID—If any of the additional specifications as listed herein should be in conflict with Bulletin No. 271, School Bus Standards, effective March 14, 1972, revised in January 1975, as being less than State Specifications then Bulletin No. 271 shall dictate said specifications.

ADDITIONAL SPECIFICATIONS FOR BODIES ARE AS FOLLOWS:

I. Heaters: Fresh air intake for left hand driver's heater shall be formed from body side panel instead of separate boxed intake attached, and be flush with exterior side paneling. LH Driver's heater and defroster shall have two motors as minimum. The right hand heater and defroster shall have two motors as minimum. The rear underseat heater located behind wheelhouse shall have a minimum of two motors, and shall be so located so that warm air will be directed to the rear of the bus. 50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building February 25 with Ida Reed, Mary Rutherford and Gaylon Markle as hostesses.

At 6:30 p.m., the group was called to order. All repeated The Lord's Prayer, after which a delicious potluck supper was enjoyed.

Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. The 1976 program booklets, made by Mildred McKinley, were distributed. A motion carried that Miss Reed buy a roll of paper for use on the food table.

Birthday offerings were received and the business meeting adjourned.

The group was divided into tables of four and "Dominoes In the Round" was played. This was a new version of playing dominoes to most of us and was greatly enjoyed by all.

Mildred Jarrett, Beatrice Frane, Alma Ransom and Bertha Bartel will be hostesses for the March 25 meeting at the Community Building at 6:30 p.m. Hope to see you there.

Hog Barn Tour

The DeKalb County Extension Service will hold a Hog Barn Tour Tuesday, March 23, starting at 10 a.m. at the John and Ralph Myer farm at the northwest corner of county roads 34 and 71. This is 1½ miles south of US6 and a mile east of State Road 1.

To be viewed are farrowing house, nursery and finishing barn, all on slatted floors. The latest in heat, ventilation, waterers and liquid manure handling equipment is utilized.

Vern Mayrose, Purdue specialist, will lead the discussion on hog buildings and waste handling.

After the tour, coffee and doughnuts will be served in the machinery shed.

Larry McKown Gets National Grid Recognition

Larry McKown, son of MM Larrry McKown of Saint Joe, has been named one of six top running backs in the country in the "Medalist Sports News." Players are nominated for the honor by members of the Football Coaches of America Association.

Larry is a 5-11 195-pounder on the DeKalb Eastside football team and will be back again in the fall of this year for his senior year. He scored 90 points for the Blazers last fall.

TO OUR FRIENDS, RELATIVES AND NEIGHBORS—

Your kind expressions of sympathy and friendship will always remain in our memories. Thank you for your thoughtfulness.

The family of Opal Coburn

Don Burley

Don Burley, 87, of Saint Joe died Wednesday at the Meadowhaven Nursing Home in Butler where he had been a patient 13 months. His wife, the former Laura Woodcox, died in March of 1975. A son also preceded Mr. Burley in death.

Mr. Burley was a retired farmer and a lifelong resident of the Saint Joe area.

Survivors are a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jean Burley, and two grandchildren of Illinois.

Funeral services were set for Friday at Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville with Rev. George Schuette officiating. Burial will be in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Board Offers Use Of School For Emergencies

At its meeting last week, the local school board considered the matter of use of the Riverdale School as a place of refuge during tornado or severe weather periods which occur from time to time.

The matter was brought to the attention of the board by Superintendent Kenneth Cole who had not been aware of such use. Last year residents of the local mobile home court were evacuated to the school on two or three occasions. However, such use had not been requested by the local fire department. The possibility of injury or death under such unauthorized use presented a liability to the school corporation.

The school board agreed to allow such use in the future only on the basis that the school corporation assumes no responsibility or liability for any injuries or deaths from such emergency use. The board's willingness to cooperate is noted in a letter from the superintendent to Fire Chief Fred Rayle which says in part:

"I have been instructed to inform you that the Board of School Trustees of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District is willing as a Board to make a portion of the Riverdale School available to residents of the Town of Saint Joe and/or the trailer court residents as a refuge for those people from windstorms and other acts of God; however, I have also been instructed to make it perfectly clear that this usage of the Riverdale School building is only for those persons who elect on their own to seek such shelter, and further that the Board is not even implying that the Riverdale School uilding is a safe shelter from storms, nor are the Board Members implying that they mean to be responsible for any persons taking refuge in the said Riverdale Elementary School building."

The letter also stated that keys would be made available to the fire department for such emergency use. However, as of Wednesday this week, such emergency use cannot be made inasmuch as no acceptance of liability by the fire department, and release of the school corporation of such liability, has as yet been made by the fire department.

WIFF To Feature Local History In Special Bicentennial Programing

WIFF Radio in Auburn has announced that a program series centered on local history will be broadcast twice daily, Monday through Saturday, beginning Monday, March 29.

According to News Director Phil Haberkorn, "The DeKalb County Story" will consist of essays and short interviews focusing on significant aspects of area history, and on present day efforts to record and preserve it. The programs will be heard at 8:15 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Saturday broadcast time is 9:30 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. on WIFF AM (1570) and FM (105.5).

In announcing the start of the series, Haberkorn said it is entirely a local production. "Broadcast stations across the country have received many pre-recorded programs in this bicentennial year. But those programs deal mainly with events of the American Revolution or material similar to that found in any history book."

As a change of pace, the Auburn station has contacted a number of individuals and organizations who have done research into the background of this area. They have been invited to submit material to be used in the series.

"We have some essays by elementary school students, high school students and adults. Many school projects that have been started as bicentennial projects are actually local in content," Haberkorn noted. "Students are learning that the history of this area is just as important to us as the story of the Revolution. We believe it's important for the community to be aware of this local heritage and of the work many people are now doing in order to keep an accurate account for the future."

In producing the local series the news-director, who just turned 25 and has become a mainstay of the WIFF staff in the five years he has worked at the local radio station, will utilize material that has been prepared in written and oral form. "Some of the students who wrote essays and term papers as part of their classroom studies have also written and recorded short stories and vignettes for our program," he said. "We will also be using excerpts of recorded interviews with some of the old-timers in the area, telling their recollections of bygone days."

Haberkorn emphasized that the work has not been completed. "We haven't prepared all of our programs yet, and there are some aspects of the production that will take several weeks to complete. For that reason, we welcome individuals or organizations who would like to contribute material to be used as part of the series to contact us."

Present plans call for the series to run through July 2. "However, many research projects will continue through the summer and the first semester of the next school year," Haberkorn said, "so we may find it possible to extend the series beyond the current schedule."

The radio station can be contacted at 925-1055.

Senior Citizen Nutrition Starts

April 1 and 2 are the opening days for DeKalb County's nutrition program for those age 60 and over. Immaculate Conception Church at Auburn is the site where meals will be served Monday through Friday every week from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Recreational and social programs are included in the noon senior citizen activity.

Mrs. Daniel (Josephine) Johnson, longtime Auburn restauranteer, will be director of the hot lunch program.

The nutrition program has been developed in DeKalb County as part of a nine-county project of the Northeast Area III Council On Aging with Mrs. L. Joyce Smith serving as area nutrition project director. Ron Feller is chairman of the DeKalb County committee which organized the program.

Reservations and volunteer services may be arranged for Saint Joe, Spencerville, Butler and Auburn by calling Shaw Real Estate at 925-4014.

Guests under 60 are charged $1.75 while participants 60 and older pay what they can afford.

Transportation will be provided if needed.

Cons'n Club To Seek 1977 Zone Shoot

—Paul Fetters, reporter

The St. Joe Valley Conservation Club met March 10 at 8 p.m. at the clubhouse at the west edge of town.

Roy Eck reported that the February 28 bingo jackpot was won by a patron who has attended almost all of the Saturday night bingo games. The jackpot was $500. Mr. Eck is in charge of the bingo activity.

Mrs. William Powell, chairman of the gun club, reported that attendance is on the increase at shoots held the first and fourth Sunday of each month, except August which is the first and second Sunday.

The club will try to get the Northern Indiana Zone Shoot for 1977. This is a registered shoot consisting of a 2-day shoot competition. There is parking space for 250 cars and camp site area for approximately 12 campers.

A movie was shown at the meeting related to Alberta, Canada, past and present. It was enjoyed by those present as it presented the first people coming to this new land. It told of the first harvests up to the present day harvests. Also shown were the wild lands, the game and fish of this remarkable northern neighbor.

The club plans another movie at the April 14 meeting.

Memberships are available at the club house. Come, enjoy the meeting and movie with us.

Fourth Word From The Cross

Perhaps one of the most puzzling passages in the Scriptures is that one pertaining to Jesus' cry of despair. How could the Son of God, God in human flesh but having all the power of God, how could He cry out in such a way? It just doesn't fit the picture. He didn't need to eat to keep alive because he was God. But he ate. He didn't need to hang on The Cross because He was God. But He didn't come down from The Cross. He didn't need to know pain because He was God and could eliminate pain. But He suffered.

The puzzling part disappears when we remember Jesus' total dedication to His purpose. His willingness to endure physical torture and pain is no more amazing than His willingness to bear mental anguish. Jesus suffered long before He was nailed to The Cross. So great was His burden that the Scriptures record that He wept. He prayed so fervently that sweat came to his brow like drops of blood.

If we are able to accept the human characteristics such as mental anguish, tears, anger—can we not also accept Jesus' despair when he cried out, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?"

In those words Jesus was really crying out in despair as have millions of human beings when it seems that all is lost, that nothing is right and everything is wrong. In other words, we can identify with Jesus more readily BECAUSE OF those words. For a Christian, this has great significance, because if Jesus could know despair, and if He died to atone for our weaknesses, then He knows OUR despair. And because Jesus is God, then God knows our despair, He knows our joy, He knows our needs, He knows all. This realization brings to the Christian a greater understanding of prayer as an important part of Christian living. Too often it is remembered in moments of despair and forgotten in moments of contentment. This Fourth Word from The Cross, uttered in despair, ought not be allowed to lead us to forget that it strengthens Jesus' identity with us and our identity with Him. He prayed FOR others, even His enemies. A Christian must do no less.

Edward Roush voted for continuation of a public employment program recently under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), providing up to 320,000 emergency jobs and establishing a new project-oriented public service jobs program to create an additional 280,000 jobs. The bill passed 239-154. This is the bill vetoed later by President Gerald Ford as "inflationary."

Bloodmobile To Be Here March 31

The Bloodmobile will be at the Riverdale School this year on Wednesday, March 31, from 1 to 6 p.m.

Delores Hicov, chairman of the Riverdale blood donor program, said the need is urgent again this year for replacement of blood used by residents of the area. Last year's special and urgent appeal resulted in the donation of 114 pints of blood.

Anyone 17 years of age and older can donate blood. Exceptions are related to past medical history or recent or current intake of drug medications.

Those who have questions about their ability to donate may call Mrs. Hicov at 238-4991, Lois Hook at 657-5492 or Jessie Baxter at 925-4586.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS ON SCHOOL BUS CHASSIS AND SCHOOL BUS BODIES:

The Board of School Trustees of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, DeKalb County, Indiana, will receive sealed bids until 8:00 P.M. on April 5, 1976, at its office at 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721, for two (2) new chassis to fit two (2) new 66 passenger school bus bodies. Said new chassis and new bodies shall meet all specifications as set out in the "State of Indiana Bulletin No. 271," School Bus Standards including the January 1975 revisions, and said chassis and bodies shall also meet any and all additional specifications as spelled out herein.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

All bids are to be submitted on State Board of Accounts Form No. 95, all parts of which are to be attached and properly executed. All bids are to be binding for a period of ninety (90) days from the day of bidding.

All bids by companies with representatives based other than in the State of Indiana must be accompanied by an acceptable certified check made payable to the order of said school corporation for an amount not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the proposal which check shall be forfeited as liquidated damages in case of failure of the successful bidder to enter into contract within ten (10) days after notification of the acceptance of his proposal. All bidders with representatives within the State of Indiana must submit with their bids an acceptable certified or bank officer's check made payable to the order of said school corporation or they shall submit with the bid an acceptable bid bond in favor of said school corporation and said check or bid bond shall be for an amount of not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the proposal, which check or bid bond shall be forfeited as liquidated damages in case of failure of the successful bidder to enter into contract within ten (10) days after notification of the acceptance of his proposal.

All bids are to be submitted in appropriate sealed envelopes plainly addressed to the school corporation and clearly identified on the outside of the envelope as to what bid is contained therein.

These two (2) 66 passenger complete school buses are to be built and completed prior to October 15, 1976, and delivery is to be ONLY after January 1, 1977.

Payment by the school corporation is to be made to the successful bidders within thirty (30) days after delivery of the complete units (chassis and body married as one unit) to the school corporation at 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721.

The Board of School Trustees of the said school corporation reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities therein.

All bidders must state the model and the year of manufacture of their equipment.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO CHASSIS BIDDERS:

Each bidder is to include as a part of his bid cost as quoted the cost for delivering the two (2) chassis to the site of the successful body bidder and for delivery of the completed school bus units from the successful body bidder's site to the Office of the School Superintendent in Butler, Indiana. In this regard, chassis bidders may elect to bid a different chassis amount for each potentially successful body bidder. Body bids are expected from the following:

1. Superior—Lima, Ohio.
2. Wayne—Richmond, Indiana.
3. Carpenter—Mitchell, Indiana.
4. Bluebird—Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.
5. Thomas—High Point, North Carolina.

Any qualified company which company could in fact fulfill such a contract may elect to bid delivered two (2) complete 66 passenger school buses provided all specifications herein set out and implied can be met.

Any qualified company may elect to show deductions individually spelled out for one (1) used school bus trade-in. One (1) used school bus trade-in is to be a bus numbered 9 which is a 1967 Chevrolet chassis with a 66 passenger Bluebird body.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BODY BIDDERS:

Any qualified company which company could in fact fulfill such a contract may elect to bid delivered two (2) complete 66 passenger school buses provided all specifications herein set out and implied can be met.

All school bus body bidders must reflect in their bids the real cost per individual unit and show the dollar amount deduction for one (1) trade-in as said trade-in is described elsewhere in this document.

ADDITIONAL SPECIFICATIONS FOR CHASSIS ARE AS FOLLOWS:

I. AXLES—7,000 pound front axle or more.

17,000 pound, single speed rear axle or more with a 7.2:1 ratio.

II. Bidder is to specify front spring thickness, width, length and number of spring leaves. Stationary eyes shall be protected by a full wrapper leaf in addition to the main leaf. Rear springs are to be progressive type and heavy duty.

III. Front and rear double acting shock absorbers shall be provided.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Lela Northrup March 3. The collect and pledge were given in unison.

The lesson for the evening was a memorial to Mrs. Northrup for her years of service to the club and community.

The president announced the county convention March 18 at First Church of Christ in Auburn.

After adjournment the club had a birthday party for the hostess.

The March 17 meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Hamman. Mrs. Carlos Church's lesson was on colonial homes and gardens. She gave the early history of the Puritans and told about their homes. She talked about Sun Dials and Roses of Yesterday. She described the beautiful gardens at Williamsburg.

Mrs. Roy Baker gave a short history of Burpee Seed Company now celebrating its 100th anniversary. She also had a contest on old fashioned gardens.

The president appointed Mrs. Roy Baker and Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser to the book committee.

Guests were Mrs. Pauline Miller and Mrs. Vernie Monroe.

Everyone will be notifed about fine arts night.

Mrs. Baker gave critic's report.

After adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

Free Genealogy Classes At Eckhart Library

Mrs. Sirleine Smith, librarian at Eckhart Public Library in Auburn, sends notice of a short course in "Tracing Your Family." Getting better acquainted with one's ancestry is particularly appropriate in the 1976 bicentennial year.

Three classes in genealogy research will be offered, on April 1, 8 and 14 from 7 to 9 p. m. with Troas M. Wise as instructor. Mrs. Wise, an enthusiastic genealogist, has spnt 30 years in such research and has held courses to aid others in their family history efforts.

The purpose of the course is to assist the researcher in a practical approach to genealogical research, to help avoid mistakes that most researchers encounter and to acquaint the researcher with answers for beginning research as well as for those who have some experience.

There is no charge for the course. The only requirements are a notebook and interest.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The weather is changeable as the weather here lately. First it's a spring-like day, then we have a chilly one or two, then back to a nice, warm one. On one of the warm ones a few days ago, Effiebelle McCann was seen hippity-hopping from Hep's Dairy Store back home—attired in a red shorts outfit—and I do mean RED.

—Ah — spring.

Jim Hudson didn't get hurt but he got a thrill a couple of weeks ago when he was working on a tractor at the pickle factory and the engine burst in flames. Jim got spattered with some scattering bits of flame but wasn't badly burned. The fire occurred in a storage shed and there was more damage from the residue from powder fire extinguishers than from the flames. To avoid danger of contamination from the extinguisher dust, several stacks of glass and pickle cartons had to be condemned.

Nancy (Brown) McNabb has her name in the news for two reasons. One is that she is running for school board in the DeKalb Central school district and a question was raised about qualifications as a property owner in order to run—a question which has been resolved and she is still a candidate. The other is that Nancy was recently chosen as "Young Mother of the Year." If winning that distinction has anything to do with having a lot of "get up and go," it's no wonder she was the winner. She is a busy gal.

The confusion about the use of the school building as a tornado shelter has been resolved according to Fred Rayle, chief of the fire department. Superintendent Kenneth Cole was waiting for confirmation of an agreement concerning responsibility and liability of such use and the fire department has agreed to the school board's request for relief from liability.

The fire department is now working on the idea of making up a list of townspeople who may need transportation to the school in case a tornado or severe storm becomes a reality for the town.

Meanwhile, keep in mind that when the fire siren is blown with a long, continuous blast, it means a tornado watch. When a second steady blast is heard, it means take cover or be prepared to because a tornado has been sighted in the area.

Fire calls are identified by an oscillating sounding of the siren at the fire hall.

From "The Insider," published by Oaklawn Psychiatric Center at Elkhart:

"A NOTE ON SUBSTANCE ABUSE—'While it was once thought that marijuana users were less likely to use alcohol than non-users, it is now evident that they are, in fact, more likely to do so. Frequently, the two drugs are used simultaneously—a combination that may be more hazardous than either used alone.' —from the National Institute On Drug Abuse."

—And there are those who still want to "legalize" marijuana.

When the kids from Coburn Corners had a paper drive a couple of weeks ago, I was smitten by a long-legged lass in the group who was wearing a sweat shirt with "Terre Haute Track Club" printed on the front. I asked her about it and she said she competed in about a half dozen events.

—There's something about long-legged lasses — — —.

In case anyone from Indianapolis might be wondering how Lake James is, what with all the rain recently, I took a run up there a couple of weeks ago and the water was lapping at some of the piers; it was 'way up. But a conversation with Jim Bright at his marina brought out the fact that it had been six inches higher a week earlier. His piers were under water then. That means, if my eyes have any perception yet, that Feick Point, where we vacationed until two years ago, was under water—or close to it.

This item is for the benfit of Jack and Mary Lou McCann and their kids, in the state capital, our "vacation friends."

Blazers Take Track Opener

The track season opened with a win for the DeKalb Eastside Blazers. At Tuesday's meet, the locals downed Garrett 91½ to 35½ at the Eastside field in Butler.

Larry McKown won three events, low hurdles, shot put and discus. Other Eastside winners were Paul Roberts in the 100 yard dash, Ned Powell in the 220, Butch McBride in the 880, Dennis Drake in the mile, Jim Burns in the two mile and Tony Sechler in the pole vault.

There was a dead heat in the mile relay. The 880 relay was won by Bob Hulbert, Curtis Best, Powell and Mark Michaels of Eastside.

The Blazers have a dual meet Friday at Lakeland.

Orville H. Gick

Orville H. Gick, 59, of Saint Joe died in his sleep at 4 a.m. Friday morning. He had been in failing health for some time and death was attributed to a weakened heart.

Born November 17, 1916, at Hoagland, Mr. Gick was the son of Fred and Louise (Koehlinger) Gick. He had been a farmer in the Saint Joe community until a year or so ago. He was a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

"He was a hard worker," said a tearful wife as she told the editor about the circumstances. Mr. Gick was in need of surgery, but his weak heart prevented an operation. Daughter Diane said she remembered from her childhood the times when her father would work three days straight on occasion without sleep, preparing the fields for spring planting.

Survivors include his wife, Ida, the former Ida Kammeyer; three children, Robert of Leo, Diane Lowman of Auburn and Penny Kitchen of Saint Joe; two brothers; three sisters; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at St. Mark church Monday afternoon with Rev. George Schuette officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe. Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home was in charge of funeral arrangements.

25th Anniversary

MM William Mansfield recently observed their 25th wedding anniversary with a trip to Atlanta, Georgia, to visit their son, Jerry.

A note from Jerry says the couple visited all the sites in Atlanta, including Underground Atlanta, the Omni, Stone Mountain and had lunch atop the Peachtree Plaza Hotel which, at 70 stories, is the world's tallest hotel building.

It was truly a vacation for Beverly who commented that she enjoyed not having to cook a meal or wash dishes for five days.

Local Option Tax Raised To 1% By Co. Council

DeKalb County Councilmen Ron Feller (president), Bob Ridge, Dale Thomas, Gene Reinoehl and John Reinhart voted unanimously Monday to increase the local option tax rate from ½ of 1% to a full 1%, the maximum allowed under present law. The decision was based on information from County Auditor Marjorie Carr and officials from cities in the county indicating that budgetary needs made the raise necessary.

Councilman Lawrence Bowmar was on vacation at the time of the vote but had indicated he favored the increase. Councilman Roger Kain was also absent, due to work, but reportedly had favored the increase.

Three funds were cut from the county budget last year. Part of the cuts can be restored under the new tax rate. However, the county auditor said the help from the additional funds may not last long; inflation will catch up to the 1% tax rate.

The revenue increase for Auburn could bring in up to $225,000 next year, as compared to last year's $75,000. Garrett would go from $25,000 up to as much as $75,000 and Butler from $13,000 to as much as $39,000.

County officials approved two $4,550 salaries for the sheriff's department and one $3,344 salary for the auditor's office to pay for two jailers and a deputy auditor now funded by CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act). CETA is scheduled to expire June 30, at least as far as providing funds for the three county positions.

When the local option tax was made possible a few years ago, apparently few people understood all the details. One very significant factor is the "freeze" on property taxes. However, that freeze was not on the tax rate, it was also on the total tax dollars collected by a taxing unit—depending on whether or not a local option income tax was adopted.

In DeKalb County, where the half percent rate was adopted, dollar amounts were frozen. Instead of getting increased tax revenue from increased assessed valuation, possible with a frozen tax rate, the taxing units got a reduction in property tax rates.

In counties where the local option income tax was not adopted, the tax RATE was frozen. But with business expansion and new homes, the total number of tax dollars increased.

The advantage of NOT having a local option income tax is that increased assessed valuation brings more revenue even with a frozen tax rate. However, the burden of taxation still remains on the property tax.

The advantage in a local option tax, on the other hand, is that the financial burden is carried in part by all who earn income in the county. Thus, the property owner does not bear the financial burden alone; all who earn income pay a part of the tax burden.

The program of local option income tax was instituted by the administration of Governor Otis Bowen to bring property tax relief, a relief talked about for many years in the past. It is obvious that the program has brought property tax relief. However, that relief will not last long in terms of dollars and cents due to inflation plus expanding governmental programs requiring additional tax monies for administrative purposes.

Phil Haberkorn Named Program Director By Radio Station WIFF

Phil Haberkorn of Saint Joe, a 1969 graduate of DeKalb Eastside High School, has been named station program director for the county's radio station, WIFF AM-FM. The announcement was made this week by Wayne Paradise, owner of the broadcasting facility.

Named news director in the same announcement was Jerry Clark who worked at the local stations in 1970 and returned to the news department this year.

Preparing for radio-TV work, Phil attended IU at Fort Wayne for two years, joining WIFF in 1971. In 1972 he was named news director and held that post until this week's announced promotion to be effective Monday, April 5.

Phil becomes the first full-time program director for the local stations and will be responsible for all music and local programing.

Mr. Paradise said that "this is an important position to fill and we feel that Phil has the capabilities to fill the position and do an outstanding job."

During Phil's tenure as news director, he put in many 14, 15 and 16-hour days, preparing material to his standards of quality and content to be worthy of broadcast use. An illustration of his devotion to his job—and his "boss"—he "celebrated" a birthday a couple of years ago by managing to get through heavy snow the night before in order to be ready to begin the broadcast day next morning. By morning county roads were drifted shut as were some major highways. But the news director was ready, having stayed all night, prepared to broadcast regular programs plus any emergency news.

At the present time he is working on the "DeKalb County Story," a historic series for the nation's bicentennial year, an effort announced just last week and undertaken even before his appointment as program director.

During his time as news director, Phil received a lot of help from area correspondents, three in particular. Garrett news was prepared daily by Kate Redmond who had to leave the work due to illness. Kenijo Emerson has been the Garrett correspondent of late, but she too has left the news gathering job for Garrett what with her family moving from the community. Jerry is handling Garrett news at the present time along with general news director duties to begin Monday. The biggest boost in the news department has been from Pat Oberlin of Butler who has consistently provided items of interest each day for not only the Butler area but also for Saint Joe, Spencerville and Newville areas. Her segment is heard during the daily 11 a.m. newscast on WIFF.

Campbell-Graham

Jilaine Sue Graham became the bride of David Shon Campbell Saturday, March 20, at the Spencerville United Methodist Church with Rev. Terry Rhine officiating.

Jilaine is the daughter of MM Wallace P. Graham of Saint Joe. David is the son of MM Lester Campbell of Garrett.

Mrs. Ed Seiler served her sister as matron of honor and Mr. Mike Pence was best man.

The young couple reside at R1 Auburn, County Road 52.

Chess Club

21 people attended the first DeKalb County Chess Club sponsored by Eckhart Public Library Wednesday, March 17, in Auburn.

Attending were David Beatty, Dan Brook, Steve Brook, Edwin Brown, Jeff Burton, Tami Fields, Brian Glick, Michael Likens, Tom Mack, Charles Maddigan, Jim McDermott, David Raub, Scott Raub, Steve Rieke, Jim Weinandy, Don Wiley and John Zimmer, all of Auburn; Stan Kuta of Ashley; and Bill Smith and Eric Stoneking of Corunna.

The new members bring with them an average of two years of chess playing experience. The club is fortunate to draw into its membership Charles Maddigan, a Chess Master listed by the U.S. Chess Federation.

The Chess Club meets Monday nights at 7:30 in the downstairs area of the library.

Membership is open to all ages and all residents of DeKalb County who have an interest in chess.

Kindergarten Roundup April 21

The annual Kindergarten Roundup meeting for parents of those youngsters who will be entering Riverdale School kindergarten this fall is set for Wednesday, April 21, according to Principal Charles Ray.

The meeting will begin at 3:30 p.m. in the cafetorium. It will include information parents need to know for enrollment, as well as a sound filmstrip suggesting practical things parents can do to help their children start school well-prepared physically, mentally and emotionally.

The kindergarten teacher, the school nurse, the school secretary and school social worker will be introduced to the parents and be available for questions as will Mr. Ray.

To be eligible for 1976-77 kindergarten, a child must be five years old on or before September 1, 1976.

Health examination and immunization forms, which parents should present to the psysician at the time of examination, will be passed out at this meeting. These forms are to be returned to the school office prior to the opening of classes in the fall.

In addition, a copy of the child's birth certificate must be presented at the time of enrollment. A photocopy of the birth certificate will be made and the original returned to the parent that day.

The Butler Kindergarten Roundup will be held Tuesday, April 20 in the cafetorium of the school at 4 p.m.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our thanks and appreciation to all our family, friends and neighbors who remembered us in so many, many ways at the time of the loss of our loved one. God bless each and every one of you.

From the editor's desk. . . .

'. . . . . I thirst. . . . . '

It is not particularly noticed at athletic events when a player gets a drink of water. That's expected; he or she has exerted himself or herself and the body has "burned" a lot of the energy reserves, resulting in a a condition we call "sweating." Though an athlete does not say it audibly, he is saying, "I thirst."

Jesus on The Cross also said, "I thirst," and he received a sponge soaked with vinegar and hyssop (a herb of the mint family) to moisten his dry lips. But Jesus thirsted in another sense—in spirit. Remember that this was God in human form hanging from The Cross. Remember that He had endured mockery, hate, scourging, deceit—every kind of human action and reaction which fosters discouragement and disillusionment. Once again, by this human response, God identified Himself with man through human suffering. Here was God, through Jesus, saying the same thing you and I often say when we have carried a heavy burden, whether physically or spiritually—"I'm thirsty."

How relevant these words are today. How we Americans do thirst today, in spirit. The headlines in the newspapers and the news reports on radio and television indicate how we thirst in spirit. Truckers on strike for more money—sports stars destroying the meaning of "sports" by demanding more money and pension plans far beyond the reaches of the average sports fan who pays and pays for lower quality of performance in sports in general—teachers demanding more and more money for less time and effort and in the process destroying their opportunity to be a total "teacher" for students—Congressmen voting themselves more and more money (from your and my taxes) and making their pay raises "automatic" so that they do not need to answer to you and me about their pay, their allowances, and so on—union members enticed by the promise from their leadership of more money, more benefits—all around us, striking examples of how we as a nation thirst for that which is of the spirit, and no one willing to make the first move to relieve that thirst—relief found in thinking of others instead of self.

An Indiana Senator campaigns for re-election with a printed statement (mailed at your and my expense) that "22.4 Million Senior Citizens In America Seeking Economic, Social Independence" while at the same time consistently voting for or sponsoring legislation demanding more tax dollars—an effort which DEPRIVES Americans of their ability to be economically and socially independent by draining their accumulated personal wealth. How sorry for themselves are so many segments of our society, because of those who seek votes by emphasizing how "bad off" those groups are and seldom if ever saying, "You have a lot to be thankful for."

This Fifth Word From The Cross is very appropriate for today. Oh, America, how we thirst.

Did you know

—that Grace Rivera of Saint Joe has returned home after a two month visit in West Virginia with her father who is seriously ill. She says it's good to be back; she missed her friends in Saint Joe.

—that the insurance office and legal office, located in the Professional Building, has been closed.

—that Farm Bureau spokesmen are urging Congress to make striking families ineligible for food stamps.

—that Congressman J. Edward Roush has introduced legislation to increase the present federal estate tax exemption from $60,000 to $200,000 "to protect the family farm." However, nothing is said about protecting a "family business" relative to estate taxes.

—that the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission is making an effort to have a simultaneous nationwide ringing of bells on July 4 to herald the country's entrance into its third century. The suggested time is 2:00 p.m. EDT, when the Liberty Bell will be rung.

—that Lane Builders of Butler have filed for reorganization under chapter 10 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act. The action does not affect Lane Realty.

—that a two month search for handicapped children not now enrolled in public education programs is now under way. A toll-free number, 800-382-2046, has been established so that anyone can refer such a child or request more information about the program. Once the child has been identified, his needs will be evaluated so that the schools may offer an appropriate educational program.

—that "Vance Hartke has demonstrated he is a great Senator," according to Auburn mayor Jack Sanders and Garrett mayor Harris Hoeffel. Both are giving support to the Senator's re-election efforts.

—that Murial Vendrely of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that Indiana State Police Trooper John M. Colgate was recently presented a Safe Driving Award for 500,000 miles of driving without a chargeable accident. He resides in Garrett and is assigned to DeKalb County as a resident trooper.

—that MM Clifford Howard of Saint Joe are parents of a daughter born recently at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that Northern Indiana Fuel & Light has filed new gas rate schedules to increase charges to customers due to increased pipeline costs.

—that Indiana Volunteers For Youth will hold its first annual meeting at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, April 10, at Switzer Center of Indiana Central University at Indianapolis. Coordinators, volunteers and administrators of court-related and community programs dealing with the problems and needs of youth are invited to attend the all-day workshop.

Lambda Sigma

—Becky Leas, reporter

The Lambda Sigma Chapter of the Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority met at the home of Becky Leas March 11 at 8 p.m. The creed was recited by 10 members. Linda Kandel reported that we have $47.98 in our treasury.

Province Weekend was then discussed. Sally Bercaw read a letter from our Province President, VerDonna Fox.

The chapter dues of $18 will be due by the end of next month.

On April 17, a bake sale is planned. Lynda Holdeman will be the chairman. Pecans will also be on sale at the bake sale.

The International Convention will be held June 16-20. There will be two delegates from our chapter.

Linda Kandel read a thank you note from Carol Barber who is Director of Handicapped Services. Our chapter donated $100.00

A bowling party is being planned. The date hasn't been set yet.

The next meeting will be held April 8 at the home of Renee Johnson.

The meeting adjourned and refreshments were served by Becky Leas.

—that the Town Board meeting has been re-scheduled for Monday, April 12, instead of the usual first Monday of the month.

—that MM Jay Stuckey of Spencerville are parents of a son born recently at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that Mrs. Richard Barker of Kendallville was recently elected president of the American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana. Mrs. Sylvia Thomas of Auburn was named to the executive committee. Other directors elected include L. K. Mason of Auburn and Charles Davis of Garrett.

—that voluntary gasoline conservation by Hoosier motorists has apparently reduced consumption of fuel by 4% since 1973.

—that Dale Lee Wilson of R1 Auburn and Diane Kay Carteaux of R2 Avilla plan an August 21 wedding.

—that MM Richard Mumma of Auburn are parents of a son born recently at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that Debra McDaniel of Garrett, DeKalb County Good Citizen Award winner, and her parents attended the Indiana DAR Good Citizens Awards Day Luncheon in Indianapolis March 20.

—that the trash collection fee per household in Saint Joe will probably be raised $1 starting in May. The Town Board has tentatively accepted a bid from Merritt, Inc., the current contractor for trash pickup. Such contracts are for four year periods.

Gladys Impton and Mary Platter were hostesses for the Newville Home Ec Club at the Newville United Methodist Church for an all-day meeting March 10. Tables were decorated in honor of St. Patrick.

After dinner President Doris Hart called the meeting to order and all repeated the club collect. Elva Hook gave devotions, using Job 7:4 and the article, "A Pause That Refreshes and March Miracles." Song of the month, "When It's Springtime In the Rockies," was led by assistant song leader Rozella Mickelson and accompanied by Dorine Singer. The group also sang "My Wild Irish Rose."

18 members gave a new flower they'd like to grow for roll call.

New officers elected are: Doris Hart, president; Zella Collins, 1st vice-president; Lois Guiff, 2nd vice-president; Mary Platter, secretary; Rozella Mickelson, assistant; Leta Shaffer, treasurer; Judy Morrison, assistant; Bivere Brush, news reporter; Lucille Nelson, assistant; Dorothy Meek, song leader; Rozella Mickelson, assistant; Dorine Singer, pianist; Lois Guiff, assistant.

On March 9 seven members and one guest attended the all-day cooking school at Garrett. Lois Guiff gave her notes for the lesson for the day. Dorine Singer and Bivere Brush won door prizes.

The Town & Country Club has invited us to visit them on April 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the I&M Building at Butler.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Myrtle Mills and Judy Morrison. There was a white elephant sale. In April the March calendar is to be brought back.

The April 14 meeting will be at the Lucky Stier Steak House in Auburn.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Maxie Myers, reporter

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau board of directors met March 22 at the Farm Bureau Building.

Charles Bloom gave devotions entitled, "Christian Faith Shows In Our Actions." He closed with prayer and the pledge to the flag.

Plans were laid to recognize "Century" farm owners. Owners of 100 year old farms are asked to call at the Farm Bureau office to get forms to fill in.

Howard McDaniel reported that plans are under way for the "Crime Trap" program.

A young people's Citizenship Seminar is to be held at Franklin College June 21-24. This is open for junior and senior high school students. The program is a study of local government. If interested, talk to your local Farm Bureau unit leaders.

April 9 at 9:30 a.m. is a woman's meeting in the Woodruff Church in LaGrange County. DeKalb County Farm Bureau women will host a District II woman's meeting September 13. This will be a flower show and will be held in the First Methodist Church on Seventh Street.

April 29 at 7:30 p.m. will be the Amateur Contest in the Auburn courthouse. There will be three groups: pet and hobby, 4H, and adult. There will be three prizes in each group. You must be from a Farm Bureau family in all groups except the 4H group. Professor Sunderson and Denny Nelson will present a geology program.

Committees selected for the Amateur Contest are: Jackson Township, devotions and song leader; Smithfield-Grant, decorations; refreshments, Franklin-Troy.

Marvin Metzger, District II fieldman, thanked everyone who helped in the membership drive. DeKalb County has now reached 100%, the second in the district.

Bruce Provines gave a local affairs report.

Adeline Stucky will give devotions in April.

UM Holy Week Services Listed

Holy Week services have been announced for Mt. Pleasant United Methodist Church.

Pastor Jeffrey Snyder will be assisted by other pastors in the area during the week of 7:30 evening services.

The church is located at the intersection of county roads 59 and 40.

The schedule is as follows:

Sunday, April 11—"Alleluia," an Easter cantata by the Monroeville U.M. choir.

Monday, April 12—Rev. Willard McKindley, pastor of the Pioneer, Ohio, U.B. Church.

Tuesday, April 13—Rev. Terry Rhine, pastor of the Spencerville U.M. Church.

Wednesday, April 14—Rev. Marilyn Bales, pastor of the Scipio UM Church.

Thursday, April 15—Rev. Kaye Casterline, former pastor of the Mt. Pleasant-Newville UM parish.

Friday, April 16—a Service of Tenebrae, Holy Communion, Pastor and Mrs. Snyder.

Special fellowship will follow the services on Monday and Thursday evnings.

Everyone is welcome. "Bring your family and friends."

Benefit For Afflicted Infant

Norris Chapel United Methodist Church members will have a benefit bake sale and supper Friday of this week, April 9, starting at 5 p.m.

The benefit is for 6-months-old Shannon Teegardin who is afflicted with a rare condition called "sleep atnea." She is the only child in the state with the affliction and requires surgery. Medical costs thus far have run around $60,000.00.

The supper menu will include turkey, ham, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn, green beans, tossed salad, cottage cheese, desserts and beverage.

The public is urged to support the benefit bake sale and supper and help defray the astronomical expenses incurred thus far.

Riverdale Bloodmobile Gets Quota

The Riverdale Bloodmobile reached its goal of 100 pints last week, with 101 actual donations being received.

Chairman Delores Hicov reports that many compliments were received on the efficient manner in which donors were processed and the cheerful atmosphere created by those who assisted in the work.

Mrs. Hicov acknowledged the time given by workers, the generous money donation from the Saint Joe Lions Club, pickles from Sechler's, cheese from County Line and all the delicious cookies baked by church women and canteen workers.

This year there were 30 donors from the Vulcraft plant, thanks to the efforts of Emma Frank. Also, there were 11 teen donors, with the balance made up of those who have donated in years past.

The donors were as follows (* denotes teen donor):

George Armstrong, Debra Anderson*, Jeanie Arnett, Robert E. Arnett, Jerry Baker, Ron Beard, Martha Beard, Chalmer Beaty, Laura Bevington*, Betty Bowyer, Larry Bowyer, Joann Bopp*, Leo Carper, Ricki Carper, Darlene Carr, Richard Carpenter, Herb Charlton, Dorothy Chew, Roger Coburn, Keith Crow, Kathryn Crow, Lawrence Culbertson, Steven Culler, Harold Curie, Steven Davis, Jay DePriest*, James Dwyer, Arden Dwyer, David Edgar, Marcus Eicher, Dwight Fish, Emma Frank, David Graber, Joseph Graber, Ervin Graber, Levi Graber, Marvin Graber, Richard Harger, Randy Harness, Gene Harris, Ricky Harris, Susan Hartman*, Christine Hicov, Jeff Hicov, Michael Hicov, Carl Hoff, Connie Hollabaugh, Janice Hollabaugh, Sheila Holman, Charlotte Hudson, Linda Inlow, Cynthia Jarrett, Roger Jernigan, Harold Kagey, Debbie Keener*, Evana Keener, Richard Koenemann*, Kurt Koeppe, Edna Lengacher, Ben Lengacher, Rhonda Lothamer*, Richard Mack, Max Markle, Cindy Melchi*, James Miller, Tondalaya Miller, Clayton Miller, Jesse Mitchell, Mike Mooney, David Mumma, Richard Mumma, Harold Murphy, Loretta Musser, Effiebelle McCann, Thomas McKown, Larry McKown*, Gary Norton, Loyal Norton, Judy Parker, Robert Lichtsinn, Ronald Provines, Randy Rediger, Sandra Rucker, Charles Rosenbury, Norma Schmucker, Jerome Schreier, Penelope Sechler, Arla Sechler, Paul Sechler, Dale Stackhouse, Dennis Stiver, Rick Stiver, Kent Strong*, Harry Strong, Lois Strong, Maxine Studebaker, Joe Tuscan, Dorothy Vendrely, Philip Washler, Norma Mickelson, Dave Yates.

The News is grateful to Mrs. Hicov for taking the time to prepare the list of donors for publication.

Fire Guts Local Home

Local firemen responded to a call for assistance Monday night at the Aubrey Griggs residence on Widney Avenue. Reported blue-colored flames were pouring from the first story of the two-story house, giving the impression of a possible gas line leak touched off by a spark or flame. MM Griggs were in the house and suffered minor injuries, treated at the scene.

Kenneth Roberts, a neighbor, reported seeing the whole front porch in flames reaching as high as the roof of the house.

The north side of the house was damage most. Efforts by the firemen prevented damage to the Ralph Keeler residence some 20 feet away from the burning structure. A couple of storm windows "popped" at the Keeler residence.

Fireman Bob Miller was taken to Hicksville Community Hospital, then to Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne after getting a blast of water in an ear from one of the fire hoses. He suffered a punctured ear drum.

McKown Sets School Record

Larry McKown set a new record for DeKalb Eastside in a track meet Friday against Lakeland. He threw the discus 130'-4", but came in second to Lakeland's Phil Cooper who had a toss just three inches farther than McKown's.

However, McKown did win the shot put with a heave of 44'-3".

Lakeland won the meet 89-38.

Bill Seltenright won the 440 for the Blazers and Paul Roberts took the pole vault event.

Freshman Butch McBride won a third in the mile and Jim Burns, a sophomore, took third in the two-mile event.

Results were:

Baseball Team Polishes For Uniforms

Members of DeKalb Eastside High School's baseball team recently conducted a car wash-and-wax project to raise funds for new uniforms. High school athletics are self-supporting, getting no funds from the general school budget.

Coach Rex Bolinger and his charges washed and polished some 50 or 60 automobiles.

The photos tell the story.

On the other side of the garage wax is applied by Stan Hall, standing at left and Jeff Hudson at right. Barb Bolinger, wife of the baseball coach, is seen in the background.

The next step is polishing, and Jerry Shull, at left, moves in to apply some elbow grease along with Jeff Hudson and Greg Farrell.

The shiny finished product is evident from the reflection on the car's hood as finishing touches are made by Phil Staley just getting out of the car at left, Jerry Shull at far left, then Rick Rinard, Jeff Hudson, Don DeLong, Kent Likes, Rex Buell, Coach Bolinger, Stan Hall, Tom Kimmel and Davey Meek.

From the editor's desk. . . .

'. . . . . It is finished. . . . . '

The words which represent the sixth Word From The Cross can be interpreted as a statement of accomplishment or hopelessness.

When a doctor performs surgery of a serious nature, he may not say, "It is finished." It may be other words to express the fact that what he set out to do has been done—"There, that does it" or some such similar expression. There is no implication that the patient definitely will recover; what has been completed is the doctor's part in helping the patient to recover. He has done what must be done, according to his (and perhaps others') diagnosis.

When Jesus said, "It is finished," He may have been expressing a final human thought as death approached. Hanging there as He did, with the taunts of unbelievers in His ears, with the disappointment and despair at the ues are concerned. But Jesus had a purpose to fulfill and He knew it. He foretold of his fate, but even His disciples did not understand what He meant. They blindness of human beings, this could be an expression of hopeless resignation.

It WAS final, it WAS hopeless, as far as worldly valwere puzzled at His sayings at times, eager as they were to understand. Only Jesus knew what lay ahead, and this knowledge made His purpose and His death that much more lonely.

Why didn't He tell people, especially His disciples, what was coming? Maybe they could have done something about it; maybe He would not have had to face the agony of The Cross. He didn't tell because, chances are, they wouldn't have believed Him; it was too "far out" for someone to know what was coming so accurately. It would have been ubelievable, even to His disciples.

Then, too, if He had been saved from The Cross, the need which God saw in mankind would not have been filled. It is a rather puzzling thing to contemplate, because we are tying those things of the flesh with those things of the spirit in too direct a manner. If there had been a throng of believers who swarmed over the soldiers and the unbelievers and carried Jesus away to safety, it would not have helped. Jesus would have died another time, maybe at another place, because that was His purpose. He paid for all the evil in mankind. Had He not died, mankind would still be under eternal condemnation. But because Jesus DID die in earthly terms, Christians LIVE in spiritual terms—no, not perfect lives, but lives with hope for an eternal peace through sincere and real repentance for their sinfulness, through acceptance of Jesus as Lord and Saviour.

An incident stands out in my mind from years ago. Every time I heard reference made to "accepting Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour," I recall a Sunday School session years ago when Rev. Bill Billow was asked to lead an adult class one Sunday when he was home from seminary. I don't believe he had as yet been ordained. But if he had been, the incident was not too long after. At the end of the session, he asked the class, "What do we mean by 'Christian'? What is a 'Christian?"

There were several things mentioned—a Christian is one who is kind, compassionate, forgiving, loving, tolerant, and so on. He was not satisfied—he waited for something more. But we didn't know what it was. Then he said, "A Christian is one who accepts Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour."

We were skirting around the outside in our attempts to define "a Christian"—I think because far too many Christians are embarrassed to speak of "my Lord and Saviour" and make those words an expression of personal faith, even in a church.

Pastor Billow had the only correct answer, as we all realized that day.

Jesus had the only purpose, the right purpose, in mind when He acknowledged His place in the life of mankind with the words, "It is finished."

Rural Housewives

—Doris Stuck, reporter

The March meeting of the Rural Housewives Club was held at the home of Lela Northrup to help her celebrate her 90th birthday. She is a charter member of the club.

There were nine members present and each recalled a point of interest of one of our former presidents. Our guest, Lorena Birton, accepted our invitation to be a member of our club.

President Ida Reed called the meeting to order with the club reciting the pledge of allegiance to our flag and reminding us of the 200th anniversary of our country and its significance.

Marie Ward gave the opening number by reading several clippings to remind us our language is going to pot as follows:

Hippie meant big hips—trip involved cars—pot was a vessel to cook in—hooked referred to grandmother's rug—fix was a verb and meant repair—neat meant well organized, tidy—grass was a ground cover—fuzz was a substance like lint.

The other article— a man's wealth is measured by these listings: possession of a Saviour who has earned for him everlasting life, a good and loving wife, healthy children, last but not least a merry heart.

Marjie Dwyer read a report she had prepared on "Our American Eagle," the emblem of our country denoting strength.

The remaider of the day was enjoyed by honoring Lela with gifts and cards. A delicious lunch was prepared and served by the club.

We retired to our homes after wishing Lela another active year and thanking her for her contributions to the club.

Junior Leaders

—Roy Prosser, reporter

The DeKalb Junior Leader Club met at the Auburn Cord Duesenberg Museum and went on a tour March 24, then had their business meeting at the exhibit hall.

Vice-president Richard Miller called the meeting to order. The 4H and American flags were pledged, led by Roy Prosser.

The Junior Leaders will again help with the tally of the primary election voting. Each Junior Leader who will help was assigned a post.

Paula Hook gave more information on the Exchange Junior Leadership to Wisconsin.

The 4H Trail Song was led by Pam Hollinger.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a noly aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

It seems that when there is a death in the Riverdale area, it is not just one but several at a time. In the last couple of years we have lost many familiar names in this community. It is a reminder not only of life's renewal but also a community renewal, with new faces and names replacing those from the past.

I was talking to Forrest Bevington about the matter at the death of his father. Bob Sechler had died just the day before. Forrest expressed admiration for his father, including the observation that he had never heard a "bad word" from his father. It was an instance of reminiscing to reflect admiration and respect—heartwarming to hear.

Mrs. Don Bacon of Ashley, a former teacher at Riverdale, stopped in to pay for her subscription renewal last weekend. She inquired about our Phil who was a student in her class years ago.

She said she enjoyed my editorials and noted that not many have our political and moral values. She said she wondered sometimes if I was talking about her when I spout off about education and teachers.

—I wasn't.

I goofed in the track writeup last week. My eyes jumped to the wrong place in setting the times for the mile and two-mile runs. It should have been "4:37" for the mile instead of "2:06" and "10:23" for the two-mile instead of "4:37."

Things that make me sick department: the UPI photo last week showing a negro attorney being attacked, knocked to the ground and kicked by a part of an anti-busing demonstration crowd. He suffered a broken nose.

To offset that demoralizing incident, a few days later the story came over the wire that a judge interceded in another incident when he saw a negro being attacked by whites. The judge chased the attackers by car, continuously honking his horn, and finally blocked their escape. He said he thought it was time to get involved in protecting American citizens from attackers.

I received a subscription renewal from an Auburn reader who said:

"You never send me a billing. Enclosed is $10.00. I enjoy reading your paper. Personally you did a super article on ripping 'Doc' Lee Ford — only wish I had been the writer — you said it so good!

"I find many of your editorials much to my thinking."

I won't identify the writer, to avoid possible ill feeling due to professional relationships.

I should note that the "ripping" did not involve just one individual. Also are those "ripped" who allow themselves to be herded like sheep into the welfare-state society this country is assuming. And it is at the hands of both Democrats AND Republicans who are afraid to actively oppose and point out the un-American trend of our ways of doing things in recent years.

There is a saying—"If you can't beat 'em—join 'em." If a matter does not involve basic principles, that theory can be followed on occasion with no harm done. But when it comes to such things as automatic cost-of-living pay increases, higher pay and benefits every time a contract comes up for renewal, government programs such as CETA, food stamps, the costly Social Security bit, free school lunches or subsidized lunches and milk programs, matching fund grants and so on, a line must be drawn. Otherwise, our participation, support and acceptance without question (or without opportunity to question and challenge) helps to destroy the liberty and responsibility which is the foundation of America's existence.

I've said this before and I'll say it again—the way things have been going, the observance of our nation's 200th birthday is virtually a mockery because of our growing dependence on "the government" to take care of us.

Kenny Roberts saw this in the Freeport, Michigan, "News" and passed it along:

"We teach the children French, trigonometry and Spanish, fill their heads with modern notions, and the secrets of the oceans, inscriptions from the land of the Egyptians, learn the date of every battle, know the time of every crowning, read the poetry of Browning, tell the acreage of Sweden and the serpents wiles in Eden and the other things we teach 'em makes a mountain so immense that we have not a moment left to teach them common sense."

Kate Redmond of Garrett was mentioned a couple of weeks ago in the writeup about our Phil's promotion at WIFF. He called from the station Thursday morning this week to say that Kate died Wednesday at Elkhart after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. She had been having problems since being injured in a fall at a Garrett football game in 1974.

The former Reitha Funk of Saint Joe married Kate's son, Jim, and they now reside in Houston, Texas.

—That's saddening. Kate was such a "fun person."

Robert Sechler

Funeral services were held at the Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville Tuesday for Robert A. Sechler, 63, of R1 Saint Joe. Mr. Sechler died Saturday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital where he had been a patient two days.

Born August 10, 1912, in Saint Joe, he was the son of John and Nora Pifer Sechler. He was engaged in farming during his lifetime in the Saint Joe area and was also associated with Sechler's pickle processing plant here.

Survivors include his wife, Bernice; two sons, Donald and John of Saint Joe; a sister, Naomi Hill of Waterloo; and three grandchildren.

John Paul Hill officiated at the funeral service and burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

Jesse Bevington

Jesse Bevington, 85, of R1 Saint Joe, died in his sleep Sunday morning at his home. He had been in failing health for two years.

Born January 10, 1891, Mr. Bevington was the son of Jacob and Rowena (Busanell) Bevington of Wilshire, Ohio. He was a retired employee of the Wayne Candy Company in Fort Wayne.

Survivors include a son, Forrest, of Saint Joe; a daughter, Mabel, of Saint Joe; and three grandchildren.

Mr. Bevington was a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church at Saint Joe where funeral services were held Wednesday. Rev. George Schuette officiated. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home of Spencerville was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Ray Reasoner

Funeral services will be held Saturday at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe for Ray Reasoner, 95, of Saint Joe who died Wednesday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital following a heart attack. He had resided at Meadowhaven Nursing Home in Butler for some time.

Services will be at 2 p.m. at the church with Rev. George Schuette officiating.

Choral Service April 25 At S'ville

The public is invited to attend the Community Eastertide Choral Service at St. Peter Lutheran Church at Spencerville at 7:30 p.m. Sunday evening, April 25.

The major works of the evening will be: John W. Peterson's cantata, "Hallelujah For The Cross"; and Everett Tiomb's motet, "I Will Not Leave You Comfortless."

Mrs. Kathleen Emme-McMaken will be guest accompanist. John Bowyer and Mrs. George Doll will narrate the service. Guests soloists will be Jack Allen, Mrs. Gerald Blauser, Mrs. Dan Crow, Mrs. Eleanor McMaken, Steve Miller and Mrs. Terry Rhine.

Jay Blauser, organist-choir director at St. Peter church, is director of the presentation.

A free-will offering will be taken.

CARD OF THANKS

The Orville Gick family would like to sincerely thank friends and neighbors who so generously gave their time, food, cards, donations, flowers and all their expressions of sympathy at the time of Orville's death.

'Thanks a Million,' Mr. Peden

I attended the winter sports banquet last week at the high school. It was a memorable occasion for me because of the remarks made by Bill Peden which were the backbone of the whole evening's program and perhaps of the entire competitive athletic program in high school, junior high or grade school.

Anyone else might have botched the thing up, but not Coach Peden. Anyone else might have pointed out the failures, the errors of the various athletes, and had the athletes and parents riled up. But not Coach Peden.

He mentioned the boos that were heard when he put a certain player in basketball games; he named the player. He said, "Our own students—our own adult fans—booing one of their own players." And he shook his head in dismay. He went down the line, not pulling any punches, telling it "like it was" during the basketball season. But he urged them all to "stay in there, we have a long way to go." This thought was also expressed by other Eastside coaches during the evening. We improved, but we have a long way to go.

As I said, anyone else would have had resentful players and adults if they had used the same words as Mr. Peden. Why weren't they upset? Because his sincerity was so obvious in urging his charges to greater accomplishments. I don't think there was a person present, young or old, who did not understand that he was speaking in kindness and compassion. Coach Peden LOVES his school kids, his athletes.

He did not receive any recognition that night. Perhaps he did the next day at the awards assembly. But there should have been something said for Mr. Peden that night. Maybe he overwhelmed everyone with his selfless words of challenge and praise to the point that he was forgotten momentarily. He ended every acknowledgment of student, athlete, staff, and patron coooperation with the words, "Thanks a million."

Maybe it will help to even things by echoing his own words— "Mr. Peden — thanks a million!"

On the way home from the banquet, I pondered the question: "Do we deserve such a man of high character, inspiration and integrity as Coach Bill Peden???"

Math Students Win Honors

Bruce Bowman and Cheryl Kandel won first place in a "tandem relay" contest for math students at Manchester College Saturday. Each worked 40 minutes on the same set of problems, then compared answers for 20 minutes without talking.

18 counties were represented in the contest.

Norm Kern competed in a "deep thinking" test and Kevin Likes competed in a speed test.

Faculty advisor for the students was John Fallis.

Seven Confirmed By Lutherans

Seven young people were confirmed as members of the local Lutheran parish at a service held Sunday afternoon at St. Mark Lutheran Church.

Those received into the church by confirmation were Carma Bremer, John Dwyer, Julie Carper, Mark Bartell, Lynette Longardner, Lisa Parker and Ronda Doll. The parish includes St. Peter Lutheran Church at Spencerville and St. Mark at Saint Joe.

Rev. George Schuette led the study sessions for the young people in preparation for membership in their respective congregations.

Betty Bevington provided accompaniment for the hymns.

Blazers Lose Pair

The Blazers droped a pair of games Saturday as the baseball season opened. Bellmont won 9-7 and 3-0.

The opener saw the locals spot Bellmont a 7-2 lead after two innings. They then picked away for 2 runs in the fourth and another pair in the sixth after a lone tally in the third. But Bellmont also scored twice in the sixth for the winning margin.

Bellmont got only one hit in the second game. But seven walks and a couple of wild pitches gave them their runs.

The Blazers face Concordia at Butler Saturday in another twin bill.

School Spring Program Tuesday

The Spring Music Program of Riverdale School in Saint Joe will be presented Tuesday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m. In this bicentennial year, the program entitled "Proudly We Sing" will dramatize this country's heritage in song.

The second grade students will perform America's songs of fun and frolic: "Blue Tail Fly," "The Dummy Line," "The Bedstead," "Billy Barlow" and "Seven Steps."

Fourth graders will sing songs commemorating the workers who helped build this nation: "Drill Ye Tarriers," "Paul Bunyan," "Clementine," "Erie Canal" and "The Young Blacksmith." This grade will also play two patriotic songs on their recorders: "America" and "Yankee Doodle."

Sixth grade students will depict several stages of America's development. Early American: "Johnny Has Gone For a Soldier," "Sarasponda," "God of Our Fathers." Winning the freedom: "Battle of New Orleans," "Sink the Bismarck" and "Marine Hymn." Now generation: "Spinning Wheel," and "Paloma Blanca." Hope for the future: "Dona Nobis Pacem."

Director for the program is Dorothy Whitney.

EPA Distortions - & I&M

One of the most alarming disclosures I've seen—and there have been plenty in the last few years—came in an article appearing in the Monday, March 22, issue of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

In a feature article by W. B. Rood of the Los Angeles Times-Post-Newsday Service with the headline, "EPA Reports Distorted To Promote Pollution Control," facts are stated concerning the over-regulation of our society, resulting in unnecessary fears and unnecessary expenditures. Specifically noted is the role of American Electric Power Company (parent firm of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company) in refuting federal reports related to the environment and energy. It is pointed out that the federal reports were deliberately and purposely "doctored" resulting in a distorted view of such things as the use of coal reserves to generate energy. EPA made such use appear extremely polluting because of the sulfur content of such coal reserves.

Referring to the distortion carried out at the hands of former EPA scientist Dr. John F. Flinklea who rewrote the work of other agency scientists and often deleted what the researchers felt were important qualifiers on experimental results, the article says:

"This distortion, disclosed to The Times by both government and non-government scientists, has resulted in a mounting controversy over the need to spend billions in controlling sulfur pollution from electric power plants and raised questions about the credibility of EPA research."

The scientists agree that there can be a health hazard from sulfur pollution. But they question how low the harmful levels really are. Extensive investigation has shown that Dr. Finklea incorporated in scientists' reports such information as would increase apparent harmful levels or effects and "downplayed" evidence tending to weaken or contradict EPA's efforts to gain extensive pollution-control regulations. Directly involved are reports prepared for CHESS (the EPA's "Community Health and Environmental Surveillance System) published in 1974.

Dr. Finklea justified his actions with the explanation that any mistakes made ought to be "on that side" (the side emphasizing strict pollution regulations).

However, in a paper prepared for delivery at an October, 1973, National Academy of Sciences conference, two scientists (Dr. Ian T. T. Higgins of the University of Michigan and Dr. Benjamin G. Ferris, Jr., of Harvard) said:

"It is particularly disquieting . . . . that there has been a rather marked tendency to overinterpret the (CHESS) data and in particular to select findings which point to an effect of pollution on health and ignore those which do not."

Of significance is the fact that Dr. Finklea resigned his post last year to become director of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health which functions in relation to a Congressional act referred to as "OSHA."

Is it any wonder that we have had such ridiculous regulations imposed on business and industry, what with such a person as Dr. Finklea involved? In view of his purposeful distortion of pollution research, it is no surprise that a plumber is required to wear a hard hat when repairing the kitchen sink, or that certain office personnel at Sechler's pickle processing plant must put on a hard hat to go get a drink of water.

What is particularly harmful in the entire situation is that legitimate research is not known by the public. The shadow of doubt now hangs over all pollution research at the governmental level. The Cedar Creek watershed controversy of recent weeks would now seem to strongly favor dissenting property owners, not only because of lack of adequate notification of environmental intentions concerning their property but also because of the shadow of doubt cast over the entire pollution matter by the revelation of misleading reports.

The Isaac Walton League and its officers are now in an embarrassing position, if you ask me. Why? Because they have been gung-ho on environmental matters perhaps on the basis of false information.

But of most importance is the fact that, having been castigated by many people for rate increases, having been put on the spot by Fort Wayne Councilman Winfield Moses to the point where the Public Service Commission has ordered I&M not to use its customers' money for advertising purposes unless the advertising relates directly to electric service benefits for the customer—having been the goat for quite some time with very few individuals giving them support (except at least one smalltown newspaper editor)—after all that, Indiana & Michigan Electric Company has not only been responsible for getting the pollution "coverup" out into the open, it has also been telling it like it is in its advertising. The power companies' main thrust has been toward seeking permission to use the huge coal reserves we have in order to remove our national dependence on foreign sources of petroleum.

In other words, I&M, the "big bad power monopoly" as some critics would have it, has been vindicated in the pollution controversy while the ones who have sought the utility's hide have been shorn of their clout.

The fuel adjustment factor has caused a lot of upset in the minds of the public. And it's true, that adjustment WAS a big bite for two or three months last winter. Why? Because electric companies were ordered not to burn coal to generate electricity; so they used oil, which is more costly in generating the same amount of electrical energy as coal. BUT—no one has said a word, as far as I know, about the fact that electric bills recently have shown a fuel adjustment CREDIT!

The message behind the entire matter is the same message behind too many of our everyday living circumstances —WHEN THE GOVERNMENT CONTROLS RESEARCH, THE PUBLIC PAYS IN MORE WAYS THAN ONE.

This fact is what scares me about the proposed solar research program—the government is in control. Just watch. It will get so botched up that solar energy, which is FREE and pouring down on us every day, will end up costing as much to use as fossil energy sources. And there is no reason on God's green earth why it should be that way in the land of the free.

Election 'Reform' Destroys Voter Power At Polls

With primary and general elections coming this year, Fourth District Representative J. Edward Roush is getting a lot of mileage out of his proposed legislation to outlaw the "2% club," a system in the past of collecting that percentage of salaries and wages from those who gain civil employment through party affiliation. It is called "election reform" by those seeking its passage and is therefore accepted by many people as something "good."

But is it?

One thing overlooked by many people is that the system was utilized by both Republicans and Democrats to provide funds for party campaigns. If you didn't like the idea, you didn't have to apply for a state job. What is so "bad" about a system which collects from those who know the money will go to THEIR party purposes? And if the voters got fed up with an administration, they could "throw the rascals out," including the political patronage personnel, and get a new administration, literally.

The so-called "merit" system, suggested to replace the "spoils" system, on the other hand, prevents the removal of public job appointees. The selling point, emphasized by Democrats for the most part, is that by filling the jobs on a "merit" basis, we would have greater efficiency in the processes of government administration; the employees would be permanent. But what those with this "better idea" do not point out is, should an inefficient individual be placed in a job on the "merit" system, he or she could not be removed, generally speaking. In effect, the result is: THE VOTER CANNOT EXERCISE HIS POWER FOR "CHANGE" THROUGH THE BALLOT BOX; HE IS STUCK WITH THOSE "MERIT" APPOINTEES.

On the other hand, what is so "good" about another so-called "reform" whereby federal taxpayers may check off a dollar on their return to be used to finance election campaigns OF EVERY CANDIDATE under certain qualifications? If you took advantage of the check-off on your federal income tax return, you helped finance Ford, Wallace, Bayh, Reagan, Udall, Carter, and so on. Is that what you want to do—finance ANYBODY regardless of party affiliation? If that's "freedom" in election campaign financing, if that's removing "corruption" from election financing, I'm a monkey's uncle.

How did the American people get sold on the idea? The answer is—by deception. The idea sounded good—"clean up campaign financing." But too many people did not go beyond the idea to consider the ultimate effect of so-called "public financing" of election campaigns through the idea of a check-off on the tax return. They forgot the principle of freedom of choice necessary not only in voting but also in giving financial support to candidates.

And the supposed "reform" is used to advantage by those who have hollered loudest for such "reform"—Indiana's own Senator Birch Bayh, a Presidential hopeful until recent primaries when it became evident that those outside the Hoosier state did not buy his liberal line. But did the Senator "withdraw" from the nomination activities? No—he announced that his campaign was "suspended." As a national columnist pointed out three weeks ago, Senator Bayh can still be allotted campaign funds from the taxpayers' check-off contributions, though he doesn't have a chance to win at the primaries. Talk about "loopholes" that ought to be plugged—as the Senator consistently does in seeking popular support against big business and "fat cats" and their alleged tax-favored opportunities—here is one which has the Senator caught red-handed. To pay his campaign bills, he is willing to use a technicality—"suspending" and not "withdrawing"—to continue receiving a federal campaign fund allotment.

When you hear about "reforms," take a second look—a long second look. And then remember who it has been pushing for "reforms."

(The above was written before the latest distribution of federal funds to Presidential candidates. Senator Bayh received something over $3,000 in that distribution.

What is significant but has received little attention in the headlines is that the law establishing the collection and distribution of taxpayers' contributions to the fund for such "public financing" has been declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court. Both houses of Congress have not as yet agreed on details for the changes needed to make the system "constitutional." One of the primary points of debate is the fact that private business and industry have been prohibited from political activity while labor unions go unchecked in their use of money and personnel to support candidates. Over 80% of union contributions in the 1972 election went to Democrat candidates. In that number are Indiana's two Senators and the Fourth District Congressman. Is it any wonder that "reform" is favorable to union support but has limited private support? Keep in mind that the beneficiaries of such "reform" are Democrats, 4 to 1 over Republicans—that organized labor has a virtual stranglehold on the entire nation—but these same labor-support beneficiaries campaign pointedly on "bringing government back to the people"!

Final Word From The Cross

'Father, Into Thy hands.....'

". . . . . I commend my spirit."

With these final words, Jesus establishes the direction for all His followers to take. It is not only in death that such trust in god is appropriate, it is also in mortal living.

Funeral services are sometimes made more tearful and saddening than they ought to be, simply because those present lose sight of the promise which mortal death holds for the God-fearing. Humans ARE saddened at the loss of a member of the family, or a dear friend, or a neighbor, or those whom they may not know personally but know about. That's the way we are made. However, the sadness is overcome for Christians by faith, which includes the knowledge that there is more to human beings than just their three score and ten and that's it. The bright side is—those who have died have entered into another phase of the existence of their soul. We read about and talk about "the life hereafter" but we really don't know what we are talking about, because such things are beyond human comprehension—even including those within the clergy. It becomes then a matter of faith, not proof.

When Christians pray for the welfare of another individual, it is a way of saying, "Father, into thy hands I commend another's spirit." The recipient of such intercessory prayer will not know at that moment that someone cares about them enough to pray for them. It is a private matter. Jesus admonished during his earthly stay that we should go into a closet, that is, find some seclusion, when we pray. This has two good points— one is that the pray-er will not be distracted by outside circumstances and can therefore concentrate on his praying. The second is that such private prayer activity impresses on the pray-er the significance of not "showing off," not making a big thing of the fact that "I prayed for so-and-so." All things done by a Christian must be directed away from self and toward others to reflect the spirit of Jesus. He is remembered because of his selflessness. Centuries have not destroyed that high purpose, that true example of revering God.

One need not be dying to remember this final Word From The Cross. The burdens of marriage, of parenthood, of citizenship—all can become so heavy and the individual so down in spirit that "Into Thy hands I commend my spirit" becomes a declaration of faith after having done one's best to cope with whatever life problems may befall a human being. It is not always easy to do, but having done one's best and then leaving the remainder up to God is THE one approach which human beings can trust in. How do we know when we have done our best? That answer is up to the individual. Somehow, a conscientious person knows when he or she has left at least one stone unturned in witnessing to their faith—that is, "Living For Jesus" as one gospel hymn says, which means in effect, "living for others."

On the eve of The Crucifixion and The Resurrection observance in today's Christian world, the words of Jesus once again bring comfort, assurance and hope, in those final words, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit."

HAPPY Easter!

Blazers Win In Track Meets

The Blazer track team took a 74-48 win from Hamilton Tuesday of last week, winning eight events.

Larry McKown won the shot put and discus and Doug Hose took the 220 and high hurdles.

Paul Roberts won the pole vault, Bob Hulbert the 100 yard dash and Jim Burns the high jump. The mile relay team of John Rinard, Cook, Dennis Drake and Bill Seltenright took that event. Seltenright ran a dead heat in the 440.

Last Wedesday McKown and Burns led the Blazers in an 84-42 victory of Howe Military at the Eastside track.

McKown again won the shot put and discus and Burns won the two-mile run and high jump.

Other winners were Seltenright in the 440, Drake in the 880, Butch McBride in the mile, Hose the high hurdles, Hulbert the low hurdles and Roberts the pole vault. The mile relay team also won.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building March 25 with Mildred Jarrett, Beatrice Frain, Alma Ransom and Bertha Bartell as hostesses.

The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and after the prayer by Mildred Jarrett, all enjoyed a delicious potluck supper.

The committee then conducted a number of games and contests which were very interesting and a lot of fun.

Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. The club has been asked to staff "The Country Store" during Spencerville Days June 26 and 27. A motion carried that we do this. Another motion carried that the committee for the meeting furnish the meat only. "Happy Birthday" was sung to those having March birthdays and their birthday offering was received. The meeting then adjourned.

The next meeting will be held Thursday, April 22, with Alice Hollabaugh, MM Harold Stwer and Garnet Furnish as hosts.

Same time—same place—see you there.

Girls' Track

The Eastside varsity girls' track team opened their season recently with a meet against Angola with a score of 67-38.

Those girls winning first place for the team were Deb Wood in the 80 yard hurdles; Rita Willibey in the mile run; Laura Hook in the 880 yard run; and Jodi Bopp in the shot put.

For the first meet of the season, the team did not do too bad individually, it is reported. The relay teams really hurt on the team score, according to the news release from school, because they didn't win a relay. There were too many second and thirds and not enough firsts.

On April 5 the girls had a home meet against Prairie Heights. The score was 63-42 Eastside. Winners included Deb Wood in the 80 yard hurdles, Rita Willibey in the mile, Cheri Schmucker in the 440, Laura Hook in the 880, 880 yard relay by Johnson, Wood, Keener and Hook, 880 yard medley relay with Willibey, Oberlin, Hood and Schmucker, softball throw by Connie Oberlin, Judi Bopp in the shot put and Laura Bevington in the high jump.

The next home meet is April 26. The girls would appreciate some backing from the community.

Letters to the Editor

Sugar and Spice—and everything nice! That's what you are! Many Thanks!

We certainly appreciate the advertising you provided for the auction. It was a success.

Spencerville Methodist Church

We ran their auction ad two weeks at no charge. —Ed.

Dear Editor,

Are you aware and are the taxpayers of DeKalb County Eastern School District aware of:

Less than 2 months ago we were informed of a financial bind of school funds, having to borrow $240,000, with a follow-up article that our school district does not spend money foolishly.

At this writing, we have (5) school board members and one superintendent in California with all expenses paid (by the taxpayers) for a 6 day vacation. They call it a convention.

Some of these same board members attended last year, also at our expense.

Couldn't this be done on a rotation basis with 2 people representing our district if this trip is really necessary and if we care about where our tax dollars are going?

How many of these same people would be there now if they had taken the expense money out of their own pocket?

A concerned taxpayer of DeKalb Eastern District

This is another unsigned letter, similar to one we received several weeks ago, raising questions which the writer could have had answered simply by calling the superintendent's office. Because a Saint Joe resident raised similar questions Tuesday of this week in a conversation, we took time to call Mr. Kenneth Cole and inquire about the matter. Our answer to the Saint Joe resident, before talking to the superintendent, was in general terms, "School board members don't all go to many conventions. Someone has the wrong impression."

Apparently we were correct. Mr. Cole said he attended a superintendent's convention ONLY after he had been put on a convention committee and was urged to participate. Also, NO SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS attended the state school board convention in Indianapolis. The superintendent did not attend the state administrators' convention last year, but did this year, plus the national as noted above.

Our theory on why several went this year, expressed to the Saint Joe resident, is that perhaps the "behind the eight-ball" position school boards have found themselves in recent years prompted board members to attend and find out first hand how other boards are attempting to cope with pressures due to governmental regulations and the agitation constantly being promoted by activist teacher-organization leaders.

Mr. Cole said that in his first three years in this school district, the largest delegation to Atlantic City, NJ, numbered "maybe" four. And this was due to new board members who wished to get as much information as possible about their responsibilities. We at the News Office attended virtually every school board meeting for about three years during the "site fight" and there was never a mass exodus of board members to go to a "party," which is the inference in current critical comments. Quite the contrary. It was more likely that the last minute came before making convention reservations in order to see if anyone, or anyone else besides one, would make the trip.

A point made by Mr. Cole related to the fact that, while board members are on a convention trip, it can mean lost salary or wages, subject to the individual's particular situation. Concerning the above letter and its questions, borrowing $240,000 recently had absolutely nothing to do with the board's spending money "foolishly." It was necessary to borrow only because of problems related to state distribution of school funds and the school corporation having bills to pay.

As far as "all expenses paid" by the taxpayer for convention purposes for school board members, all expenses are NOT paid—only those allowable by law. Booze, tips and girls—or booze, tips and boys—are at the expense of the board member, if that's what some folks are concerned about.

The suggestion of a rotation basis is fine. But why send it to a newspaper editor? Why not contact the superintendent or a board member, or go to a board meeting, and make the suggestion first-hand. They won't bite; they're human.

As for whether or not a board member would or would not be in California if they had to pay the total expense—that is not a valid question simply because attending school board conventions is a choice ALLOWED due to responsibilities to be met on the board.

The central district has also had a question raised about school board and superintendent management of tax money. A letter to the editor of the Auburn Evening Star from Larry Dove, president of the central classroom teachers group, questions the expense of some landscaping at their new junior high. A reduction in the school budget was recently made totaling $140,000, including eliminating five teacher salaries. It had appeared the money matter had been handled commendably by cooperation between the school board, superintendent (who had estimated a shortage of $200,00 originally) and the classroom teachers. Of 15 points made by the superintendent in his original presentation, the teachers accepted the first eight. Thereafter, their suggestions and the availability of additional funds allowed the school board to reduce the proposed cut.

The explanation was given that the landscaping was done by school employees. Had it been done through the architect and on contract, the work would have cost $300 or $400 more, in all probability.

We wonder—why did Mr. Dove resort to a letter to the editor to embarrass the school board when the information provided in an editor's note in the Star was available from the superintendent or board members? It appears that there is the possibility of a deliberate attempt to discredit the superintendents and school boards in both school districts at the same time that "The Teachers Advocate," official publication of the Indiana State Teachers Association, gives credit to the TEACHERS for having gotten a revision in the coming budget. You'd think that superintendents and school boards were "Simon Legrees" out to destroy teachers' jobs. Because of past tactics in school matters, UNISERV's influence becomes apparent. That's the teachers' organization which puts teachers' pay, teachers' benefits, teachers' bargaining power, teachers' retirement and so on above the effectiveness of classroom teaching. A mailing from the UNISERV office at Auburn just a week or so ago listed the potential increase in monies avilable in certain school districts, an obvious suggestion to "go after more."

We direct a few questions to Mr. Dove of the central district:

WHY NOT eliminate the half-day school sessions now included on the school calendar for preparing grade cards or for "teachers' professional meetings" and make them full days of classroom study?

WHY NOT take advantage of the expenditure of a full day's transportation costs and a full day's teachers' pay and give the taxpayer what he is paying for and the student what he is in school for?

WHY NOT have those teachers' professional meetings AFTER school on teachers' time because the meetings are strictly for their exclusive benefit?

WHY NOT prepare grades outside class or during a free period—is it going to kill somebody due to overwork?

WHY NOT think in terms of mutual cooperation to do the best with the resources available instead of public fault-finding without adequate investigation of the curcumstances involved. School boards don't use such tactics.

Band Awards Dinner Tuesday

The DeKalb Eastside Band Boosters will have their Awards Banquet next week. It will be held at the Riverdale Cafetorium at Saint Joe starting at 6:30 p.m.

Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish and table service.

In these two instances—one related to school board and administrators' conventions and the other related to an expenditure of money for landscaping—in these two instances, the amount of money is a drop in the bucket compared to the amount involved in those half-days, full pay, only 2 hours class work. That's where REAL money is involved. —Ed.

Choral Service April 25 At S'ville

The public is invited to attend the Community Eastertide Choral Service at St. Peter Lutheran Church at Spencerville at 7:30 p.m. Sunday evening, April 25.

The major works of the evening will be: John W. Peterson's cantata, "Hallelujah For The Cross"; and Everett Titcomb's motet, "I Will Not Leave You Comfortless."

Mrs. Kathleen Emme-McMaken will be guest accompanist. John Bowyer and Mrs. George Doll will narrate the service. Guests soloists will be Jack Allen, Mrs. Gerald Blauser, Mrs. Dan Crow, Mrs. Eleanor McMaken, Steve Miller and Mrs. Terry Rhine.

Jay Blauser, organist-choir director at St. Peter church, is director of the presentation.

A free-will offering will be taken.

May 10 Deadline

DeKalb County Treasurer Joan Knepper reminds taxpayers that the spring installment on real estate, mobile homes, personal property and ditch assessments are due on or before Monday, May 10, 1976. After the due date, a penalty of 8% is added.

All statements have been mailed. Those who have not received a statement should contact the treasurer's office.

When paying by mail, the taxpayer must include tax statements, remittance and a stamped, self-addressed envelope in order to receive receipts by return mail.

Treasurer's office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday.

The office will be open Saturday, May 1 and May 8, from 9 a.m. until noon.

The nominating committee is composed of Meredith Storer, Linda Kandel and Becky Leas.

The meeting adjourned and pulled and a delicious jello dessert were served by Rence Johnson.

The next meeting will be at Linda Kandel's.

EHS Baseball

The Blazers split a doubleheader Saturday against Concordia at the Butler diamond.

Hitting was the story in the first game, according to Coach Rex Bolinger. The Blazers could account for only 3 hits, including a triple by Rick Rinard in the first inning of the opener. But he didn't score.

Two Blazer errors accounted for Concordia's first 2 runs. 2 base hits, a walk and an error gave the Cadets their final 3 runs in the 5-0 win.

Jeff Hudson pitched well, allowing only one earned run. Jerry Shull did well in relief.

In the second game, Eastside scored 4 runs in the third with Phil Staley and Rinard getting singles. Brent Resor was safe on a fielder's choice. A wild pitch, a passed ball following a walk and Mike Mansfield's single accounted for the Blazer runs.

Mansfield showed good control, walked none and had the batters hitting his pitch.

The final score was 4-3.

Monday at Lakeland, it appeared the Blazers were going to have a field day when Rinard smacked a homer in the first inning. But that was the only run scored by the locals as Lakeland took a 5-1 win.

Chris Sipe made two sensational catches, one of the diving variety, the other on a leap to snag the ball as it sailed over his head.

Tuesday at the Blazer diamond, Prairie Heights and the locals each had 8 hits. But the visitors scored 17 runs to but 5 for the Blazers. There were 10 walks by Blazer pitchers and 6 errors by the locals to help the visitors to a win.

Thursday the Blazers face Leo at home. Friday they go to South Whitley to face Whitco.

Charles Ray Named Treasurer

Charles Ray, principal of the Riverdale and Butler elementary schools in the DeKalb eastern school corporation, was recently elected secretary of the Indiana Association of Elementary School Principals Fourth District.

Mr. Ray has served as treasurer of the organization during the past year, and is also the editor of the Indiana Elementary Principals Magazine.

Other officers elected were: president, Dorman Ehlers of Roanoke; vice-president, Cernelia Shideler of Fort Wayne; and treasurer, Dave Gorrell of Monroe.

Salad Bar, Art Show May 2

Concord Township will be a "key" precinct in the CBS coverage of the May Primary Election. Due to its selection, the township will be represented by Effiebelle McCann of Saint Joe in providing election results to the national net work.

Mrs. McCann received official notification of her appointment last week. She along with other "key" precinct representatives will participate in a practice call-in session prior to the election so that everyone will know the proper procedure.

GOP Women To Serve Ham-Bean Supper April 30

The DeKalb County Republican Women's Club will sponsor a meet-the-candidates ham and bean supper. The event will be held Friday, April 30 starting at 6:30 p.m. in the assembly room of the court house at Auburn.

Republican voters and friends are invited to attend and bring their own table service. Donations will be accepted at the door.

Bridge Festival To Be June 27

At a recent Spencerville Community Club meeting, it was proposed that the annual Covered Bridge Festival weekend be made a one-day affair due to lack of progress in plans thus far and also the numerous other celebrations being held in connection with the nation's bicentennial.

After a lengthy discussion, it was decided to designate Sunday, June 27, "Covered Bridge Bicentennial Sunday." It will consist of a Community Worship Service in the morning followed by a potluck dinner. Plans for the afternoon include some type of entertainment.

Anyone with suggestions for the entertainment is asked to call Alice Hollabaugh at 238-4381.

The next club meeting is May 19 and will include election of officers. Every interested person is invited to attend.

Glenn Moore is president of the organization.

Sermons for the morning are on the ABC's of the church. For April 25, "The Dangers of the Church."

Fire Destroys Old Homestead

The old Strong Homestead at Newville was destroyed by fire late Tuesday afternoon. Units from the Saint Joe and Hicksville fire departments fought in vain to save the historic structure.

The fire apparently was started by two boys reportedly playing with matches.

Built in the 1840's, according to LuReign Strong, the house had 20 rooms in three stories. A fireplace chimney which ran from the basement up through all three floors is all that remains standing.

Mrs. Strong reported to heat was so intense that a woods across the road from the house had to be sprayed with water to protect the trees. A giant raccoon apparently fled from the unoccupied house and climbed to the top of one of the trees across the road. Firemen doused the 'coon to keep it from getting singed, Mrs. Strong said.

Harold Kagey

A heart attack proved fatal Tuesday morning at 4:30 a.m. for Harold J. Kagey of east of Saint Joe. Mr. Kagey died at his home. A member of the local school board for 12 years and past president, Mr. Kagey had attended a lengthy board meeting Monday night.

Born July 20, 1917, in Garrett, Mr. Kagey was the son of Jay Franklin and Marie Ladig Kagey. He had been owner and operator of Hart's Nursery, located on State Road 101, for 25 years. He married Alice Hart in June of 1941. She survives and is a teacher at Riverdale Elementary School.

Mr. Kagey was a member and past president of the Saint Joe Lions Club. Active in the Coburn Corners Church of Christ congregation, he was an elder and chairman of the building committee. He had served in the past as president of the church board. He was also a member of the board of directors of the Lake James Christian Assembly and a member of the Indiana Association of Nurserymen.

Other survivors include a son, Richard, at home; two daughters, Melissa Anne at home and Martha Joan Beard of R1 Saint Joe; a brother, Francis, of Fort Wayne; a step-brother, Harold Sylvester, of Port Austin, Michigan; and a step-sister, Edythe Wildermuth, of Lima, Ohio.

Mr. Kagey was a graduate of Tri-State College at Angola and served as an instructor in engineering there for two years. He served in the U.S. Navy in World War II.

Funeral services were set for Thursday of this week at 2 p.m. at the Coburn Corners church. The pastor, Larry Carter, will officiate. Burial will be in Alton Cemetery on State Road 101.

Car Wash

The youth of St. Peter Lutheran Church at Spencerville will sponsor a car wash May 1 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It will be held on the church parking lot on State Road 1 in Spencerville.

Donations are $1.25 and all proceeds will go to the Building Fund of St. Peter church.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Robert Sechler wishes to thank all friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness, flowers, cards and gifts of food. A special thanks goes to the nurses of the third floor at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. We would like to thank John Paul Hill for his words of kindness at the loss of our loved one. Also the ladies at St. Mark Lutheran Church for the luncheon. Everything is deeply appeciated.

EHS Jr.-Sr. Track

The Eastside Junior High track team opened the season with wins over Huntertown 51-49 and Fremont 63-37. Stan Mack led the way for the Blazers as he won the mile run and pole vault in both meets.

The final event, the 880 relay, was the deciding factor in the win over Huntertown. The team is composed of Jack Wilmot, Dan Graves, Jim Dove and Doug Hall. Other winners were Wilmot 880, Rick Stayer shot put, Gary Rinard long jump.

Against Fremont, Wilmot, Rinard and Mack remained unbeaten in their specialties. In addition, Wes Hantz won the hurdles, Graves 440, and 880 and 440 yard relay team composed of Jim Albertson, Rick Keener, Kinard and Kline.

The reserve team, mostly 7th graders, split with a loss to Huntertown and win over Fremont. Outstanding efforts have been recorded by Nick Gollmer, Steve Billings, Greg Blaker, Eugene Evans and Bill Hulbert.

The junior high defeated DeKalb Central 58-42 Monday at Eastside. Graves took the 440, Wilmot the 880, Kline the 220, Niblick the mile, Kline the high jump, Mack the pole vault and Albertson, Emerson, Rinard and Kline the 440 relay.

The junior high girls participated in their first meet April 15 at Huntrtown in a triangular meet including St. Vincent.

Those receiving ribbons, according to coach Melanie Myers, were: long jump, Cubby Houser 1st, Brenda Beaty 5th; 440 relay, Cubby Houser, Brenda Beaty, Terry Saunders, Carma Bremer 1st; shot put, Anita Hudson 2nd; 880, Kandy Kaser 2nd, Anita Hudson 4th; 75 yard dash, Lisa Parker 2nd, Kim Powell 4th; high jump, Kristie Ross 3rd, Paula King 5th; 100 yard dash, Lisa Parker 3rd; 440, Karen Hoffer 3rd; 220, Ruth Powell 3rd; 80 yard hurdles, Paula King 5th.

The next meet is April 29 at 4:30 p.m. at Butler against Fremont.

On April 9, the girls varsity track team traveled to East Noble and won 55-50.

In the 80 yard hurdles Wood took second; 100 yard dash, Hook 2nd and Johnson 3rd; mile, Willibey 1st; 880 relay, Johnson, Wood, Keener and Hook 1st; 440, Schmucker 1st and Webb 3rd; shot put, Bopp 1st; softball throw, Oberlin 2nd; running long jump, Graves 1st and Baker 3rd; high jump, Graves 1st, Bevington 2nd and Johnson 3rd.

On April 12 the girls went to Leo for a conference meet including Heritage. Leo had 58 points, Eastside 55 and Heritage 21. Placers were: 80 yard hurdles, Wood 2nd and Hampel 3rd; 100 yard dash, Johnson 1st and Hook 2nd; mile, Willibey 1st; 880 relay, Johnson, Wood, Keener and Hook 1st; 440, Schmucker 1st and Webb 4th; 440 relay, Baker, Bevington, Hood and Johnson 2nd; 880, Hook 2nd and Oberlin 3rd; 220, Keener 2nd and Wood 3rd; 880 medley relay, Hampel, Oberlin, Hood and Schmucker 1st; shot put, Bopp 1st; running long jump, Baker 2nd.

At Churubusco Monday of this week in a triangular including Southern Wells, Eastside won with 64 points, 'Busco had 42 and Southern Wells 28.

Winners were: 80 yard hurdles, Wood 1st and Hampel 4th; 100 yard dash, Johnson 2nd; mile, Willibey 1st and Webb 2nd; 880 yard relay, Johnson, Wood, Keener and Hook 1st; 440, Schmucker 2nd; 440 relay, Baker, Bevington, Hood and Willibey 2nd; 880, Hook 1st and Oberlin 2nd; 220, Wood 3rd and Keener 4th; 880 medley, Willibey, Oberlin, Hood and Schmucker 1st; long jump, Graves 1st and Baker 2nd; softball throw, Obendorf 1st and Oberlin 4th; shot put, Bopp 1st (with new school record for girls) and Baughman 4th.

The next met is April 26 at home with another home meet on Thursday.

School Board In Long Session

A lengthy school board meeting Monday night included a review of the faculty by the board in consultation with principals Charles Ray and Robert Williams. A closed or "executive" session on the review lasted from 8:35 p.m. to 12:10 a.m., according to unofficial minutes of the meeting.

Thereafter, in open session the board discussed further the faculty matter. As a result of the deliberations, it was voted not to renew the contracts of Michael Miller, Timothy Mershon and Linda Newnum.

A request for a year's leave of absence without pay, made by William Guinther, was denied by the board.

The school calendar for next year was again carried over to the next meeting.

William J. Burns, Dwight Carnahan and Dr. Gene Balser were preset to inquire about the expenses incurred by those school board members attending a national convention recently. Because final figures were not available, an accurate report could not be given and was tabled for a later date.

The Little Hoosiers were granted a request for bus transportation to a state convention.

Columnist's Comments About Long School Board Sessions Brings Reply From Eastern Board Pres

An article by Dave Kurtz in the Auburn "Evening Star" of last Thursday has brought a response from J. Reynold Johnson, president of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District school board.

The article commented about executive sessions held by the board and mentioned particulary the board meeting of April 19 which ran into the next morning. Mr. Kurtz' somewhat sarcastic remarks inferred a deliberate effort by the eastern board to discourage attendance at board meetings by the public.

Portions of Mr. Kurtz' opinions were published as follows:

Fair is fair.

So, if we're going to jump on the Auburn City Council for holding executive sessions, it's only fair that we call some attention to the DeKalb Eastern Board of Education, which abuses the right of executive sessions to a far greater degree.

We should begin by saying that we don't send a reporter to cover the DeKalb Eastern school board meetings. It would be a waste of his time unless we sent him with a good book and an easy chair.

For he'd spend most of his time sitting in the hall. The practice of the school board in recent months has been to spend much of the evening in lengthy executive sessions, only to return and conduct its business in the wee hours of the morning.

Last Monday night was a typical example. The board convened at 8 p.m. At 8:35 it shepherded a few visitors and one reporter into the hall, closed the doors, and told them they could return at the end of the board's executive session.

At 12:18 a.m. the executive session was over. The board dutifully checked to see if anyone was waiting outside to return to the meeting. Imagine their surprise to find the hall empty!

Happy in its privacy, the board went on to conduct a two-hour meeting, voting on all its major items of business. Very little had been done in the first 35 minutes before the people were sent home. . . . .

Mr. Johnson's reply to the editor and general manager of the county daily is as follows:

April 26, 1976

Dear Editor Kroemer:

This is written in reply to an article published in the Evening Star on Thursday, April 22, 1976, authored by Managing Editor Dave Kurtz. Mr. Kurtz' article was called "Meeting After Midnight—And Then Some."

Although I agree with Mr. Kurtz' article in principle about public governing bodies and executive sessions, I cannot agree with the article as to what is said and what is implied regarding the School Board of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District. As a matter of fact, Mr. Kurtz' article is so badly in error that I feel he owes the DeKalb Eastern School Board Members a public apology.

Ordinarily I would not react as I am now doing, but our circumstance is so far removed from what Mr. Kurtz says and implies that I must reply. First of all, our School Attorney, I think one of the best in the State, has counseled us for some years now not to go into executive session for just any reason. I was curious, so I researched our minute book and found that of our last 25 Board meetings we went into executive session in only 3 of the 25 meetings, and in every case ONLY to discuss personalities — teacher evaluations, principal's recommendations for contracting or not contracting personnel, and consideration of an administrator's contract.

I feel hurt by the Kurtz' article because our School Board may well be one of the most open Boards around. We probably were the first School Board in the State of Indiana to "in open meeting" review completely and cost account completely the Teacher Negotiations Team package and make ALL of the review, the package, and the cost accounting a part of the minutes; hence, a matter of public record. Also, our School Board is about two-thirds of the way through reviewing in open meeting the recent evaluation by the North Central Association, and all was not complimentary.

I wonder who Mr. Kurtz thinks we owe what. Kurtz is right to a point. Our last meeting was very long, but the appearance by our two building principals had been planned as part of the agenda for many weeks. I guess we could have run our agenda in a different order, and called in our school administrators at 10:30 p.m. or 11:00 p.m. but I can't see that 11:00 p.m. through 1:00 a.m. is a good time for reviewing teacher evaluations.

By the way, we do, and we have for years mailed out agendas on Wednesdays before Monday night meetings to: The Saint Joe News, The Record-Herald, and now the recently established Butler Bulletin. Also, by noon the day following a School Board meeting we give complete copies of School Board minutes to The Saint Joe News, The Record-Herald, The Butler Bulletin, The Evening Star, and WIFF.

Kurtz should look around, ask questions, and then come to me and convince me that his article was fair and just in its criticism.

Sincerely yours,
J. Reynold Johnson, President
DeKalb County Eastern School Board

Eastside's Cubby Houser qualified for the Junior High School State Track Meet during a meet this week with Angola. In the long jump she was tops with 15'5¾". The qualifying distance is 14'2".

Eastside tracksters who placed in the meet with Angola include: 75 yard dash Cubby Houser 1st, Carma Bremer 3rd; 100 yard dash Carma Bremer 1st, Lisa Parker 3rd; 220 yard run Karen Hoffer 3rd; 880 yard run Kandy Kaser 2nd, Anita Hudson 3rd; high jump Kristi Ross 2nd, Paula King 3rd; long jump Cubby Houser 1st; shot put Anita Hudson 2nd, Sherri Brown 3rd.

Blazers Having Rough Time On Baseball Diamond

The Eastside baseball team has been showing promise thus far in the season, but hasn't "put it all together" yet. Their top-heavy record in the losses column is not a true indication of the team's overall play. "The breaks" have been a factor on occasion, as for instance in a tight 1-1 game Monday against East Noble played in shivvery weather. The locals had only two hits but still took the game into extra innings. Then in the top of the 8th after two East Noble batters got on base, a fly ball to left glanced off the light pole and over the outfield fence. The Blazers could do nothing in their half of the inning and it came out a 4-1 loss. Thursday of this week the Blazers had a 5-0 shutout going into the final inning against Southern Wells. Then suddenly the bases were loaded for the visitors in the final inning. A bouncer to Rick Rinard at short looked like a force at home and maybe a double play. But just as the ball got to him, it hit a pebble or clump of dirt and bounced over his head allowing 2 runs to score. But Mike Mansfield's relief pitching got them out of the inning for a 5-2 victory.

Brent Resor, Eastside's dependable catcher, gives a target for the pitcher in the same game. Blazer Lane Hart is the alert third baseman.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted:

This note is long overdue. The copy of the news containing the very nice article you wrote concerning my retirement and comments on the unused sick pay was forwarded to me down here. John Martin had mailed the front page of that issue to us also commenting on the very gracious things you had written. Please accept my belated thanks for the nice things you said about me. I just want to correct one statement you made though—there are quite a few 'Walter Smiths' in this world but whether or not they are Christened that name is beside the point!

The Post office as an operation has taken a great deal of criticism over the years and especially in recent months. However, I still feel that 99% of the employees in the smaller offices are loyal and dedicated people from the 'old school' who give their customers good service and appreciate their jobs and all that go with them. I know that I really appreciate the good retirement we are now enjoying and feel that my 38 years of loyal and faithful service is being well rewarded.

We are enjoying our winter home very much and have thoroughly appreciated the weather, the lovely flowers, good recreational opportunities and many friends we have made here.

While we still have our farm home at the south edge of Butler, we will go home about May 5th and spend the summer at our Mobile home on Silver Lake West of Angola.

Best wishes to you and your fine little paper.

Sincerely,
Walter M. Smith

Church League To Meet Thursday, May 6

A meeting of the Saint Joe Church League will be held Thursday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. The slow-pitch softball season will get underway after school is dismissed for the summer vacation.

President Ted Haberkorn and secretary-treasurer Lavon Hart have indicated that the entry fee will probably remain at $50 unless unforeseen large expenditures become necessary. The league last year completed installation of outfield fence at a total cost of around $1,000 with the money raised entirely from equal-share assessments for each participating congregation.

Each year new bases must be purchased, softballs provided for all the games and periodic replacement of home plate, no small expense for an organization which has successfully attempted to operate "on a shoestring" through the years. A big help has been the voluntary payment of the diamond light bill for several years by the Saint Joe Lions Club.

Managers, players and pastors are invited to attend the Thursday meeting. Election of officers will be held. It is hoped that participating teams will have at least one representative present to participate in any decisions to be made, in addition to the election of officers.

Published weekly except two weeks in August at Saint Joe, Indiana 46785.
Second class postage paid at Saint Joe, Indiana 46785.
Subscription—$3.50 per year.

". . . . in sickness and in health, 'til death us do part."

The above "archaic"* words are still being repeated time after time in marriage ceremonies throughout the country. But statistics show they have little meaning for many who solemnly repeat them before the altar of God.

It is disappointing to read that today, one-half of the marriages will end in a divorce proceeding. The number of those entering into "holy matrimony" have for the past few years faced the fact that statistics give them only a 50-50 chance of success in marriage—"success" meaning sticking to the vows taken at the time of marriage.

Why are so many homes breaking up? Why are all age groups, not just teenagers or early twenties, but all age groups experiencing the disruptive force represented by a divorce? Everyone may have their own answer in specific terms related to their own personal situation. However, it is a general or overall condition which is basically at the root of the situation, if you ask me. That basic element is —the modern philosophy of "do your own thing, you have a right to" has been accepted by more and more people. The selfless, sacrificial nature of a true marriage bond is now "not with it." Today, it is self-gratification, self-satisfaction, self-pleasure which permeates the thought processes of millions of people.

Permissive and loose ideas have prevailed in our American society for some time now. The idea has been promoted, even in education, that if you don't like doing certain things, don't do them. If you don't like certain subjects in school and are making poor grades in them, take something you like and raise your grades.

We are paying the penalty today for this undisciplined approach to living. The idea that school should be "fun," that learning should be "fun," that living ought to be "fun" one hundred percent of the time is the name of the game in recent years. It is totally unrealistic, however. And the reason we have confused youth and confused adults, unable AND UNWILLING to try to cope with problem situations, goes back to that idea of "fun" and total pleasure. This is a social problem but it has political foundations, too. For many years, we have had those in politics who have convinced many people that all problems CAN be solved, all adversities CAN be provided for, burdens CAN be removed—to allow for a totally pleasurable, sensual existence. But it— just —isn't—so.

"No fault" has entered into our modern vocabulary to such a degree that it involves not only insurance but also troubled marriages. It goes along with the "fun" and "total pleasure" idea, hand in hand. Marriage is USED to satisfy an individual, not UTILIZED to preserve a sacred vow. Zsa Zsa Gabor has made a travesty of marriage by her numerous trips to the altar, and she capitalizes on the situation in more ways than one. But she is no worse than those who seek a lawyer when the going gets rough and drop a marriage partner when the "fun" ends. At least with Zsa Zsa, the "lucky" guy of the moment knows what to expect! Several years ago, Tommy Manville got the headlines for his many marriages.

Clergymen and the church have a share of the blame in the sorry situation related to marriages and divorces. The permissive approach has been condoned by some of the clergy to the point of permiting couples to make up their own marriage vows. They have allowed the music to be contaminated by secular thoughts, worldly and sensual in nature, in establishing a relationship which is based on higher purposes. In particular, the theme from "Love Story" is used quite often in today's marriage ceremonies even in churches. The lyrics contain the words: "Love means never having to say you're sorry" or something along that line. THESE ARE FALSE WORDS. Anyone who never says they're sorry is totally selfish, self-centered and unaware of others. The truth of the matter is, love is NEVER afraid to say "I'm sorry" because real love is constantly aware of others and concerned for others.

Marriage ought to be "fun"? Not on your life. It ought to be fulfilling. That includes "fun", but there are other elements, too—burdens to be borne, challenges to be faced and dealt with, problems to be faced and dealt with—with a periodic self-reminder: "Is there anything more I can do to help?"

Absolutely essential to the success of a marriage is an understanding that there are some burdens which cannot be removed, some problems which cannot be solved. They simply must be accepted and lived with. Unfortunately, the permissiveness of recent years does not give this insight to a growing generation of young people. Then they suffer from a tremendous sense of insecurity, waiting for an impossible restoration of perpetual "fun" when problems arise and they have trouble trying to cope with those problems.

Circumstances vary according to the individuals involved. The concern here is not that there are broken marriages—period. There always has been and always will be that situation we call "divorce."

The concern is that half the marriages are ending in divorce—it is the degree to which divorce exists that is the cause for concern. And until it is once again recognized that there is a discipline needed in marriage, starting with the wedding ceremony itself and the elements in the wedding ceremony, there will be no reduction in the number of disappointments for both young women and young men. Marriage is not a right; it is a privilege. A wife or a husband is not a thing to be used for pleasure and then discarded when one or the other, either knowingly or unwittingly, creates a burden for the other. It is to be noted that if there is no mutual respect, one for the other, between husband and wife, then the marriage is truly in trouble. However, there is good reason to believe that the majority of today's divorces are more a matter of taking the easy way out, of looking for self-pleasure elsewhere, or of forgetting responsibilities toward any children who may have been born into a marriage partnership—these selfish circumstances are the reason for our society's mounting divorce rate.

"Do your own thing" — "I did it my way" — these are the thoughts which have had so much appeal in the '60's and '70's. And they do represent appropriate declarations in a free society—up to a point. In marriage matters in America today, we have gone far beyond that point.

Rick Monday - Spirit of '76

An incident occurred Sunday afternoon to help restore some of the lost hope evident in American society, what with all of the criticisms being directed towards the failures of our economic system, the failures of our communities, the failures of "the American way" in general. Emphasis on shortcomings has infected the thinking of many people, to the point where they forget the "good things" more often than they remember them.

Sunday's incident involved a baseball player. Because this particular player is particularly "popular" with me, anyhow, and because he is a member of "my" team, the Chicago Cubs, I plead guilty to a completely biased and prejudiced outlook.

During the course of the Sunday ball game between the Cubs and Dodgers at Los Angeles, two spectators ran out onto the outfield from the stands and spread out an American flag. From the radio account by WGN's Vince Lloyd and Lou Boudreau, it wasn't apparent at first just what the two intended to do when they ran onto the field. But then it became apparent that it was to be a flag-burning effort. Rick Monday, fleet-footed centerfielder of the Cubs, ran full tilt from his outfield position and, on the run, grabbed the flag from the ground and continued with it in his protection before the pair could get their matches lighted to carry out the desecration.

The two spectators, reported to be a father-and-son combination whose purpose was to protest alleged mistreatment of American Indians, were apprehended by security forces.

When the full impact of what had occurred dawned on the crowd, they burst into applause and gave the Cub outfielder a 30-second standing ovation. And when he came up to bat later in the game, the fans again stood and applauded.

Both Fort Wayne dailies had photos of the incident in their Monday editions. And TV news carried film clips of the incident. If you ask me, I think the picture of Mr. Monday ought to be run on the front page of every publication in the country, to rekindle the flame of hope for the future that has been dying out in recent years. It was a spontaneous act of patriotism, one of those precious brief moments when, without realizing it, one individual becomes a challenge to others to stand up for what you have faith in, to set an example for others to follow not only in preserving this nation but also in preserving the symbol of liberty—the American flag. Yes, there are injustices, but destroying the American flag is not going to eliminate them.

I imagine the fans will raise the roof when the Cubs return to Wrigley Field from their current road trip and Rick Monday steps up to bat the first time. They ought to—he deserves it.

Thank you, Mr. Monday, for giving the bicentennial year of the United States of America a renewed "spirit of '76" symbolized by the classic wire services photo recording for posterity your saving of our nation's flag from destruction. Time will tell if you will deserve the title "super star" in baseball. However, your act of patriotism Sunday afternoon has established you already as a "super star" citizen in the hearts of thousands of baseball fans.

The Conrad Deceptions

Indiana Secretary of State Larry Conrad is seeking the Democrat nomination for governor at Tuesday's primary election. I have commented in the past about Mr. Conrad's activities and public statements, because he manages to "get away with murder" it seems while others get crucified.

The latest "amazing" statement, as far as I am concerned, came from the "Conrad For Governor Committee" headquarters in Indianapolis in a news release telling of Mr. Conrad's remarks at a rally in Marion April 20.

Mr. Conrad, in seeking to embarrass Governor Otis Bowen and Lieuteant Governor Robert Orr, referred to an election board decision at the state level and charged the Governor with using his position on the Board of Elections for "strictly partisan, personal advantage" by forcing counties to reprint their ballots just two weeks before the May 4 primary. The Conrad news release read as follows:

"Here's a case where the governor's representative Bill Lloyd forced a decision which can benefit no one except Doc Bowen and Bob Orr," Conrad told supporters in Marion tonight.

At Lloyd's urging last week, the Board of Elections ruled that both Gov. Bowen and Lt. Gov. Orr should be listed on the primary ballot, even though both are unopposed in the Republican Primary.

Indiana's Board of Elections is composed of the governor and an appointed member from each political party. Under the Bowen administration, the governor has been represented by his administrative aide Bill Lloyd.

"This ploy to get a little free advertising for the governor is costing some counties thousands of dollars in additional printing costs," Conrad stated.

"This kind of political maneuvering is a shameful waste of money. It's also typical of the governor's lack of concern for any problems he creates at the local level of government. It reminds me again of the Bowen tax package which was designed for his statewide political well-being, while passing the responsibility for financing critical services back to county and city government. It's one thing to speak of fiscal responsibility but it's quite another thing to practice it," Conrad said.

Keep in mind that this is the same Larry Conrad who, when campaigning a few years ago for Secretary of State, was an outspoken advocate of public disclosure of finances by political candidates, inferring that those who make such disclosures are honest, those who oppose such actions are dishonest.

Well, we have public disclosure of finances now, under so-called "election reform." But John Q. Public still does not trust those he elects any more than he did before. The idea has no true logic.

But the real "kicker" in the matter is that, after making an issue of public disclosure of finances as an indication of honesty, who charged political campaign telephone bills to his state office and had the taxpayers foot the bill? None other than Mr. Conrad. Yes, he paid back something like $7,000 or $8,000 for those calls—but not until he got caught.

And who was involved in a semi-scandalous "Master Plan" prepared to promote Mr. Conrad for Governor of Indiana? Why, Mr. Conrad himself. Of course, he denied knowledge of the matter. It was particularly embarrassing for Democrats because the "Master Plan" contained uncomplimentary passages about Democrats as well as Republicans.

Keep in mind that Richard Nixon expressed no knowledge of a Watergate "coverup," many did not believe him because he was so "close" to the matter, and look what happened to him. Mr. Conrad was just as "close" to that Master Plan—but he is still in office and going for the governorship in honest, conservative Indiana. — — — ???

However, the real point in this ballot printing matter and Mr. Conrad's charges of "free advertising" is that election ballots are SUPPOSED to list all candidates, whether opposed or not. The ballot is a listing of candidates for office for the information of the voter.

AND — in a Primary Election, the voter gets a ballot containing ONLY candidates for nomination within one party, depending on party affiliation as declared by the voter when asking for a ballot. So, Governor Bowen's name will be seen ONLY by those casting votes for Republican candidates at the primary.

"Free advertising"? —for an unopposed candidate? — with his own people? Mr. Conrad must be kidding.

—No, he isn't. That's the sad part. He's serious, and there are those who will buy his deception.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Bridge Festival To Be June 27

At a recent Spencerville Community Club meeting, it was proposed that the annual Covered Bridge Festival weekend be made a one-day affair due to lack of progress in plans thus far and also the numerous other celebrations being held in connection with the nation's bicentennial.

After a lengthy discussion, it was decided to designate Sunday, June 27, "Covered Bridge Bicentennial Sunday." It will consist of a Community Worship Service in the morning followed by a potluck dinner. Plans for the afternoon include some type of entertainment.

Anyone with suggestions for the entertainment is asked to call Alice Hollabaugh at 238-4281.

The next club meeting is May 19 and will include election of officers. Every interested person is invited to attend.

Glenn Moore is president of the organization.

Cub Scout Paper Drive

Local Cub Scouts are conducting a paper drive now until May 22. Anyone having papers to be picked up, call Bob Tejan at 337-3305, Ben Rhoades at 337-4421 or John Scott at 337 2015.

The cost of camp will be $25 regardless of what age group and the camp will close on Saturday morning instead of Friday evening.

Steno-Office Lab At Eastside

Lorene Franklin is in charge of the vocational steno-office lab program at DeKalb Eastside High School.

Leadership is emphasized in vocational office lab work. The "Office Education Association" (OEA), a youth club mandated as an accompaniment to office training, prepares members for leadership roles once they are employed in the area of their choice.

Leadership conferences are held once or twice each year with special attention focused on serving club and community in official capacities. Skills contests, including all areas of business as well as additional ones of public speaking, entertainment and parliamentary procedures, are held on regional, state and national levels.

Financial activities are planned and consummated each year. Members learn the democratic process firsthand by serving as delegates to the state and national conferences in order to elect their state and national officers. This leadership emphasis is considered so important that it is established as a co-curricular activity wholly acceptable as part of the regular vocational classroom activity.

Each year the OEA club at Eastside has been quite active, according to Mrs. Franklin. This year there are 31 members, all members of the Office Practice class (juniors) and the Intensive Office Laboratory (seniors).

Senior officers of the OEA are Carolyn DePriest, president; Sherry Alloway, vice-president; Kathy Gaff, treasurer; and Tammy Rayle, secretary.

The OEA is only one of many vocational youth clubs at the local high school. The FHA (Future Homemakers of America), and the FFA (Future Farmers of America) are well-known to the public. To be heard from more often in the future are the VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America), and the OEA.

The Office Practice class at Eastside includes training in all types of filing systems, payroll, itinerary development, supply control, specialty typing, financial typing, mimeographing, stencil preparation, preparation of masters for the ditto process and offset printing system, basic accounting geared toward understanding of secretarial typing and other duties connected with accounting records and reports, business machines including transcription and dictating machines, offset printing, stencil burning processes, collating printed matter, telephone expertise, intensified vocabulary drill, and the absolute necessity for quality in performing all types of office work.

Students enrolled in the Office Practice class are Julie Hantz, Beth Hollabaugh, Annette Roselle, Julie Yeiser, Karen Myers, Cynthia Komanec, Cynthia Poe, Nan Warstler, Patty Core, Charlene Melchi, Debby Anderson, Roberta Soule, Penny Woods, Christine Miller, Patty Schoonover, Torrie Davis and Vicki McMaken.

Mrs. Franklin, who completed 21 years in business offices before becoming a teacher, says the Intensive Office Laboratory (IOL) continues previously learned business skills by the use of lab work stations. These work stations are representative of actual office jobs available in the surrounding area. Actual office procedures are simulated in the work stations, from receptionist duties to maintaining a complete accounting system of over 300 items of supply.

The 14 students in the current class include Sherry Alloway, Diane Blaine, Gale Cannon, Christal Jacquay, Carolyn DePriest, Kathy Gaff, Tammy Rayle, Sue Bush, Tammy Norrick, Sheri Miller, Jo Ann Bopp, Nancy Diehl, Kim Gonzales and Kristie Krontz.

Ray Reasoner

Funeral services were held April 17 at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe for one of the town's native residents, Ray Reasoner, 95, who died Wednesday, April 14, in DeKalb Memorial Hospital. He had been a resident of Meadowhaven Nursing Home for the past three years. His wife, Huldah, died in 1973.

A retired farmer, Mr. Reasoner was born December 28, 1880. He married Huldah Collins in 1902.

When the Saint Joe Valley Bank was in operation in the 1920's and 30's, Mr. Reasoner served on its board of directors. At one time he managed the Widney apple orchards for over 20 years.

Faithful members of the St. Mark congregation, Mr. and Mrs. Reasoner attended regularly at worship services, even when age slowed their ability to get around and Mrs. Reasoner especially was handicapped. She was taken care of by her husband at home when she finally was immobilized. And when she required hospital confinement, Mr. Reasoner drove daily to the hospital to visit her. Because of his age, he had a driving permit which allowed him only to make the trips to the hospital.

Survivors include a son, Floyd, of Fort Wayne; a sister, Effie Collins of Auburn; two granddaughters and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home at Spencerville. Rev. George Schuette of Auburn officiated at the funeral service. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Letter To The Ed.

Dear Ted,

I just read your "Around the Town" wherein you stated that "It seems that when there is a death in the Riverdale area, it is not just one, but several at a time." Your statement brought to mind a book I just read a couple weeks ago entitled "The Case of the Midwife Toad" by a German author, Arthur Koestler. He kept a diary over a long period of time (several years) of events which reoccurred in his life.

Man over the centuries has noticed, just as you said, that events are never singular—several similar events seem to occur within a relatively short time span. Death is the event which we notice most often, but other events have the same pattern (i.e. airplane crashes, car accidents, broken bones, divorces). Also, simple events of daily life take on a sequence —such as hearing a song you haven't heard in a while over and over; phone calls; meeting the same person several times the same week in unlikely places, etc. Koestler calls his theory "The Theory of Surrealism." So if you get a chance, buy the book and give it a try! Or keep track of the reoccurrences in your own life!

Just a quick comment on TEACHING common sense: Some aspects of our personality only learn by means of experience and example. To classify Common Sense on the same level as Spanish is absurd.

So much for my opinions!

Michele

From the editor's desk. . . .

(A recent "Sixth Word From The Cross" was garbled in part due to an oversight in makeup. It is repeated herewith to clarify the thoughts expressed.—Ed.)

'. . . . . It is finished. . . . . '

The words which represent the sixth Word From The Cross can be interpreted as a statement of accomplishment or hopelessness.

When a doctor performs surgery of a serious nature, he may not say, "It is finished." It may be other words to express the fact that what he set out to do has been done—"There, that does it" or some such similar expression. There is no implication that the patient definitely will recover; what has been completed is the doctor's part in helping the patient to recover. He has done what must be done, according to his (and perhaps others') diagnosis.

When Jesus said, "It is finished," He may have been expressing a final human thought as death approached. Hanging there as He did, with the taunts of unbelievers in His ears, with the disappointment and despair at the blindness of human beings, this could be an expression of hopeless resignation.

It WAS final, it WAS hopeless, as far as worldly values are concerned. But Jesus had a purpose to fulfill and He knew it. He foretold of his fate, but even His disciples did not understand what He meant. They were puzzled at His sayings at times, eager as they were to understand. Only Jesus knew what lay ahead, and this knowledge made His purpose and His death that much more lonely.

Why didn't He tell people, especially His disciples, what was coming? Maybe they could have done something about it; maybe He would not have had to face the agony of The Cross. He didn't tell because, chances are, they wouldn't have believed Him; it was too "far out" for someone to know what was coming so accurately. It would have been ubelievable, even to His disciples.

Then, too, if He had been saved from The Cross, the need which God saw in mankind would not have been filled. It is a rather puzzling thing to contemplate, because we are tying those things of the flesh with those things of the spirit in too direct a manner. If there had been a throng of believers who swarmed over the soldiers and the unbelievers and carried Jesus away to safety, it would not have helped. Jesus would have died another time, maybe at another place, because that was His purpose. He paid for all the evil in mankind. Had He not died, mankind would still be under eternal condemnation. But because Jesus DID die in earthly terms, Christians LIVE in spiritual terms —no, not perfect lives, but lives with hope for an eternal peace through sincere and real repentance for their sinfulness, through acceptance of Jesus as Lord and Saviour.

An incident stands out in my mind from years ago. Every time I heard reference made to "accepting Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour," I recall a Sunday School session years ago when Rev. Bill Billow was asked to lead an adult class one Sunday when he was home from seminary. I don't believe he had as yet been ordained. But if he had been, the incident was not too long after. At the end of the session, he asked the class, "What do we mean by 'Christian'? What is a 'Christian?"

There were several things mentioned—a Christian is one who is kind, compassionate, forgiving, loving, tolerant, and so on. He was not satisfied—he waited for something more. But we didn't know what it was. Then he said, "A Christian is one who accepts Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour."

We were skirting around the outside in our attempts to define "a Christian"—I think because far too many Christians are embarrassed to speak of "my Lord and Saviour" and make those words an expression of personal faith, even in a church.

Pastor Billow had the only correct answer, as we all realized that day.

Jesus had the only purpose, the right purpose, in mind when He acknowledged His place in the life of mankind with the words, "It is finished."

Boosters Elect

The Booster Club of Saint Joe met recently at the Knisely Branch Bank.

Election of three board members was held with Loretta Loy, Mary Beatty and Doug Lang selected by the group. Holdover board members by virtue of their officer positions the past year are Ted Haberkorn (president), April Davis (secretary-treasurer) and Mone Yeiser (publicity).

The president read portions of the bylaws for the benefit of new members to point out that the club was organized for the purpose primarily of promoting business and commercial growth in the community. The club also seeks to assist the town board in whatever community endeavors may add to the appeal of Saint Joe as a place to live and to engage in business.

Paul Garrison of the Vulcraft plant east of Saint Joe suggested consideration of projects to appeal to youth, including the program called "Junior Achievement." He noted that Vulcraft is interested in community affairs and is ready to assist in whatever way it can.

Discussion was held about a bicentennial observance at Saint Joe this coming summer. It was suggested that a proposed Fourth of July date might not bring as much participation as another weekend. The board of directors is to take whatever steps necessary for planning such an observance.

Invited to attend the meeting were representatives of various Scout groups, the town board, the fire department and its auxiliary and any other interested persons.

Dues are $1.50 per year and can be paid to April Davis or Sharon Bowser at The Sisters' Emporium.

Stephanie Koch Earns Honors

Stephanie Koch, daughter of MM Wayne Koch of Spencerville, was recently named for inclusion in the 1975-76 "Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges" Honors Program.

Over the past 40 years, the organization has honored and rewarded the individual scholastic excellence of outstanding campus leaders.

Stephanie will receive a personalized certificate in recognition of the honor. Her complete biography will be included in the honors publication.

Selections are made each fall. In nominating the upper classmen and graduate students eligible for the program, campus nominating committees are urged to apply their own local standards of academic excellence. In general, these committees are composed of representatives from the faculty, administration and student body.

Stephanie is a student at Minnesota Bible College located near Rochester, Minnesota.

Price Increase

—By The Editor

The News' announced price increase for subscriptions was not decided upon until it became evident that to delay any longer would be unrealistic. A "hope for the impossible," that prices and labor costs would stabilize, just hasn't happened and is really an impossibility in view of the constant increase in labor wage-benefit contracts.

A review of this paper's subscription rate shows that it has been eight years since an increase was made. But newsprint costs, postage rates, the cost of other materials and the general cost of living went up tremendously in that period of time. (A 25-lb. bucket of news ink which cost under $20 five years ago now costs over $50!)

Even with the increase, compared to other costs, this paper would seem to be worth 9 cents a week to those genuinely interested in their home community, including the preservation of an almost extinct species —a truly independent small-town weekly newspaper, the first line of defense in protecting freedom of speech and in providing a voice for the small community.

Not Hot Air

(A message from your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana)

Inhaling hot smoke into the lungs causes its own problems. Whether the smoke is from tobacco, lettuce leaves, brush fires or marijuana.

But new experiments show that tobacco smoke and marijuana — which affect the lungs in quite opposite ways — do have certain similar effects, too. For example, both inhibit the action of scavenger-type cells called macrophages that literally gobble up germs in the lungs.

Normally, as soon as any foreign matter floats toward the air sacs, the macrophages swallow the offenders. But tobacco and marijuana smoke slow down this action and cripple a devouring line of defense.

According to Dr. Gareth Green of the American Thoracic Society, the medical section of the American Lung Association, a healthy lung not assaulted by smoke can kill 90 percent of the germs and bacteria that attack it. But the lungs of a heavy smoker take 24 times longer to destroy the invaders in the air.

In studies at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston, researchers washed out the lungs of rats and collected the macrophages. After mixing the cells with bacteria, they exposed them to both marijuana and tobacco smoke. Within three hours, 83 percent of the bacteria were still "alive." However, macrophages not exposed to smoke gobbled up a huge supply of these bacteria during the same period; only 26 percent were left.

The researchers found the same results when all the particles were filtered from the smoke, leaving only the gases.

Smoke itself is an assault on the lungs. And your lung association has a great deal of information on the effects of one kind of smoke—tobacco smoke—on the lungs. Cleaning up both the outside and inside air is a major concern of your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana, located at 802 West Wayne in Fort Wayne, the "Christmas Seal People."

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of the Town of St. Joe will receive bids on the mowing of the cemetery and the park for the season at the regular board meeting May 3, 1976. Bidders may bid separately on either cemetery or park and should state definite dates for starting service and discontinuing in the fall. Bid should also include type of equipment to be used, preference of furnishing gas and oil and method of payment (i.e. by the season or by each mowing).

If further information is needed, contact any board member or the clerk.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Bivere Brush, reporter

19 members of the Newville Township Home Ec Club motored to the Lucky Steer Restaurant in Auburn April 14 for their spring eat-out day. After delicious dinners, Doris Hart called the meeting to order and all repeated the club collect.

Bivere Brush gave devotions, using her own thoughts on what Easter means to the Christian daily as well as the hope of Eternal Life, reading I Corinthians 15: 12-17.

Song of the month, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today," was read by all. Members gave Easter memories for roll call.

Dates announced were April 22 Achievement Night in the Auburn court house; April 27 the Franklin Club to entertain us at the I&M Building in Butler; and May 12 at 1 p.m., we will entertain the Town and Country Club and a salad bar will be served. Place of meeting will be found and members and guests will be notified.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

A subscription renewal from Margaret Drerup was accompanied by a note:

"Best wishes for some success in your many good causes —crusades almost. Sorry so many people don't care."

The encouragement is appreciated. —And I don't know if it's that people don't care, or that they just can't believe it when facts and circumstances are made known.

For instance, read this:

"Today's problems require that we put aside traditional partisanship, divisiveness and pettiness. If we work together, 1975 can be a better year for each of us and for our country."

Who said that? Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh in a letter addressed to me in January of 1975, individually typed, and with his signature.

Anyone who has read this paper for any length of time is aware of my frequent expression of anti-Bayh sentiments, mainly prompted by his deceptiveness. But he gets re-elected, getting support even from farmers whose prime concern is the growing power of organized labor leadership (my concern, too). But farmers continue to help put the Senator back in office even though the Senator is one of labor's "favorites" because he votes the way they want. His financial support is largely from labor funds.

But in this instance, the deception is about "put aside traditional partisanship, divisiveness and pettiness." You see, the Senator is solely responsible for holding up the appointment of a federal district judge in Indiana FOR AN ENTIRE YEAR. Why?—because the recommended judge was not capable? No—it was because the recommended judge was a Republican. Senator Bayh made it clear that he would approve the recommendation as soon as another federal judgeship was created and a Democrat appointed. He did not deny that the courts were overloaded and 'way behind in trying cases. But it was more important to him that he get his way, that a Democrat judge be put in office.

Is that puting aside "traditional partisanship, divisiveness and pettiness"? If it is, I'm a monkey's uncle.

The proof of the Senator's pettiness is this. When his colleagues finally yielded to his demands, he immediately approved the original appointee and at a news conference introduced the new judge, describing the jurist as "the most capable man I know to fill the job" or words to that effect.

Birch Bayh is looking out for Birch Bayh—and votes. He is a master at deception.

—But, you know, people just can't believe it, even when it's there in "black and ink," as Lum and Abner put it.

Convention Expense, Values Related By Board; News Ed Defends Board

A large group attended Monday night's meeting of the DeKalb Eastern School Board. Included were members of the school faculty who were present to give various reports, members of the press and a group of school patrons who were aroused the past couple of weeks by stories of alleged unnecessary attendance at a recent national school board convention by what was considered "too many" board members.

Dr. Gene Balser, who had attended the April 19 meeting with William Burns and Dwight Carnahan to inquire about convention expenses for the board, was recognized on the agenda as a result of the suggestion of the late Harold Kagey at the April 19 meeting. Mr. Kagey died just a few hours after that lengthy session. Dr. Balser said he was not one to try to make trouble, that he had done some further inquiring since the previous meeting due to the stories which were making the rounds in the community. He referred to a brief heated conversation with Superintendent Kenneth Cole when the Butler resident sought copies of minutes of recent board meetings. Mr. Cole referred to Dr. Balser as the "Robin Hood" of the classroom teachers, an opinion gained apparently from information received through a direct "hot line" into the faculty. However, Dr. Balser said he did get copies of the requested minutes without undue delay and Mr. Cole stated that anyone can get copies of the minutes upon request but only when he is present in his office to accommodate such requests. His position as executive director of school matters makes him responsible for those records, he said, and because of that responsibility, he has made certain rules to be followed by his office staff, including the requirement of his presence when an examination or copies of public documents are requested.

Board President Reynold Johnson then gave a report of the expenses incurred by the school board for the national convention, those expenses totalling some $2,900 for six members of the board. The school corporation's legal counsel, H. Charles Winans, attended the convention at his own expense.

Rumors had been circulating that not only school board members but also their spouses attended at taxpayers' expense. The story was shown to be totally false concerning the payment of expenses for those other than board members.

The breakdown of the cost of the convention trip is as follows:

1.. Cost of air travel and hotel room for each school board member $348.48. Total of six members—2,090.82.

2. Cost of 84 possible meals for the six board members—363.75 (average 4.33 per meal).

3 Cost of advance NSBA convention registration for each of 6 board members 75.00. Total cost—450.00.

4. Cost total for six board members attending the convention—$2,904.57. (Average cost per board member $484.09).

In answer to the question of whether or not the trip was "worth it," Mr. Johnson noted that there were over 100 training or discussion sessions held during the convention and that one delegate could hardly scratch the surface in attending those sessions during the convention. Lois Fisher said she attended several workshops, "some boring but others with valuable information." She also noted that she did not get paid to go to the convention and would probably have been money ahead to have stayed at home, if only costs are concerned.

Connie Hollabaugh noted that she has been on the board two years and attended two national conventions because "you learn things there that you can't get anywhere else."

Lynn Fuller said he is "just a dumb farmer" and his education as a board member comes from exposure to the conventions. Lloyd McClellan asserted the value of conventions to the ability of board members to know what to do and what not to do to avoid, specifically, costly lawsuits.

Vaughn Billings noted that it is difficult to say whether or not certain things are worth their cost since values cannot always be in terms of dollars and cents. He noted that in the seven years he has been on the board, he has attended only two national conventions.

Mr. Winans answered Dr. Balser's suggestion for "more information" put out for the public by noting that verbatim accounts of every meeting could involve considerable expense.

Superintendent Cole noted that he had instigated a "refinancing refunding" move and with the support of the board and its attorney, the move resulted in an income of an additional $250,000. But he didn't go to the news media asking for big headlines about what he had done because such administrative benefits to the public are "part of my job." It was also noted that the board had saved some $7,000 in the recent purchase of new school buses by utilizing advertising for bids, a procedure which is not required by law, according to the school attorney. A price hike anticipated in school bus costs was advoided by the commitments gained through competitive bidding.

Ted Haberkorn, editor of The Saint Joe News, then directed remarks in defense of the school board and superintendent, an action he "probably wouldn't have taken five or six years ago when the site fight was on. But that's in the past. It's a whole, new ball game," he said.

Anonymous letters, conversations with people the in entire school area and a phone call Monday afternoon from an upset patron prompted him to attend Monday night's meeting, the editor said. He opined that the concern expressed by the public "is due to ninety percent misinformation." He noted that an article in the Auburn Evening Star by Dave Kurtz had probably aroused many patrons in the eastern district over the idea of excessive executive sessions and inferred deliberate attempts to cast doubt on the honesty of school administration. The same type of activity has occurred in the DeKalb central district, the editor noted and commented, "Isn't it a coincidence that this activity, by letters to the editor from teachers and from anonymous writers, has come just before a school board election and too late for an effective explanation to be given?"

Noting that the state teachers association gave credit only to DeKalb central teachers for having gotten a smaller budget cut than originally anticipated in the central district, Mr. Haberkorn said that no credit was given to the central school board or its superintendent for working out the adjustment.

He then pinpointed the total effect of recent teacher influence in discrediting school administrators. The editor said, "I am not against teachers. But I am against the way they are being used and the way you and I are being used by the activist leadership in teacher organizations to create distrust in school boards and superintendents. I think ninety percent of the teachers would not go along with such tactics. I can't believe that most of our teachers, many of them personal friends, like the kind of activity carried on by their organizations' leadership and spokesmen whose jobs last only as long as discontent can be created, bringing the need for their presence.

"Look at what's happening to us. Here we are tonight, a group of citizens questioning the administration about what amounts to a drop in the bucket in dollars and cents compared to other matters. Here we are questioning an expense of $2,900 and in the central district people questioned the expense for landscaping at their new junior high. But is anyone talking about the fact that right now, the board is negotiating with the teachers and the teachers are asking for a fifteen percent raise? No, we're not hearing much about that. Our attention is being diverted to other financial matters of comparatively small amounts. And our unrest is being prompted by misrepresentations or outright untruths."

Referring to three anonymous notes or letters he received in recent weeks, one of which "I know came from a teacher because of its closing lines," the editor stated that all directed attention to the question of expenses for the school board convention. "And," he said, "one, which I received last Saturday and will be in this week's paper, raises the question of negotiations going on between the school board and Bill Peden to relieve Mr. Peden of teaching duties and let him just schedule sports activities as athletic director." Wording of the letter directs attention to the school board's involvement and not the direct involvement of the teachers themselves.

The dominant idea in the total presentation by the editor was that school boards and administrators are being put "on the spot" in many matters which are not of their making, a condition suggesting more than a normal chain of events.

Other business at the meeting included reports from faculty members concerning the North Central Evaluation Report.

Coaches Rex Bolinger and Mark Bixler sent a letter of thanks to the board for granting time to attend a training session.

Earle Kelsey was appointed to serve the remainder of the term of the late Mr. Kagey.

Mr. Winans reported that communication in negotiations with teachers on a new contract is the best he could recall.

A letter to Linda Newnum giving reasons for her dismissal was authorized, following her request for such a letter.

Attending the meeting were board members Reynold Johnson, Lois Fisher, Connie Hollabaugh, Vaughn Billings, Lynn Fuller and Lloyd McClellan; Superintendent Kenneth Cole; school attorney H. Charles Winans; Principal Robert Williams; department chairmen Alfred Sherer, Beverly Martin, James White and Ishmael Smith; guidance director Jerry Zonker; counselor Iva Scheuring; PVE coordinator Nada Kelsey; phys ed instructor Robert Christenson; Pete Fullam, of the Auburn Evening Star; Ted Haberkorn of The Saint Joe News; Max Gray of the Butler Bulletin; school patrons Dr. Gene Balser, Dave Prosser, Jordan Baughman, Carl Casebere, Walter Grogg, Max Schiffli, Rick McCann, Don Wolf, Richard Grogg, Carlyle Holman, Randy Reinhart, Glen Newcomer, Allen Holman, Frank Johnson, Jerry Storer, William Burns, Randy Bercaw, Dwight Carnahan, James Ferguson and Earle Kelsey.

'Letters' Includes False Charges About Coach-Board 'Negotiations'

Dear Sir:

I want to thank you for the kind and most gracious comments in the recent issue of the St. Joe News.

I hope I can be an asset to our community and make a contribution to our young people through both our academic and athletic programs.

At times, certain situations become very trying. However, comments such as yours make it all worthwhile.

Thanks again!

Sincerely,
Bill Peden

We're still with you. See below. —Ed.

Dear Ted:

I'm sure many people agreed with the verbal bouquet you presented to Coach Peden in your April 15th edition of the News. It is true that Mr. Peden is a real nice person in every respect and is a good example for our young people. However . . . . .

Are you aware that Mr. Peden claims the Athletic Directorship requires a man full time? Do you know he has petitioned the board for NO coaching duties whatsoever? Do you know he wants the Athletic Directorship without any TEACHING duties? He advocates the School Board only pay half a coaches expenses when they attend an athletic seminar, yet he wants a job with full pay and intends to do nothing but schedule athletic events! I am fully aware that you keep up on most everything pertaining to our schools yet I'm sure you have not been exposed to this 'no coaching, no teaching' situation. I'm aiso sure you realize we are not a large enough athletic plant to require a full time director with no other duties. What concerns me a great deal is that our Board is actually giving serious thought and consideration to his proposal??

It will be interesting to find out the cost to we taxpayers the San Francisco trip amounted to. A poll should be taken to find out how many schools of our size sent Board members to the annual meeting. You may have been exposed to some earth shaking developments that has come out of these annual meeting . . . I haven't been so lucky.

I'm purposely forgetting to sign this as my identity would only lead to my being hollered at by Mr. Williams.

Anony Mous

At Monday's school board meeting it is was stated that 22,000

persons attended the national convention and that two, three and four board members in nearby districts attended.

This is the third anonymous letter we have received in recent weeks, this one obviously from a faculty member, a conclusion based on the final paragraph. All three contained remarks about the convention matter and created a question in the minds of the public as to the honesty and integrity of the school administration. Since a similar effort was made in the past two or three weeks in the central district, including two letters to the editor of the Auburn Evening Star from faculty members who gave their names and didn't hide behind "anonymous,"—and the Hamilton administration was publicly put on the spot just recently for an implied "prison" detention disciplinary area (though neither the disciplined students nor their parents voiced any complaints)—it is apparent, as we stated Monday night in extensive remarks in defense of the school administration that the situation is a planned effort to distract public attention from the fact that teachers here seek a 15 percent increase in pay in current negotiations.

A call to the superintendent's office to substantiate the information in the above letter resulted in the following information:

Mr. Peden HAS NOT asked to be relieved of all coaching duties. Quite the opposite. He is described as so dedicated to coaching that he has basketballs, not blood, flowing through his veins.

Mr. Peden has requested REDUCTION in his teaching duties, not elimination of teaching duties.

In other words, the above letter, written by a faculty member (a reasonable assumption, it would seem) IS TOTALLY IN ERROR when it states that Mr. Peden seeks the Athletic Directorship with "NO coaching duties whatsoever" and "without any TEACHING duties".

Please notice how the burden of guilt is placed by inference ON THE SCHOOL BOARD, in the following words: "What concerns me a great deal is that our Board is actually giving serious thought and consideration to his proposal??"

There is no such proposal!

Why did all this come up just before a school board election?

Yes, we realize that the convention occurred just recently.

But—did a delegation of teachers attend a board meeting to express concern over inferred unnecessary expenditure of public funds for convention purposes?

And—at this week's teachers' "professional meeting" on Wednesday, did the teachers bring the matter of Mr. Peden's request before the group for discussion? Probably not—because the above letter is totally deceptive.

And—was the cost to the taxpayers for a couple of hours' classroom time Wednesday (but a full day's expense for teacher salaries and transportation) discussed, with the idea presented that perhaps such "professional meetings" ought to be held after school to help get the most out of our educational tax dollars? —Ed.

Sport Store Fire

Saint Joe firemen were called to Dale Harter's sport shop Tuesday to fight a fire which presented some unexpected hazards.

Ammunition and explosives stored at the location were endangered by the fire. But the fire department managed to control the fire and no explosive damage resulted.

The local unit was assisted by Hicksville firemen.

The shop is located at Newville.

EHS Jr.-Sr. Track

In a recent three-way meet, Norwell won with 119 points, taking every event in the track and field competition. Eastside had 23 points and Adams Central 16.

Eastside's Seltenright got a 3rd in the 100 and 2nd in the 220; Rinard got a 4th in the 440; Drake 4th in the 880; Cook 4th in the mile; Burns 3rd in the two mile; Hulbert 4th in the high hurdles and the low hurdles; Burns 4th in the high jump; Roberts 2nd in the pole vault; McKown 3rd in the shot put and discus; Campbell 4th in the discus; and 2nd for the mile relay team.

The varsity track team won over Fremont 66-61 in a recent meet at Eastside.

Seltenright won the 100 and 220; Roberts 3rd in the 100 and 1st in the pole vault; Michaels 3rd in the 220; Rinard 2nd in 440; Drake 1st in the 880; Cook 1st in the mile; McBride 2nd in the mile; Burns 1st in the two mile; Ray 2nd in the two mile; Hulbert 3rd in the high hurdles and 2nd in the low hurdles; McKown 1st in the shot put and 2nd in the discus; Campbell 2nd in the shot put and 3rd in the discus.

In a three way meet recently, the varsity track team came in third with 32 points. Heritage had 78 and Leo 49.

For the locals Seltenright got a 3rd in the 100 and 1st in the 220; Drake 3rd in the 880; McBride 4th in the mile; Burns 2nd in the two mile and 3rd in the high jump; Ray 4th in the two mile; Hose 2nd in the high hurdles; Hulbert 4th in the low hurdles; McKown 2nd in the shot put and 2nd in the discus; Roberts 3rd in the pole vault and 4th in the high jump.

On April 26, the varsity girls track team withstood the cold weather to host their conference meet with Carroll and Woodlan. Carroll won with 68 points, Eastside had 35 and Woodlan 31.

In the 80 yard hurdles, Deb Wood placed 3rd; 100 yard dash Lisa Johnson 4th; mile run Rita Willibey 1st, Becky Webb 2nd; 440 yard dash Cheri Schmucker 2nd; 880 yard run Laura Hook 2nd, Connie Oberlin 4th; 220 yard dash Lisa Johnson 4th; 880 yard medley relay Willibey, Oberlin, Hood and Schmucker 2nd; shot put Jodi Bopp 1st, Sunda Obendorf 2nd, Jo Baughman 3rd; long jump Christy Baker 4th; high jump Becky Graves 3rd.

Willibey and Bopp are the only two Eastside track members who remain undefeated.

The conditions had a large factor on the performance of all the girls. The performances of Eastside girls was low which was a big factor for the margin of score and defeat.

Girls varsity track coach Linda Newnum reports that the girls track team hosted a double dual meet last Thursday, losing to DeKalb Central 61-44 and defeating Fremont 64-41.

In the first meet Wood placed 3rd in the 80 yard hurdles; Johnson 3rd in the 100 yard dash; Willibey 1st in the mile with Webb 2nd; Schmucker 1st in the 440 yard dash; Hook 2nd in the 880 yard run; Johnson 1st in the 220 yard dash; 1st for the medley relay team of Willibey, Oberlin, Hood and Schmucker; Bopp 2nd in shot put; Obendorf 1st in softball throw and Oberlin 3rd; Bevington 2nd in the high jump and Graves 3rd; Baker 2nd in the long jump.

In the Fremont meet, Wood took 1st and Hampel 3rd in the 80 yard hurdles; Johnson 2nd in the 100 yard dash; Willibey 1st in the mile and Webb 3rd; 1st in the 880 yard relay with Johnson, Wood, Keener and Hook; Bopp 1st in the shot put, Obendorf 2nd and Baughman 3rd; Obendorf 1st in the softball throw and Oberlin 2nd; Bevington 2nd in the high jump and Graves 3rd; Baker and Graves tied for 1st in the long jump.

Johnson in the 100 yard dash and 220 yard dash, Bevington and Graves in high jump and Baker in long jump added to those who qualified for the sectional.

The junior high track team lost a recent meet to 'Busco by a 67½-32½ score. The defeat came just after the Blazers had pulled a mild upset the night before by whipping DeKalb Central 58-42.

Eastside could manage only 4 firsts against the powerful Eagles. Rick Stayer won the shot put, Dennis Kline the 220, Jack Wilmot the pole vault, and the mile relay team of Kline, Jim Albertson, Frank Emerson and Gary Rinard clocked in at 51.0 to win the 440 relay.

Good performances were turned in by Chuck Niblick and Jim Whitman in the mile run; Greg Blaker in the long jump and 880; and Dennis Shultz in the pole vault.

The meet against DeKalb Central was more fruitful for the junior Blazers. Eastside took 1st and 3rd in the 220, 440 and 880, and swept all three places in the mile to insure victory. Dennis Kline led the way with 3 firsts. Other top scorers were Wes Hantz, Dan Graves, Chuck Niblick, Stan Mack and Jack Wilmot.

Melanie Myers, junior high girls track coach, reports that Cubby Houser qualified for the state meet with a high jump of 4'7" last Thursday when the Blazers beat Fremont 59-48.

Events and places include: 80 yard hurdles Kim Powell 2nd, Julie Armstrong 3rd; 100 yard dash Carma Bremer 3rd; 75 yard dash Lisa Parker 2nd, Carma Bremer 3rd; 440 yard dash Lynette Longardner 1st, Karen Hoffer 2nd; 440 yard relay, first place team Cubby Houser, Brenda Beaty, Lisa Parker and Carma Bremer; 880 yard run Kandy Kaser 1st, Anita Hudson 3rd; 220 yard dash Ruthie Powell 2nd, Sheila Haley 3rd; 880 yard medley relay, first place team Kim Powell, LuAnn Baughman, Julie Armstrong and Lynette Longardner; shot put Anita Hudson 1st, Ronda Doll 2nd; softball throw Anita Hudson 2nd;, Kandy Kaser 3rd; high jump Cubby Houser 1st, Paula King 3rd; long jump Cubby Houser 1st.

Parent Meetings

Two meetings have been scheduled for the parents of students in the DeKalb Eastern School District who will be enrolled in the 7th grade next fall.

The first meeting will be held Monday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m. in room 170 of the Academic Building at the junior-senior high school in Butler. The other meeting will be on Tuesday, May 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the Riverdale School cafetorium at Saint Joe.

The purpose of the meetings is to help answer questions that parents might have about problems that face their children and to help make the transition to the 7th grade a little easier for the students.

TO DEKALB COUNTY VOTERS:
Thank you for nominating me in the Republican primary for Judge of the DeKalb County Court. If elected, I will continue to do the best I can for all concerned.

Lois Fisher Ousted By 1 Vote

While there was some interest in national and county races at the primary election Tuesday, most local interest was perhaps centered on the one contest in the election of school board members. And the one race was decided by but one vote.

In the election of a school board member from the Spencer Township area, Norman Kinsey defeated Lois Fisher by a 563-562 count. Mrs. Fisher had been appointed three years ago to complete the term of her husband who resigned from the board to become chief custodian for the schools. The close race came from the vote cast in Wilmington Township where Mrs. Fisher had a 365-268 margin. In the other precincts, including Spencer Township, Mr. Kinsey was given the nod.

Two factors appear to have brought on the incumbent candidate's defeat. One is the recent rash of rumors concerning a national school boards convention and related expenditures, with the stories known to have been erroneous. The other factor is the husband-wife combination in the school organization, though there have been other past similar situations.

It is significant that incumbent school board candidate Keith Showalter was defeated in the DeKalb central district. Recent criticism had been evident in that district also, and is possibly a deciding factor, despite the questionable accuracy of criticisms rendered.

Mr. Showalter lost by only 15 votes.

Mrs. Fisher got 111 votes in Spencer Township to Kinsey's 137; 68 in Concord to 83 for Kinsey; 18 in Newville to 24 for Kinsey; 23 in Stafford to 30 for Kinsey; 17 in Troy to 21 for Kinsey. In Wilmington with four precincts, Mrs. Fisher had margins of 111-85, 55-46, 72-52 and 87-85.

Weather Still Has Ups, Downs

Weather the past two weeks has had its ups and downs.

Mild temperatures in the 60's and 70's are followed by sudden cooling off periods, such as a couple of Sundays ago when snow fell for a while in the evening. Warm weather followed, then some 40 to 50 degree daytime readings dropping to the high 20's or low 30's at night. It was windy Tuesday and Wednesday this week with winds at 35 mph Thursday and gusting even higher. Only mild temperatures helped local residents to combat the shivver-producing winds.

Spring can't quite make up its mind to stay.

RIVERDALE MENU

Monday—hamburger sandwich, french fries, peaches.

Tuesday—beef and noodles, peas, pears.

Wednesday—ham and beans, cornbread, lettuce salad, pink applesauce.

Thursday—barbecued chicken sandwich, green beans, cobbler.

Friday—macaroni and cheese, mixed vegetables, fruit jello.

Spencer T'nship Homemakers

The Spencer Township Homemakers Club met at the home of Marji Dwyer for their April meeting, opening with the club collect. Devotions were by Ida Reed. She read "The Resurrection" by Maude Irene Evans.

Ida also read an article from Guidepost, "How To Be Courteous To Others."

Song of the month was "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today."

Eight answered roll call by exchanging bulbs and seeds.

Fashion hints were given by Berniece Wilder.

A tasty lunch was served by our hostess, and the meeting then adjourned.

EHS JR.-SR. MENU

Monday—tenderloin sandwich, diced carrots, mixed fruit, chocolate chip cookie.

Tuesday—goulash, buttered peas, sliced peaches, bread and butter or peanut butter.

Wednesday—sloppy joe sandwich, french fries, cherry jello.

Thursday—chicken gravy and biscuits, cabbage slaw, pineapple chunks.

Friday—fish sandwich with tartar sauce, buttered corn, applesauce.

Little Hoosiers 'Pioneer Day' 19th; June Johnston Wins Essay Contest

On Wednesday, May 19, the Riverdale Little Hoosiers will hold "Pioneer Day" at the Riverdale Elementary School. Primary students will participate in the events in the morning, with intermediate students taking part in the afternoon.

Events include: candle dipping, sheep shearing, blacksmith work, quilting, butter churning, wood cutting, soap making and pioneer games.

The public is invited to attend.

40 Little Hoosiers from Riverdale attended the annual State Little Hoosier Convention at Ball State University in Muncie May 8.

The group received a second place plaque for attendance at the convention and the Director's Award for their help in starting new Little Hoosier clubs.

June Johnston, a sixth grader, won first in the essay contest, receiving a $10 cash award for her entry. She also won a $20 award for the club for her entry of a diary which had belonged to her great-grandmother.

The group won a fourth place trophy for its project, "Conquest," a game based on the life of George Rogers Clark.

Accompanying the group were Harold Murphy (bus driver), Lynn Kaiser, Bev Shinaberry, Dorothy Lepper (Hoosier Moms), Donna Jewel, Betty Wagner (advisors).

Church League Elects; Changes Rules

The Saint Joe Church League met May 6 at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. All ten of last year's particpant teams were represented at the meeting.

Officers were re-elected as follows, by acclamation:

Ted Haberkorn, president.
Roger Cook, vice-president.
Lavon Hart, secretary-treasurer.

A discussion was held concerning eligibility rules and umpiring. It was noted that the "honor system" is used in determining player eligibility. It is understood that players are active participants in church activities other than softball, or that they are literal members of the church team on which they play. "Recruiting" just for summer softball is not allowed. Players must attend church on at least two Sundays of the month prior to a scheduled game.

A minimum age of 12 was set for players in church league slow pitch softball. The minimum age for umpires is 16.

Umpiring schedules were altered so that a team umpires and plays the same night of the double-header schedule.

To avoid home plate collisions and possible injury because of exposure of a corner of home plate, a rule was adopted which places a line across the third base line halfway between third and home. A runner touching or passing the line must continue toward home plate. To make a putout on that runner, a fielder or the catcher need only touch home plate before the runner while in possession of the ball.

A rule was passed that umpires must umpire at the same base or home plate for an entire game, except in case of an emergency requiring a change.

Mt. Pleasant UM Church, a participant in the league years ago, asked to be re-admitted. A ten-team league fills the summer months. However, it was noted that the Lutherans and St. Joe Church of Christ may be short-handed on players. It was suggested that perhaps the two teams could combine, creating an opening for Mt. Pleasant. That possibility is being explored by the managers involved.

The president noted that the Saint Joe league is the oldest church league in the county and its organizational ability to "govern itself" has led to requests from churches in other areas to be admitted to the league.

The president noted also that this year marks not only the nation's bicentennial but also the 25th anniversary of the installation of lights at the local diamond. He suggested a "homecoming" old-timers game some time this summer to observe the anniversary.

The entry fee remains at $50 and should be paid as soon as possible to the league secretary.

League play begins in June.

Four Teams In Little League; New Uniforms Come From Local Business

The Riverdale Little League begins its season May 25 at the Saint Joe diamond. Games will be played also at the Spencerville diamond. Game time is 5:30 p.m.

Minor league games will be played every Monday vening at 4:45.

New uniforms have been purchased this year through donations from Sechler's Pickles, the Vulcraft plant, Knisely National Bank and The Oasis Tavern. Brown Furniture & Hardware donated three dozen baseballs. The league had additional money in its treasury from a raffle at Saint Joe's Centennial last summer and a pop stand also at the centennial.

There will be four teams this year. Sechlers will be coached by Butch Coburn, Vulcraft by Jim Miller, Knisely Bank by Jerry Vinson and Lengacher Electric by Pete Timmerman.

Officers of the league are Ron Eichel, president; Larry Emenhiser, vice-president; and Jerry Vinson, secretary-treasurer.

Anyone who wishes to volunteer to umpire should contact Duane Voiral at 337-3714.

Jerry commented as follows about the youth baseball activity, "It takes a lot of people working together to make the baseball program work. We hope this year there will be a lot of help like there was las last year. A big thank you to all of those who helped and we hope we get many more volunteers this season, especially umpires."

May games include—
25—Sechlers v Vulcraft at Saint Joe.
26—Lengacher v Knisely at Spencerville.
27—Lengacher v Sechlers at Saint Joe.

'Star's' False Advertising

You may have noticed in the past few days, as I did, the large number of bright orange newspaper holders attached to mail box posts or to separate metal posts in this area. The words "The Evening Star" are imprinted in black on the orange containers. The natural impression on the public is, "Look at how many people are taking the 'Evening Star'." That is an erroneous impression. Most of those rural residents are not subscribers to the county daily.

Why, then, are there the orange boxes? It's because the same company which produces the county daily also produces the weekly "DeKalb County Advertiser" and most of those boxes are being used for the advertiser, not the 'Star."

I don't know if there's a law against it. But I do know it is certainly disappointing that a publisher with whom I have had good personal and business relations would resort to such tactics in order to impress the public.

The advertiser is being distributed by carriers, not by mail, due to high postage costs. The advertiser has every right to distribute its information by whatever lawful and economically feasible means there may be, anywhere they want. It's a free country.

Howver, the installation of boxes using the name of another publication is, in my biased opinion, a somewhat less than admirable tactic. After all this is "Saint Joe News Country" around here and anything which might decrease local support or recognition of the local paper is my concern, especially when false advertising is being utilized.

"News Country" will also probably be invaded by the new "Butler Bulletin." In a conversation with Max Gray last week, I learned that Butler merchants were asking "The Bulletin" to distribute its issues in the Saint Joe area.

Again, this is their privilege. But I wonder, as I mentioned to Max, why those merchants had not contacted The Saint Joe News about advertising space, if they want to "hit" this area. I don't have everybody on the mailing list, not by a long shot. But I know from experience that there are a lot more who read this little "rag" than is reflected by the subscription list. It's nice to know that, but it doesn't help me statistically when someone asks, "What's your circulation?"

"More reader interest per square inch" is a slogan appearing in these pages from time to time. It is not self-centered boasting: it is based on fact. Comments from people in the Auburn and Butler areas in recent years have been along the line, "There's more news in your little four page paper than in our big paper." Hence, the slogan

And people are often impressed by physical size rather than content. My puny customary four-pager brings laughs from many folks. It's a "nothing" compared to the 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 or 16 pages in the other local county publications. But when I can get the school menu for the week into a space 2 inches wide and 3½ inches deep, but another publication uses a space 6 inches wide and 6 inches deep, I'm sorry—but I must toot my own horn and say I'm conserving our natural resources by using less paper and I'm not fooling the public about how good the newspaper is by having a blownup presentation of information, just to fill more space and make more pages.

Big things often come in little packages.

Anyhow—don't be fooled by all the orange you see on mailbox posts or other posts around local countryside. It just doesn't mean what you may think about the county daily's circulation.

If, as you read this, you're not reading your own paper, why not? If you really believe in helping "the little man," subscribe to this paper. It's one of the few remaining truly independent newspapers in a small smalltown. In 1976, it's your voice of liberty.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Club building Aprill 22 for their regular monthly meeting. Alice Hollabaugh, MM Harold Stiver and Garnet Furnish were hosts.

At 6:30 p.m. the group was called to order and after prayer by Harold Stiver, a delicious potluck supper was enjoyed by all. President Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. Greetings were extended to those present. She read some material which she had received on a trip to Hawaii for senior citizens.

Mr. Donald Whitlock, president of the DeKalb County Senior Citizens Club which meets in the Moose Hall every two weeks, was introduced. He told of the various trips their club had taken and were planning in. He advised their club was open to any senior citizens in DeKalb County and invited us whenever we could come.

Games and contests were enjoyed after which all departed for their homes.

The next meeting is Thursday, May 27, with Rose Trammel, Janet Woodring, Marvel Kessler and Bea Hallobaugh as hostesses. Same time—same place. We'll be looking for you.

Media 'Goofed' Purposely? or - You Read It Only Here

REACTIONS—AND CONCERN FOR THE PRESENT

There have been varied reactions to the articles in the previous issue of this paper concerning the recent to-do about the school board's convention trip and its alleged secret and prolonged meetings. One comment was, "I'm glad you printed what you had in the paper. And people better start worrying about this unionism." That comment was NOT from a school board member. Another comment indicated that my efforts were a "whitewash" in behalf of the board. My reply was that if it was a "whitewash," it was to counteract the "blackwash" promoted by certain teachers against the school board. Another comment referred to the "dictatorship" ruled by the superintendent. My answer to that was—the superintendent works FOR the school board; he does not order it around—unless the board members allow him to. One comment from one of my sons was, "It sounds like you've changed your attitude toward the board." My answer was, "I haven't changed my attitude. I hope that what I do is because of concern for fairness to all. It's not what happened in the past; it's what's happening right now."

The matter could be hashed and re-hashed for some time, point by point. However, one thing stands out—and I must admit that its importance is due to my position as publisher of a newspaper. It's also due to my awareness that the news media generally seem to jump on anything which even hints of scandal related to business, management and administration of public affairs. Some people become the butt of embarrassing situations while others seem to get off without a scratch.

OTHER MEDIA OMITTED RELEVANT FACTS

I am deeply disappointed that none of the other news media in DeKalb County, who reported on the matter of the convention and "secret" or extended meetings related to the eastern board—none of the other media gave one single line or mention to comments made by me in behalf of the school board. They were really in behalf of ANY school board, since the central district has also had criticism publicized about their board in recent weeks, resulting in the defeat of an incumbent candidate who had extensive experience in school matters.

TWO "GOOD" CANDIDATES FROM SPENCER TWP.

In our district, Lois Fisher lost by one vote and I would say the loss was due to recent agitation in the public mind about conventions particularly and also about alleged "secrecy". This is in no way a criticism of the vote result. Norman Kinsey is a concerned parent; I know. He and I had a long talk when he stopped in a few weeks ago to run an ad about his candidacy. He made no remarks critical of Mrs. Fisher, they were strictly general in nature but also also specific in that his concern related a great deal on experience in his own family with school matters.

Mrs. Fisher also conversed with me at length when she, too, came in to place an ad. To her credit, she made no reference to Mr. Kinsey whatsover. And she said, "If I don't win, I'm not going to be mad or bitter. But I am upset about the stories going around about the school board, and they just aren't true."

To the best of my knowledge, therefore, we had two "clean" candidates who ran for the Spencer Township position on the school board. For that, we can be thankful and grateful. The voters had their say, and it's done.

BOARD POWERS DEPLETED BY LEGISLATORS

One point I failed to state at the recent board meeting is an important one. It might not have been accepted by the group present at the meeting, but it should have been stated anyhow. That point is:

THE PUBLIC IS UNAWARE OF HOW LITTLE POWER A SCHOOL BOARD HAS NOW TO CONDUCT ITS AFFAIRS AS IT SEES FIT. SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION HAS BEEN STRIPPED OF ITS PAST TRADITIONAL "HOME-RULE" CONCEPT.

In Fort Wayne, for instance, some 20 negro teachers must be re-assigned to schools other than those they have been teaching in, not by order of the Fort Wayne school administration on its own. The order has come from the federal government to enforce "racial balance" and supposedly thus improve education for all. This concept of forced integration of teachers is as unpopular with the public, generally speaking, AND many teachers, as is the idea of forced busing. But the government says "move" and you must move. The problem is not with local school administration. The problem is with the U.S. Congress which passes acts establishing programs under agencies which make their own rules. Considering the Constitution as a protection of individual rights and liberties, such things as forced busing and forced teacher re-alignment are unConstitutional because they violate the private right to have children in a family go to the school closest to the family home. The decision on where to buy or build a house is many, many times based to a great extent on "how close is the school" or "how good is the school." Nowadays, you might make a big obligation housewise because of the school factor, then wake up some morning to find that your children are being taken elsewhere because of someone else's idea as to what is best. The point is—school boards DO NOT have the final say; "home rule" is NOT the guiding principle. And the reason is: the legislators who get elected on the idea of "bringing government back to the people" (including the operation of the local school system) say one thing, but do another after they get your vote.

TEACHERS SEEK SECRECY IN USE OF TAX MONEY

School boards operate under a handicap when it comes to contract negotiations. It's partly their own fault. For years, the secrecy which surrounded contract negotiations gave a distinct advantage to the teachers. I have contended for years that the public was entitled to know what was being asked by the teachers and what was being offered by the school board. If there isn't a law requiring such secrecy, then it is the theory that letting the public know about details of negotiations would only lead to more haggling. Teachers never protested the secrecy because it was to their advantage. The less the public knows about how much is being paid out for teacher salaries, the better it is for teachers. According to a statement in the "Teacher Advocate," official publication of the Indiana State Teachers Association, a few months ago, a prime target of teachers is to get legislation passed eliminating the publication of the school corporation's annual report containing the listing of teachers and what they received in pay for the school year. In other words, teachers are going to lobby for secrecy, reflecting the idea that the taxpayer has the responsibility to foot the bill for education but does not have the right to know how the money is being spent for the major item in the annual budget—teacher salaries. I'm not just making a wild accusation; it's in their own publication. It's part of the "political action" teachers are exhorted to take.

GETTING IN THE "FIRST LICKS"

If you will take note in newspaper articles, publicity about teacher contract problems ALWAYS comes from the teacher side originally. School boards don't make public statements until it becomes absolutely necessary. But, because of human nature, the one who gets in the first licks gains the advantage.

As an example, Marge Slabach is the spokesman for the Fort Wayne teachers in contract negotiations. Last week she made a public statement, reported by the Fort Wayne press, that their school system could hire 72 more teachers and use only one-fourth of the anticipated increased revenue for the year. That statement is ridiculous, but it's not surprising coming from that particular individual. Why? Well, Miss Slabach wrote an article for the Northrop High School paper in which she said students should be taught which laws to obey and which ones not to obey! In a lengthy interview published in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette several weeks ago, Miss Slabach stated that she was so involved in teacher union activities that she could not give as much attention to her classroom duties as she would like! In a news report a couple of weeks ago, Miss Slabach said the teachers wanted to negotiate with the school board on the pupil-to-teacher classroom ratio and said that she knew the school board did not ever negotiate that matter; it was a principle the school boards had followed for years. Miss Slabach said that "all" the teachers were asking was that the school board forget its principle and negotiate on the maximum number of pupils per class!

Does Miss Slabach represent the majority of teachers in Fort Wayne in such statements? I doubt it. But she gets the headlines—first. Then the school board and superintendent must try to counteract what has been published first. Unfortunately, people remember what they have heard or read first; a retraction, apology or explanation always comes in second best.

A band director in the Fort Wayne area has started to fight a decision by his school board not to renew his contract. The director called the board's reasons "vague," despite the fact that the board gave three specific reasons including the failure of the director to keep adequate attendance records.

There have been band students and parents protesting the board's decision. We had a somewhat similar situation in the eastern district just a few years ago. The board was compelled to state publicly why it was not renewing contracts. It was embarrassing particularly to one teacher to have such public disclosures. But the teachers asked for a hearing and got it.

BOARD FACES BURDEN OF PROOF

The burden of proof, please note, falls ALWAYS on the school board. The members are compelled time and time again to conform to this or that regulation or mandate without the privilege of a "hearing" to express their views. But in faculty matters, the board is constantly on the spot to justify its actions.

Too much emphasis has been placed on teacher rights and student rights. I think a school board ought to have the privilege of saying, "We are not renewing this contract with so-and-so teacher because we feel it is in the interest of the total educational program in our school system." They ought to be able to make such decisions without being put on the griddle by demands for hearings. It ought to be their privilege to determine whether or not a teacher should be given the specific reasons for not being re-hired. Board members are elected by the public on the basis of the public's confidence in school board candidates to exercise sound judgment in school matters. That does not mean a school board will not make mistakes. However, considering that board decisions are in conjunction with consultation with school principals and the superintendent, the vast majority of school board decisions will be in the total public interest in matters related to curriculum, personnel and other matters related to school functions.

WHERE YOU GOT THE WHOLE STORY

This has gotten somewhat off track from the original thoughts expressed about the recent school board meeting. I do want to make the point that the most complete factual report of what went on in the discussion about convention and "secret" meetings appeared in —The Saint Joe News.

If certain other news media in the county had been as complete in their stories, they would have been more fair to our school board and the central school board, instead of leaving the boards shrouded in an unjustified cloud of suspicion. These board members are our friends and neighbors and their integrity has been questioned due to falsehoods, not facts!

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL—JUNE 7th-18th

It's time to register your child for VBS! Ginny Miller and Mary Ann Miller will be in the basement after church on Sunday to help you. VBS is a great time for the children to really learn Bible truths and have lots of fun doing it, too! The theme this year is "God's Love Is Jesus." Don't forget to register your child for two exciting weeks of VBS.

We need more people to volunteer to bring cookies for VBS. Phyllis Hart is in charge of refreshments. So contact her if you are able to help in this way.

JAM IS STILL SPREADING

Parents, if your child hasn't been coming to JAM, there is still time to get him involved. A new contest, "The Gospel Train Contest," has just begun. The trains have pulled out of the station and will pass the Faith Station, cross over the Bridge of Hope and go through the Tunnel of Love. So get your child on board!

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The adults are really enjoying their study of Christian doctrine in the form of workbooks. Anne Kagey is the teacher and is doing a very fine job. Many of you who want and need to know the basics of our belief and where they are in the Bible would really benefit from being present Wednesday nights.

JUNIOR CHURCH NEWS

Thanks again to Anne Kagey, Judy Sechleh, Lanny Huss and Andy Crow, Doug Miller and Roger Coburn for being the teachers for Junior Church this year. We sure appreciated pianists Joanne Huss, Donna Mae Davis, Laurie Mann and Anne Kagey, too. Thank wou for jobs well done!

The Mother-Daughter Banquet was held May 6 at the Spencerville Community Building. Ruth Li was the speaker and the Washler trio provided music.

Junior Leaders

—Roy Prosser, reporter

The DeKalb County Junior Leader meeting was held April 21 at the exhibit hall in Auburn.

President Sam Reinoehl called the meeting to order. Richard Miller led the pledge to the American and 4H flags. Treasurer's report was given by Donna Perlick.

The club members elected Kevin Bender for their new recreation leader.

A foreign exchange student from Chile was guest of honor. She gave a talk on Chile. After her talk the members had a question and answer session with her.

Paul Hook made some announcements on the news election service.

Recreation was led by newly-elected Kevin Bender and Kevin Bowman.

Refreshments were served and the meeting was adjourned.

Blazer Baseball

Baseball coach Rex Bolinger reports that the Blazers won a double-header recently from Fremont, 2-1 and 6-2.

The first game went 9 innings as Lance Billings collected his first varsity win on the mound, going 5 innings and giving up only one hit. Eastside collected 10 hits but did not put them together, forcing an extra-inning game. Chris Sipe crossed home in the bottom of the 9th on a safety squeeze bunt by Stan Hall. Sipe had 3 singles, Dave Kandel 2 and Randy Koeppe a single and double.

The in second game Jeff Hudson narrowly missed a shutout, giving up a 2-out triple in the 7th to score Fremont's 2 runs. Rick Rinard had 2 doubles in the Blazer win.

Monday the Blazers topped Norwell at Ossian 9-5 with Mike Mansfield going the distance and Stan Hall getting a bases-loaded double good for 3 runs. Gary Dielman and Rinard had a pair of hits each, one of Rinard's a double. Kandel had a double driving in two runs.

Tuesday the Blazers went to Fairview, Ohio, and came home with a 4-1 win. Hall, Mansfield and Jeff Hudson combined in the pitching chores for the win. Mansfield had 2 hits good for 2 runs while Rinard and Phil Staley each had doubles.

Coleman Urges ERA Opposition

State Representative Dr. Floyd B. Coleman of Waterloo recently outlined his justification for his perennial opposition to the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, an issue which has embroiled the Indiana General Assembly since 1973.

Noted for his religious fervor, the legislator expressed concern over the effect ERA would have on churches and private schools. According to Coleman, such institutions have qualified for tax-free status and appear on the Internal Revenue's Cumulative List, a listing that is an unwritten commandment for successful fund-raising by charitable organizations.

"If ERA is ratified," Coleman said, "these exemptions could be removed if the IRS believed such institutions were operating in a discriminatory fashion." He added that precedent for such action was established in 1971 when the IRS ruled that private schools not having racially non-discriminatory policies relating to students are not eligible for such exemptions.

"Any action deemed to be discriminatory on the basis of sex would automatically jeopardize the tax-free status of these institutions," Coleman said.

Another matter which troubles Coleman is the "conspicuous absence of the Wiggins Modification in the Amendment." The Wiggins Modification states, "This article shall not impair the validity of any law of the United States which exempts a person from compulsory military service or any other law of the United States or of any state which reasonably promotes the health and safety of the people."

Coleman noted that without the Wiggins Modification, women lose their "right NOT to take work" as women would be made equally responsible to provide a home for their family and to provide 50 percent of the financial support of the family.

"In my opinion," he said, "this would be similar to the Equal Rights in Russian where the woman is obliged to put her baby in a state-operated nursery or kindergarten so she can join the labor force. This form of Equal Rights entitles the women to do the heavy, dirty work while the men remain the bosses."

The legislator stated it is important for citizens to see who is promoting ERA. "One lobbying group consists of radical women who hate men, marriage and children and believe the family unit should be destroyed. The other group consists of professional women with sincere motives for eliminating employment injustices," Coleman said.

"I can appreciate their efforts to end employment injustices, but I believe this can be achieved through the Civil Rights Act and the Equal Employment Opportunity Act," the legislator stated.

The four-term legislator, who is not seeking re-election, indicated such endeavors should be pursued by "well meaning" women while maintaining the "right to be a woman." Noting that two states have rescinded previous ratification of the ERA. Coleman urged other ratifying states to follow suit and called upon Indiana to maintain its opposition to the ERA.

Slanted Journalism Misleads or—Eastside HAS Drug Problem

A good example of the way in which important public affairs can be diverted from the public's attention; and a less significant point be given more attention, is to be found in an article by Jim Wasserman in a recent feature story in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette. The subject of the "area news" feature was a recent search for drugs carried out at DeKalb Eastside High School. Two specially trained dogs were used by the Indiana State Police to make a search for marijuana at Eastside High School.

Unfortunately, Mr. Wasserman had a purpose in mind other than to inform the public of precautions being taken to attempt drug control in public schools. A sub-headline at the top of the article is a giveaway as to what the article was to accomplish. The sub-head read something like: "Raises A Question of Legality." The sub-head was in reference to the search in the school.

The article states that only one small packet of "pot" was found in the search and that in a girl's rest room, as I recall. The dogs apparently sniffed no pot in the lockers.

Mr. Wasserman aroused the ire of Superintendent Kenneth Cole and at least one State Police official. Instead of asking questions about the search in a general way, such as, "How was the search carried out? How intensive was the search?", Mr. Wasserman put the questions in this way (according to the superintendent): "Is it true that every locker was searched? Is it true that all the classrooms were entered and searched?"

The latter type of questioning implies a desire for incriminating answers. The manner of asking such questions was such as to prompt the superintendent to end the interview abruptly. The same abrupt ending was made by a representative of the state police.

The unfortunate thing is: an important fact was smothered by the entire incident. That fact is:

DeKalb Eastside High School does have a drug problem. The search of the school was requested by school officials, with the consent of the school board, due to inability to control drug traffic and use by students.

What should be kept in mind, however, is that the problem prevails in ALL public schools. School officials all over the country are concerned about it. Law enforcement officials are concerned about it. But they are finding it difficult to overcome the feeling, as in this rural community, that "we don't have that sort of thing, it's the big cities that have the problem."

It doesn't help matters any to have an article published about our school, or any school, which places emphasis on invasion of privacy rather than the effort to keep young people from destroying themselves mentally and physically. It should be noted that no one raised the question of invasion of privacy, except the Journal-Gazette writer. Indeed, it is apparent he was so intent on raising a controversy that he obviously contacted the American Civil Liberties Union in Fort Wayne and gave significant space in the article to comments from the ACLU representative related to invasion of privacy, harrassment and so on—the typical line put out by that organization.

That there is a drug problem was told to an audience of parents last week who attended a meeting to become informed about the junior-senior high school as related to their seventh-graders-to-be this coming fall. One parent told me that our high school principal emphasized the drug matter and mentioned it more than once, out of concern for the welfare and well-being of next fall's new students at the school.

It might help if parents, other adults and concerned students in some way let our superintendent, principals and school board know that there is support for such protective measures as dog searches for drugs. I informed the superintendent last week that, as far as I am concerned, they CAN go into the classrooms in their searches, they CAN open the lockers, in their efforts to protect our young people. As a parent, I do not consider such tactics an invasion of privacy, a threat to our youngest son. I consider it an absolute necessity in efforts to control drug abuse.

One Eastside graduate commented to me a few days ago when we were discussing the matter, as follows: "If they had gone into the classrooms, those dogs would have gone crazy. The kids don't store the stuff in lockers; they carry it with them."

A current student in the school last week pointed out a car from which drugs are distributed. It was parked in front of our house! But it was gone when a deputy sheriff got to town.

THAT'S the way it is—here and all over the county, state and nation.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

'Baseball Weather' Puts Fans In Huddle

In a recent game, "Hud" Hudson fires a pitch to the batter with "Doc" Dielman in the background at second base.

Brent Resor, Blazer catcher, leaps for a high throw as a run scores for Woodlan in a recent game at Eastside.

The ACAC girls' track meet was held May 11 at Adams Central. The Eastside girls scored 33 points and placed 6th.

Mary Jo Baughman qualified for the sectional in the shot put with a toss of 31' 10½ inches, good for 4th place.

Other placings were: 3rd in mile Rita Willibey, 3rd in shot put Judy Bopp, 3rd in 880 Laura Bevington, 5th in mile Becky Webb, 5th for the 880 relay team, 5th in long jump Christy Baker, 5th in the 440 Cheri Schmucker.

6th place finishers were Deb Wood 80 yard hurdles, Lisa Johnson 220 yard dash, and the 880 yard merley relay team.

On May 4 the girls' varsity track team was defeated by Norwell and Adams Central. Scores were Norwell 58, Adams Central 39 and Eastside 37.

The only firsts for Eastside were Jodi Bopp shot put and Cheri Schmucker 440 yard dash.

Other placings were: Deb Wood 3rd in hurdles, Christy Baker 4th in 100 yard dash, Rita Willibey 2nd in mile, Becky Webb 4th in mile, Laura Hook 2nd in 880, Connie Oberlin 4th in 880, 2nd for the 880 medley relay team.

In field events, Jo Baughman had 3rd in shot put, Christy Baker 3rd in long jump, Becky Graves 4th in long jump and 2nd in high jump, Laura Bevington 3rd in high jump, Sunda Obendorf 2nd in softball throw.

Junior high boys' track coach reports that the team nipped Leo 54-46 and blasted Hamilton 83-40 in recent meets.

Gary Rinard and Dennis Kline led the way with record-setting performances, while Jack Wilmot, Jim Whitman, Rick Keener and Stan Mack turned in some fine efforts.

Kline set a new junior high record in the 220 and hurdles with times of :25.6 and :16.4, respectively. Rinard broke his own record in the long jump with a leap of 16'10".

The distance squad, led by Wilmot, Whitman, Mack and Chuck Niblick, continue to lead the way as they captured 5 out of 6 possible places in the 880 and mile runs in both meets. Whitman's 5:13.2 mile and Wilmot's 2:14 880 are top efforts so far. Other good efforts in the running events have been by Dan Graves and Frank Emerson in the 440, Jim Albertson in the sprints and Keener in the hurdles.

Field events, long a weak spot for the junior Blazers, according to Coach Bixler, are beginning to hold their own this year. Rick Stayer has been a consistent winner in the shot along with Mack in the pole vault. Rinard has been tough in the long jump and in the Hamilton meet Keener recorded a 1st in the high jump with a leap of 5' 1".

Several 7th graders have had outstanding efforts this year as they prepare to assume the leadership role on next year's team. Included in this group are Niblick, mile and high jump; Greg Blaker, 880 and long jump; Steve Billings, sprints; Nick Gollmer, 440 and hurdles; Church Dickerhoof, 880 and shot; Bill Hulbert, long jump; Eugene Evans, mile; and Dennis Shultz, pole vault.

Teacher 'News Conference' Results In Purposeful Embarrassment To School Board; Facts Are Distorted By 'Anger'

—By The Editor

Another example of the "last minute" tactics being used by teacher representatives in the teacher-administration relationship was provided this week by Donna Hollabaugh, spokesman for the classroom teachers association in the DeKalb eastern school district.

On Tuesday, an announcement was made to county news media (by telephone to the News Office) that a news conference would be held Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. at the UniServe office in Auburn.

A radio news report of the news conference was carried on WIFF radio at 5 p.m. An article appeared in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette of Thursday morning this week, quoting Mrs. Hollabaugh and headlining the "upset" caused to the teachers in this district by "statements and alleged misinformation released by the school board bargaining attorney, H. Charles Winans and school superintendent Richard (sic) Cole."

The news conference was set late enough to prevent contacting school administrative officials before local broadcast time.

Coincidence? I think not. My observation is that this is a perfect example of the unethical tactics being used by a certain few teachers and representatives to cast doubts upon school administration and cover up the goals—mostly money—being sought by teacher negotiators.

Keep in mind that an incumbent school board member from both the eastern and central districts was defeated in seeking re-election and that agitation over school administration had been promoted by certain teachers just before that election. They got in their "licks" at the last minute, too late for any answer to be given to direct charges or innuendoes regarding school administrative activities.

Mrs. Hollabaugh's statements to the news media Wednesday afternoon are almost totally false, for one primary reason.

She expressed anger that the county daily had a news story about the school board offer of a 6% pay raise before the teacher negotiators knew about it.

HOW COULD TEACHER NEGOTIATORS BE GIVEN NOTICE OF THE SCHOOL BOARD'S PROPOSAL WHEN THE BOARD DID NOT VOTE ON THE PROPOSAL UNTIL THE MONDAY, MAY 17, MEETING?

The fact that the county daily had a representative at the meeting who prepared a story about the meeting for publication in the Tuesday issue does not indicate unfair tactics by the board. The meeting was an open meeting; there were 21 other people present. The teachers could have had a representative there to hear school board deliberations. WHY DIDN'T THEY????

Another point to refute the general content of Mrs. Hollabaughs remarks lies in the fact that she (by her own public admission) cancelled a negotiating meeting which had been set for Wednesday of last week. The reason—her upset over the newspaper article.

The unrest was caused by the manner in which the offer was "delivered." The truth is, the offer never was "delivered"; it couldn't be because the board, again, did not vote on the proposal until May 17, and, more, significantly, THE TEACHERS cancelled the meeting at which the proposal would properly have been presented.

The accusations made by the teacher representative are absolutely distorted and misleading.

I have before me the news story of the May 17 meeting as written by Dave Kurtz of the Auburn Evening Star. I also have before me the minutes of the May 17 meeting. Nowhere in either of those written recordings of the proceedings is there any suggestion of a "take it or leave it" attitude on the part of the negotiating attorney, the superintendent or the school board.

Quite the opposite. The Star article says:

"In approving the six per cent offer, several of the board members made clear that they feel it is the limit. Some had to be convinced the school board could afford that much, DESPITE WINANS' RECOMMENDATION TO OFFER IT." (The capital letters our emphasis.—Ed.)

In another paragraph, the Star report notes:

"In an unusual open discussion of negotiation options, Winans explained that the teachers and administration both agree that the school corporation has $109,000 extra dollars to spend next year."

The administration says that $63,000 of that increase will be needed for inflation-related cost increases other than teachers' salaries, leaving some $46,000 for teacher contract negotiation.

Question: if the teachers agree on the amount available, what else can be done but to settle for that? If they question the need for $63,000 to cover other inflation-related expenses, what do they expect—that prices shouldn't go up, that other personnel shouldn't have a pay increase, that everything else should stay the same—except teachers' salaries???

What came in from "way out in left field" in Mrs. Hollabaugh's news conference was this:

". . . . before the reported salary proposals are discussed, the school board must act on a list of 25 demands from the EDEA."

The inference is that the last thing teachers want to talk about is their pay, that there are other more important matters to deliberate. If this is true —that money is the least item on their list of priorities— why is there so much upset about what the board will offer. The offer amounts to from some $500 to over $1,000 per teacher, depending on individual circumstances. On a nine-month basis, that's from $55 to $110 or so more a month. That's bad????

All of the headlines being made by this week's "news conference" at the UniServ office in Auburn point to one motive, if you ask me—to divert public attention from the teachers' demands for a 15% pay increase. Attention has been drawn to school administration and its inferred irresponsible and unsympathetic attitude toward teachers. Mrs. Hollabaugh conveniently failed to acknowledge that the school board has been trying to work out the study hall "problem" so that teachers won't have that burden of duty—that the board accepted Mr. Winans' suggestion for increases in extra pay schedules —that the board accepted Mr. Winans' suggestion for increased insurance benefits.

Not mentioned in the teacher statement is the fact that the newspaper story reported Mr. Winans' admission that the overall schedule at Eastside is lower than in surrounding systems. It did not mention that Mr. Winans stated a hope that an agreement could be reached soon to avoid a summer of continued negotiating which costs everyone.

Also, at a board meeting just a few weeks ago, Mr. Winans reported that the atmosphere in negotiation matters was the best that he could remember. Now comes a blast from the teachers that is dumbfounding!

Did I attend the news conference? No, I didn't. Why didn't I? Because I didn't have the time to "jump" when the UniServ office called and said "jump." If the teachers have anything to say, they can use regular printed news release, as they have in the past. I think somebody's head is getting too big when a news conference is called and all the media are expected to run over to the UniServ office to hear what can be stated in a news release.

The comments in this article are based on what has appeared in the Auburn Evening Star and the Fort Wayne newspapers, and on what was heard on WIFF radio in an on-the-spot taped recording of Mrs. Hollabaugh's remarks.

As is the case in other union groups, the top officials are pulling the strings, and the union members and the public are the puppets.

The situation calls for me to repeat what I have said before —in view of what has been said above. I am not against teachers. I AM against the way they are being used, as is the general public, to create dissention and thus to divert attention from what is really happening and what the true facts are.

If Mrs. Hollabaugh was so upset as to cancel a negotiation meeting, if she can't keep the circumstances in proper perspective, should ALL teachers be forced to face the consequences? Should the public be forced to foot the bill?

Another question comes to mind. As spokesman for local teachers, is Mrs. Hollabaugh herself being "used"—are the totally erroneous statements she made this week really HER thoughts???

Board Says It Can Afford 6% Teacher Raise

Discussion of teacher salary matters at the May 17 meeting of the DeKalb eastern school board resulted in a board motion to offer teachers a 6% salary increase, including increments, added money in the extra pay schedule (extra-curricular leadership duties), and improved insurance cost coverage.

Information from school attorney H. Charles Winans and Superintendent Kenneth Cole indicated that there will be an additional $104,650 in state aid available for next year and up to $10,000 more in excise taxes. However, $63,000 of that increase will cover inflation-related operational expense increases. A 6% salary increase would amount to some $49,188. This combined with the increase in other operational expenses covers the increased state aid for the 1976-77 school year.

Part of the $63,000 increase is represented by a 7% increase in pay for non-teaching personnel. This was referred to as a mere "pittance" compared to the over $900,000 in the budget for certified salaries.

Speaking for a group of patrons attending the meeting, Carlyle Holman read a statement questioning the conduct of the superintendent at a recent meeting and suggested that a public apology was in order. Board members and those attending discused the matter further. Board members reportedly defended the superintendent in his conduct of school business affairs, indicating at the same time that there was disagreement with his manner of communicating with the public on occasion. One of those attending the meeting reported to The News that "it turned out pretty good," indicating that the open discussion had helped to smooth a strained situation.

Former Pastor At Spenv'e UM

A former pastor of the Spencerville United Methodist Church will preach at the local church Sunday, May 30, at the 9:00 a.m. worship service.

The Rev. Howard Brown will return to fill the pulpit while the pastor of the congregation, Rev. Terry Rhine, is attending the North Indiana Conference of the United Methodist Church to be held May 27-30 at Purdue University at West Lafayette. The sermon topic will be, "The Elder Brother Kind of Sinning."

Rev. Brown served the parish from 1932-34. He then served at Forest Park in Fort Wayne and Goshen First Church. The Browns then completed their active ministry at the Church of the Savior in Cleveland for 23½ years.

At present the Browns are retired and reside at Epworth Forest at North Webster, Indiana.

The pblic is invited to attend the Memorial Day Service and begin or renew acquaintance with Pastor and Helen Brown.

Tom Hollabaugh Named Most Valuable Player

Tom Hollabaugh, 1975 graduate of DeKalb Eastside High School and just recently named most valuable player on the Glen Oaks Community College basketball team, has been sidelined by a possible heart condition not yet definitely diagnosed.

Tom attended the first time trials for the Indiaanpolis 500 race a couple of weeks ago with friends. On the way home, he suffered a seizure. Prelimanary hospital tests indicated heart problems and he will undergo further examination in Fort Wayne on June 4.

Tom's award as most valuable player, playing as a freshman on the varsity squad at Glen Oaks College, was due to his scoring of 481 points in 28 games, a 17.2 point average per game. He was second in rebounding statistics.

Glen Oaks College is located in Sturgis, Michigan.

As a senior at Eastside, Tom led in scoring in the ACAC conference and was named one of the all-area outstanding players in northeastern Indiana.

Ken Schuler is coach of the Glen Oaks Vikings. With Tom's performance, the team had one of its best season records, wining 17 and dropping 11 in all games and having a 10-4 conference record, good for third place.

Tom is the son of the late Jack Hollabaugh and Connie Hollabaugh of Spencerville.

Memorial Day Services Given

Traditional Memorial Day services are planned for Saint Joe by members of Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post 283.

According to Forrest Bevington, a program will be presented at Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Charles Quinn, judge of the DeKalb County Court, will be the speaker for the afternoon Memorial Day observance.

The annual Memorial Day Service of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ will be held Sunday, May 30, at 11:30 a.m. at Alton Cemetery. The worship service will dismiss early and a parade will be formed leading to the cemetery.

The program at the cemetery will feature music, and an address by Brother Larry Carter, minister of the Coburn Corners congregation. There will be the traditional decorating of graves of those who have served their country in time of war.

Alton Cemetery is located on State Road 101 in Concord Township and is one of the oldest cemeteries in DeKalb County, having been established in 1837.

Rick Rinard Gets Scholarship

Rick Rinard, DeKalb Eastside star athlete, has received a baseball scholarship from Adrian College, Michigan.

Rick was named to the ACAC All-Star team this week. The Blazer shortstop had a batting average of .397 this spring.

Rick also received the most valuable player award in baseball at the Blazers spring sports banquet last week.

MM Jim Rinard of Spencerville are the parents of the outstanding athlete who was also named the most valuable player in basketball recently.

Named Mother Of The Year

Mrs. Goldie Renfrow of Rl Spencerville was honored with the second annual Mother of the Year Award at the Hicksville Church of the Nazarene on Mothers Day. She is an active member of the church.

Mrs. Renfrow is the mother of five children, Mrs. Jim Hughes of Fort Wayne, Dewey Renfrow of Auburn, Mrs. Clint Myers of Rl Spencerville, Mrs. Larry Mason of Saint Joe and Jerry Renfrow of Elkhart.

Three of the five children are active members of the Hicksville congregation.

Lambda Sigma

—Becky Lees, reporter

The Lambda Sigma Chapter of Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority held its may 12 meeting at the home of Linda Kandel. The creed was read by nine members. Secretary Lynne Bercaw read the minutes from the last meeting. Linda Kandel reported that we have $304.98 in our treasury.

$10.00 will be sent to our assigned center, which is the Flat Creek Church of the Brethren.

The ballot for new officers was presented.

All the girls are selling tickets now for the Butler Days that will be coming up in August. A $100.00 bill will be given away.

Bills were then presented to the treasurer.

The meeting was adjourned and a delicious jello dessert and cookies were served by the hostess, Linda Kandel.

DID YOU KNOW?

Right now is a good time to buy a new car?

Your present car is at a 15-year high as a trade-in—New models provide up to 35% more miles per gallon on the average over cars two years old and over—More effective carburetion, combustion and exhaust systems make new models more environmentally efficient—New models have much lower maintenance costs due to engineering advances. Solid state ignition, sealed bearings and many other improvements are available as 'standard equipment.'—Radial tires that are guaranteed for 40,000 miles are 'standard' on most new cars—Replacement parts for your present car are at an all-time high. The money you spend to repair your present car could make the purchase of a new car an even 'better buy'—Qualified buyers can get expanded credit with up to 48 months to pay and no money down—Present local inventories on new cars are unusually high for this time of year. Area dealers are anxious to move this inventory and are ready to make you a fantastic 'buy' on a new '76 or a leftover '75.

June 2—Vulcraft v Lengacher at Spencerville.

June 3—Knisely v Vulcraft at Saint Joe.

Murdered Man Found In River

The partly decomposed body of Michael James Dehany, 30, of Fort Wayne was found in the St. Joseph River at Newville Saturday by two Hicksville men who were fishing the river. They contacted Dale Harter at Newville who notified the sheriff of the find. It is reported that the body had been in the river since January, following police investigation.

Arrests have been made in Fort Wayne related to charges of murder. The victim had some 30 stab wounds. It is believed that the victim was killed in Allen County, the body then transpored to DeKalb County and dumped in the river.

Recent high water had left the body draped over a tree limb, with the head and feet dangling in the water.

Street Signs A Possible Project

Joyce Mitchell of Saint Joe is gathering information concerning a project to provide street signs at various intersections in Saint Joe. She informed the editor this week that she attended a town board meeting recntly to make a suggestion for such a project and, as she says, "it was thrown right back in my lap."

In the next few weeks additional information will be gathered by Mrs. Mitchell, such as the number of signs needed, the cost of materials, the availability of donations of both money and materials, and so on.

Anyone with suggestions about the project should contact Mrs. Mitchell who would appreciate any such help.

Church League Starts Tuesday

Competition in the Saint Joe Church Softball League will begin Tuesday, June 1, according to league secretary Lavon Hart.

The schedule for the first week is as follows:

Tuesday, June 1—Coburntown II v Hicksville Church of Christ; and Norris Chapel I v Spencerville UM.

Wednesday, June 2—Mt. Pleasant UM v Norris Chapel II; and St. Joe Church of Christ-Lutherans v Newville United Methodist.

Friday, June 4—Norris Chapel I v Coburntown II; and Coburntown I v Newville Church of Christ.

As has been the case for many years, umpires will come from the participating teams in the league. However, the scheduling of umpires has been set up differently. Teams will umpire the other game on nights when they are scheduled to play. For example, next Tuesday's first game between Coburntown II and Hicksville will be umpired by Norris Chapel I, the home team of the second game. The umpires for the second game will be provided by Coburntown II, home team for the first game.

Due to anticipated shortage of players, the Saint Joe Church of Christ and the Lutherans combined forces this year. This allowed Mt. Pleasant to re-enter league activity after an absence of a few years.

The availability of players appears to run a cycle within the league. A strong team for a few years finds itself short and a previously weaker team finds itself on top. Then, in a few years someone else takes their turn in the cycle, strong to weak to strong. It has made the league interesting over the years.

The league is self-supporting for the most part, entry fees and occasional additional assessments taking care of needs. The Saint Joe Lions Club helps a great deal with its payment of the diamond light bills for the past several years.

1976 marks the 25th anniversary of the installaion of lights at the local diamond. The cost was some $3,500.

Installation of lighted diamonds today runs in the $20,000-$25,000 bracket, according to an Indiana & Michigan Electric Company official.

The 90-foot light poles in the outfield cost the then-functioning Recreation Club something like $100 apiece in 1951, according to church league president Ted Haberkorn who was secretary of the Recreation Club when Frank Sechler was president and the lights project was undertaken. And the poles were installed without charge by I&M who, in those days, could afford assisting such public service projects. But now similar light poles cost $1,000 apiece installed—no lights, just the pole in the ground, the church league president noted. "And we think we have more now than we had twenty-five years ago!" he concluded.

LCW News

—Parlia Hull, secretary

On May 19 St. Mark Lutheran Church Women and guests met for a fellowship dinner at the Lucky Steer restaurant in Auburn at 6:30 p.m.

President Louise Church called the ladies to order for prayer. 33 ladies lined up to give their order for dinner.

Following the dinner, each member introduced herself and her guest. There were four birthdays in May and these ladies were presented a blue or pink carnation by Betty Heisler. Carnations were also given to the oldest mother present, Mrs. Clara Brattain; the youngest, Mrs. Susie Parrish; the mother with the most children, Mrs. MaDonna Wade; and the "mother with a thousand children," Mrs. Freida Guilford, retired school teacher.

Mrs. Church then introduced Mrs. Imogene Snyder from the Newville United Methodist Church who showed pictures of nature and people, and very impressively and interestingly told how they fit into God's world.

The committee for the evening included Nancy Lake, Betty Heisler, Arla Sechler, Judy Parker and Betty Longardner, assisted by Mrs. Church.

The Spencer Township Homemakers Club met at the home of Lois Fisher for their May meeting.

Lois opened the meeting with the club collect. Our club flower for May is the lily of the valley.

For devotions Ida Reed read two poems for Mothers Day.

Eight answered roll call to "one of my extravagances."

Marie Ward made a motion that we disband as a club, seconded by Marjie Dwyer.

The June meeting will be a trip.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I must make an apology to several individuals and groups for not getting news items out to the public in recent weeks. If you didn't notice, the paper has been a week late on occasion, and this means it didn't serve the community as it ought.

Apologies to the Legion Post for not being able to publicize its planning meeting for the Memorial Day service. I tried to make up for it by having the Chapman kids at Spencerville and Kevin White at Saint Joe distribute papers house to house Saturday before Memorial Day.

Ditto situation for the Spencerville UM Church and Pastor Rhine for their special speaker Memorial Day.

Apologies to the track teams and the baseball team for not using all of the material sent to me—to coaches Rex Bolinger and Johnny Zimmerman for not getting out advance notice of a Pony League baseball clinic—and any others who were "let down" by my lateness.

Things "get to me" more than they used to and I slow down. —And you know what they say that's a sign of!

An encouraging note from "Doc" Coleman, our State Representative from Waterloo:

"Thank you Ted for the good editorials and the community service you render via your newspaper. Thanks and God bless."

A tall red-haired young man was waiting for his order at the Village Inn one day when I was enjoying a root beer float. He was conversing with Cindy Kuker as his order was being prepared. She then said something like, "He's sitting right over there"—pointing in my direction. The young man was Mike Harris who had inquired about who lived in the brick house next door. Mike's grandparents owned our house before we purchased it in 1957. We had a pleasant conversation as he reminisced about the layout of the rooms in the house, having been just a young 'un when he last was in it.

Mike and his family now live west of Saint Joe.

Things-that-make-you-feel-good department:

With church league softball underway this week, I helped ump Wednesday's first game between Mt. Pleasant and Norris Chapel. As our team prepared to play the second game, I had a brief conversation with Dick Grogg, Mt. Pleasant's pitcher. He said, "Gee, it's good to be back in this league again." Mt. Pleasant had been one of the regular participants for several years before finding it necessary to drop out in recent years. Then when the Saint Joe Church of Christ and the Lutherans found themselves facing a probable shortage of players this year ("the cycle" I mentioned last week), uniting those two teams created an opening for Mt. Pleasant and they were eager to jump in; they have been wanting back in before.

Dick's remark made me feel good, not just because the league made me "pres" again this year (a boost to my ego!), but because it substantiated my observation at a church league meeting that we have something "special" in our church league. Despite the occasional conflicts and problems which have arisen in the past and will arise in the future, no doubt (church league players ARE human, you know), there has been a "feeling"—a good feeling—established among the teams and participants as the years have passed.

The result is that we have at Saint Joe the oldest softball league in DeKalb County and the most most successful. It's due to the cooperation of all those churches in this area who have participated and the individual participants and managers who have made every effort to resolve difficult situations which arise from time to time.

As one of the older participants, I know more readily what a memorable activity we have in our church league softball program. Lavon Hart, who has been secretary a year longer than my "pres" functioning, knows what I mean, I'm certain. And the league wouldn't be what it is without him.

And from what Dick Grogg said Wednesday evening, it is apparent that the younger ones also have begun to experience that "good feeling" in connection with our long-time church softball activities.

In my years in the league, especially recent years, I have seen and been a part of situations which come straight out of the Bible. In fact, I could deliver a good message—or sermon!—on the subject without any trouble. For me, "truth" has been revealed in—of all things—the swinging of a bat or the throwing of a ball.

It feels good to be back, as Mike said—for Mt. Pleasant—and me, too.

Louise Zim'erman

Re-appearance of a tumor which could not be safely removed by surgery was the cause of death for Kathryn Louise Zimmerman, 54, of Spencerville Thursday of last week. Surgery had been performed at an earlier date to remove the first cancerous growth, first diagnosed last November.

Mrs. Zimmerman was born August 9, 1921, in Delaware County near Muncie, the daughter of Hearsel and Kathryn Shockley. She married Dallas Zimmerman in 1941 in Spencerville. Mrs. Zimmerman was a housewife and a former supervisor at the Rhinehart Company at Spencerville.

Survivors include the husband; the mother; a daughter, Mrs. Dale Dowden, of Vincennes; three grandchildren; three brothers, Hearsel Shockley of Saint Joe, Roland Shockley of Leo and Robert Shockley of Auburn; and a sister, Mrs. Francis Conner of Muncie. Another sister, Mary Rediger, preceded her in death.

Mrs. Zimmerman was a member of the Spencerville Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star and Spencerville United Methodist Church.

Funeral services were held at the church Saturday at 2 p.m. with Rev. Terry Rhine officiating. Burial was in White City Cemetery. Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Heritage Sunday Service June 27

"Bicentennial Heritage Sunday" will be observed in Spencerville June 27 with a worship service open to the public. It will begin at 9 a.m.

Plans call for an outdoor service on the lawn between the Lutheran and United Methodist churches. In case of inclement weather, the service will be held in St. Peter Lutheran Church.

In addition to the regular message, it is planned to have a combined choir, under the direction of Jay Blauser, along with special music provided by the "Burden Lifters."

A special invitation is extended to former members and friends of the community to attend the special service.

Clara Brattain

Funeral services for Clara Brattain, 80, of R1 Saint Joe were held Sunday afternoon at the Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville. She had been hospitalized at DeKalb Memorial Hospital for a week before her death.

Mrs. Brattain formerly resided at Spencerville. Her husband, Charles, preceded her in death. She had been employed in the local school lunch kitchen for many years.

Survivors include two daughters, Marvella Dilley of Saint Joe and Dorothy Farver of Fort Wayne; a son, Forrest of Spencerville; two sisters, Mrs. Viola Kimes of Auburn and Mrs. Ruth Place of Fort Wayne; 10 grandchildren; and 10 great grandchildren.

Rev. Terry Rhine officiated at the funeral. Burial was in White City Cemetery.

Spanish Club Has Banquet

The DeKalb Eastside High School Spanish Club held their second annual spring banuet on May 16 in the Spencerville Community Building. The meal consisted of tacos, enchiladas, tostadas, arroz, frijoles and a beverage and was prepared and served by Mrs. Dorothy Chew, her sisters and sisters-in-law.

The Spanish Club members who attended the banquet, and especially sponsor Debbie Roof, would like to extend their sincere thanks to Mrs. Chew and all the people who worked so hard to make the banquet a success.

This is the second year Mrs. Chew and her relatives have prepared the banquet, and hopes are that this tradition may continue for many more years.

DAR Project

Last fall, Sarah Jean Eldridge, Bicentennial Chairman of the John Houlton Chapter DAR, contacted all township trustees in DeKalb County inquiring about the identification of all county cemeteries. The project was to have all DeKalb County cemeteries identified with some form of identification so that passerbys would be able to know which cemetery they had seen. It was hoped that this could be done by Memorial Day this year or at least completed by the end of 1976.

There were a number of responses, according to Mrs. Eldridge, some saying that the cemeteries were already identified in their townships, some asking for more details and the cost involved, and others suggesting contact with other people since some of the cemeteries are controlled by corporations.

Edison Shippy, trustee of Richland Township, indicated that one of his first goals was to identify the cemeteries and restore stones, and so on, using Federal Revenue Sharing funds.

Mr. Shippy's plan is now being carried out. Soon all three cemeteries in Richland Township will be identified.

Mrs. Eldridge stated hopes that other township trustees will be able to allocate funds for such identification and restoration purposes. The cooperation of private corporations and church affiliations is also being sought in the effort to complete the project by the end of the bicentennial year 1976.

Recreation Program At Saint Joe

Mary Bopp, director of the summer recreation program for children in the Riverdale area, has announced that activities will begin June 7.

Boys' basketball will be offered Monday, Wednesday and Friday in the gym. Boys in grades 4, 5 and 6 will play at 9:00 a.m. with 7th and 8th grade boys scheduled for 10:00 a.m. Basketball will be cancelled during the swimming program, to resume again after the swimming sessions.

Tennis lessons will be offered Monday, Wednesday and Friday for boys and girls in grades 4, 5 and 6 at 11:00 a.m. and for 7th and 8th grade at 1:00 p.m. Adult lessons will be offered Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 2:00 p.m.

On Tuesday and Thursday, tumbling and gymnastics will be offered in the gym at 10:00 a.m. for girls in grades 4 through 8.

Boys' touch football for those in grades 4 through 8 will be offered at 11:00 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday, as will girls' kickball for grades 4 through 8 at 1:00 p.m.

Beginning July 5, coed softball will be offered for boys and girls in grades 4 through 8 at 9:00 a.m.

Swimming lessons begin June 21 at 9:30 a.m. The cost will be $5.00 for the lessons which will run for two weeks. Bus service will be provided with the following pickup schedule: 8:30 a.m. at Chaney's Restaurant in Spencerville; 8:35 a.m. at the Riverdale School in Saint Joe; and 8:45 a.m. at the Newville store.

Additional information is available by calling 337-2251.

Recreation Program At Spencerville

The Spencerville Community Club Summer Recreation Program begins daytime activities Monday, June 7, and evening activities Monday, June 21.

There will be sports, crafts and other activities for all ages.

Beginning schedules have been posted in Laub's Shell Mart, Chaney's Restaurant, the Spencerville Post Office, Brown Furniture & Hardware and the Valley Inn. Additions or changes will be made through the summer in both crafts and sports. Special activities will occur and be announced in advance.

Activities offered now are:

Crafts and macrame begin June 14. Evening hours will be open to adults—volleyball, basketball and several other activities. There will be a beginning knitting class evenings and other craft classes to be announced.

A fee of 50 cents will be charged for the crafts (1-3) class and a fee of $3.00 will be charged for macrame.

For additional information or enrollment, call Stephanie Koch, director, at 337-4821.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Bivere Brush, reporter

The Newville Township Home Ec Club entertained the Franklin Club and a former member, Mabel Thimlar, May 12 at 1 p.m. in the I&M Building at Butler with Lela Wright and Freda Engle as hostesses.

Each person was given a name tag and asked to choose a number and guess the contents of a plastic egg. Bivere Brush had the correct number so she got the contents of the egg, a postage stamp, as no one guessed the contents.

President Doris Hart called the meeting to order and read the poem, "A Mother's Love," by Helen Steiner Rice. All sang the club prayer song.

Leta Shaffer gave devotions, using a number of articles by various authors about Mothers Day.

All sang the song "Mother," led by Freda Engle, accompanied by Dorine Singer on a portable chord organ.

Lois Guiff gave the annual memorial service for the departed members of past years.

15 guests and 19 members gave the name of a famous mother for roll call.

Secretary and treasurer reports were read and approved. New business consisted of a discussion concerning the DeKalb County Cook Book.

Screamo was played for the social hour, high point score winners were given eagle plaques in each club. Low point winner in each club got telephone insulators made into candle holders.

The tables were decorated in red, white and blue, and a salad bar luncheon was served.

All who did not turn in apron money please do so at the June 9 meeting at 1 p.m., Indiana time, at the Hicksville Bank Building with Lucille Nelson and Elvo Hook as hostesses.

Blazers Edged In Sectional; Summer Schedule Begins Next Week

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers lost a heart-breaker Monday at the DeKalb Central ball diamond where the baseball sectional tourney got underway for this area.

Handcuffing the Garrett Railroaders 2-0 going into the last of the 7th, diminuitive Mike Mansfield, the mainstay of the Blazer pitching staff, ran into trouble, walking two enemy batters. Before the inning was over, Garrett had scored two runs to send the game into extra innings.

Then in the last of the 8th, with Stan Hall and Lance Billings pitching for the Blazers, Garrett managed to squeeze home the winning run on a bases loaded bunt.

Mansfield had the game in control for six innings. He appeared to get stronger as the game progressed, with his breaking ball particularly giving Railroader batters troubles.

Then in the 7th, it appeared the breaking pitches just stopped working. And the two walks eventually scored.

Both Blazer runs scored in the first inning when it seemed the Railroaders were going to give the game away on an error, hit batsman, wild pitches along with three hits. But with all the activity, the Blazers scored but 2 runs.

Mansfield gave up only 3 hits in his 7 innings. But the walks in the 7th hurt, and he was called for a balk in the 7th which gave Garrett their tying run.

The Blazers had the momentum through six innings, due in part to the outstanding catching job performed by Jeff Hudson. The "college try" on a couple of pop fouls made Hudson a source of inspiration for his teammates. He was called into catching duties at the last minute, taking over for Brent Resor, the Blazers' regular catcher, who was suspended for the summer athletic season on the last day of school for disciplinary reasons.

Rick Rinard made two sparkling catches at short to show good reason why he has been named an all-star and has been awarded a scholarship at Adrian, Michigan.

Coach Rex Bolinger was compelled to resort to a "running" game due to a lack of base hits, a problem plaguing the Blazers all spring. But the strategy was not successful. A suicide squeeze backfired on one occasion when the batter missed on a bunt and the runner from third was nailed at the plate. Rinard got a walk in the 8th, but was out at second on an attempted steal.

On another occasion, Hall got a double, just missing a home run to right. But his mates couldn't bring him in.

The game was delayed due to rainfall Sunday night. Work was necessary on the diamond to make it playable. The mud and wet grass caused occasional problems for players on both teams.

The Blazers now begin their summer schedule without the help of Rinard, Mansfield, Gary Dielman and Randy Koeppe who graduated last week.

The summer schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, June 8, at Fremont.
Thursday, June 10, at Angola.
Tuesday, June 15, DeKalb at home.
Thursday, June 17, Leo at home.
Monday, June 21, bye.
Tuesday, June 22, Garrett at home.
Thursday, June 24, at Hamilton.
Monday, June 26, Fremont at home.
Tuesday, June 29, Angola at home.
Thursday, July 1, at DeKalb.
Tuesday, July 6, at Leo.
Thursday, July 8, bye.
Tuesday, July 13, at Garrett.
Thursday, July 15, Hamilton at home.

Head baseball coach is Rex Bolinger, phone 868-2532. Assistant coach is Johnny Zimmerman, phone 488-3140.

All games are scheduled for 6:00 p.m. Indiana time, unless the involved coaches agree on a different time.

There will be two divisions in the summer league with Eastside in the East Division. There are seven teams in each division as follows: East—Angola, DeKalb Central, DeKalb Eastside, Fremont, Garrett, Hamilton and Leo; West—Bronson, East Noble, Fairfield, Lakeland, Northridge, Prairie Heights and West Noble.

On Saturday, July 17, the two division champions will play at the East Division champion's home field for the league championship.

On July 20, 21, 23 and 24, a tourney will be played.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The following note came in a couple of weeks ago:

Thought it would be nice if your paper would mention the companies who are supporting the St. Joe, Spencerville Little League.

These companies are Knisely Bank, Lengacher Electric, Sechlers Pickles, and Vulcraft.

Each team will have new uniforms, etc.

These above companies deserve the communities thanks.

Enclosed you will find the Little League schedule for the year.

Thanks.

A Neighbor

An article had already been run (May 13) when the above letter was received. Somebody isn't keeping up with The Saint Joe News—which is a switch!

I had a "gut feeling" all winter—and thanks to the desire of an adult Scout leader to find out about my relationship with the Scouts, my "gut feeling" turned out to be fact and not fancy.

What's it all about? Well, a year ago you were reading reports from several Scout units in the area. But starting last fall, they stopped coming in. I finally asked one of the adult leaders last winter if anything was wrong. The answer: No, we've had four different scribes and we didn't meet last month and we just haven't gotten anything ready for the paper.

I accepted the explanation—for a few weeks—until it was obvious no Scout reports were coming in yet. During this time I had the "gut feeling" becoming more pronounced that there was something definitely wrong and the lack of Scout reports was deliberate.

When the adult Scout leader came in recently and inquired about publicity, I told about my feeling that something was wrong. I was dumbfounded when the adult said, "Well, I came in to find out about this, because we (adult Scout leaders) were told that it wouldn't do any good to send articles to The Saint Joe News—they wouldn't get printed."

What really hurt was that the adult giving that wrong information to others is one with whom I had had several conversations with in the past concerning Scouts.

I wonder how many boys and girls in the Scout units think that I will not print their reports. I wonder how many have an opinion of this paper, and of me, that is totally in error because one of their "leaders" in directing them towards honesty, truthfulness, and so on, told a fib—a great big fib.

I think the whole thing started back last summer when we were planning Saint Joe's Centennial. And some problems arose about Scout participation in the event—and I was misquoted and made out to say something which I did not say.

Why go on so long about this? Because readers may wonder where the Scout reports are, Scout leaders may think there is no desire by me to have their reports, and the kids may have an opinion of this paper and of me which is something less than friendly.

No Scout report has ever intentionally been left unpublished. And anyone saying "they won't get printed" is absolutely WRONG!

Thank goodness, there are people like the adult leader who stopped in recently, who want to find out what the score is and go directly to those involved, instead of going on what they have heard.

Jerry Markle and the others heading the Pony League effort are doing a good job in re-establishing the ball diamond back of the Riverdale School as a useful playing field. They're currently putting in a dugout on the first base line. None had been there before.

I see where Butler City Councilman Jim White, a member of the faculty at DeKalb Eastside High School, strongly criticized the Butler City Plan Commission Monday night, saying that the commission is being misled into spending too much money for what it accomplishes. He introduced a motion to prevent Commission Attorney Lee Ellen Ford from receiving payment for services to the commission. White objected because all the other commission members are volunteers who serve without pay. City Attorney Jim Angelone had suggested that Miss Ford be paid with funds expected to be received from a state grant.

Hoo-rah for Mr. White!

I have wondered how long the "welfare city" of Butler would go on in silence before someone made an issue of the trend of city affairs since Miss Ford returned to the community after many years' absence while teaching college classes. Her overbearing and occasionally belligerent attitude (not my opinion but the opinion of several Butlerites who have given me the information) has had most of the city fathers buffaloed. She alone has been responsible for pushing for a swimming pool, pushing for a Butler Park Commission, pushing for a county park commission, pushing for a Butler Plan Commission—and whatever other activity there might be which would get federal and state grants.

It has been no accident that Miss Ford obtained a law degree after she came back home and set out to get tax money or free services for everything in sight—if you ask me. After all, such activities need legal counsel, and Miss Ford just happens to be a lawyer now, convenient to all the activities she has pushed for. It's a nice set-up.

Unfortunately, no one gave Mr. White any support Monday night and his motion died. But he was gratified at the opportunity to express his opinion.

I think it's a shame when a community—not just Butler but any community—let's itself be hoodwinked into asking for or accepting money which it does not really need. Butler is a good city, it has lots of good people who have smarts enough to figure out what should or should not be done without calling in or hiring so-called experts or specialists to tell them what to do.

And if Jimmy Angelone says the job as City Attorney is more than what one person can handle, and if he suggests that Miss Ford be paid for the work she has done as legal counsel, there is a message in the situation as a whole, a message reflected in Mr. White's observation that too much money is being spent for what is being accomplished. That message is in virtually every government program in recent years— a message that zeroes in on the fact that a lot of tax money in the form of grants goes to pay for a lot of paper work and legal work. Miss Ford was reported at the meeting to have devoted much time to the plan commission to codify the city's zoning ordinances, work called "essential" to the progress of the community (an opinion expressed by Rudy Fabik whose income is derived from federal tax money (CETA) as park director). Mr. Fabik also is reported to have said all of the commission's legal work is necessary in order—get this—in order for the city to receive federal grants.

In a recent conversation with a Butler resident who is as loyal and faithful a Butlerite as you can find, I referred to the fact that Butler is becoming "Welfare City." The Butler citizen said, "I'm afraid you're right."

One basic principle is being ignored in most of the government assistance programs now numbering in dozens and involving billions of dollars in tax money. That principal is: with a few exceptions, if a community cannot afford to pay for a program or service through revenue derived within its own confines, it does not need the program.

Those who are leading people into believing they "need" this and that program or service on the basis of using state or federal grants are responsible for the chaotic financial plight we are experiencing at the local community, state and national levels. Because really what is happening is that somebody else must pay the bill for what each grant-seeking unit THINKS it ought to have.

In reality, the basic thought ought to be about NEED. But those, like Miss Ford in Butler, who push for every program in sight are false prophets—simply because they speak so loudly, so coercively, that the average person forgets these "experts" are expert only in spending somebody else's money.

This is a personal attack on Miss Ford, Rudy Fabik, and any others involved in grant programs? No. I am speaking of OFFICIAL activities suggested and/or performed by OFFICIAL representatives. But because they are "official" they are not necessarily right.

Nancy Gerber stopped in last week to ask that members of the class of 1966 at Eastside High School notify her of their addresses. A reunion is planned for Saturday, July 17, at Wild Cherry Park at Saint Joe and she wants to make certain that everyone knows about the 10-year anniversary get-together. Her address is Box 71, Butler.

The last day of school "extra-curricular activities" was reported in the Butler Bulletin as follows last week:

"WHY THIS?

"Last Friday was the day Eastside high school students picked up their report cards.

"Butler police were called to the school by some officials and area residents when some of the students became noisy, used offensive language, started fights, and hot-rodded their cars up and down the streets.

"Police Chief Wiley, who received verbal abuse from some of those taking part in the ruckus, said the situation was just general chaos.

"It was hard for the teachers to believe what they were seeing and hearing from those involved.

"Although no arrests were made, the situation was brought under control.

"It was an ugly day for Eastside High School."

Why is it—whenever the roll of tissue runs out, it's always me—and the cupboard is five feet away.

Historical Society To Meet

The DeKalb County Historical Society will host the Northeastern Indiana Historical Society for a joint meeting Sunday, June 13, at 2 p.m. The meeting will be held in the lower level conference room of People's Savings & Loan in Auburn.

The speaker will be Dr. Steven Harroff from IU-PU at Fort Wayne. He will talk on "Our German Ancestry."

The public is invited.

DeKalb-Noble All-Star B'ketball Games Set

A two-game "all-star" series between graduating seniors of DeKalb and Noble counties has been announced. Sponsors of the event are the Auburn Evening Star and the Kendallville News-Sun, county daily newspapers published by George Witwer.

The games will be played on July 10 at DeKalb Central High School and July 17 at East Noble High School. Proceeds will go to the United Fund in both counties.

The DeKalb County team will be composed of three seniors each from DeKalb Eastside, DeKalb Central and Garrett high schools. The Noble County team will have three seniors each from East Noble, West Noble and Central Noble high schools.

Players will be selected by coaches from the participating schools, plus Bill Fischbach and Dave Kurtz from the sponsoring newspapers. The coaches are Bill Peden of DeKalb Eastside, Al Brown of DeKalb Central, Larry Piety of Garrett, Ric Schaekel of West Noble, Fred Inniger of East Noble and Roger Schnepp of Central Noble.

The all-star teams will be coached by college coaches to be named at a later date.

Advance admission price is $1 per person. Tickets at the door will be $1.50.

Rules for the game provide that all players will be used in each of the two games, with a minimum of five minutes in each of the first three quarters. The last quarter will allow the coaches to substitute as they see fit.

Halftime entertainment includes a one-on-one contest between the counties and a free throw contest for younger players.

The all-star selections will be announced next week.

Heritage Sunday Service June 27

"Bicentennial Heritage Sunday" will be observed in Spencerville June 27 with a worship service open to the public. It will begin at 9 a.m.

Plans call for an outdoor service on the lawn between the Lutheran and United Methodist churches. In case of inclement weather, the service will be held in St. Peter Lutheran Church.

In addition to the regular message, it is planned to have a combined choir, under the direction of Jay Blauser, along with special music provided by the "Burden Lifters."

A special invitation is extended to former members and friends of the community to attend the special service.

The CETA Ripoff - or - How To Corrupt Independence

Only in the past year or so has the public become aware of a program called "CETA" (Comprehensive Employment Training Act, which has also been called Comprehensive Employment AND Training Act). The purpose of that legislation, as I understood it at first, was to assist economically deprived and minority groups. However, it has been expanded to cover an area far beyond the economically deprived and those considered "minorities." Just as Social Security has been expanded into a vast welfare system now economically endangered, CETA has expanded, quietly and without fanfare. It is so entrenched in our welfare system today that the lack of public knowledge of what it is and how big it is represents, to my way of thinking, a "sneak attack" on the moral fiber of this nation. While there undoubtedly are those who have benefitted legitimately from CETA, there are many others who are living off federal tax money who are neither economically deprived nor members of a minority. And the corrupting influence of the program reaches right down into every small community, including ours. It is non-political in that both Democrats and Republicans are benefitting from the "gravy train." It IS political in that it is a program fostered by Democrats in a Democrat-controlled Congress.

As in most government aid programs, the income "plums" in such programs are picked off in the administration of the program. Regional directors, regional supervisors, area representatives—or whatever their title may be—in these programs are NOT filled by economically deprived or minority group members; they are filled by those representing, in most instances, family incomes far from any poverty level. Right now, Fort Wayne is getting a little hell for abuse of the CETA program under former mayor Ivan Lebamoff. The federal reprimand is because of the use of CETA funds for youth from families with an annual income of $15,000 or more. Under the program, that's supposedly a "no-no."

But let's look here at home. In DeKalb County the administration of the program is not by low income families. The benefits are not for low income families. CETA paid for Riverdale's summer recreation instructors last summer. It is paying for this summer's program, not only at Saint Joe but also at Spencerville. Please keep in mind that there is nothing personal about my criticism; I'm not trying to "get" anybody or embarrass them. BUT—if an individual has guts enough to accept my tax money for a summer job and they are hardly to be classified as "economically deprived" or "minority," then I have guts enough to say, hey, whoa—wait a minute—that's public tax money being handed out to people who get the idea they have it coming. Also keep in mind that for every dollar paid out to these individual beneficiaries, it takes two dollars to administer that dollar.

A few weeks ago, the executive director of the Auburn Chamber of Commerce announced his resignation, to accept a smiliar post in Michigan. He is a former coach at DeKalb Central High School. He stated that the Auburn community "needed" an executive director to coordinate activities in that community.

But what he didn't say was that he resigned because he had been receiving his income from CETA and that the particular "Title" of the program under which he was paid would cease as of July 1. Auburn business and industry needs a handout like that? You gotta be kidding! (Note: a new country club building is now under construction at Auburn.)

You've read a lot about the senior citizen nutrition program. You've heard about those who have volunteered their services to assist in the program. These volunteers are the elderly themselves; they have time to help. Their willingness to help is a good thing.

But what you don't hear about is that the regional supervisors or directors or the local supervisors or directors or planners are paid by CETA. And if you multiply this community by whatever number of other communities there are with similar programs—and there are THOUSANDS—you come up with a lot of people getting paid for what is, in the strictest sense, only part-time work. And when you are using tax money, the "strictest sense" ought to be used to keep the expenditure of tax dollars at a minimum.

Consider this. A recent news article in a Fort Wayne daily pointed out that some 400 senior citizens were being fed each day through the senior citizen nutrition program. 400 senior citizens—that's for the entire county. Fort Wayne ALONE has some 180,000 residents. So, to give the benefit of the doubt about statistics, if we say the 400 come from Fort Wayne alone (which they don't), we come up with this—thousands of dollars are being paid to administrators of the senior citizen nutrition program in Fort Wayne in a program affecting ONLY TWO-TENTHS OF ONE PERCENT of the population. That's efficiency? That's effectively reaching the needy? Not in my book it is. In my book, it's deception, graft and corruption.

Consider this. In DeKalb County, the senior citizen nutrition program is used by 30 or 40 persons. Those involved in administering the program are reportedly trying to figure out how to get more senior seniors to partipate. I wonder if they, or any others in any other community, ever give any thought to the idea that maybe most senior citizens don't NEED OR WANT the program. DeKalb County is a well-blessed area. Why do we insist on trying to make dependents of those who are capable of independence? Why do we spend thousands of dollars for CETA salaries and Council On Aging salaries when 40 people out of over 30,000 show up for lunch? Percentagewise, that's JUST A LITTLE OVER ONE-TENTH OF ONE PERCENT.

Senator Vance Hartke made a statement during the primary campaign indicating his support of the CETA program. That's enough to convince me of his strong desire for votes, regardless of cost to the taxpayer. Mr. Hartke is typical of those who appeal to the emotions by playing up a mole hill to the size of a mountain. Creating jobs is the primary pitch of Mr. Hartke and many of his Democrat colleagues. They don't exercise judgment on the total overall long-range effect of such a program as CETA. They emphasize only the present—and the present includes votes.

The sad part is, at the same time that Senator Hartke said he would support CETA if he is re-elected, he also stated that such programs DON'T REALLY SOLVE ANY PROBLEMS. In other words, the most important factor is mentioned only as an after-thought.

Is it any wonder we have had financial problems, employment problems, welfare problems? With a Democrat-controlled Congress having fostered so many social welfare and some just plain giveaway programs through 40 of the last 44 years, American voters ought to see the light one of these days. And that light shows one disappointing result—the appeal of aid and assistance programs to this or that group, time after time, year after year, has made beggars of many citizens. Those who are now campaigning on the basis of seeking a 3% unemployment level are selling Americans a bill of goods. The only way government can affect unemployment is to TELL people what they are to do and where and when. Unfortunately, many Americans are willing to become such slaves if the pay and fringe benefits are big enough. They don't care where the money comes from; they are just concerned about "getting."

(Note: the money comes primarily from private business, private industry, private taxpayers.)

—Back to CETA, a welfare program. The Butler street department is paid by CETA except for supervision. The Butler Park Department is funded through CETA. The Garrett dog catcher (full time dog catcher!) is paid by CETA. Our summer recreation personnel are paid by CETA. The list goes on and on. And it all came into being by means of a coverup that has Watergate beat all to pieces. Our Congress created a program. The program required an agency. The agency makes its own rules. In the whole process, you and I have no knowledge of what is happening. Why doesn't President Ford do something about it? Are you kidding? He catches hell now for all the vetoes he has exercised. Think what a stink there would be if he vetoed CETA in some way—if that's possible. You'd have the Humphreys and the Bayhs and the Hartkes and the Roushes and the McGoverns and the Kennedys screaming bloody murder—and the public would listen to—whom? The President? Not on your life. The public would be influenced—as it has been for years—by the howl of protest coming from those who emphasize alleged "injustices" or "hurt" or "unsympathetic actions" in such a cutback.

It is heartening to note that more Democrats are in recent months pointing out the financial irresponsibility of many federal programs. They are joining those in the ranks of the Republican party who have consistently opposed expanding welfare programs. Unfortunately, their voices and numbers are not sufficient yet to overcome the continuing majority who appeal to your and my emotions and to sentimentality to get programs underway to help the "deprived." It has been a wonder to me in recent years that, while speaking of how much Americans have gained in material wealth and "the highest standard of living ever," it is the Democrat party which has emphasized the negative in its legislative efforts. If you believe Senator Hartke, for example, you are under the impression that 22.4 million senior citizens are virtually without identity in today's society (that's what he said in a recent mailing to his constituents, paid for by—the taxpayer under the Congressional franking privilege.)

However—I look around me in bewilderment. The elderly ignored? Not taken care of? Destitute? Needing someone to feed them? To pay their doctor bills? To pay their medicine bills? To pay their hospital bills? —when at the same time I see, right here at home, THE MAJORITY of the elderly buying a new car every couple of years, going to Florida every winter or enjoying the pleasure of travel when they so desire. No, I am not saying that ALL the elderly are that well off. I do say that the MAJORITY of the elderly "has it made." They ought to after, years of working and accumulating material wealth. They deserve to be treated like independent citizens, not as deprived or needy. And we all deserve to keep our accumulated wealth to care for ourselves, instead of being taxed heavily to pay government workers full time salaries to tell us what we ought to do, what we need, and so on.

What Americans ought to be considering—but their thoughts are interrupted by statements about the "needs" of this or that group—what Americans ought to be asking is: can we afford these programs AS THEY ARE NOW BEING ADMINISTERED? With our annual federal budget deficits now totaling what our TOTAL budget was not too many years ago, with inflation eating away at the purchasing power of our dollar bill more and more each day, financial responsibility means cutting back on spending, especially at the federal and state level. And that means RAISING REASONABLE QUESTIONS ABOUT THE WISDOM OF INSTITUTING SUCH PROGRAMS AS "CETA" WHICH HAS SUCH FAR-REACHING IMPLICATIONS AS TO PUT MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES ON THE GOVERNMENT PAYROLL UNDER THE GUISE OF "ASSISTANCE TO THE ECONOMICALLY DEPRIVED AND MINORITY GROUPS."

I understand there is a meeting Monday night at Auburn about CETA. BUT—it's not about "is the program worth it?" The reason for the meeting is to let organizations tell CETA workers how the latter can do MORE in the community. Since the meeting was not announced to all news media, since the public, therefore, knows about the meeting only by chance, I must classify the effort as typical of the manner in which government employees perpetuate their jobs and expand their influence. It is the typical "sneaky way" of bureaucracy and it is corrupting some basically good people.

Poet's Corner

—Loren Baker King, Saint Joe (copyright 1976)

a true story (more or less)

If, along the river Nile, you saw a sleeping crocodile,

of such proportions that its size
was fourteen feet between the eyes; and from the tip of tail to snout was ten times that — or thereabout;
indeed, so long that when it yawned,
you saw tomorrow (and beyond);

it's weight so great that, as it slept,
it slowly sank to such a depth that nothing more remained exposed than sleepy eyes and nubby nose;

(Some say its dreadful snoring sound once circled forty times around the pyramids of royal tombs, then spent a week in old Khartoum before it finally came to rest, far to the north — in Budapest!)

would you awaken it and smile, and say, "Hello! Let's chat awhile."?

And if it said, "How-do-you-do!
Come closer and I'll chat with you.", would you go closer?

Would you try?

Remember, crocodiles are sly:
And it might eat you — by-and-by!!

Farm Market A Possibility

A "farmers' market" for Auburn may become a reality on a trial basis.

The city administration has before it a proposal for a five-week trial run beginning July 15. The market would be located on Cedar Street in the block north of Seventh Street. It would operate for five consecutive Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Only produce grown in DeKalb County and sold by the growers could be offered for sale at the market, except for Auburn retail grocers who could sell any produce normally sold in their stores if they wish.

The Auburn Downtown Merchants Association would be in charge of the market. The city has asked that the group post a $500 bond for possible damage to city property and a release to remove the city from any liability for accidents.

A formal vote on the proposal is to be taken next Tuesday by the Auburn City Council.

Soft On Pot

(A health message from the American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana)

More people are taking a softer stand on pot smoking these days. Just when evidence of harmful effects is on the rise.

According to a recent Harris Poll, two-thirds of Americans are still opposed to legalizing the sale or use of marijuana. But almost half the people interviewed believe possessing small amounts of pot should not be a criminal offense.

Attitudes on the subject have undergone a complete reversal in seven years. In 1969, 73 percent saw pot smoking as "very serious" compared to 53 percent who felt the same about heavy smoking. Today, 58 percent view pot smoking as very serious, while 71 percent take a grave view of heavy drinking. A total flip-flop.

As attitudes shift in one direction, research evidence evolves in another. Recent studies have shown that marijuana slows down the action of scavenger cells in the lungs that gobble up germs. Now new evidence indicates that heavy pot smoking may directly damage the lungs themselves.

Dr. Donald Tashkin of UCLA's School of Medicine reported to the American Lung Association of his study of the effects on healthy subjects who smoked five reefers a day. After ten weeks, drastic changes in lung function were measured. The time it took to exhale was longer. The ability of oxygen and other gases to pass into the bloodstream was decreased. The airways in the lungs narrowed.

The lungs improved one month after the experiment ended. So the damage—of this amount of smoking, at least—appears reversible.

Inhaling hot smoke of any kind into the lungs has its hazards. To find out the disastrous effects of another kind of smoking—tobacco smoking—on the lungs, contact the American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana, 802 West Wayne Street, Fort Wayne 46808.
It's a matter of life and breath.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Because a question came up this week about donations for the local park by groups using it and the pavilion for reunions and other gatherings, it would be best to turn such donations in directly to Emma Frank, clerk-treasurer.

I get some vibrations that some may think I absconded with the funds the past couple of years when the donations were left at the News Office. Unfortunately, the town's annual report last January did not show any park-donation receipts as such, though such receipts for 1974 and 1975 were turned over to the clerk. The 1973 annual report did show park donation receipts.

So—to clear the air and remove any doubts about whether or not the money gets into the town coffers, park donations should be given directly to Emma Frank.

One of the best examples to back my last-week's concern over making our senior citizens out to be incapable of self-care as far as social activities is concerned is the Fifty-Plus Club whose meetings are reported in these columns regularly, thanks to Galen Markle who prepares the articles.

Perhaps just one monthly meeting doesn't satisfy some of our government social planners but it seems to suffice for those in the community who attend the potluck meetings. If once a month isn't enough, they would or will change it. The important thing is—they're doing it THEIR way and it isn't costing the taxpayer a cent!

This is another example of what we DO have in this little community called Riverdale to show that people CAN provide for much of their need at the local level—and at the least cost. And I'll keep harping that it's independence, not government workers, that brings the biggest benefit to the most people at the lowest cost. It also brings a feeling of pride, a feeling too many Americans have forgotten about, when a useful purpose has been accomplished on the initiative of private citizens of any age.

'Batgirl Lovelies' Get National Recognition

DeKalb Eastside baseball's "batgirl lovelies" received national recognition recently in the 1976 All-American Bat Girl Contest sponsored by Hillerich and Bradley Company and Collegiate Baseball newspaper.

Seniors Bernadette Rubalcaba, Diane Peden and Dawn Billings and freshman Jody Phillips of Eastside were fourth of 14 high schools on the honorable mention list.

First place collegiate honors went to East Carolina University at Greenville, North Carolina. Junior college winner was Yuba College of Marysville, California.

High school winner was North Central of Indianapolis, Indiana.

Nominations were considered from every state with information concerning the girls' usefulness to their baseball teams.

The bat girls kept umpires supplied with balls, kept bats in order, took jackets to pitchers on base, gathered helmets, did statistics, helped with announcing on the public address system, took up donations to support high school baseball, kept the scoreboard—"along with adding beauty to the game," as some "dirty old man" on the coaching staff pointed out in the news release from Eastside!

The girls received national recognition in Collegiate Baseball Newspaper.

Letters to the Editor

6-14-76

Ted—

Just read your editorial on CETA and have to thank you for continuing to be vocal about waste in government. I agree on CETA.

While I don't always agree with what you say, I am happy that you always have the courage to say it aloud. Too many of us don't.

Thanx,

Heritage Sunday Service June 27

"Bicentennial Heritage Sunday" will be observed in Spencerville June 27 with a worship service open to the public. It will begin at 9 a.m.

Plans call for an outdoor service on the lawn between the Lutheran and United Methodist churches. In case of inclement weather, the service will be held in St. Peter Lutheran Church.

In addition to the regular message, it is planned to have a combined choir, under the direction of Jay Blauser, along with special music provided by the "Burden Lifters."

A special invitation is extended to former members and friends of the community to attend the special service.

Lutheran VBS

—from Betty Longardner

I would like to thank the women who gave cookies and koolade to St. Mark Lutheran Vacation Bible School and to Delores Emenhiser for seeing that the goodies were at the church. Thanks to Mary Carpenter, Betty Rinard, Pam Rinard and Ida Gick for serving the goodies. My thanks to Spencerville-St. Joe Boy Scout Troop 172 for the games and to the men and women who took time to give devotions.

I wish to thank Penny Sechler, Betty Bevington, Mary Lou Snyder, Marcia Sible and Nancy Lake, five great teachers, and their wonderful helpers.

A special thanks to Mrs. Shaw and Mark Bartell.

Thanks to those who prayed and encouraged me through Vacation Bible School.

(During the two-week school, average daily attendance was over 50, plus the teachers and helpers.)

Class Of '43

—Mary Ellen Beaty, reporter

Fifteen members and their families, from the class of 1943 of Saint Joe High School, met at Wild Cherry Park June 13 for their 33rd year reunion.

Those present to enjoy many school day memories and a delicious noon carryin dinner were MM Roscoe Moore of Brooklyn, Wisconsin; MM Judd Keeler of Kendallville; MM Harold Keller of Payne, Ohio; MM Loren Inlow and son of Hicksville; MM Roger Hadley of Woodburn; MM Bob Wappes of Albion; MM Herb Dillander and family of Fort Wayne; MM Ralph Hose of Butler; MM Bob Ridgway and MM Hubert Bleeks of Auburn; MM Harry Strong, MM Pete Akey and family, MM Ivan Brown and Brad, MM Mike Beaty and family of Saint Joe; Mrs. Eugene Baker and twins of Waterloo. Frank Sechler was an afternoon visitor, making a total of 55 present.

Members of the class unable to attend were Walter Fetters, Eugene McBride, Eugene Baker, Harold Wilmot, Estella Deventer, Frances McMillian and Pat Euton.

The next reunion is planned for the second Sunday in June of 1978.

Newly-elected officers for the next get-together are: Mike Beaty, president; Judd Keeler, vice-president; Gladys Akey, secretary-treasurer.

Gifts of Sechlers pickles were given to the class members.

Renea Chappell Douglas, 13, daughter of MM Wayne Douglas of west of Spencerville, was recently named DeKalb County 4H Horse & Pony Queen. A freshman at DeKalb Eastside High School, Renea is shown above on Frosty Easter Son, 5-year-old registered Appaloosa. Renea is the youngest county queen ever chosen.

To add to her laurels, the peppery young miss won third runnerup at LaGrange last weekend, competing in a field of 13 entries from the tri-state area.

Renea plans to enter more events in the future with her mount.

Pony Leaguers Off To Good Start

The local Pony League team has gotten off to a good start. In five games thus far, the team was won four, lost none and tied one.

On June 4 they smothered Butler at Butler 31-4. On June 8 at Saint Joe, they again downed Butler, 15-5. The June 10 game against Hamilton here ended in a 17-16 win. Garrett was the fourth victim June 12, the locals winning 9-7 at Garrett.

Monday's game this week at Kendallville was called at the end of six innings due to darkness with the score tied 12-12.

Kendallvile was set to face the locals Wednesday of this week at Saint Joe.

The schedule includes:

Saturday, June 19—Butler at Saint Joe 4:00 p.m.

Monday, June 21—Kendallville at Saint Joe 5:30 p.m.

Wednesday, June 23—Defiance, Ohio, at Saint Joe 4:30.

Friday, June 25—Garrett at Saint Joe 6:00.

Tuesday, June 29—Garrett at Garrett 6:00.

Coaches are Jerry Markle, Jon Johnson, Kent Rosenbury, Jim Rosenbury and Ron Walter.

Sponsor is Freeman Busche, Jr.

Players include (number and player's name):

1 Jeff Edgar, 2 Mark Smith, 3 Troy Rayle, 4 Dave Carper, 5 Dave Work, 6 Roger Voirol, 7 Lonny Emenhiser, 8 Ron Eichel, 9 Rick Keener, 10 Kent Busche, 11 Dave Griggs, 12 Jon Hollabaugh, 13 Frank Emerson, 14 Ed Yoder, 15 Tom Gettys.

FFA Test Plot Can Be Seen

Mike Cleveland, vocational ag director at DeKalb Eastside High School, suggests that if you happen by the T-road of county roads 71 and 30, take a look at corn growing on the south side of the road. This is the site of Eastside FFA test plots.

The plot is provided through the cooperation of local corn dealers, fertilizer companies, Don Mayer and the FFA alumni association.

Seed corn was made available by Farm Bureau Coop, Waterloo; Coop, Funks, Northrup King; Paul King, Pride; Sohygro Farm Chemicals, Sohygro; Don Hook, DeKalb; Edgerton Landmark, Landmark; Al Pettigrews, Pettigrew Hybrid; Charley Countryman, Supercross; Loren King, Pioneer; Neal Prentice, Moew Hybrid; Farmer Ag Supplies; Seedkem; and Vic Timmerman donated Jacques from his personal supply.

Other donations were by Arthur Fenn, Monsanto field representative, supplying five gallons of Lasso; Don Mayer donating the use of the land; and Jim Provines, Vic Timmerman, Ralph Myers and Les Nelson donating machinery.

Fertilizers and other chemicals were supplied by Rainbow Farm Center and Walter's Farm Service.

Other activities involved with the test plot include a field day upon harvest of the corn to judge best yields. Also planned is an old-fashioned corn-husking contest in commemoration of the nation's bicentennial. Dates and rules will be announced at a later date.

Published weekly except two weeks in August at Saint Joe, Indiana 46785.

Where Are Those Voices? or - Democrat Means Debt

As the revelations continue to come out about the sex scandal in Washington, I can't help but wonder where Shirley Chisholm is. She was an outspoken member of the House Committee which held hearings on the impeachment of Richard Nixon. Along with other voices taking advantage of the situation by referring to the corrupt Republican Administration, Miss Chisholm made impassioned statements at the public hearings about the destruction of human liberties supposedly represented by the Watergate coverup.

I haven't seen a word about her comments concerning the Congressional sex scandal. I wonder why? I have not heard of her ever criticizing Mr. Hays because of his dictatorial methods, methods now openly referred to by the reporters covering the Hays sex scandal. If a Congressman browbeats colleagues and others about him to get his way, isn't that infringement of individual liberties?

Miss Chisholm, where ARE you???

Now that another Congressman has been "nailed" by an office cutie, where are the loud voices of protest which we heard a couple of years ago during the Watergate coverup scandal? There MUST be a reason. I hope the general public is listening and watching—and putting two and two together—or should I say one and one?

Misuse of public tax money is a violation of governmental ethics, if not a crime. To be fair, the same voices heard a couple of years ago should be now hollering "Impeach! Impeach!"—if a Congressman can be impeached. But why the silence? Although those in Washington covering the situation for the news media are reporting the story as it develops, I don't detect the enthusiasm so evident when Richard Nixon had the noose placed around his neck. The Walter Cronkites, the Eric Sevareids, the Roger Mudds and others are rather politely reporting the sex scandal. Why? When Representative Wilbur Mills had his "round" with a stripper, was he kicked out? Did anyone go after his scalp? No. Though he lost a chairmanship, he was not removed from office. Now with Mr. Hays on the spot because of girl trouble, is anyone after his scalp? Is anyone really FORCEFULLY pushing for Hays' resignation? Not that I have noticed. Why not?

When Mr. Hays overdosed on sleeping pills, did you note that his doctor said the overdose was "accidental"? The patient is comatose for something like 18 hours—and the doctor calls it an accident? Talk about "coverups"!

Seemingly unrelated—but I'll tie it in later— is the fact that much dissatisfaction has been expressed about the abuse of power in our government, and the concentration of power in a comparatively few individuals. Much of the public outrage over Watergate was induced by the suggestion of excessive Presidential powers. The solution—to some—was removal of the President. The mob was unfuriated by an "imperialistic monarch"—as Richard Nixon was labeled—and the mob got its pound of flesh—egged on by a few in whom power was and still is concentrated—I refer to the news reporters and news "manipulators" in the TV world especially, where there are only three major networks. (Note that the publicity they give to breaking up the "oil monopoly" is strong—yet there are many more oil companies than TV networks!)

Another concentration of power in but a few hands, however, will come to an end in November. Some five or six of the Congressional powers—aged Congressional powers—are not going to seek office. They are in their 70's and 80's. They are retiring.

Now—what ties this all together, you ask. It is one basic point, an actual fact, but the public seems unwilling to accept that fact, to let it influence their thinking.

What is that fact? Simply this—ALL OF THE CONGRESSMEN INVOLVED THUS FAR IN THE SEX SCANDALS ARE DEMOCRATS. ALL OF THE OLDEST POWERS IN CONGRESS ARE DEMOCRATS. True—there may be Republicans involved before long, if the news "vultures" in Washington follow their past prejudiced ways. But for the present, it is the Democrat Party which is totally involved by the revelations thus far.

But, you know, I'll bet they come out smelling like a rose. There's something about a Democrat that just overwhelms the public. A Democrat can do no wrong, it seems.

The public opinion polls occasionally ask, "Whom do you think can most effectively cope with national problems? Whom do you think represents the average citizen most effectively—Republicans or Democrats?" The answers are always a majority for the Democrats. Yet, it has been a Democrat-controlled Congress which has created vast social and welfare programs which have not accomplished much of permanent and certain benefit; they have, however, added tremendously to the tax burden. Democrat Presidents have gotten this country into wars, and Republican Presidents have had the task of getting us out. Yet, the public says it thinks Democrats represent its interests better than Republicans!

Americans have had more material wealth put in their laps in the past 20 years than ever before. Yet Republicans are campaigned against on the basis of "they'll bring a depression, they'll help you lose your job," and so on. And despite all of the material wealth, whether it is Democrats or Republicans who have helped get it, WE'RE STILL NOT HAPPY. But Democrats continue to use the promise of more jobs, more income, more pensions, more benefits of all kinds—and the American public swallows that line, hook and sinker.

Take note that there are no big promises from either Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan in their campaigning for the GOP nomination. I think it's terrible that they have taken pot shots on occasion at one another in the campaign—an unnecessary tactic, in my opinion, because they have plenty of ammunition to draw from concerning Democrat failures, Democrat deceptions, Democrat coverups. Their best selling point is the fact that Republicans generally have always waited to let economic and social problems work themselves out—let the people govern themselves—rather than injecting government into those matters. Our national debt now stands at $600 billion—SIX HUNDRED BILLION DOLLARS—the results primarily of Democrat-inspired economic and social "recovery" programs. An appropriate campaign slogan is, "Democrat Means Debt."

It will be interesting to see how the sex scandal matter resolves itself. If Americans have a low opinion of the Congress—that low opinion usually INFERRED to be the result of Watergate and the Republican Party—to what depths will that opinion now fall, with the Democrat Party—the one which "best represents the public interest"—now riddled by a spreading sex scandal.

Did I hear someone say something not too long ago about double standards????

O Shirley Chisholm—where ARE you???

P.S. Please note that I was kind enough not to even mention the name "Kennedy" in relation to sex or scandal.

a proper season

I think winter's very nice;
Except, of course, for snow and ice.
And chilling winds that drive a rain in frozen droplets 'gainst the panes of windows, frosted white within.

But, were it not for winter's ways,
there'd be no spring or summer days;
And I should not reminded be of Nature's awesome majesty.

Nursery School Is Now Certified

The Grabill Missionary Church announces that its nursery school has been awarded the status of a certified nursery school. To receive this certification, the nursery school must maintain qualifications required by the state. These include: clean, modern facilities; ample play area both indoors and outdoors; toys and equipment that are educational, challenging and not available in most homes; a pre-kindergarten readiness curriculum; and a trained experienced faculty. The Grabill Missionary Nursery School is one of the few schools in Allen County to achieve this status.

There are still a few openings available for the fall term. For more information, call 627-3678 or 627-3174.

Vicki Arnold is the director of the school. Now residing on Bay View Boulevard at Grabill, she is the former Vicki Hughes of Butler.

Summer Driver School In Session

Summer school driver education is in full swing at DeKalb Eastside High School with 140 students enrolled in the classes.

Instructors include Rex Bolinger, John Fallis, William Peden and Leon Strange.

Students attend classes from 8:30 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. daily for three weeks. Each student receives six hours of instruction behind the wheel and 12 hours of observation in the car while other students are driving. The local high school is one of the few in northern Indiana operating a driver training program without charge to the students.

The driving and observation time, plus 30 hours of classroom instruction and 25 hours of supervised study, gives the student one high school credit upon successful completion of the course.

Automobiles used for driver education are provided by Maxton Motors of Butler at no charge. Maxton's has provided cars since at least 1951.

Other drivers are asked to be considerate of any delays possibly caused by students as they learn driving skills. The cars are identified by signs indicating a student trainee is at the wheel.

Grassroots Immorality -or- It CAN Happen Here

It may not get any farther than having been recorded in the minutes. However, a significant point was made at Monday's school board meeting which ought to be noted. It indicates that others besides outspoken smalltown newspaper editors are concerned about the abuses in the use of tax money to "assist" those who don't need assistance. The assistance may be "legal." But it's also immoral.

A paragraph from the board minutes reads:

School Board Member Vaughn Billings reported to his fellow School Board Members that 14 or more non-certificated employees of the school corporation have been and are drawing unemployment compensation both during the school year while under contract and during the summer while technically not under contract. Mr. Billings simply pointed out that he was concerned and that he wanted his fellow School Board Members to know what was going on. He further pointed out that his research had shown that drawing unemployment compensation between the first day of an existing contract and the last day of that contract probably was illegal and should not take place. He also pointed out that his research indicated that people could and probably would continue to draw unemployment compensation during summer months following a nine month contract.

The discrepancy between my saying these actions are "legal" and Mr. Billings' saying they are probably "illegal" lies not in a difference of opinion or fact but rather in the matter of whether or not the school employees have given honest answers when applying for unemployment compensation.

In other instances of discussion about unemployment compensation in recent months (not related to the school situation), one glaring misconception has been evident in remarks made to me about the source of unemployment compensation funds. One individual said, "I've been paying into it; I ought to get some benefits."

That individual was totally wrong. EMPLOYEES DO NOT CONTRIBUTE TO THE UNEMPLOYMENT FUND. IT IS AN EMPLOYER-PAID TAX. Employers derive their income from the public. Therefore, the public has a right to protest abuses of the program, to challenge our lawmakers who have permitted loopholes in the law to give the morally unqualified an opportunity to receive public tax money.

One of the frustrating things about legal affairs is that most of the time, a person is advised "get a lawyer." Supposedly, legal training gives greater knowledge of proper approaches, proper wording, proper administration. However, it is a fact that, while the majority of our legislators (state and national) are lawyers, they goof in some very significant situations. Loopholes in any legislation, state or national, are the fault of lawyers.

(Note: there may seem to be a contradiction here, because the school board is relying upon the advice of a lawyer in its contract deliberations. However, it should be noted that Mr. H. Charles Winans is advising the board not on what HE thinks the law should be, but rather on what the law IS, as written by lawyer-legislators.)

For this reason, your protest about, for instance, the abuse of unemployment compensation funds ought to be directed toward your state representatives and senators and your U.S. district representatives and U.S. senators. In this instance, the school board and the school superintendent can't do anything about the situation brought out by Mr. Billings, simply because the matter is not within their powers to control—even if they know about such abuses.

But—if you holler about it to the school board, perhaps they can convey the message to the powers that be that some laws are totally unfair, despite the good intent the laws were based on.

A "thank you" goes to Mr. Billings for having the courage to bring the matter out in the open. Our local school board is showing aggressiveness which is a welcome sign, because it is in the interests of the taxpayers that their aggressiveness has been pointed.

The board also needs support in the current negotiations with teachers on a new contract. The "impasse" declared by the teachers this week is the same old tactic used in years past in dozens of school districts to infer lack of cooperation from school boards in negotiations. What our board has offered teachers is what the district can afford. Binding arbitration, which the teachers demand, is an open door to liability suits—and the taxpayer foots the bill.

My suggestion is: call the superintendent, call the board members, call Mr. Billings, and tell them you back them 100% in their efforts to hold the line on the cost of education.

—And concerning the unemployment compensation matter researched by Mr. Billings with the assistance of Superintendent Kenneth Cole, it is disappointing that we are talking about our own people, our own local residents. It shows that the feeling: "We don't have abuse of welfare in our nice little community" is a falsehood. And the matter brings to mind my closing words two weeks ago in commenting about CETA:

". . . . . It is the typical 'sneaky way' of bureaucracy AND IT IS CORRUPTING SOME BASICALLY GOOD PEOPLE."

The Saint Joe News

Established Saturday, March 7, 1883, as free paper—Second class subscription Jan. 28, 1887 June 24, 1976 VOL. 94—26

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

You will recall that I mentioned here recently that Nancy Gerber was sending addresses of the class of 1966 for a reunion in July at Wild Cherry Park. Well, she called the other day and said the date has been reset for August 21 and it will be a noon potluck at Maxton Park in Butler.

Thanks to Eddie Scott of Newville, some folks who left their grass trimmers at the cemetery this week got them back. Eddie found them at the cemetery and they were turned in at the New Office.

For some reason, The News didn't receive any advance publicity about the re-dedication service at St. Peter Lutheran Church last Sunday. However, an article did appear in the Auburn Evening Star with the following information:

The church is believed by its members to be the home of the oldest Lutheran congregation in the county, founded in 1849. The church building was finished in 1889, and has been newly painted and redecorated.

The church was organized in October, 1849, in the home of William Downs in Concord Township. (Editor' note: Concord Township was then a full township, later split into Concord and Spencer townships.) The church received its name about two years later.

In 1854, plans were made to erect the first church building, which was a 35-by-55 ft. structure. Ground was not broken until 1856 and it was fall of 1858 before the building was finished at a cost of about $1,600. In 1868 the parsonage was purchased.

The fast growth of the community brought a need for a larger church by 1886. A cornerstone was laid in 1887 and the large brick building was not finished until 23 months later in 1889. Its cost was $9,-600. A new brick parsonage was added in 1891 for only $1,-700.

The near-impossible task of excavating under the church to add a furnace and Sunday school rooms was accomplished in 1917. A new cement basement, complete with a kitchen, was added. In 1938, the parsonage was modernized and redecorated.

Another renovation and remodeling of the sanctuary began in 1948, and was completed in time for the church's 100th anniversary in October 1949. Another parsonage remodeling took place in 1958 and more church repairs were completed in 1959.

The parsonage was finally razed in 1975, and St. Peter now shares a newer parsonage with St. Mark's church of St. Joe.

Heritage Sunday Service June 27

The Burden Lifters quartet, members of North Leo Mennonite Church, will be an attraction with their presentation of Gospel in Song at the Bicentennial Heritage Sunday service June 27, 1976, beginning at 9:00 A. M., planned by the Lutheran and Methodist churches in Spencerville. Weather permitting, the entire service will be held on the lawn between the two churches. The Lutheran Church will be the Worship center should unfavorable weather conditions develop.

The Burden Lifters have been singing together for five years and have traveled throughout Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Florida, Kansas and Canada with their musical presentations. They have made three albums and are heard on Sunday morning on a local weekly radio broadcast on WIFF. The quartet personnel are: Kate Lederman, soprano; Cornell Lederman, tenor; Oleta Bollman alto; and Ken Bollman, bass.

Jay Blauser will be directing a combined community choir. The Rev. Terry Rhine of the Methodist Church and Rev. Wilbur Miller, beginning his pastorate with the Lutheran Church, will share the message presentation.

Masonic members are invited to attend in observance of St. John the Baptist Sunday.

Former members and friends will find a cordial welcome at this open to the public community function and will want to plan to stay for a public carry-in dinner at noon at the Spencerville Community Building where afternoon entertainment will be provided and homemade ice cream will be made.

Riverdale Pony League Squad

Queen Contest

The public is invited to attend the DeKalb Senior Citizen Queen Contest to be held Sunday, June 27, at 6:30 p.m. The contest will be held at the Garrett United Methodist Church at the corner of Houston and Cowen streets, one block west of the first traffic light to the south of the railroad tracks in downtown Garrett.

A reception will be held first in the church lounge. Music will be furnished by Anna Scheurich, organist, John Wagner, saxophone, and John Gordon, vocalist.

Judges include Alice Bird, 1974 State Senior Citizen Queen of Fort Wayne; Deputy Sheriff Larry Thrush of Garrett; and Al Pyle, a Kendallville barber-religious counselor.

The County Council On Aging Contest committee includes Anna Scheurich of Garrett, chairman; Paula Slentz, Waterloo; and Diane White, Butler, aided by Council Head Sandy Mafera of Auburn.

Rev. Neal is in charge of refreshments. Mr. Van Pelt is the contest emcee.

Garrett Greenhouse and Flower Shop will present a bouquet to the queen.

The winner will compete in the area contest July 20 at Fort Wayne.

Crudeness Not A Virtue

A current movie about a Little League baseball team has been mentioned to me twice in recent weeks. One comment came from a friend in the community; the other from the parents of one of our grandsons.

While the comments generally were "it was a good picture" (it apparently has a moral to it, represented by a bunch of virtual juvenile delinquents inclined toward self interests who ultimately work as a team and find success), just as much was said about the language in the picture. Within ten minutes, enough profanity, vulgarity, and maybe obscenity were heard as to embarrass the parents of our grandson. They had no idea what to expect when they took their six-year-old to see the movie.

I'm glad the story had a moral to it, that the idea of unselfishness was depicted as a virtue. I'm not glad, however, that such a film had to be presented with the kind of language used. No—I'm not saying that such language ISN'T used in some places by little kids. I'm saying that kids find out soon enough that such things as vulgarity and obscenity exist in the use of the English language. I'm saying that the story could have been told just as effectively WITHOUT the "that's the way it really is" approach so profuse in the literary world today. I'm saying that a six-year-old's hearing such language makes such vulgarity and obscenity an ACCEPTABLE part of living, even though he may have been told by his parents it isn't. Young minds are impressionable. You can see it in our own Little League activities. If a coach is argumentative with umpires, his players become argumentative. And that is where the idea that "that's the way it is so tell it the way it is" is so wrong. We're supposed to be improving ourselves each day—and our children—not going along unperturbed by the way it "really is." We're supposed to be lifting ourselves and others up out of the mire of vulgarity and obscenity, not becoming part of it.

I would like to see a movie depicting the uplifting of a group of boys from selfishness to teamwork. There is such a movie, I am told. But I have no desire whatsoever to see it or take any boy of any age to see it. I'm afraid I have a strong suspicion that many who see that movie are prompted more by the desire to see if the language is THAT bad, rather than to see a movie with a moral. I am inclined to believe that the most talented writers are those who can convey a message without resorting to explicit language and actions.

Am I living in a dream world? No, I am living in a world of reality, where the ability to face reality in older years is strengthened by exposure to discipline, avoidance of crudeness and vulgarity, in younger years.

School Board Has Busy Night; Fights Teachers' Arbitration Demand

The school board of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District continued its resistance to accepting binding arbitration as part of a new contract with teachers in the district. The board met Monday of this week.

The unofficial minutes of the meeting contain the following paragraph concerning contract negotiations:

"School Board President J. Reynold Johnson then asked for a report to be made to the School Board as a whole regarding the present status of negotiations with the teachers. School Attorney H. Charles Winans, and School Board Team Members Connie Hollabaugh, Lloyd McClellan, and T. Lynn Fuller did review for the School Board Members the state of negotiations upon the conclusion of the last negotiation session on June 14, 1976. It was reported that the teachers would agree or settle for a salary increase of 8% plus increment along with the giving of everything else that both sides had tentatively agreed upon; or Alternative "B" was that the teachers would agree or settle for a salary increase of 6% plus increment, plus a paid studyhall supervisor, plus everything that both sides had tentatively agreed upon, plus binding arbitration. There was long and serious School Board discussion regarding teacher negotiations, costs, money available, and Winans and Cole were questioned at length. On a number of occasions during this process there were comments from visiting school patrons. Finally, School Attorney Winans was directed by the Board Members to return to negotiations with the teachers and offer them a 6% salary increase including increment and all that had tentatively been agreed upon by both sides of the table not including binding arbitration, and not including a studyhall supervisor — unless the cost of the studyhall supervisor could be deducted from the total money available to be expended upon teachers."

In other business, Richard Meek, representing the school bus drivers, presented a request that the present 18 days accumulative sick leave be raised to 30 days, consider the possibility of raising the drivers' school to school hourly rate for driving "field trip-type" trips from the present $2.25 per hour to $2.50 per hour, plus other suggestions concerning use of the buses and the loading zone at the high school. Also requested were more specific guidelines concerning the handling of discipline on school buses.

Mr. Fuller was asked to lead a discussion regarding the discontinuing of Wednesday night as a "no school activity" night, a policy followed for many years in deference to church mid-week activities. He moved that the policy be cancelled due to so many school activities, especially in the area of athletics which now includes extensive girls' athletic participation. The motion carried.

Board member Vaughn Billings brought to the attention of the board the fact that 14 or more non-certificated employees of the school corporation have been and are drawing unemployment compensation both during the school year while under contract and during the summer while technically not under contract.

Lois Fisher, outgoing member of the board, was presented a plaque in recognition of her service to the school district while serving on the board.

An executive session was held after all other business had been disposed of, to discuss matters involving personalities.

The school calendar for next year was discussed, following consultation with principals Charles Ray and Robert Williams. The purpose was to modify to calendar "to remove the possibility of a repeat of the fiasco that took place on the last short day this year at the high school." The change in the calendar now provides that report cards will be mailed instead of being handed out to students on the customary last short day.

Corrections

Michael Cleveland, Vocational Agriculture Teacher at DeKalb Eastside High School, gave the following corrections this week for an article which was published last week:

Seed corn dealers who were left out of the article were: Don Hook, Crows; Jack Stemen, Migro; Jim Grimm, Cargills; John Reinhart, Trojan; and Willis Souder, DeKalb. Also, a correction on spelling: Walker's Farm Supply made available liquid fertilizer, not Walter's Farm Supply.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

The mid-summer meeting of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Hamman June 16 at 7:30 p.m.

The president, Mrs. Forrest Bevington, called the meeting to order. The collect and pledge were given in unison.

The program for this fall was read, changed and accepted.

Each member gave her response to roll call.

The president read the resolutions of the county convention which stressed the following: religion, morals, education, patriotic holidays, public display of the flag, patriotic heritage, rights and responsibility, and courtesy.

Mrs. Hamman read an artical about the trials and hardships of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

After adjournment light refreshments were served.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Hamman and Mrs. Maurice Kline.

Lambda Sigma

—Becky Leas, reporter

The Lambda Sigma Chapter from the Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority held their June 10th meeting at the home of Debbie Miller. The pledge was recited by 13 members. Lynne Bercaw then read the minutes of the last meeting. In our treasury we have a total of $155.07.

The new oficers for the 1976-77 year are as follows: President, Meredith Storer; Vice President, Lynda Suntken; Treasurer, Becky Leas; Recording Secretary, Lynne Bercaw; Social Secretary, Debbie Miller; Service Secretary, Cathy Nichols; Historian, Nora Raney; Editor, Deanna Jenings; Organizer Renee Johnson; Counselor, Sally Bercaw.

We have two new pledges. They are Susan Hudson and Carole Ward.

Plans are under way for our swim party that will be in July. Butler Days will also be coming up in August.

The next meeting will be August 12 at the home of Deanna Jenningk at 8:00 p. m.

A very delicious jello dessert was prepared by the hostess, Debbie Miller.

Coach Goes To Edinburg

Mark Bixler, head cross country coach and assistant basketball coach at Eastside High School, resigned Monday night in order to take a head basketball coaching position at Edinburg High School.

Bixler was at Eastside for three years, serving as head cross country coach for that time and was assistant basketball coach for two years. He was also the junior high track and cross country coach.

Bob Brown will replace Bixler as head cross country coach.

Bixler will also teach math at Edinburg.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Elvera Brush, reporter

The Newville Township Home Ec Club held their June meeting in the Hicksville Bank Room at 2 p. m. Ohio time on the 10th, with Lucille Nelson and Elva Hook hostesses.

President Doris Hart called the meeting to order and read the poem 'Tomorrow.' Then all repeated Club collect.

Excerpts on love from the book 'Apple of Gold' compiled by Jo Petty was the theme Annabelle Culler used for devotions.

Song of the Month, 'What the World Needs Now Is Love' was read by all.

Freda Engle was the installing officer for the '76 installation.

Fifteen members and one guest gave their cure for the blues for roll call.

Secretary and Treasurer reports were read and approved.

A gift of a terrarium was given to Bernice Miller Harter in honor of her recent marriage. She was a patient in the Hicksville Hospital Club day.

Birthday gals were Gladys Impton and Dorene Singer.

July 14 will be the next meeting date with Mrs. Belva Linith, Hamilton, IN, as hostess. All will meet promptly at 10:45 Indiana time at the Newville United Methodist Church and leave at 11. Pot luck diner will be served with officers as hostesses.

LEGAL NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING TO AMEND THE ZONING ORDINANCE AND ZONING MAPS OF DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA

Notice is hereby given that the County Plan Commission of the County of DeKalb, Indiana, on the 7th day of July, 1976, at 9:00 P.M. in the Plan Commission Office at the County Court House, in Auburn, Indiana, will hold a public hearing on a petition filed by Robert L. and Nancy E. McNabb to amend the Zoning Ordinance and Zoning Maps of DeKalb County, Indiana, as passed on December 21, 1964, thereby changing the Zoning Classification of the following described area from C-S District to C-LB District in Spencer Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, to-wit:

Commencing at a point situated south along the east line of State Road No. 1 extended 22 rods (363') from the southwest corner of Lot No. 14 in the Original Plat of the Town of Spencerville, Indiana; thence north along said east line 31.24 feet to the true point of beginning; thence continuing north on said east line 199.79 feet to an iron; thence east 8 rods (132') to an iron; thence south 79.0 feet to an iron; thence south 87 degrees 30 minutes west 63.6 feet to an iron; thence south 18.6 feet to an iron; thence south 87 degrees 30 minutes west 68.9 feet more or less to an iron and the true point of beginning. Containing 0.30 acres more or less subject to county zoning and all recorded easements.

This property is the 3rd house east of State Road No. 1 on the south side of Mill Street and is to be used as an outlet for farm produce, etc. for the benefit of the United Methodist Church of Spencerville.

Interested persons desiring to present their views on said petition either verbally or in writing, will be given the opportunity to be heard at the above-stated time and place. The Plan Commission reserves the right and privilege of adjourning without notice.

A copy of said petition is available for public inspection in the Office of the County Auditor and the Office of the Plan Commission both being in the County Court House.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

The BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES OF THE DEKALB COUNTY EASTERN COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721, will receive sealed bids for repair work on a blacktop school bus loading zone which loading zone is located at 603 East Green Street, Butler, Indiana.

Bid proposals will be received until 8:00 P.M. local time on July 5, 1976, at the Office of the Superintendent of Schools, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721 at which time and place all sealed bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Any bids received after the above-designated time will be returned unopened. All bids are to be totally inclusive for the entire job as stipulated by the written specifications for the job which specifications are a part of this notice to bidders and which specifications are also available in the Office of the School Superintendent.

All bid proposals shall be properly and completely executed on State Board of Accounts Form No. 96, and the non-collusion affidavit shall be properly executed.

All bid proposals shall be accompanied by Form No. 96-A, Standard Questionnaire and Financial Statement for Bidders, as is prescribed by the State Board of Accounts of Indiana, completely and properly executed.

Each bid proposal shall be accompanied by an acceptable bid bond, certified or bank officer's check made payable to the BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES OF THE DEKALB COUNTY EASTERN COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT for an amount of not less than five (5) percent of the total amount of the bid proposal, which bid bond or check shall be forfeited as liquidated damages and not as a penalty in case of failure of the successful bidder to enter into a contract and to furnish a satisfactory performance, labor, and material payment bond in the amount of 100% of the contract price within ten (10) days after notification of the acceptance of his proposal. Such bonds shall be in full force and effect for a period of at least twelve (12) months after the date of the final completion and acceptance of the longest guarantee provided under the contract. No bidder may withdraw his bid for and during a period of forty-five (45) calendar days after the date and time set for the receipt of bids.

The successful bidder must understand the condition of this contract that stipulates that completion of all of the work that is a part of the contract must take place within thirty (30) days of the letting of the contract.

Payment by the owner to the company awarded the contract will be within thirty (30) days of the completion of the total contract with the completion to be mutually agreed upon by the owner and the contractor.

Each bid proposal and accompanying documents shall be sealed in a large envelope; shall be addressed to the Board of School Trustees, DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721; and the envelope shall be clearly marked "BID PROPOSAL FOR REPAIR OF THE EASTSIDE JR-SR HIGH SCHOOL BUS LOADING ZONE."

The Board of School Trustees reserves the right to reject any and/or all bids, and to waive any and all informalities or irregularities in the bidding.

The work herein involved has to do with repairing a presently existing 6" deep aggregate blacktop school bus loading zone on the grounds of the Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School at 603 East Green Street, Butler, Indiana. The work entails excavating and removing and hauling away 6" of the existing surface in places that will be identifiable to bidders by painted lines which lines will indicate the perimeters of the areas involved; the furnishing of and compacting of 2" of No. 53's; furnishing and properly installing 2-8" reinforcing rod laid on 2' centers and tied at every cross and properly propped so as to make the rod 2" above the compacted underfill which rods are to be lapped 1' at each rod joint and securely wired at each rod joint and which rods are to be continuous throughout the entire concrete 6" apron that is to be poured using 6 bag limestone concrete which concrete is to be poured at not more than a 4" slump and which concrete when finally poured is to be sealed with an approved sealer and curing compound. The concrete that is poured is to be machine finished once and then broom finished. The entire concrete area that is to be poured shall be properly "jointed" and in no case shall the jointing encompass more than a 10' square, and further, the joints shall all be properly sealed with an appropriate non-hardening substance, and this substance shall not be hot or cold tar, and further, all "tooled-in" or "sawed" joints shall be as deep as 1-4 the thickness of the poured concrete.

All joints where existing blacktop and the to be poured concrete butt edge shall be "sawed" joints, that is, the blacktop shall be "sawed" in a manner as to assure a straight line "concrete to blacktop" finished joint, and this joint shall be sealed as is previously set out in these specifications.

The joint that will exist between new existing curbing and the newly poured concrete apron must be adequately sealed and the joint formed in a manner so as to prevent "heaving" of the existing curb.

The surface area to be replaced as herein described is APPROXIMATELY 13,500 square feet of surface.

The very nature of this work is such that the owner insists that all potential bidders make an appointment with the School Superintendent by telephoning 219-868-2125 in order that on-the-site inspection is made prior to the tendering of bids.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Football Coach Uses '2% Club' To Motivate EHS Gridders

John Fallis, head football coach at DeKalb Eastside High School and highly successful in motivating and developing a spirited team in recent years, has sent a letter to players and parents in preparation for the coming fall football season. It is worthy of sharing with the public, in the opinon of The News, and is quoted in bold as follows:

SLIGHT EDGE: IT TAKES ONLY TWO PERCENT

Learn and enjoy, learn and use this little realized secret to join the few who enjoy unlimited wealth, prestige, and happiness. (by Gene Emmet Clark, D.D.)

Have you been working like a horse? I've been thinking about that expression - and at least one horse I can name has earned a pretty fair hourly rate.

Someone has figured out that the race horse, Nashua, earned more than a million dollars in a total racing time that added up to less than one hour!

That's pretty good pay. Of course, we know that many, many more hours went into preparing for that winning hour of racing.

But there is something else here that interests me. What is there about a horse like Nashua that made him such a consistent winner and made him so valuable? You'd probably pay a hundred times as much for a horse like Nashua as you would an ordinary horse. But is he a hundred times faster? NO. To be a consistent winner and to be worth a hundred times as much as the average, he needed only to be consistent in finishing just ahead of the rest.

All he had to do was win a good share of the time by a nose to be worth a hundred times as much as an also-ran.

And so it is with human beings who are on top in the game of life.

A writer in a national magazine made the assertion that the difference between the man of achievement and the man of mediocrity is a difference of only about two percent in STUDY, APPLICATION, INTEREST, ATTENTION AND EFFORT.

ONLY ABOUT TWO PERCENT SEPARATES THE WINNER FROM THE LOSER!

A boxer can win the world's championship simply by winning one more round than his opponent . . . . or even by being only a point or two ahead. And this narrow margin can make the difference between fame and fortune or never being heard of again. It's often a matter of only two percent.

We have no idea of what a change we could make in our results if we would simply add that two percent more time and effort than the average person is willing to put in.

How about you this fall? How will you measure up? We are seeking Men of Eastside who will give the extra effort to give us a Best Ever Winning Season.

Market Approved

Final approval for a farmers' market in downtown Auburn was granted by a unanimous vote of the city council Tuesday night.

Plans call for the market to begin July 15 and continue for five Thursdays in a trial run period while the council watches its progress.

The market arrangements approved were the same as worked out by the council and the Downtown Merchants Association, except that the definition of 'farm produce' was changed to permit only 'field or garden-grown' produce to be sold at the market.

Resurfacing Brings Main Street Back To 'New' - Like In '62

Work was completed this week on resurfacing State Road 1 in Saint Joe from the Enco Station at the west to the Chessie crossing at the east end of town. The state's maintenance project was done at a cost of some $26,000.

Before the new blacktop surface could be laid, it was necessary to do some patchwork on the old pavement. The past winter was especially rough on the 4-mile section, spring rains adding to the breakup of old pavement. The state highway department repaired the section two or three times early this spring, filling hundreds of holes, some large enough to force motorists to zig-zag down the main street to avoid damage to tires, shock absorbers and springs.

The project was carried out by Brooks Construction of Fort Wayne with little disruption of traffic, during repair work and during the application of a base coat of asphalt and then a finish coat of finer texture. John Stowe of the Fort Wayne District office of the Indiana State Highway Department was project engineer.

With the new surface now cmpleted, the main street looks as it did some 14 years ago when a widening and resurfacing project was completed.

State Road 1 had been just a two-lane hard surface thoroughfare through town. The berm was gravel and dirt.

The town board at that time was Roy Bowser (president), Bud Shockley and Ted Haberkorn. After the board decided to seek improvement to the road, Mr. Haberkorn was put in charge of investigating and pursuing the matter. With the cooperation of then town attorney James Angelone of Butler and then State Senator Willis Batchelet, an agreement with the state was finally reached. However, it was necessary for the the town to install new surface water drainage from School Street to the east end of the main street, a project carried out in 1961.

Other problems and difficulties were worked out with the state highway department. And after some three years of leg work, trips to Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, and elsewhere to confer with state highway officials, the board finally saw its ambition rewarded with widening of the street and resurfacing in 1962.

The town board also installed curbing the same year, a project insisted upon by state highway officials to protect the outer edges of the new pavement from damage.

Little, Pony Leagues To Benefit 50-50 On New 'News' Subscriptions

The success of the Riverdale Pony Lengue team this summer has led to the desire to have a home run fence installed at the local ball diamond. Due to the efforts of Jerry Markle, assisted by Jon Johnson, Ron Walter, Kent Rosenbury and Jim Rosenbury, the ball field has been worked into excellent condition, after lying idle for the past few years. A new dugout is still under construction on the first base line. A dugout on the third base line had been installed when the field, backstop and other fencing were initially undertaken.

Little and Pony League officials have been working together to some extent as far as continuity of organization is concerned. To assist them in the need for funds to continue the baseball program in this community, The Saint Joe News has offered to share 50-50 with the organization any proceeds derived from the sale of new subscriptions to the local paper. The offer was made according to the editor to be of mutual benefit - the baseball program gains funds for its treasury and the local paper gains new readers, including those whose boys are participating in both Little and Pony League competition.

Subscriptions may be obtained through Jerry Markle of the Pony League or Jerry Vinson, secretary of the Little League. Or they may be brought in or sent to the News Office with the stipulation that such subscriptions are for the Little and Pony League fund-raising project.

Baseball's Ills - or - A Sign Of The Times

The professional baseball world is rather shook up now, due to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's declaration that the sale of three players by the Oakland Athletics will not be allowed. Oakland owner Charles Finley has responded by filing suit for damages.

Mr. Finley has not been exactly popular, no matter what business endeavor he is engaged in. There is no crookedness involved, to my knowledge—it's just the way he does things gets people mad.

Baseball's Commissioner Kuhn has not been a popular figure, for a reason opposite that of Mr. Finley—he has not been aggressive enough to suit many involved directly in baseball and to suit many fans. In this instance, however, he has made as aggressive a move as can be made.

Who is right? Who is wrong? That's what much of the discussion is about in the current matter. However, it isn't so much "who" as it is "what," if you ask me. And I'm happy to see that a few in baseball are making comments about that "what" rather than argue about personalities.

In recent years, organized union activity in major sports has become a major factor in the operation of those sports. The worst thing to happen in baseball, if you ask me, is the destruction of the "reserve cause"—that is, the traditional system by which a player is the property of a baseball team until the team trades or sells him. The reserve clause gave stability to the rosters in that club owners and managers knew who was on the roster, who would be there next year, and the year after, and the year after—if they wanted to keep that player. Contract negotiations were individual matters; players came to terms directly with club owners.

Then came the union.

Successful efforts by organized labor representatives in sports removed the reserve clause. The situation is such that certain players right now are playing for teams without a contract. Next year they may be with another club. There may be those who believe the new setup is a benefit to players. But I don't. And I hope Mr. Finley wins his suit for damages, because he was in a position wherein three of his highest paid players could sign with another club next year, leaving him with nothing to trade or sell next year, as far as those three were concerned. The only way he could get some financial return from his investment in the three was to sell them. They would not sign contracts.

The whole setup is weird—and it got that way because of the players' union.

There is something very significant in this matter. You need not be a baseball or sports fan to be involved in the possibilities in this matter. What has happened is this—the efforts of organized lazor in sports have removed the rights of private ownership from those who have major investments involved. While the sports world deals in people, they are far from "slaves," as some pro football players described themselves a year or so ago when football was having its moments with the players' union. Such remarks were laughable, under the circumstances. Even an average or mediocre player in pro baseball, football and basketball is paid more than the average sports fan who shells out a lot of bucks to watch "sports." The facts didn't, and still don't, support the players who have allowed the present bad situation to evolve. Players talk of their "short life" as related to income from sports participation. But they don't mention the prestige they gain during those "short" years which helps them to get jobs after their playing days are over—if they have even just average intelligence and capabilities. They don't deserve to be "kept" by the average sports fan for the rest of their lives through tremendous salaries and astronomical retirement benefits. But that's the way it has worked out—because of union activities.

However, the worst part of the whole thing is that "sports" has lost its image of inspiration and challenge to young people—I mean the kind of inspiration and challenge that does not have a dollar sign automatically attached to it. Far too many professional athletes are thinking more of income than they are of how well they are performing. Yes, I know we have superstars today and what they call "dynasties" today. But you will note that every major league baseball team goes in streaks, without exception. I don't remember that sort of thing from my kid days. Yes, there were streaks, such as the Cubs' 21-game winning streak to win a pennant, and Joe DiMaggio's 56-game batting streak in years past. But I don't remember the streak phenomenon as affecting all the teams as such an up-and-down situation exists today. But—maybe my memory is wrong.

However, there is one thing on which my memory is not wrong—and that is that headlines were made by players' accomplishments from day to day, not by the announcements of how much they were demanding or going to demand in pay—or how much they disliked playing in their home team's ball park and wanted to be traded.

The fact that a baseball commissioner's office came into being because of a scandal in the baseball world is evidence that there is a need for administrative guidance in professional baseball. However, that guidance does not include the power to tell club owners whether or not they can sell or trade their players.

A bad situation exists right now in baseball (other sports have their moments, too). And that bad situation exists basically because of the ultimate result of organized labor gaining too much power. Private ownership is threatened in its rights and privileges in baseball today. That threat hangs over every phase of today's living. Quality of performance is still the proper motivation, not quantity of dollars—in what we call the traditional "American way." Nothing can be solved or resolved until we get back to that principal.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

The BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES OF THE DEKALB COUNTY EASTERN COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721, will receive sealed bids for repair work on a blacktop school bus loading zone which loading zone is located at 603 East Green Street, Butler, Indiana.

Bid proposals will be received until 8:00 P.M. local time on July 5, 1976, at the Office of the Superintendent of Schools, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721 at which time and place all sealed bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Any bids received after the above-designated time will be returned unopened. All bids are to be totally inclusive for the entire job as stipulated by the written specifications for the job which specifications are a part of this notice to bidders and which specifications are also available in the Office of the School Superintendent.

All bid proposals shall be properly and completely executed on State Board of Accounts Form No. 96, and the non-collusion affidavit shall be properly executed.

All bid proposals shall be accompanied by Form No. 96-A, Standard Questionnaire and Financial Statement for Bidders, as is prescribed by the State Board of Accounts of Indiana, completely and properly executed.

Each bid proposal shall be accompanied by an acceptable bid bond, certified or bank officer's check made payable to the BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES OF THE DEKALB COUNTY EASTERN COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT for an amount of not less than five (5) percent of the total amount of the bid proposal, which bid bond or check shall be forfeited as liquidated damages and not as a penalty in case of failure of the successful bidder to enter into a contract and to furnish a satisfactory performance, labor, and material payment bond in the amount of 100%, of the contract price within ten (10) days after notification of the acceptance of his proposal. Such bonds shall be in full force and effect for a period of at least twelve (12) months after the date of the final completion and acceptance of the longest guarantee provided under the contract. No bidder may withdraw his bid for and during a period of forty-five (45) calendar days after the date and time set for the receipt of bids.

The successful bidder must understand the condition of this contract that stipulates that completion of all of the work that is a part of the contract must take place within thirty (30) days of the letting of the contract.

Payment by the owner to the company awarded the contract will be within thirty (30) days of the completion of the total contract with the completion to be mutually agreed upon by the owner and the contractor.

Each bid proposal and accompanying documents shall be sealed in a large envelope; shall be addressed to the Board of School Trustees, DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721; and the envelope shall be clearly marked "BID PROPOSAL FOR REPAIR OF THE EASTSIDE JR-SR HIGH SCHOOL BUS LOADING ZONE."

The Board of School Trustees reserves the right to reject any and/or all bids, and to waive any and all informalities or irregularities in the bidding.

The work herein involved has to do with repairing a presently existing 6" deep aggregate blacktop school bus loading zone on the grounds of the Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School at 603 East Green Street, Butler, Indiana. The work entails excavating and removing and hauling away 8" of the existing surface in places that will be identifiable to bidders by painted lines which lines will indicate the perimeters of the areas involved; the furnishing of and compacting of 2" of No. 53's, furnishing and property installing 3-8" reinforcing rod laid on 3' centers and tied at every cross and properly propped so as to make the rod 2" above the compacted underfill which rods are to be lapped 1' at each rod joint and securely wired at each rod joint and which rods are to be continuous throughout the entire concrete 6" apron that is to be poured using 6 bag limestone concrete which concrete is to be poured at not more than a 6" slump and which concrete when finally poured is to be sealed with an approved sealer and curing compound. The concrete that is poured is to be machine finished once and then broom finished. The entire concrete area that is to be poured shall be properly "isolated" and in no case shall the finishing encompass more than a 15' square, and further, the joints shall all be properly sealed with an appropriate non-hardening substance, and this substance shall not be hot or cold tar, and further, all "tooled-in" or "sawed" joints shall be as deep as 1-4 the thickness of the poured concrete.

All joints where existing blacktop and the to be poured concrete butt and edge shall be "sawed" joints; that is, the blacktop shall be "sawed" in a manner so as to assure a straight line "concrete to blacktop" finished joint, and this joint shall be sealed as is previously set out in these specifications.

The joint that will exist between now existing curbing and the newly poured concrete apron must be adequately sealed and the joint formed in a manner so as to prevent "heaving" of the existing curb.

The surface area to be replaced as herein described is APPROXIMATELY 13,000 square feet of surface.

The very nature of this work is such that the owner insists that all potential bidders make an appointment with the School Superintendent by telephoning 829-368-3125 in order that on-the-site inspection is made prior to the tendering of bids.

Kids And Camp

(A health message from your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana.)

Kids are going off to camp. Including asthmatic kids.

Segregating kids with asthma is a mistake, says the American Lung Association. Asthmatic children, except for a few severe cases, should be included in regular group activities at camps, school physical education programs, and all kinds of recreational programs. Camps that have a nurse—or a physician on call—are the best choices.

Sudden attacks of asthma can be a scary business for anyone, especially children. But asthma may also involve mild, more or less continuous breathing difficulty, too. Mild or severe, asthma attacks—when they occur in the first three and a half decades of life—are usually triggered by a variety of factors. Substances in the air or environment, acute respiratory infections, and emotional disturbances. Heredity seems to play a part, too.

When doctors can pinpoint the offending substances, asthmatic patients may receive allergy shots to make them less sensitive to the substances. Now there is also a new drug called cromolyn sodium which can help prevent attacks of seasonal asthma, especially attacks caused by pollen in the air.

Six million people in this country have asthma, and nearly half of them are children under the age of sixteen. Treatment at young ages is important, says the American Lung Association, because asthma in childhood can—and often does—contribute to later lung disease.

To find out more about asthma and ways to treat it, contact your American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana, 802 W. Wayne Street, Fort Wayne, IN, 46804. Summers can be fun for kids with asthma, too. It's a Matter of Life and Breath.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Judy Tejan called this week to say that when the Tejan family returned home after its vacation, they found a visitor at their place....a large black dog with brown legs and appears to be part German shepherd. The owner may call the Tejans at 337-3305.

For a few days this week, Mark and I were walking carefully past the linotype as we carried out typesetting chores. Why? Well, last week when I was making some corrections, I tossed an incorrect lead slug on the floor under the lipotype near my feet. The lead slug was about 3 1/4 inches long, a little over an eight of an inch thick, and about seven eights of an inch high. Moments later I glanced down at the floor and, believe it or not, that lead slug was standing upright on its length, even with small lead shavings on the floor to make an uneven surface.

So, out of tribute to a long-shot happening like that, Mark and I carefully walked past that upright slug this past week. It finally got knocked over when I was doing some maintenance on the machine. But for a while, an insignificant lead slug got special attention.

I wonder what the odds are on something like that?

Years ago when Mt. Pleasant was first in the local softball league, and I think when Lew Walter was still here and coaching the team, Bill Farmer played for them. In my opinion, he was the most powerful hitter in the Church League. He wasn't heavy or impressively muscular. But his coordination was such that, when he hit the ball it was HARD!!

Bill was absent from the team for several years then. But now he's back. And he hasn't lost any of his power, from what I hear. He's a bit heavier, and a bit slower afoot. But with the bat - ohboy - lookout!

There are other power hitters in he league today. They put the ball over the fence frequently, and for extra long distance, too. But there is that certain something about Bill's contact with the ball that just sounds different. It IS different.

Come to a Mt. Pleasant game and find out - if he isn't too busy with "Farmer's Ag Service" to get to the game.

Pony Tourney

The local Pony League organization is hosting a four-team double-elimination tourney.

Manager Jerry Markle reported that Kendallville defeated Garrett Wednesday evening 13-2 and Saint Joe beat Butler 18-10 on Thursday.

Friday at 5:30 p.m., Garrett and Butler will play. Saturday morning at 10:30 a.m., Kendallville will face Saint Joe. Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m., the winner of Friday's Garrett-Butler game faces the loser of Saturday's Kendallville-Saint Joe contest.

The final game will be played Sunday afternoon at 1:30p.m. with the winner of the Saturday morning Kendallville-Saint Joe game facing the winner of the Saturday afternoon game for the championship.

The local team has been participating in what is designated as a "B" division of Pony League activity. However, the winner of this "B" team tourney will enter "A" team tourney competition next week.

The Saint Joe - or Riverdale, because the kids come from all over the Concord, Newville and Spencer township area - team has had a very successful season under the direction of Jerry Markle and his assistants, Jon Johnson, Ron Walters, Kent Rosenbury and Jim Rosenbury.

Saint Joe CC To Have Prison Evangelism Rally

An area-wide Prison Evangelism Rally featuring THE NEW CREATIONS is scheduled for the night of July 26, at the Church of Christ, in Saint Joe. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

THE NEW CREATIONS is one of the finest men's trios singing Country Gospel music. They are in constant demand by both state and federal prisons and reformatories and serve the penal institutions throughout the American Rehabilitation Ministry located in Joplin, MO.

The objective of A.R.M. is to convert the inmate to Christ through a seven-point plan that includes:

(1) Conducting religious assemblies inside the institutions;

(2) Challenging Christian couples to provide a foster home for a child which is presently incarcerated.

(3) Urging Christians to get involved in the Pen-Pal program;

(4) Contacting families and loved ones on the outside;

(5) Enlisting a full-time prison evangelist in each state;

(6) Placing an inmate in each of our loyal bible colleges;

(7) Providing adequate correspondence courses for the inmates.

In addition to the best music this side of Heaven, persons attending will be priveleged to hear of the baptism of a young man on death row....how an escapee from prison found Christ while on the run....and an inmate who was stabbed ten times and left for dead because he would not deny his faith.

All seats are free. Don't miss the thrilling story of how the Gospel of Jesus Christ is being taken over the concrete walls, through the steel bars, and into the unevangelized cells of our American prisons and reformatories.

Campout Coming

Four United Methodist churches from DeKalb County (Mount Pleasant, Newville, Maple Grove, and Norris Chapel), are sponsoring a weekend family campout. It will be held on July 16, 17, and 18 at Vic Timmerman's pond, County Roads 36 and 59, Butler, IN. There will be road signs on State Road 1, State Road 6, and State Road 8 giving directions to the campsite.

Scheduled activities for the weekend are as follows:

FRIDAY, JULY 16

PM—set up camp followed by an informal time of sharing.

SATURDAY, JULY 17

9:00 a.m. - 10:00 a.m.—first group session.

10:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.—second group session.

1:00 p.m. - 2:00 p.m.—third group session.

2:00 p.m. - 7:30 p.m.—free time with organized recreation and time for knowing each other better.

7:30 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.—evening program featuring "The Celebration," a musical group sponsored by Taylor University, Marion, IN.

9:30 p.m.—Holy Communion.

SUNDAY, JULY 18

10:00 a.m.—Worship Service.

1:30 p.m.—Wrap-up and evaluation.

Participants may take part in any or all of these sessions even if they do not wish to camp out. It is requested that those camping on the grounds participate in all sessions. Each person or family is responsible for their own meals, with the exeption of the carry-in dinner on Sunday.

Detroit's Mark Fidrych - or - Baseball's Shot In The Arm

The comments I made last week in this column concerning baseball, Charles Finley and Bowie Kuhn were actually written two weeks ago, a full week before they were published. If you will recall, my closing observation had to do with motivation: "Quality of performance is still the proper motivation, not quantity of dollars - in what we call the traditional 'American way.' Nothing can be solved or resolved until we get back to that principal." (Actually, it should have been "principle" - I goofed on using the proper word.)

Something happened thereafter - a week ago Monday night, to be exact - on Monday night baseball, to confirm that my comments are valid. A young man named Mark Fidrych, a 21-year-old rookie pitcher with the Detroit Tigers, continued his performance begun at the start of the season as a "character" in his actions on the mound. Nicknamed "The Bird" because he moves his arms in various directions between pitches to indicate where and how the ball should go or should have gone. he talks to the ball. He gets down on his hands and knees at the start of an inning to smooth and shape the dirt on the pitching mound to suit his footwork.

But that's not all. He happens to have a 9-1 win-loss record, which means he has talent. I hadn't heard of him before that Monday night. And thank goodness, I watched the game and he was the pitcher. Because with all the strife in sports today, including the situation I wrote about editorially, Mark Fidrych is just what baseball needs - in fact, he is just what America needs to illustrate that effort is still recognized and admired by most people.

My comments after that game were, "I hope he's genuine - I hope the union doesn't get to him and he ends up like the rest with an agent." The future will show whether or not he is "for real." But in the meantime, a news story came out that he was asked if he didn't think he should get more money (he is receiving the minimum pay of something like $16,500). His answer: "Hell no - I'm making enough money, more than I ever did before. If I got more money, it might go to my head."

To show that it isn't union contracts which bring results, it's effort - the last two games the rookie pitched (at this writing), attendance was near the 50,000 mark. Detroit had been averaging around 17,000 or 18,000 per game, as I recall an announcer's comments. The people are going to see Mark Fidrych. Because he's good? Partly - but more because he's so refreshing, so enthusiastic, so endearing - to the point that, when the game ended on that Monday night, the crowd stayed in its seats chanting "We want Mark!" until he returned to the field to wave in acknowledgment of their enthusiasm generated by his own obvious joy and pleasure in playing the game of baseball. As stated by one of the broadcasters that night, it was unbelievable. It was a "shot in the arm" at an appropriate and crucial time in the history of baseball.

There is a lesson in the story of Mark Fidrych as it has unfolded thus far. When it's his game to pitch, his performance is summed up in one word - concentration. His actions, odd as they are, are his way of keeping in mind that he has a job to do and that that job requires total effort and total attention. And the response thus far by people who go to see him pitch confirms a fact of life we have lost sight of in this nation - a good worker need never worry about having a job. A good worker is always wanted, always sought after.

November Election - A Vote For Liberty or Dictatorship

The importance of November's general election becomes more apparent each day. It is important that a Republican be kept in the office of the President to cope with the results of social-welfare legislation enacted through the years by a Democrat-controlled Congress. It is more important, however, that the Republican President be given a Republican majority in Congress. No, not ALL Republicans running for Congress should be elected, because some of them are of the social-welfare ("liberal") school of thought themselves. It is those who oppose government control of our lives and propose to remove much of the vast legislative stranglehold which becomes more evident each time a daily news report is heard - it is those, BOTH REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRAT, who should be supported.

The latest in the frightening series of decisions and regulations coming as a result of the social-welfare takeover of our lives came two days ago. It was reported in part as follows:

"Federal officials have decided that public schools may no longer sponsor father-son or mother-daughter events because they violate new rules against sex discrimination."

The announcement came after school administrators in Scotsdale, Arizona, asked if such actions were still lawful "under regulations approved by President Ford last summer." The announcement was cleared through the San Francisco Regional Office for Civil Rights.

In an article commenting on the decision, the following appeared, written by Becky Richards of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel:

"No girl in grades K-12 may ever be caught dead or alive wearing anything pink. And boys are prohibited from wearing any shade of blue on grounds such clothing is discriminatory.

"A recent decision by an official of the Regional Office for Civil Rights in San Francisco is not quite that inane (silly), but it borders on the absurd."

Already school officials in the Fort Wayne area have said they think the regulations have gone too far, that such functions as father-son or mother-daughter get-togethers will continue to be held if no objections are heard. One school official suggested that, in view of the Civil Rights Office decision, "perhaps the observance of all Christian holidays also is discriminatory...."

Ronald Reagan, candidate for the Republican nomination for President, was a Democrat originally but switched to the Republican Party because of the trend of Democrat leadership years ago toward governmental control of and intrusion into the lives of private citizens.

John Connally was an influential Democrat for years. But he switched his party affiliation just a few years ago, again because of the trend of American living toward governmental control, the result of Democrat leadership in legislative matters.

This coming November will be a time of thought-filled decision for many Americans - hopefully - because the "fruits" of the vast social-welfare program of liberal Democrats and Republicans are now obvious. Democrat voters must now decide whether party affiliation is more important than individual liberty. Republicans must decide whether their own candidates are standing firm against the attack on and destruction of "the American way" as represented by the Declaration of Independence. That document served to establish not only the self-rule of the original thirteen colonies, but also the idea of self-rule by individual citizens with the government to be the protector of that self-rule, note, SELF-RULE.

None of the candidates who will run in November, from the Presidency on down, is perfect. However, their overall efforts give an indication of their individual basic guidelines.

The problems we face, such as the recent Civil Rights decision, are not due to eight years of a Republican Presidency. They are due to 40 years of Democrat majorities in Congress: Congress legislates, the President administrates. That majority has been almost totally "liberal" in its approach to American living. And during those years "liberal" has meant governmental control.

The "sweet talk" of Senators Birch Bayh and Vance Hartke and Fourth District Congressman J. Edward Roush does not eliminate the fact - the FACT - that they have been part and parcel of legislative efforts which have produced such things as outlawing father-son and mother-daughter social functions in schools. Their overall legislative efforts have consistently involved more government control of our daily living, at the same time declaring their belief in the "preservation of individual liberty" and so on. What they have done in Washington (16 years for Mr. Roush, and how many years for Mr. Hartke and Mr. Bayh?) has consistently been the opposite of what they have said at home.

Readers — friends — who are and have been "Democrat" for years — are you in favor in letting the government tell me how to live — and your neighbor — and you!

November's Presidential and Congressional elections will not be Republicans vs Democrats. It will be individual liberty vs governmental dictatorship, the latter now disguised under the nice-sounding term "social welfare."

(NOTE: After the above was written, an "irritated" President Ford ordered the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to remove the ban imposed by the Civil Rights Office. Question: was some sort of coverup used to sneak the regulation past the President originally?

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau Board of Directors held their monthly meeting Monday night, June 28, at the Farm Bureau building.

In the absence of Ed Johnson Agnes Watson gave devotions, reading from the fourth chapter of Hebrews. She read a poem called "If Jesus came to Your House" followed by the Lord's Prayer and the pledge to the flag.

President Francis Nelson reported on a legislative meeting he attended in Kendallville. To help Farm Bureau, both state and National, to better work on farmer issues, each county is asked to select a local coordinator. Roger Stebing has accepted this position.

Edna Perkins and Mazie Myers will attend an ACWW (Associated Country Women of the World) Press Conference at Win Schulers in Fort Wayne June 30.

President Nelson read a letter from Meredith Kinkaid telling that the 1976 Legislature has directed the Transportation Advisory Commission to conduct a study of the financing of Indiana roads and streets of the State's role in financing of various transportation modes.

Phase 1 will be devoted entirely to highway transportation needs and is to be completed by November 1, 1976.

Phase II on financing various transportation modes will be undertaken in 1977.

Howard McDaniel reported on the Estate Planning meeting, and there were 25 plus two attorneys in attendance.

July 8 at 8 p.m. is the next District II meeting which will be held in the Albion Production Credit building in Albion. Glenn W. Sample, President of Indiana Vocational Technical Colloge, will speak on "What About the Next Century."

ical Report books are here and will be distributed to all county officials and schools. On July 22 there will be a meeting for county officials from four counties at the Millers Truck Stop in Kendallville.

Francis Nelson appointed Carl Perkins to be our Policy Development Chairman for this year. The county chairman and the county president will attend a policy meeting at the Convention Center in Indianapolis on August 26.

Lloyd Mertz will have devotions in July.

Hard Times For Chavez' Farm Union

(—from the "National Right To Work Newsletter," May 25, 1976)

Despite enactment of a state farm labor law designed to expedite the forced unionization of California farm workers, Cesar Chavez' years-long crusade to make himself king over America's farm laborers has fallen on hard times.

Throughout his organization's history, Chavez has demonstrated a remarkable inability to get workers to join voluntarily. As a result, he has done his "organizing" by waging war against the growers, pressuring them to force their employees into an unwanted union.

His ability to win these wars during the early 1970's hinged largely on his ability to gain support from benighted clergy and various political and social activists. Their continued allegiance, however, appears to be very much in question.

"Chavez falls back on boycotts because he finds it easier to win favor among shoppers in parking lots than among . . . . (workers)," admits Sister . . . Thomas More Bertels, a one-time Chavez activist. "He seeks to achieve in the supermarkets of suburbia what he apparently cannot achieve in the fields of California."

Writing in the April issue of "Farm Journal" magazine, Sister Bertels says that "like hundreds of other adherents of the social gospel, (she) had refused to eat grapes and lettuce," assuming "that the information being disseminated in the classroom, from the pulpit, and by the media was unadulterated truth." To her amazement, however, she learned otherwise.

She learned, for example, that Chavez never had the voluntary support of even a sizeable minority of the farm labor rank-and-file. (At one point, while he was being hailed as spokesman for all of California's farm workers, a report on file with the Labor Department showed fewer than 2,500 voluntary members.)

She learned that the Chavez union, run by cadres of social activists, openly discriminates against workers which the union bosses consider a threat to their movement.

She learned too that the only way Chavez was able to recruit "members" was by promoting product boycotts which compelled the growers to sign contracts requiring their workers to join the union.

Armed with fact rather than propaganda, Sister Bertels thinks it is important enough to speak up.

"What right have they to decide which union is best for the farm workers? They have placed the church and the academic community in the untenable position of insisting that the workers have freedom of choice, then maligning that choice if it does not square with theirs."

(Editor's note: all candidates for the Democrat nomination for President of the United States have stated they favor eliminating the freedom of choice of joining or not joining a labor union as a requirement for employment. This includes current front-runner Jimmy Carter who said he would be "glad to sign" a bill abolishing right-to-work laws.

On the other side, GOP candidate Ronald Reagan says he is "leaning . . . . very heavily toward Right to Work."

President Gerald Ford said recently, "I would, under no circumstances, take that right (choice of joining or not joining a union) away from any state by either law or constitutional amendment.")

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

All I have to say is—with Knisely National Bank shelling out over $150,000 to give us a branch bank at Saint Joe, and with General Tel shelling out over $300,000 to give a new exchange to Saint Joe, we have something to be proud of and to be grateful for. Yes, I know the public pays for it ultimately. But on the other hand, they didn't HAFTA put that much out.

The branch bank has been here a year now, providing not only banking services but also support to our community activities. And with Vulcraft into its fourth year in this community and that corporation's ready support of community activities when called upon—and with the number of new homes going up in the Riverdale area plus home improvements in town—progress is evident in our little community, slow but sure. And that's the best there is—slow but sure.

All-Star Game

The first of a two-game series between the DeKalb County All-Stars and the Noble County All-Stars was played Saturday. The basketball game, played as a benfit for United Fund in both counties and sponsored by the Auburn Evening Star and the Kendallville News-Sun, ended in a 99-85 victory for Noble County.

Three players from each of the three high schools in each of the two counties participated.

General Tel's $300,000 Electronic Exchange Goes Into Operation 17th

At 4 a.m., Saturday, July 17, Larry Clark, Angola district manager of General Telephone Company, will pull the fuse now keeping the Saint Joe exchange in operation. An entirely new electronic telephone exchange will then take over, and Saint Joe exchange subscribers will have at their fingertips the use of a $300,000-plus telephone system.

Saint Joe will join the growing number of telephone exchanges whose service is controlled by a new computer-directed telephone switching system known as the GET Automatic Electric Crosspoint-Five (CXP-5).

According to Clark, the new system will initially handle 500 telephone lines and will provide "touch call" for Saint Joe customers. Until now, such a feature (push-buttons instead of a dial) was available only in the larger exchanges. The conventional dial is still "standard equipment," but the "push-button" feature is available for a small additional monthly fee.

The new exchange is housed on Third Street in a new building. The present building housing the old equipment will be torn down in the near future.

Though the new switching system occupies less floor space than conventional units, it offers a greater variety of telephone services, and it routes telephone calls much faster. The CXP-5 is specifically designed for exchanges serving between 100 and 2,200 telephones.

The new system is not faultless. No promise is made for perfection. However, any problems which arise can be taken care of more quickly because the entire local system can be monitored in the Angola office. Computer technology will allow for quick determination as to the exact location of any problems.

Also, for those on private lines, long distance calls will no longer require operator interception to record the calling number. Instead, long distance calls will be recorded by computer. The caller will dial the new long distance digit "1" (which replaces the old "110"), then continue the remainder of the called-number digits and be connected immediately with the called number. A computer does the recording and billing.

Two- and four-party line customers will continue to have the operator cut in to take the calling number. The new long distance digit "1" will be used for party line long distance calls.

Saint Joe "337" prefix remains the same. However, all numbers in the Saint Joe exchange will have changes in the last four digits. New directories were to be distributed locally on Friday to avoid confusion of use with old directories containing the old numbers. After 4 a.m. Saturday morning, the new directories must be used in the Saint Joe exchange.

To give the public an opportunity to see the new telephone office in operation, an open house will be held Sunday, August 8, from 2 to 5:30 p.m. at the new building. Local telephone subscribers are invited to keep that date in mind and visit the all-new Saint Joe telephone exchange.

Baltz' 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Baltz of R1 Saint Joe will observe their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, July 18, with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. at the home of Victor Coburn in Saint Joe.

The couple married July 16, 1926, at Adrian, Michigan. Mr. Baltz, a retired farmer, is a native of Saint Joe, he and Mrs. Baltz residing in the home in which he was born. Mrs. Baltz is the former Hazel Henley of Hicksville.

MM Baltz are both 87 years young.

Mrs. Baltz is the oldest living former employee of Sechler's Pickles, starting work there plant was in the basement of what is now the office quarters.

'Walkout' By School Board Called Unfair, Erroneous Description

—by The Editor

Negotiations in the DeKalb eastern and the Garrett-Keyser-Butler school districts have not brought any agreement between the school boards and the teachers.

Because of the failure to have contract discussions resolved through a mediator, both situations will now be dealt with by a "fact-finding" third party.

The school board in the eastern district was singled out as the cause for not reaching an agreement in the eastern district. News reports this week in county and Fort Wayne news media quoted teacher bargaining chairman Donna Hollabaugh, "I'm sure he thought we were making some progress or he wouldn't have tried to arrange another meeting." She was referring to mediator Donald Russell. Other media reports indicated that the school board "walked out" on the near 12-hour session Tuesday. However, one board member was quoted as saying, "We were getting absolutely nowhere."

Under mediating procedures, the teachers meet in one room and the school board representatives in another room. The mediator goes back and forth between the two groups. Apparently, a wrong impression was given about "progress" in the late hours of deliberations, bringing the report of a "walkout" on the part of the school board and casting blame on the board for talk failures.

An unofficial view given this newspaper by a board member was that progress had not been made, that in fact the two parties were farther apart than at the beginning of the session.

Though teachers have been making "mandatory arbitration" and salary major issues, the Tuesday session also apparently involved considerable time given to teacher dissatisfaction with the announced school calendar for 1976-77. Teachers contend that the board changed the calendar without consulting the teachers.

The board has contended that requested salary increases in the local district are not possible due to limited finances. The teachers have also sought relief from study hall duties. The board has agreed under the condition that pay for a study hall monitor must come monies now available for teacher salary increases.

Apparently patrons in the eastern district have been backing the school board in its efforts to hold the line on the cost of education in the district. Recent attendance at board meetings by patrons has reportedly brought that indication of public support.

However, the school board continues to be placed at fault for mediation failures due to the use of the term "walkout" The lack of information from the school board itself stems from a reluctance to obligate the board publicly without having agreed upon the content or extent of information which can properly be given to news media.

On the other hand, statements and accusations have come from teacher representatives which have been either misleading or erroneous in their implications, such as the reported "walkout" which was not that at all. After 11½ hours of talk, some of which could be classified as bickering and therefore useless in reaching any agreement, it would seem everyone would need a break when it got to 1 a.m. in the morning.

In this case, the mediator appears to have misled the teachers as to the school board's attitude, and the teachers now regard the school board as "walkouts."

It was reliably reported that half of the lengthy Tuesday session was used in discussing matters not included in the teachers' original proposal and not discussed in the weeks prior to the current mediator involvement. Thus, the failure to come to an agreement is not the fault of the school board negotiating team: It is the fault of the teacher representatives who inject into mediations matters not presented at the beginning of negotiations. But the public doesn't hear about that. It hears about alleged "walkouts."

One thing not noted by the teachers and by the other media covering such deliberations is this:

Teachers are now on vacation for three months, generally speaking. They still have their full-time teaching position next fall, generally speaking, and are able to give time to deliberations without any sacrifice.

School board members, on the other hand, are putting in such things as 11½ hour sessions in addition to their regular employment. For this contribution to the school district patrons, board members each receive the princely sum of $500 per year. A mileage allowance is given to board members outside the city of Butler for travel to and from meetings.

The board is "taking a licking" once again, this time because of statements made by a teacher spokesman alleging or inferring a "walkout" by the board.

The school board members need public support. Give them a call. They include J. Reynold Johnson, Butler; Vaughn Billings, Butler; Lloyd McClellan, RR Butler; Lynn Fuller, RR Butler; Earle Kelsey, Saint Joe; Connie Hollabaugh, Spencerville; and Norman Kinsey, Spencerville.

Editor Needs 'Sense Of Humor' Says Journal-Gazette Cartoonist

A few weeks ago, the destruction of a quantity of illegally transported beer in DeKalb County received area-wide attention. Judge Charles Quinn of the DeKalb County Court ordered the beer to be "dumped" after levying a fine on the individual responsible for the illegal act.

A bulldozer was utilized in the destruction of some 80 cases of the beverage. However, the staging of the destruction for the benefit of a Fort Wayne TV news program and photos appearing in newspapers gave the action somewhat of a frivolous appearance.

A "cartoon" appeared in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette suggesting that Judge Quinn had held out some of the confiscated beer for personal purposes. A number of people in DeKalb County took exception to the cartoon, among them the editor of this paper who sent a "letter to the editor" of the Journal-Gazette, the letter appearing in that "letters" column last week. The letter and the cartoonists reply follow:

"It seems your editorial page cartoonist has some 'thing' bugging him about DeKalb County. A few weeks ago, it was a 'drug raid' at DeKalb Eastside High School, involving the use of dogs to sniff out marijuana, which brought a cartoon depicting students as trophies.

"This time it is the destruction of beer by order of the DeKalb County Court which is the inspiration for what would seem to be defamation of character by the cartoonist. The cartoon appeared in your July 1 issue.

"It is little wonder that public opinion about public officials drops so consistently in recent years, when modern journalists and editorial cartoonists make inferences without providing evidence or proof. The suggestion in the July 1 cartoon, however, is hardly subtle. Picturing several cases of beer in the background as Judge Quinn says he knows nothing about some missing cases of beer is hitting below the belt.

"There has been no suggestion anywhere that some of the confiscated beer has come up missing. There has been no hint whatsoever that Judge Charles Quinn is anything but an honorable man, either on the bench or in private life. Indeed, it has been refreshing that a young man of his caliber has been available in DeKalb County to serve in the newly-formed DeKalb County Court to augment the integrity of Judge Harold Stump in the DeKalb Circuit Court. DeKalb County is fortunate to have such capable individuals heading its courts. Such cartoons as appeared July 1 in your paper, based not on fact but on fancy, are inexcusable.

"Judge Charles Quinn has been done a great injustice. As a member of the news media, publishing a smalltown weekly newspaper, I protest such journalistic tactics."

The cartoonist, Dan Lynch, sent the following brief reply to the local editor:

"Dear Ted:

"It's a shame you can't order a sense of humor from the Sears catalog. If it were possible, I'd get you one for Christmas. . . . Because you need one.

Regards,
Dan Lynch
The Journal-Gazette"

The following reply has been made by the editor:

"Dear Dan:

"Thanks for your reply; it is appreciated — even though we are obviously at odds at the present moment.

"Regarding a sense of humor, having been in the smalltown weekly publishing business now into the 29th year, I can assure you that a sense of humor is an essential part of that occupation. For instance, when a subscriber cancels when caught with their hands in the cookie jar (as occurred just recently after we published a factual report of a local school board member pointing out the collecting of unemployment compensation by school personnel other than teachers and the canceller is far from being a 'needy' family), all you can do is smile - in disappointment, however - and keep on going with your journalistic responsibilities.

"Regarding your cartoon, it struck us as being unfair because you identified 'Excise Officer Beerspil,' an obvious contrived name, but you also identified 'Judge Quinn,' a very real person. That is where we think an error was made. Although the use of a contrived name for the judge would not have removed the association of your idea from DeKalb County, what with all the publicity given to the matter, it at least would have been consistent and would have removed the direct inference.

"Hopefully, we can both profit from this experience. Perhaps we took your cartoon too seriously. Perhaps you took the situation too lightly.

"At any rate, we honestly appreciate personal replies and reactions such as yours, even though opposing ideas and views are involved. It is only through such exchanges - sincerely, frankly and honestly given - that a person can grow in understanding human beings - and develop a sense of humor!

Sincerely,
Ted Haberkorn"

Summer Band

The summer instrumental music program for students in the DeKalb Eastern Community School District began Monday, July 12. For those who do not have instruments of their own, instruments can be rented for a trial period through the cooperation of local music dealers.

The program will continue for six weeks and is open to any student in the school district enrolled in grades 5-12.

The schedule at the high school band room, Monday through Friday, is as follows:

8 a.m. flute; 8:30 clarinet; 9 saxophone; 9:30 cornet; 10:00 trombone; 10:30 french horn; 11 percussion.

At the Riverdale Elementary School, the schedule is:

1:00 p.m. flute; 1:30 clarinet; 2 saxophone; 2:30 cornet; 3:00 trombone; 3:30 percussion.

The marching band schedule is:

August 16 through 20—8 a.m. to noon and 1:00 to 4:00 p.m.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylen Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club held their regular monthly meeting in the Spencerville Community Building Thursday evening, June 24. Mr. and Mrs. Lehr Wilder, Leon Goodwin, and Mr. and Mrs. Auber Butler as hosts.

At 6:30 p.m., after a prayer by Ruth Butler, all enjoyed a delicious potluck supper.

President Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. Greetings were extended to all present and best wishes were given to Faye and Audrey Wilmot on their 56th wedding anniversary. Birthday offerings were received.

Since Flag Day was June 14 Ruth Butler read "The Story of the Flag" and Bernice Wilder read "How It Got to be Named Old Glory."

A motion carried that the August meeting be held one week earlier, on August 19. The secretary-treasurer's report was read and approved. The business meeting was then adjourned, and the committee for the evening took over.

Ruth Butler passed a tray of various little items and each person selected one item. We then had to find the person that had the item matching ours, and he or she was our partner for the game Dominee-in-the-Round, and a good time was had by all.

The next meeting will be Thursday evening, July 22, with Nellie Shaefer, Marcella Sechler, Sylvia Guinther, and Leila Rosselot as hostesses.

Same time, same place - hope to see you there!

Church League

With the Saint Joe Church League season now at the halfway mark, two teams are tied for first place, both having lost two games thus far. They are Norris Chapel II and St. Joe CC-Lutherans.

Norris suffered its second defeat Monday at the hands of Coburntown I. St. Joe CC-Lutherans were downed Tuesday by Newville United Methodist.

Monday, July 19—Hicksville v St. Joe CC-Lutherans at 7:15 p.m.; and Coburntown I v Spencerville UM at 9:00.

Tuesday, July 20—Norris Chapel I v Newville UM at 7:15; and Coburntown II v Norris Chapel II at 9:00.

Wednesday, July 21—St. Joe CC-Lutherans v Spencerville UM at 7:15; and Mt. Pleasant UM v Newville CC at 9:00.

Friday, July 23—Mt. Pleasant UM v St. Joe CC-Lutherans at 7:15; and Norris Chapel II v Newville UM at 9:00.

Little & Pony League Activities

—Jerry Vinson, reporter

The Little-Pony League picnic will be held August 7 at Wild Cherry Park. Parents are encouraged to attend.

Raffle tickets are now being sold by the Little and Pony League players and coaches.

Prizes this year are:

First prize: Sony black and white television.

Second prize: Pocket fisherman donated by the Oasis Tavern.

Third prize: GE a.m.-f.m. clock radio donated by the Pony League parents.

Fourth prize: GE steam dry iron donated by Larry Emenhiser.

Fifth prize: two-gallon picnic jug donated by Bob Stiver.

The tickets this year, as always, were donated courtesy of the Saint Joe News. Tickets will be sold at the Lions Club ice cream social July 17.

Little League all-stars (ages 11-12) will be participating in both the Auburn Tourney, July 26-30, and the Butler Allstar Tourney, July 29 through August 9. The team will be well represented with talent. Encouragement will also help these kids.

Riverdale plays Waterloo at 6:00 p.m. July 26 in the first game of the Auburn Tourney. Waterloo, Auburn, Butler, Riverdale, and Leo are entered in the double elimination tourney.

Proceeds from ticket sales and Ted's generous offer of a $2.25 donation for each new subscription to the Saint Joe News will be used to support the leagues next year. A home-run fence for the Pony League is now being sought.

With 19 players leaving the Little League this year, it is hoped another Pony League team can be sponsored from this area next year.

Article Warns Of Legislative 'Reform' Abuses

An article from Washington, D.C., by United Press International this week points out that the public's attention has been diverted from "tax reform legislation" to sex scandals, the Presidential race and other eye-catching events. The article says:

"Yet, if this bill eventually works its way through the Senate and a conference with a House bill, it will affect the lives of every American for decades to come.

"The legislation is called the 'Tax Reform Act of 1976,' but so far, no one is seriously referring to it as a 'reform' bill."

The lack of public attention leads members of Congress to leave things as they are or to vote for a small amendment that "might correct an 'inequity' that just happens to put $10 million into some industry's treasury," the article says.

Some provisions of the bill appear to have a public interest purpose, the article notes, but many are simply "giveaways." Also, the bill is crammed with new special interest tax breaks, a surprising fact inasmuch as "tax reform" has been talked of in terms of removing tax breaks rather than expanding them.

Continuing, the article says:

"Suppose, for example, a bill reached the Senate floor to give $18 million a year for the next 50 years to profitable railroads. It likely would be defeated or would be rewritten to give the money to the railroads that need it most.

"Yet, there is an amendment in the tax bill that would do just that. It would allow railroads to write off against their income the value of tunnels and grading in place prior to 1969, something the Internal Revenue Service ruled they could not do on the basis that tunnels and grading have an indefinite life. Any asset with an indefinite life cannot be depreciated."

Continuing about the "reform" deception, the article notes:

"A tax 'reform' group led by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., did not even mention this (the railroad matter) and other railroad amendments in the group's list of liberalizing amendments.

"In fact, even the liberals demonstrated that they have their sacred cows.

"The Kennedy group's amendment to crack down on tax shelter operations specifically exempted residential housing from the curbs on real estate tax shelters.

"In the meantime, Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., has skillfully outmaneuvered the 'reformers' and has swamped almost all of their amendments anyway.

"Long does not believe that increasing taxes on industry amounts to reform. Many industries need even greater tax incentives, he feels.

"Therefore, the definition of 'reform' even becomes hazy.

"As Long often says, 'Tax reform means don't tax you, don't tax me. Tax that fellow behind the tree.'

"Reporters for the wire services and the nation's major newspapers have closely covered the deliberations in the Finance Committee and on the Senate floor. But television networks have almost ignored the bill."

The article concludes by noting the danger in lack of information to the public:

"Meanwhile, there is a group which has not ignored it: lobbyists.

"Every day, dozens of lobbyists and lawyers sit patiently through committee and Senate sessions, hanging on every word and reporting the most minute details to their bosses.

"Senators and House members know they will hear from the lobbyists, sometimes immediately. If they know they will not hear from the public, then the decision sometimes becomes too easy," the UPI article concludes.

Senior Citizens Activities

Mary Meschberger of 906 North Van Buren in Auburn has been appointed site representative to the newly formed Northeast area III Nutrition Advisory Council. Her duties will include liaison work between the council and the DeKalb Nutrition Site for senior citizens at the Immaculate Conception Church in Auburn.

Jo Johnson, site director, reports an average of 26 participants per day. The site opens each day Monday through Friday, at 10:00 a.m. for social interaction. Lunch is served at 11:45 followed by an interesting program. Programs for the remainder of July include "Adventures in Europe" with Louise Imus as hostess, "Law and Order" with guest speaker Larry Thrush, and the Bainbridge Band in concert. The EMS unit of DeKalb Memorial Hospital will be at the site for inspection. Grace Baker will share her experiences of three months on a freighter to Yugoslavia. The site will be closed July 28 as over 100 DeKalb County senior citizens will attend the area III Senior Queen contest at a picnic in Franke Park, Fort Wayne, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

In the capable hands of Jo Johnson, director, and Mary Meschberger, representative, the Senior Center provides many hours of entertainment, education, socialization, travel, and delicious meals. Reservations for lunch at the Senior Citizen Center must be made one day in advance by calling toll free, 1-800-552-3662.

In connection with Senior Citizens' activities, the Third Annual "Day in the Park for the Young at Heart," sponsored by the Kiwanis Club for Senior Citizens in the nine counties of northeastern Indiana, will be held Wednesday, July 28, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Franke Park in Fort Wayne.

About 4000 older residents of the nine-county area will be admitted free to the various attractions of the park, including the African Veldt and the zoo.

The program will be highlighted by the selection of the Area III senior queens who willl compete for the Indiana senior queen title at the Indiana State Fair in August. Nine queens, one from each of the counties, will compete at Franke Park.

A noon dinner of "chicken and fixins" will be served. Reservations should be made by July 21 at the Title VII Nutrition Program locally or by enclosing a check for $1.00 per person and a self-addressed return envelope to the Allen County Council on Aging, 227 East Washington, Fort Wayne 46802. The meal ticket will be sent by return mail.

Oldsters Visit

Mrs. Gale Bowser and her mother, Audra Wade of Spencerville, Esther Bowman of Meadowhaven in Butler, April Davis and Kitty Bowser of St. Joe were Tuesday luncheon guests of Mrs. Roy Bowser.

Audra and Esther are two of the oldest residents in this area. As young wives, they were friends and residents of Spencerville in the early 1900's. Mr. Bowman owned and managed a drug store there. Mr. Wade was Depot Agent and Telegrapher for the Wabash Railroad.

The two elderly ladies are 93 years old this year, and they enjoyed their afternoon luncheon and the "visiting." Their conversation was enjoyed by the rest of the group.

Even Kitty - sixteen years old, was amazed and delighted with the wit, sagacity, and humor of their conversation. The ages of the group totalled 284 years.

—that Roy Bowser and Grandson Kim Bowser and Gale Bowser of Spencerville spent last week fishing at Longlac, Ontario. They report a fine trip, good weather and their "limit" of fish.

—that a limited amount of scholarship aid is still available for fall entry to students in Saint Francis College's second degree program in accounting or business administration.

—that "Mr. Z," Johnny Zimmerman and his wife Suzie of Hamilton, are parents of a son born last week. Mr. Z is a member of the DeKalb Eastside faculty and assistant baseball coach.

—that the brother of Virgil Slentz, owner of Slentz Elevator at Saint Joe and Grabill, died last week.

—that the school board meets Monday at 8 p.m. The agenda includes adoption of teacher handbooks, attendance at a workshop August 11 at Huntington, review of the 1977 proposed budget, consideration of Principal Robert Williams' recommended discipline and attendance policy, consideration of bus drivers' suggestions and any other business to come before the board.

—that the DeKalb County Welfare Department has already overrun its hospital and medical budget. County councilmen added $5,000 to the original $21,000 budget, but that isn't expected to be adequate for the remainder of the year.

—that through the efforts of site director Jo Johnson, DeKalb participants have travelled to British Columbia, sparked up their fire safety thinking, heard a talking book and are looking forward to the Van Pelt express to the sunny shores of California according to an item in "Coming of Age," publication of the Northeast Area III Council on Aging.

—that Jo Baum of Chicago is visiting the home of her parents MM Roy Bowser.

—that Stan Hall pitched a six-hit, 5-0 shutout for the DeKalb Eastside Blazers Tuesday at Garrett. Double-headers are scheduled for Thursday and Friday this week.

—that MM Maynard "Pug" Robinson visited his parents at Saint Joe, MM Joe Robinson, the past week. "Pug" is a contractor in McDonough, Georgia, and his wife is a school teacher.

—that "Dave the Barber" Hagar is clipping again, having enjoyed a two-week vacation. The family went on a fishing trip to Canada for part of their vacation (it rained every day, he says), and enjoyed some other pleasure activities back home.

—that Mike Duke, Jim Witte, and Dan Johnson of Saint Joe got their picture in the Auburn Evening Star recently, riding their three-man bicycle. The vehicle has two bicycles welded together with the seats elevated about three feet higher than usual, plus a rider's seat on a crossbar for an extra passenger.

—that a "news blackout" was imposed last week in mediations in the Garrett school district. Such a move has not been made in the Eastern DeKalb district negotiations.

—that the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District accepted the low bid of $19,359.50 of Brooks Construction Company to repair the bus loading zone pavement at the high school.

LEGAL NOTICE

The DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, 360 E. Washington Street, Butler, Indiana, by and through the Board of School Trustees will receive sealed bids in the Office of the Superintendent of Schools until 8:00 p.m. on August 26, 1976. The bids will be for: 1. Number 2 fuel oil to be delivered to the tank at the Riverdale School, Saint Joe, Indiana, to the tank at the Butler Elementary School, Butler, Indiana, and to the tank at the old high school gymnasium, Butler, Indiana.

The fuel oil bidder will agree to make absolutely every legitimate effort to deliver transport lots to either tank site within 24 hours of his being notified by telephone by the school authorities of the need for oil. All tanks involved are eight thousand (8,000) gallon capacity.

On rare occasions (once or twice a contract year) the school authorities reserve the right to order a transport quantity and split the load by dumping a portion at the Riverdale School in Saint Joe, Indiana, a portion at the Butler Elementary School in Butler, Indiana,or a portion at the old high school gymnasium in Butler, Indiana.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive bid price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price quoted can be adjusted both upwards and downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will be responsible by contract for delivering number 2 fuel oil from September 20, 1976, through September 20, 1977. The school will measure all tanks and notify the successful bidder twenty-four (24) hours in advance of the real need for oil. The estimated consumption of fuel oil in round numbers for the year described would be approximately 50,000 gallons plus or minus.

2. Leaded regular gasoline having a 91.3 octane rating or greater to be delivered to the 12,000 gallon underground storage tank on school property near the Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School in Butler, Indiana.

The school authorities will stick the gasoline tank and keep the successful bidder advised of the need for gasoline when the need is equal to a full tanker load, and the successful bidder must agree to make absolutely every legitimate effort to deliver a transport lot to this one site within 48 hours of said reporting of the need for gasoline.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price quoted can be adjusted upwards or downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will beresponsible by contract for delivering gasoline as stipulated September 20, 1976, through September 20, 1977.

The estimated consumption of gasoline in gallons in round numbers for the contract period would be approximately 30,000 gallons plus or minus.

All bids for both the fuel oil and the gasoline must be properly submitted on Revised Form No. 96, and the Board of School Trustees reserves the right to waive any and all formalities of the bidding and to accept or reject any and all bids.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

'PeeWee' Tourney Here July 26-29

Ron Eichel, president of the Little League, has announced the schedule for a "PeeWee Baseball Tourney" to be held at the Saint Joe diamond July 26, 27 and 29.

The "PeeWees" are the 8, 9 and 10 year olds who are not usually in the starting lineups for the regular Little League team activity. It gives all players an opportunity to play baseball.

The July 26 game will find Garrett facing Leo. The July 27 game is between Butler and Riverale. The championship game will be played July 29 between the winners of the first two games.

Games start at 5:30 p.m.

Summer Recn

—Mary Bopp, reporter

The tennis tournament for the children in the local recreation program began July 19. The players compete in singles, doubles and mixed doubles. Winners will receive trophies.

The tourney will continue through August 12. The public is invited to attend the tourney. Daily matches begin at 8 a.m.

A kickball tournament will be held July 20, 22 and 27. The team winning two out of three games will receive ribbons.

There will be a picnic Friday, August 13, at Wild Cherry Park for the children involved in the recreation program. Trophies won during the summer will be awarded along with other items of recognition for achievements during the summer recreation program.

The picnic begins at 12:30 p. m. and will have a small cost of 25 cents per child, payable at picnic time.

New 'Phone Switchover Made Saturday With But Little Difficulty

The switchover from the old telephone exchange equipment to the new electronic equipment by General Telephone Company early Saturday morning was made with very little difficulty encountered by General Tel technicians and subscribers in the local exchange.

Shortly after 4 a.m., Angola District Manager Larry Clark, who has been instrumental in helping to get the new system for Saint Joe, pulled a fuse and thus disconnected the old exchange equipment in the small cement block building on Third Street which housed the equipment. Just behind that building, a new and larger building contains the new electronic system. Technicians have been working there the past several months, installing new equipment. They continued to work there Saturday morning when the switchover was made and will continue until final detail work on the system is completed.

According to Mr. Clark, local telephone subscribers apparently were waiting to give the new system a "trial run." At about 7 a.m., Saturday morning, calls began going through the system in large numbers. And no major problems were encountered.

The local editor was "burning the midnight oil" at a little after 3 a.m. Saturday morning, working on last week's paper. He went to the telephone office and took some pictures, a few of which are shown here:

Herb Hekter left, Ron Gunkel center, and Larry Clark check new equipment prior to Saturd ay morning's switchover to an electronic telephone system at Saint Joe.

In the old building, Herb Hek ter, Larry Clark and Bob Parker phase out the old exchange sys tem.

GS Troop 29

—Nancy Garman, reporter

Junior Girl Scout Troop 29 held a meeting July 19 at St. Mark Lutheran Church with nine girls present.

After the flag ceremony, pledge and promise, discussion was held on many topics. Included were: changing the day and time of regular meetings and the county fair Scout Parade.

We then had a game and some songs, and closed the meeting with the Friendship Circle.

Our next meeting is August 2 from 2 to 4 p.m. See you there, girls.

Saint Joe CC To Have Prison Evangelism Rally

An area-wide Prison Evangelism Rally featuring THE NEW CREATIONS is scheduled for the night of July 26, at the Church of Christ, in Saint Joe. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

THE NEW CREATIONS is one of the finest men's trios singing Country Gospel music. They are in constant demand by both state and federal prisons and reformatories and serve the penal institutions throughout the American Rehabilitation Ministry located in Joplin, MO.

The objective of A.R.M. is to convert the inmate to Christ through a seven-point plan that includes:

(1) Conducting religious assemblies inside the institutions;

(2) Challenging Christian couples to provide a foster home

(3) Urging Christians to get involved in the Pen-Pal program;

for a child which is presently incarcerated.

(4) Contacting families and loved ones on the outside;

(5) Enlisting a full-time prison evangelist in each state;

(6) Placing an inmate in each of our loyal bible colleges;

(7) Providing adequate correspondence courses for the inmates.

In addition to the best music this side of Heaven, persons attending will be priveleged to hear of the baptism of a young man on death row....how an escapee from prison found Christ while on the run....and an inmate who was stabbed ten times and left for dead because he would not deny his faith.

All seats are free. Don't miss the thrilling story of how the Gospel of Jesus Christ is being taken over the concrete walls, through the steel bars, and into the unevangelized cells of our American prisons and reformatories.

A large family Bible will be given to the person bringing the largest number of vistors to the program.

Angola District Manager Larry Clark pulls the fuse shortly after 4 a.m. Saturday, marking the end of the old exchange.

Saturday morning, a crew of operators call every number in the Saint Joe exchange to see that all phones are working. Wendel Brown, at rear, super vised the telephone check.

There were several others w orking Saturday morning who are not shown in the photograp hs. It was a tedious procedure, inasmuch as the Butler, Aubu rn and Spencerville exchanges had to be coordinated in Saint Joe's electronic system.

4H Events

The public presentation of the 1976 4-H Dress Revue will be Monday night, August 2 at 8 p.m. at the DeKalb High School Auditorium north of Auburn. One hundred clothing and Craft members are expected to participate in this annual event.

After 4-H project exhibits are checked in at the Exhibit Hall on Wednesday, August 4, from 2 to 9 p.m. and judged privately on August 4, the graded exhibits will remain on display for public viewing. The Exhibit Hall open hours are 2-9 p.m. Friday; August 6; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, August 7 and 1-6 p. m. Sunday, August 8.

The selection of the new 4-H King and Queen will begin at 8 p.m. at the Fairgrounds on Thursday, August 5. The 4-H members will compete for the two honorary positions by giving brief speeches on the "Highlights of My 4-H Career."

The 4-H Horse and Pony Show will begin at 10 a.m. on Friday, August 6 and the Dog Obedience Show starts at 1 p. m. Sunday, August 8.

Five different events will occur on Saturday, August 7 at the fairgrounds. The Tractor Operators Contest will run at 10:30 a.m. The third annual Dairy Goat Show starts at 2:30 p.m. with milking contest, goat race and showmanship included. Food Preservation exhibits will be judged at 4 p.m. while flowers will be judged at 7 p. m. at the Exhibit Hall.

School Board OK's Handbooks, Budget; Money Greater Problem

The school board met Monday night and approved a budget for the 1976-77 school year totalling $1,780,208. This represents an increase of $118,874 over the current budget of $1,661,334.

Superintendant Kenneth Cole, whose responsibility it is to prepare the annual budget and submit it for board approval, noted that the new budget includes a 6% salary increase for all teachers, including increment, and a 7% raise for non-certified employees.

The superintendent emphasized that the budget includes some $520,000 assessed valuation for Penn-Central property in the school district, which should result in some $28,000 tax income from that assessment. But due to the bankruptcy of the railroad, there is no tax income, but the assessed value and resulting tax obligation must be shown in the school budget, even though it is a "false income" item.

The superintendent said the school corporation is getting into a tighter and tighter financial situation with each new budget.

After a review of the Riverdale Elementary, Butler Elementary, and Eastside High School Teacher Handbooks, they were adopted. The board also adopted student regulations as suggested by high school principal Robert Williams. School discipline has been an item of concern with teachers as well as the school board. The situation this year climaxed on the last day of school when Butler police were called to the school property following reports of unsafe driving and what some sources have described as "unbelievable" actions and language by a significant number of students.

A committee of Earle Kelsey, Norman Kinsey, Connie Hollabaugh, Mr. Williams and band director Richard Foster was appointed to meet with a band student committee about school bands, marching band and the summer schedule.

Working together is the only way.

Keeping electricity coming is a big job.

It's more than just taking care of the day-to-day problems of supplying power. It's also making sure we have enough fuel and facilities to keep up with the increasing needs of our area.

And the needs are growing. For instance, our electric requirements are almost double what they were ten short years ago. Simply stated, electric power continues to be called upon to do more and more things in our work and in our homes.

Keeping up with this increase is tough. It requires the best of everyone. It also requires planning, new facilities, and unfortunately, a lot of money.

And frankly, we can't do it all by ourselves.

That's why we need your cooperation. You can help by using electricity wisely. And by your understanding of the joint responsibility for supplying our future electric needs. It's a critical ingredient in our power partnership.

We know that asking you to work with us is asking a lot. But when you get right down to it, working together is the only way.

Newville Twp. Home Ec Club Sends Letter Backing President On Father-Son, Mother-Daughter Ruling

The Country Cousins 4-H Club was entertained by the Newville Township Home Ec Club in the home of Belva Smith, Hamilton Lake, with officers as hostesses on July 14.

After a delicious pot luck dinner and a cook-out of shish-kebabs, hobo tin can meals and a blueberry muffin cake baked in pie tins by Freda Engle, Dorene Singer and Zella Collins, the Country Cousins held their meeting.

There were five members of the Country Cousins, their leaders and one mother present. Bobby Collins gave a demonstration on how to make an attractive poster. The girls went swimming after the meeting.

Then President Doris Hart called the Newville Township Home Ec Club meeting to order and all repeated the National Creed. Judy Morrisson gave devotions using the Christian Standard bible.

Freda Engle, Dorine Singer and Zella Collins gave a lesson on outdoor cooking on a grill.

Lelia Wright wrote a letter to President Ford complimenting him on vetoing the rule banning Father-Son and Mother-Daughter affairs for school, which was signed by all.

Twenty members gave a historical event for roll call. Bernice Wilder became a member.

August 11 will be the next meeting with Lynn Kizer and Cynthia Sipe as hostesses. Place is not definite, so members will be notified.

Did you know

—that Michael Steven Beatty was born July 9 at Buffalo Grove, Illinois, the son of MM Steve Beatty. Saint Joe branch bank manager Mary Beatty is now a "Gramaw."

—that Jim Goldner of Saint Joe is still recovering from back surgery performed several weeks ago. He has been unable to work for several months.

—that Clifford Hull of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital recently.

—that Bernice Sechler of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital recently.

—that the county council's dream of a low-cost remodeling job for the 60-year-old DeKalb County Jail received no encouragement from consulting architect J. Parke Randall. "I really question expanding in that space," said Randall, who described the remodeling of the sheriff's residence for office space as a "makeshift job." The biggest roadblock, said Randall, is meeting fire regulations which would be more strictly enforced if remodeling work is done. Although the jail portion of the building is of fireproof construction as required by state codes, the residence portion is not. "By the time we update everything to meet the (fire) code, it would be possible to spend $100,000," he said. "I doubt if you would get that much value out of it." Randall has recommended construction of a new jail to cost around $750,000 or more.

—that Larry Beaty is stationed at Ft. Campbell now. He and his family live at 1814 South Walnut Street, Hopkinsville, Kentucky, 42240.

—that MM Jack Close of R1 Auburn are parents of a 9 lb. son born recently at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that J. Reynold Johnson was re-elected president of the DeKalb Eastern school board as new members were sworn in and the board chose new officers recently. T. Lynn Fuller was named to the post of board vice-president and Connie Hollabaugh was re-elected secretary. Norman Kinsey and Earle Kelsey were the new board members who took the oath of office, which was administered by Johnson.

LEGAL NOTICE

The DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, 300 E. Washington Street, Butler, Indiana, by and through the Board of School Trustees will receive sealed bids in the Office of the Superintendent of Schools until 8:00 p.m. on August 26, 1976. The bids will be for: 1. Number 2 fuel oil to be delivered to the tank at the Riverdale School, Saint Joe, Indiana, to the tank at the Butler Elementary School, Butler, Indiana, and to the tank at the old high school gymnasium, Butler, Indiana.

The fuel oil bidder will agree to make absolutely every legitimate effort to deliver transport lots to either tank site within 24 hours of his being notified by telephone by the school authorities of the need for oil. All tanks involved are eight thousand (8,000) gallon capacity.

On rare occasions (once or twice a contract year) the school authorities reserve the right to order a transport quantity and split the load by dumping a portion at the Riverdale School in Saint Joe, Indiana, a portion at the Butler Elementary School in Butler, Indiana,or a portion at the old high school gymnasium in Butler, Indiana.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive bid price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price quoted can be adjusted both upwards and downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will be responsible by contract for delivering number 2 fuel oil from September 20, 1976, through September 20, 1977. The school will measure all tanks and notify the successful bidder twenty-four (24) hours in advance of the real need for oil. The estimated consumption of fuel oil in round numbers for the year described would be approximately 50,000 gallons plus or minus.

2. Leaded regular gasoline having a 91.5 octane rating or greater to be delivered to the 12,000 gallon underground storage tank on school property near the Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School in Butler, Indiana.

The school authorities will stick the gasoline tank and keep the successful bidder advised of the need for gasoline when the need is equal to a full tanker load, and the successful bidder must agree to make absolutely every legitimate effort to deliver a transport lot to this one site within 48 hours of said reporting of the need for gasoline.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price quoted can be adjusted upwards or downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will beresponsible by contract for delivering gasoline as stipulated September 20, 1976, through September 20, 1977.

The estimated consumption of gasoline in gallons in round numbers for the contract period would be approximately 30,000 gallons plus or minus.

All bids for both the fuel oil and the gasoline must be properly submitted on Revised Form No. 95, and the Board of School Trustees reserves the right to waive any and all formalities of the bidding and to accept or reject any and all bids.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Grid Coach Leaves Eastside

The coaching staff at DeKalb Eastside High School has lost another member.

John Fallis, head football coach for the Blazers since 1972, has contracted to be head football coach at Jennings County High School. Mark Bixler left Eastside several weeks ago to accept a coaching assignment elsewhere.

Under Mr. Fallis, the Blazers reached a peak in 1974 when they had an 8-1 record. Other years showed 3-6 in 1972, 3-7 in 1973 and 6-4 in 1975. He was a strict disciplinarian in coaching his charges and his efforts were reflected in an increasingly spirited squad.

Al Peugeot, who has been assistant football coach, will reportedly be moved up to the head coach position.

Martha Johnson

Funeral services for Martha B. Johnson, 72, were held Friday at Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville. She died unexpectedly Tuesday of last week while on vacation in Superior, Wisconsin.

Born October 15, 1903, in Michigan, the deceased married Edward Johnson who survives. She was a member of Farm Bureau, the Rehobeth Ladies Aid Society and the County Line Church of God. The Johnsons home address is County Road 68, R1 Spencerville.

Survivors include the husband; a daughter, Patricia Whitson of Arlington, Virginia; a step-daughter, Donna Varhola of Detroit; and two step-sons, William Johnson of Fort Wayne and Frank Johnson of Butler.

Rev. John Johnson officiated at the funeral and burial was in Cedar Chapel Cemetery.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

On behalf of the Indiana Highway Commission please let me thank you for your very kind letter of June 29 concerning the safety improvements made on State Road 1 between Saint Joe and Butler.

We are always happy to hear that citizens are aware of our work and are pleased with it.

Safety is our number one priority and we are especially glad to know that changes we have made in the interest of safety are proving to be valuable ones.

I am also very gratified that you considered our changes important enough that you took time out from a very busy schedule to write and let us know of your thoughts.

Again, my thanks.

Very truly yours,
Roger E. Marsh
Executive Director

Our letter expressed appreciation for last year's leveling of two hills at the intersection of SR 1 and County Road 40. —Ed.

Dear Ted,

Several times I have wished I could write more easily so I might send items of Saint Joe history, giving from one end of town to the other, telling of former business places.

Enclosed is check for $3.50 for year's subscription.

Sincerely,
Marjorie Ramsey
1400 Medical Park Drive
Fort Wayne, Indiana

Dear Editor:

Will you please put in the next issue something like this:

"Work is progressing on the DeKalb County Directory. Elizabeth Tuttle is the enumerator for St. Joe and Concord Twp. Neva Provines has Union Twp."

Your item of a couple of weeks ago contained an omission—so that no one could learn where Mrs. Tuttle was working.

When you make an error, you should be willing to correct it. I expect to see the item in the next issue—right this time.

Hope you have a good vacation—better than last year.

Margaret Drerup

We failed to make the correction in last week's issue. So, this ought to clear things up. —And thanks for the vacation good wishes. —Ed.

To Celebrate 50th Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. MARK STUCK

MM Mark Stuck of R1 Saint Joe will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary August 7 at the Spencerville Community Building from noon to 6 p.m.

The reception is planned by nieces and nephews of the couple.

The Stucks were parents of two children, Marjean Elizabeth and Jackson Edward, who died in infancy.

Mr. Stuck was employed by the B&O Railroad and later Fruehauf Trailer Company in Fort Wayne for 29 years.

Mrs. Stuck taught school 34 years, 27 of those years in the Garrett-Keyser-Butler system.

MM Stuck were in military service during World War I. Each has 33 years of continuous membership in American Legion Post 178 at Garrett.

The couple invite their many friends and neighbors to the reception and ask that gifts be omitted.

Pony Leaguers Win Division Title

Pictured above at front are Jon Johnson, Jerry Markle, Freeman Busche. Jr., and Bill Esselburn when the Saint Joe Pony League "B" team was presented a trophy for winning the B-division regular season championship.

The local team is gathered in the background.

The Saint Joe team was undefeated in B-division play.

In the tourney played at Saint Joe recently, Kendallville defeated Garrett 13-2 before Saint Joe downed Butler 18-10. In the losers' second game, Garrett eliminated Butler 14-7.

Saint Joe then defeated Kendallville 12-6 after which Kendallville eliminated Garrett 8-4.

In the final game, Saint Joe won 13-3.

The "B" tourney championship moved Saint Joe into "A" division competition tourney-wise. The Eastside team defeated Saint Joe 8-4 and Kendallville also downed the local team 10-5. Garrett won the tourney and Eastside was second. Both qualified for the state tourney at Foft Wayne.

Rick Keener and Frank Emerson from the Saint Joe team were placed on the Eastside 18-man roster for the state tourney.

General Tel To Have Open House Social Here Sunday, August 8

To acquaint local residents with the new telephone system and to show the versatility of the system not only in handling calls but also in tracing any problems which might arise, General Telephone Company will hold an open house Sunday, August 8, from 2 to 5:30 p.m.

Through a meeting requested by Angola District Manager Larry Clark and set up locally by Booster Club President Ted Haberkorn, the local fire department auxiliary has tentatively agreed to provide the refreshments for an ice cream social to be held in conjunction with the open house, with auxiliary members assisting in hosting the social. Serving will be at St. Mark Lutheran Church just across the street from the telephone office.

Beverly Mansfield, president of the auxiliary, attended the meeting and is in charge of making serving arrangements. The auxiliary will receive a $400 minimum for its assistance to the telephone company at the social.

A display of the various styles of telephones is planned for the open house-social, as well as information from General Tel personnel about the workings of the electronic system.

Others at the recent planning meeting included Mary Beaty, Knisely Branch Bank manager at Saint Joe and a member of the Booster Club board of directors; Mr. Clark; Mr. Haberkorn; and Louise Rennecker and Virginia Barker of General Tel's public relations office at Fort Wayne's

Pre-Kinderg'n School At Harlan

Holy Trinity Lutheran Pre-Kindergarten School at Harlan has hired teachers for the 1976-77 year.

Returning to teach the 3-year-old class is Meg Jaequay from Grabill. Meg has a 2-year associate degree in Mental Health and comes with experience to serve the school.

Also returningto teach the 5-year-old class is Meg Bloom, having her B.S. in Special Ed and Elementary Ed from Northeastern Illinois University. Meg has also experience working with young children.

Phyllis Reeb will be teaching the 2-day 4-year-old class. Phyllis has taken the course on early childhood education at I. U. and served as teachers' aide last year.

Linda Burger will be teaching the 3-day 4-year-old class. Linda is in the process of getting her teachers degree. Last year Linda worked with a Kindergarten teacher in the Fort Wayne Community School. She brings her musical talents to our school.

Betty Ruckman is director of the total program.

Holy Trinity offers a special music and motor skills development time during each school day. Those who attend Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings 9 to 11:30 have the opportunity to play with others their age and learn about the world around them.

There are a few openings. For information call Betty Ruckman at 238-4261 or Marsha Koop, 657-5726.

—Edward Schantz, reporter

Attendances lately have averaged about 65 per Sunday due to people on vacation, at camp, etc.

Our special Prison Rally had 98 people present. It was a good rally. The singers had a motorhome breakdown in Illinois and one of the three had to take it to Chicago for repair.

The other two men, Don Pruitt and Ken Sanders, did a great job of singing and playing and telling of the prison ministry. This group, The American Rehabilitation Ministry, is now working in about 40 states of the Union.

Lori Laux received the large Bible for having 19 people out at her invitation. We do thank all who had a part in this.

Sermon August 1 is, "The Generation Gap?" On August 8 the minister's son, Dan Schantz of Moberly, Missouri, will be with us to bring the morning message.

"The Northmen," a group of men and boys will be meeting in the north woods of Michigan near Kalkaska on August 3, 4 and 5. All who attend have to provide their own camping facilities.

The annual Bible Conference will be at Lake James Christian Assembly August 8-14 (Monday afternoon through Friday noon). The public is invited.

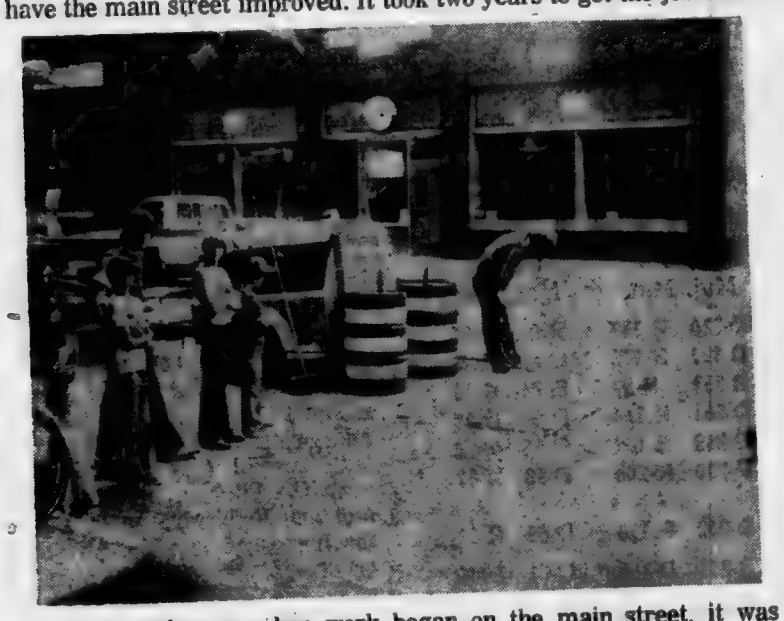
Resurfacing Enhances Local Main Street

When the State Highway Department recently resurfaced State Road 1 (Washington Street) through Saint Joe, the work brought back the appearance which had resulted in 1962 when the right-of-way was improved and pavement widened. The above photo was taken in 1960 in front of Brown Furniture & Hardware, showing the two-lane pavement in use at that time with the berm made up of dirt and gravel. Rain made a "mess," as can be seen in the photo. The Town Board at that time undertook efforts to have the main street improved. It took two years to get the job done.



A few weeks ago when work began on the main street, it was necessary to do some repair work on the old pavement before applying a new surface. The past winter and spring were especially damaging to the road, hundreds of holes appearing in late winter and early spring. The highway department filled the holes some three times but the work was not too effective due to rains. In the above photo, an air hammer is used to break up a section of pavement, with some local young "foremen" overseeing the job.

When the first Polaroid photo was ready on-the-spot to be inspected for quality, the kids took it over to the man operating the air hammer so he could see what he looked like "in action."

After the pavement was broken up, it was scooped up and removed, to be replaced with a coarse sub-base of stone and blacktop before the finish coat was applied. Such preparations are necessary because new blacktopping in time takes the same shape as the surface beneath it—a bump in old pavement covered with new blacktop eventually causes a bump in the new surface.

Following the repair work and preparations, new pavement was applied by Brooks Construction Company of Fort Wayne, with a brand-spanking new machine, the cost of which runs into the thousands. Above, John Stowe, in white shirt at left, project engineer from the Fort Wayne District Office of the State Highway Department, inspects the application of new pavement at an alley where the new surface must be "feathered in" with surrounding pavement. Mr. Stowe's supervision helped to provide a base covering the full width of the street, despite limitations of a $26,000 maximum allocation for the project.

Here is another view of the paving machine, showing the attention given to evenness of application by the machine and constant brushing in of loose pavement at the edges before heavy rollers compact the pavement into a smooth surface.

Despite the use of heavy machinery in resurfacing Saint Joe's main street, "elbow grease" is still essential in seeing that the job is done right. Here is shown the smoothing of loose blacktopping at a street intersection as new pavement is "feathered in" with old.

The overall effect of the project brought welcome relief for local motorists from constant jarring on the old roadway—and compliments from out-of-towners on the neat appearance once again evident on Saint Joe's main street, the result of State Highway Department efforts, especially Mr. Stowe, and the conscientious work done by employees of Brooks Construction Company.

Bridging The Generation Gap

A good illustration of the way in which the public can become misled occurred a couple of weeks ago. It also illustrates how the "generation gap" is more a matter of variant circumstances experienced by young and old than of a lack of ability to "get along."

In a conversation with a local resident, age 21, about the sex scandal and then on to political matters in Washington, this friend said something like, "Well, the Republicans have been in control for several years now with Nixon and Ford, haven't they?" The comment made me realize that for today's 20-to-30 year olds, Republican Presidents are nothing unusual. But for me, in the interim between Hoover and Eisenhower, it was nothing but Democrat Presidents in my youthful days comparable to today's younger generations and their exposure to politics. In fact, I grew up under 20 CONSECUTIVE YEARS of Democrat Presidents!

This illustrates a "generation gap" which is a fact of life, not a fault. I forget oftentimes that, unless I TELL younger people some of the recent past history concerning politics which I have experienced along with their parents, they don't understand why I become so upset over current matters. They don't understand why I "harp" on the fact that Republicans haven't really controlled this nation for 44 years—or even the past eight years. They don't understand why I consider them so gullible when, as in this case, they think Republicans have been in control because they have seen Republican Presidents as often as Democrat Presidents—and they have not been taught in government classes that the Congress legislates, the President administrates. They have not been taught the power of the people is through the Congress, not the President.

Today's youth are susceptible to the idea that "Republicans have been 'in' for eight years; it's time to put a Democrat in the Presidency." They are impressed by that suggestion, even when it's made by such as our Fourth District Representative, J. Edward Roush, WHO HIMSELF HAS BEEN "IN" FOR 16 YEARS AS A MEMBER OF CONGRESS! Isn't THAT long enough?

And why is it all right to give Democrat Presidents a Democrat majority in Congress time after time. But only one Republican President has been given a majority in Congress, and that majority for President Eisenhower amounted to the tremendous total of "1" in the Senate! (see table)

Yes, the Democrat majority was small a few times. But the driving force in legislative matters was still in their favor due to the significant majorities in other years.

So-called "independent" voters have increased in numbers in recent years. This is a constructive development ONLY if it means those voters consider correct information, weighed against principles, rather than party affiliation of candidates. I can't for the life of me figure out how so many Fourth District voters can consider voting for a Democrat President this fall on the basis that eight years is enough for the Republicans — and vote for Democrat candidates to the Congress who are themselves officeholders AND MAKERS OF THE LAW OF THE LAND for longer than any Republican President in the past or candidate in the present.

If the younger voters think eight years is too much, have they ever been told pointedly that a Democrat, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, ran for President FOUR CONSECUTIVE TIMES AND WON FOUR CONSECUTIVE TIMES? Have they been told that when Mr. Roosevelt ran the fourth time, he was neither physically nor mentally capable of carrying out the duties of the Presidency? Yet, the Democrat Party nominated him and the voters put him back in office. Why? Because the American people were not told the truth about his health. He was then a symbol rather than a leader. (Is the word "coverup" appropriate????)

It is tragically funny to me — and here again young people don't understand why — that today's Democrat leaders raise a loud voice for revealing personal assets, for making income tax returns public knowledge, for questioning the physical and mental health of Presidential candidates — to get the public's sympathy and support, to continue the idea that Democrats "best represent the welfare of the people." It is a deception, because seeking "open government" contradicts past Democrat leadership which has in fact condoned and instituted the abuses of power the public now rebels against. Historically, it has been Democrats who carried out the greatest coverup in our history of Presidential elections when Mr. Roosevelt ran for a fourth term when physically and mentally incapable of performing his duties as he had in the past.

Another coverup occurred in 1972 when Tom Eagleton failed to mention his emotional problems of the past (which were by then overcome). But it wasn't the oversight that was so significant. It was the lying by Presidential candidate George McGovern, the ultra-liberal, still a Senator today, — it was George McGovern who said he was behind Mr. Eagleton "a thousand percent" — but told his aides to dump Mr. Eagleton as a running mate. Keep in mind that "liberals" are "for" everybody, are more tolerant than anyone else, are more concerned about people—at least, that's what liberals "sell" about themselves.

Young people would probably say, "Well, as far as Mr. Roosevelt is concerned, he probably was elected the fourth time, despite his health, because the people were grateful to him for leading them out of the depression of the early 1930's." That's what young people might say today, if they believe what they have heard and don't investigate the depression of the '30's and unemployment and so on.

But—the truth of the matter is: UNEMPLOYMENT WAS ALMOST AS HIGH IN 1938 AS 1932! MR. ROOSEVELT DIDN'T LEAD THE U.S. OUT OF A DEPRESSION; PREPARATION FOR WORLD WAR II CREATED JOBS AND REDUCED UNEMPLOYMENT.

As the November election approaches, it bears repeating:

Democrats have controlled Congress for 40 of the last 44 years. And thus—

Democrats have controlled legislation for 40 of the last 44 years. And thus—

Democrats have the burden to justify our massive and costly social-welfare programs, costly military actions, the tax loopholes, the legislative favoritism — all of which add up to a national debt of 600 billion dollars. And they just overrode a Presidential veto in order to spend more money to "create jobs," thus adding even more to the national debt.

When you hear Democrat candidates say, "It's time for a change," they're right. But they're misleading the public in the change they suggest—elect a Democrat President and put more Democrats in Congress.

The change we need is to GIVE A REPUBLICAN PRESIDENT A REPUBLICAN MAJORITY IN CONGRESS, a significant majority so that it will be really true that "Republicans are in control." Include with those Republicans the Democrat Congressmen who have been sounding a warning themselves about the dangerous situation we are in—but they have been outnumbered by the dominating liberal element in the Democrat Party.

Anyone who says Republicans have been in control at any time in the past 44 years is either distorting history or has been misinformed. Those who try to sell the idea are guilty of a "coverup" that beats Watergate all to pieces.

I hope my young friend reads this. I hope there is something here which was not realized or known by that friend. I am grateful for the frankness, openness and honesty with which that friend's comments were made. Because of those comments, my eyes were opened to one of the reasons for the "generation gap." In this instance, the gap is due to different Presidential circumstances in the lives of different generations, plus lack of information or erroneous information to which younger people are exposed.

For me, part of the generation gap has been closed.

I now understand why young people are influenced by today's liberals. I hope they understand me better, too. The welfare of all of us is at stake.

Scout Bake Sale

Saint Joe Cadette Girl Scout Troop 192 are having a bake sale and bazaar Saturday August 7 at the Knisely Bank lobby in Butler.

We will have pies, cookies, brownies, decorated cake, and homemade bread and also craft items. Please look us up when you're in Butler for Butler Days.

CC News

—Edward Schantz, reporter

Attendances August 1, 1976 were 61 for bible school and 88 for morning worship. We were glad to see so many out.

Dan Schantz, son of Ed Schantz, is to speak Sunday August 8. Terry Ulm will be preaching in place of the minister on August 15 while he is away.

The Bible Conference at Lake James Christian Assembly has ben cancelled due to lack of interest.

Recently the church had its colored glass windows repaired. In a few days the men will be coming back to place storm windows over the three large windows. This will give protection from the weather and vandals.

New Student Enrollment

The DeKalb County Eastern offices at the Butler and Riverdale buildings will be open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, beginning Monday, August 16, Charles Ray, principal, announced recently.

New residents in the community who have children of kindergarten through sixth grade age are urged to enroll them at the earliest possible date.

Any child eligible for kindergarten who missed the spring registration should also be enrolled before the starting of school. To be eligible, a child must be five years of age on or before September 1, 1976 and must furnish a birth certificate at the time of registration.

Classes in grades one through six will begin Monday, August 30. Kindergarten will begin Tuesday,, August 31, but perents are urged to bring their children in on August 30 and acquaint them with the teachers and classroom as well as pay the necessary kindergarten fees.

Anyone needing further infor the Butler (868-2123) or the Riverdale (337-5111) Elementary school office.

Re-assessment To Begin

DeKalb County assessor Ralph Myers announced that field work for the revaluation of DeKalb County will soon begin, and Field Listing Technicians will be visiting each parcel of property within the county to gather physical data. The Field Listing Technician is the data gatherer of the appraisal business. It is his or her responsibility to determine physical facts such as the type of foundation that each house has, the number of bathrooms, the of exterior, the kind of roof, and the material with which it is covered. This Field Listing Technician will not make value judgements, nor will this person determine or have any knowledge of what the final value will be. The Field Listing Technician is responsible for gathering physical facts and data upon which a final judgement as to value will be developed.

The Field Listing Technician is responsible for making an inspection of the interior and exterior of each parcel of real property. Your cooperation is solicited in allowing the Technician to view both the interior and exterior of your property with special emphasis placed upon the kitchen, the bathroom and any finished area in either the basement or attic. Any other special house features are, of course, also of special interest to the Technician.

The license plates, makes of cars, and names of each Field Listing Technicians are on file with the County Sheriff, and also with the local police. So if ther are any questions in your mind regarding the authenticity of the individual's credentials (each Field Listing Technician will carry an identification card signed by the County assessor, and indicating that he or she is an employee of the United Appraisal Co.) do not hesitate to contact the local authorities to verify license numbers and personnel.

The revaluation program is devoted to assuring that each pays his fair share of the real property tax load and no more. These Field Listing Technicians will gather the physical data on which judgements as to value can be developed.

Sp'ville UM To Have Social

Spencerville United Methodist Church wil have an ice cream social Saturday, August 14, starting at 5:30 p.m.

The menu will include homemade ice cream, cake, sandwiches, pie and beverages.

The public is invited to attend.

Teacher Subs Are Needed

Anyone interested in working as a teacher substitute at the elementary level in the DeKalb Eastern School District should contact either the Butler or Riverdale School office after August 16,, Principal Charles Ray has announced.

Principal Ray noted that interested persons should give their names, phone numbers, grades preferred, days of the week that are the most convenient, and whether or not they can work at both elementary schools or just one.

The Riverdale School office phone is 337-5111 and the Butler Elementary School phone number is 868-2123.

Open House, Social Sunday For New $300,000 'Phone System

The public has been invited to attend the open house and ice cream social hosted by General Telephone Company this coming Sunday, August 8. Hours will be 2 to 5:30 p.m.

Those attending will have an opportunity to see the "insides" of the new electronic telephone system recently put into service for Saint Joe exchange customers. The equipment is housed in a new building on Third Street, just a half block south of the main street, on the east side.

General Tel personnel will be on hand to explain the workings of the system—and perhaps the reasons for problems which are being experienced with the new system. With the elimination of 8-party lines and phasing in of 2 and 4-party lines, plus the need to adjust, coordinate and "tune-in" the various segments of the new equipment, some difficulties have been encountered. But they should disappear as the phasing-in process continues.

Technicians are working daily at the new building to complete the necessary work. It is obviously a case of more than just disconnecting one system and connecting another.

To add to what is planned as a pleasurable occasion, General Tel has asked the Auxiliary of the local fire department to serve at the ice cream social to be held in conjunction with the open house. Serving will be held at St. Mark Luth ran Church, just across the street from the telephone office. Beverly Mansfield, president of the Auxiliary, is in charge of the social. General Tel personnel will also be assisting with the serving.

Information pertinent to the telephone system as a whole will be available to those attending the open house and social.

Among the innovations with the new system are "touch-tone" dialing, which isn't dialing at all but push-buttons—and no operator interruptions on long distance calls for those with single-party or "private" lines. The calling number is recorded and billed automatically by computer.

So—come to the open house and ice cream social, and view in person the equipment now in operation in the Saint Joe telephone exchange—and meet a few of the people who helped to make the over-$300,000 system a reality for this community.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

In setting the school's annual report last week, I noticed that one of the expenditures related to someone named "Sexauer." It reminded me of an "oldie" which might have occurred in the superintendent's office (but didn't) if someone were trying to locate that individual:

Caller: Hello - do you have a 'Sexauer' there?"

Virginia: "No - but sometimes we have a wing-ding of a coffee break when the superintendent isn't around."

I recently used the term "bat girl 'lovelies' to describe the Eastside baseball team's helpers during the past season. They received a national placing in competition with bat girls from other schools.

Now two of them, Dawn Billings and Bernadette Rubalcaba are entered in the Miss Northeast Indiana Pageant to be held this month at Auburn. Another Eastside "lovely," Rhonda Lothamer, is also entered in the pageant.

Good luck to all three.

When Larry Emenhiser stopped in to pick up some pictures he and the family took on a recent trip to California, Colorado and other points west, he noted that his parents, MM Ronald Emenhiser of Saint Joe, lost their camper in the flash floods which have caused an as yet undetermined number of deaths and millions of dollars in property damage and loss. They were camped in one of the canyons with other tourists, but they decided to take a trip to Boulder. While they were gone, the floods came.

That's what you call coming pretty close.

Sarah Amstutz sends the following note:

"Ted—

I am sending this and if you want to print it fine - use your own best judgement. I would not be offended if you did not print it.

As ever
Mrs. Sarah Amstutz

Since such volunteer items are what kep this paper going newswise, it's no imposition to to quote Mrs. Amstutz' item:

"I have returned from my third year of attending one week of the two-week school of the 1976 Appalachian Regional School for Church Leaders.

The school was held on the beautiful campus of the University of West Virginia at Morgantown. This is a very large campus. We were housed and classes were held in one of the 9-story Tower buildings.

The people attending are from many different states and denominations of churches. Classes are held in many different courses of study - pastor, lay worker, social worker, chaplin, and many more.

One learns to know many different persons - for we have meals served at small tables and almost every meal is eaten with others.

This year I attended a class taught by a pastor from Pittsburgh that works full time as a chaplain in one of the hospitals. He was a polio victim and has been in a wheelchair for fifteen years. He is a devoted Christian man with a very full life.

My daughter did a class of 26 persons and did the topic "I Am Living Today," looking for personal insight and taking time to evaluate goals and directions as a Christian person - in our homes, church and our work."

—Thanks for sending it in.

CARD OF THANKS

To all my wonderful friends—Words can never express the thankfulness in my heart for the many friends that remembered me with cards, flowers, prayers and words of encouragement while I was in the hospital.

When pain seems more than one can bear and when a loved one takes your hand smiling through tears and says 'Fight hard. we need you!' renewed strength comes from our Father from above and helps you carry the cross.

So thanks to you ALL and may God bless each and every one of you.

Sincerely,
Pat Roberts

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

We want to thank you for your letter to the Editor of the Journal-Gazette about the unfunny cartoon of the Coors beer and Judge Quinn. We wanted to write a letter about Lynch's "warped" sense of humor,, but could not put into words just what we felt and wanted to say. You said it so well for all of us who know Judge Quinn personnally and professionally, and we thank you for it. We have known him and his family personally for quite a few years and have worked with him on many community projects. We have found him to be a young man of very high integrity and a sincere concern for the well-being of others. Once again, THANK YOU for a well-written "letter to the editor."

Sincerely,

Sincerely,
Kim and Fred Folden

Garrett, Indiana

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you very much for the lovely stationery. I will enjoy it very much.

It was most generous of you to donate this and help make our Mothers' Day party the success it was.

I couldn't have won a more useful gift.

Thanks again and best wishes to you and yours.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Martin Walter

Callie Ridgway

Funeral services will be held Friday for Callie Ridgway, 82, of Saint Joe who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clayton E. (June) Baker early Wednesday morning. She had been in failing health for six months.

Mrs. Ridgway was a lifelong resident of Saint Joe. Her husband, Derwood, died several years ago. She was a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Maurice Hollabaugh of Spencerville and Mrs. John Sicks of Pierceton; a son, John Kenneth Ridgway of Garrett; a brother, Glen Wineland of Saint Joe; and a sister, Mrs. John Strombeck of Saint Joe. There are 20 grandchildren and 46 great grandchildren.

Rev. Wilbur Miller will officiate at the services at St. Mark Lutheran Church and burial will be in Riverside Cemetery.

FARM BUREAU

DeKalb County Farm Bureau Women Leader, Mrs. Carl Perkins and DeKalb County Farm Bureau Secretary, Mrs. Hugh Myers, attended a press conference luncheon June 30 at Win Schuler's in Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Farquharson, president of the ACWW (Associated Country Women of the World) granted a press conference with all the Farm Bureau news reporters of District II and also with Wayne Rothgeb of WKJG—TV. She is a widow from Liphook, Hampshire-in-England. She has no children and is a book publisher.

ACWW has eight million women belonging to 70 countries which was started in 1930. They hold a world conference every three years. A group from DeKalb County attended when it was held in Lansing, Michigan, several years ago.

Some of the goals of the organization are to improve living conditions in rural areas as well as in towns. To preserve and improve understanding between people and to help people to help themselves are some others.

When asked how they got the money to operate their workshops and scholarships, we were told that four-fifths of their money comes from Pennies for Friendship, of which Farm Bureau helps support. She told of workshops on nutrition, crafts, sewing, food preparation, child care and marketing.

She was asked if she believed in equal rights for women, and she gave an affirmative answer. She said that on Ellis Island men do all the leading, women stay behind, and that men can't even ask the advice of a woman.

When she was in Africa, she asked a tribal chief if he wanted women to learn better how to care for their children, food care and preparation, he said yes, but with one stipulation: he didn't want the men to become lean and hungry.

In India, for lack of vitamin A, youngsters become blind quite young so ACWW has started nutritional "Save the Sight" programs there. She said one cup of green vegetables every day would combat the blindness.

So far ACWW has not been invited into any Russian country to help, and some other countries do not want help, as they regard it as unwanted charity.

You have an energy-saving device right at the tip of your finger.

In the hands of the right people, the tip of a finger can be an impressive device that helps keep electric costs in line.

Especially when that finger flips off light switches, radios and television sets before it leaves the room.

Or when it nudges refrigerator doors closed between snacks and waits until the dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers are filled before it turns them on.

No one's going to tell you that running around your home turning off lights and things will dramatically lower your electric bill. But it can help. In the battle to keep your bills down, conserving power is an important weapon.

And, while you're fighting on the home front, we're working to help keep your bills in line, too. By continuing to expand our search for economical fuel sources and to hold the line on building and operating costs.

Working together. It's the only way we can hope to lick the problems that affect the cost of electricity today. And tomorrow.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

Arts Council News

At a reoganizational meeting held recently, the Auburn Arts Council approved articles of incorporation, adopted by-laws and elected directors and new officers. Previously the council operated informally with only a president and secretary and no formal statement of purposes and procedures.

Under the new form, a board of directors consisting of nine persons will administer the business requirements of the council. Those elected directors are as follows: Nancy Fites, Steve Andres, Dodie Allman, Jason Outland, Dick Lieb, Gladys Edwards, John Wilson, Retha Butler, and Jody Butler. Activities of the Council will be run by committees to be appointed by the president.

Jason Outland, who has been active in the Act I theater group as well as the Council, was elected president to succeed Philip Butler. Other officers elected were Nancy Fites as secretary, to succeed Retha Butler, Dick Lieb vice president and Steve Andres treasurer.

The organization will have a membership at large of not more than 50 persons. Future officers and directors will be elected from that group. Under the new arrangement, the Auburn Community Arts Council, Inc., will qualify as a tax-exempt charitable organization.

At an earlier meeting, it was decided not to sponsor the Philharmonic Museum series for the 1976-77 season. The Council felt that although the Museum provided a marvelous aditorium, the physical limitations of lighting, staging, and seating required postponement of the series until such problems could be overcome. The Philharmonic was notified of the suspension of the series by letter which commended the interest and enthusiasm of the conductor, Thomas Briccetti, and the cooperation and talents of the Indiana Chamber orchestra.

In other business it was decided to continue the annual Dickens Dinner which will again be held at the Museum, and other programs will be sought for the remainder of the season. The Sunday in the Park was dropped this summer because of the numerous bicentennial activities but is expected to be resumed in the summer of 1977.

The council will be working toward filling its general membership and persons interested in becoming council members are urged to contact any of the council officers or directors.

Senior Housing

With the possibility of senior citizen housing becoming a reality in our area there are many questions on the who, what, where, why and how of this type housing.

The DeKalb County Council on Aging, made up of representatives from each township in the county, is sponsoring an information meeting open to any interested area resident.

The meeting will be held Wednesday, August 18, in the assembly room of the courthouse at 7:30 p.m. Guest speakers are: Mr. R. Bowman, director of Housing Production and of Housing and Urban Development, Mr. Fritz Poffenberger, Indianapolis office of HUD, J.A. Sanders, mayor of Auburn, and Dennis Hastings, developer and contractor of senior citizen housing.

The DeKalb County Republican Women's Club will sponsor a family picnic Wednesday, August 11, at 6:30 p.m. at Waterloo Park. Dan Quayle,, 4th District Congressional candidate, will be featured guest.

Meat and drinks will be furnished. Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish and table service.

The public is invited to attend and meet candidates for the fall election. In case of rain the picnic will be moved to the Waterloo Library basement.

Letters to the Editor

Because you are a concerned citizen, I know you receive a great many appeals for your political support. I hope you will forgive me if I make one more appeal for your help. Believe me, I would not do so if I did not feel the political situation right now in this country is critical, and the future of America literally depends upon what you and I do about it in the next few weeks.

As you probably know, I resigned from the Democrat Party in 1973—after a career of public service that included three terms as Governor of Texas, a term as Secretary of the Navy, and finally a term as Secretary of the Treasury.

I switched to the Republican Party simply because I believe the Democrats have abandoned the principles upon which this great nation has been built, and for which the Democrats once stood.

They believe in big Government spending:

And to put it simply, the Democrats in Congress go home and tell the voters one thing—and then go back to Washington and vote the exact opposite.

And during the last 16 years, while they have had a majority in Congress, they have increased the federal budget from $92.5 billion in 1960 to a proposed $415 billion in 1976. The budget they have voted for is $17 billion greater than President Ford asked for—and it will hit you and every other taxpayer in the pocketbook. Yet today the Democrats say they are against big government.

They believe in penalizing producers and workers:

At home the Democrats talk about lowering taxes. In Washington they talk about redistributing the wealth by taking it from those who have earned money and giving it to those who want to be cared for from the cradle to the grave. It's your wealth they plan to redistribute through "tax reforms" that would place an even heavier burden on the average taxpayer.

So critical has the situation become, that under a Congress controlled by the Democrats for the last 16 years, there are 81 million people receiving some type of government support today, as compared with 71 million people working in the free enterprise system.

The fact is that the Democrats are leading this country down the same path that has brought Great Britain to her knees.

They believe in deficit spending:

Under Democrat control of Congress the value of the dollar has declined over 20% in the past four years—our national debt now exceeds $604 billion—and yet Congress recently gave itself a cost-of-living raise plus increased allowances for staff travel, and tax dollars to pay for the letters that they write home to their constituents telling them how well they're defending the taxpayers' interests. While spending more and more for welfare and bureaucracy, they have failed to provide America a proper defense budget.

Two hundred years ago our forefathers established a government based on the theory that a free people could best govern thmselves with liberty and justice for all. They said:

"We hold these truths to be self evident that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that include life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—

—that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it,— —and to instill new government laying its foundation upon such principles - as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

Today the Party of Jefferson has abandoned these principles of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. The Democrats now believe that we Americans do not have the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—WITHOUT government intervention and regulation! They don't believe we are capable of exercising freedom properly. They say we are incapable of self-government, and that the federal government must run our lives for us.

The Democrats have now signaled the Communists in Angola as they did in South Vietnam that no matter where the Russians and Cubans strike, we will not oppose them. When the Russians and Cubans moved into Angola, the Democrat-controlled Congress actually passed a bill forbidding the President from giving any aid to the anti-Communist forces. They guaranteed a Communist victory, giving the Russians a key Naval base that dominates the southern Atlantic and the whole West Coast of Africa.

I feel now that if something isn't done to stop Democrat Congress in its unwise meddling in American foreign policies and undermining of the domestic American economy and social structure, this country is in grave danger of going down the drain.

I feel it is my duty as an ordinary American citizen to do anything I can to combat the effort to convert America into a second-rate world power and a socialist nation. I appeal to you to help me now to emphasize the dangers that face us. The most effective thing that we can do is to elect a Republican President and a Republican Congress.....

I believe that we and other loyal Republicans must back up the Republican National Committee which is leading the battle to elect not only a Republican President, but also more Republican Senators and Representatives to Congress. We can do this by making a modest financial contribution to the Committee — so that they'll have the money they need to carry out their very hard-hitting plans. If each of us who support the Party will give just $25 now (even if we have already given this year) it could make the difference between success and failure this November.

I apologize for the length of this letter — but I'm sure you will agree we must act — and act now.

Most sincerely yours,
John B. Connally

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Frank Sechler passes along the following item about Stan Kinsey, son of Jim Kinsey, a former resident of Saint Joe. The information comes from the DePauw Alumnus magazine:

"Stan Kinsey '76, a June University graduate from Garrett, Indiana, has been named winner of the University's Fred C. Tucker Memorial Award. Announcement of Kinsey's selection was made by Director of Athletics Thomas A. Mont.

"The Tucker award recognizes the senior man who has contributed the most to University intercollegiate athletics in ability, leadership and mental attitude.

"The award is given each year by Fred C. Tucker, Jr., Indianapolis business and civic leader, University trustee, and son of the four-year DePauw athlete and 1908 graduate in whose memory the award is presented annually.

"Kinsey this year was named Most Valuable Golfer in the Indiana Collegiate Conference meet, in which he was a medalist. He finished in the top seven of the league in four consecutive years of competition. A mathematics major, he was a Dean's List student, a member and officer of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, a participant in international study in Greece, and a member of the scholarship-leadership monorary Gold Key. He plans a career as an architect.

The DePauw golf team took third in the National Collegiate Athletics Association Tournament and came in second by just one point in the ICC meet last fall. Stan, Colin Smith and Tom McShane gained all-American honors at the national meet.

After a church league game, Keith Culler found a Little Leaguer's glove at the ball diamond this week. He says it has "BOOP" printed on it. The owner can claim it by calling Keith.

—I wonder—could that be "BOPP" instead of "BOOP"?

The Little League All-Stars from Riverdale were downed 3-1 by Edgerton Saturday in a tourney championship game at Butler. They then entered a tourney at Leo this week.

The local Pony Leaguers also were in a tourney at Leo this week and were defeated 8-0 by a Fort Wayne team.

To show how far the "rights" and "equality" movement can go, the board of education of the Stark County Perry Local School District (O) has passed a rule prohibiting female students from growing beards or mustaches. They had to. Federal officials said other limitation discriminated against male students!

—And there are those in the ERA (Equal Rights Amendment) movement who still insist that passage of that amendment WON'T bring the use of the same rest room facilities by males and females.

Cub Scouts To Meet Tuesday

A Cub Scout Committee meeting of Pack 3172 will be held at the Spencerville Methodist Church on Tuesday, August 17 at 7 p.m.

This is an organizational meeting to plan the activities for next year. The Pack needs adult leaders for all positions including Cubmaster and Den Mothers. The parents of any boy ages 8-11 who would like to join Cub Scouting are requested to attend.

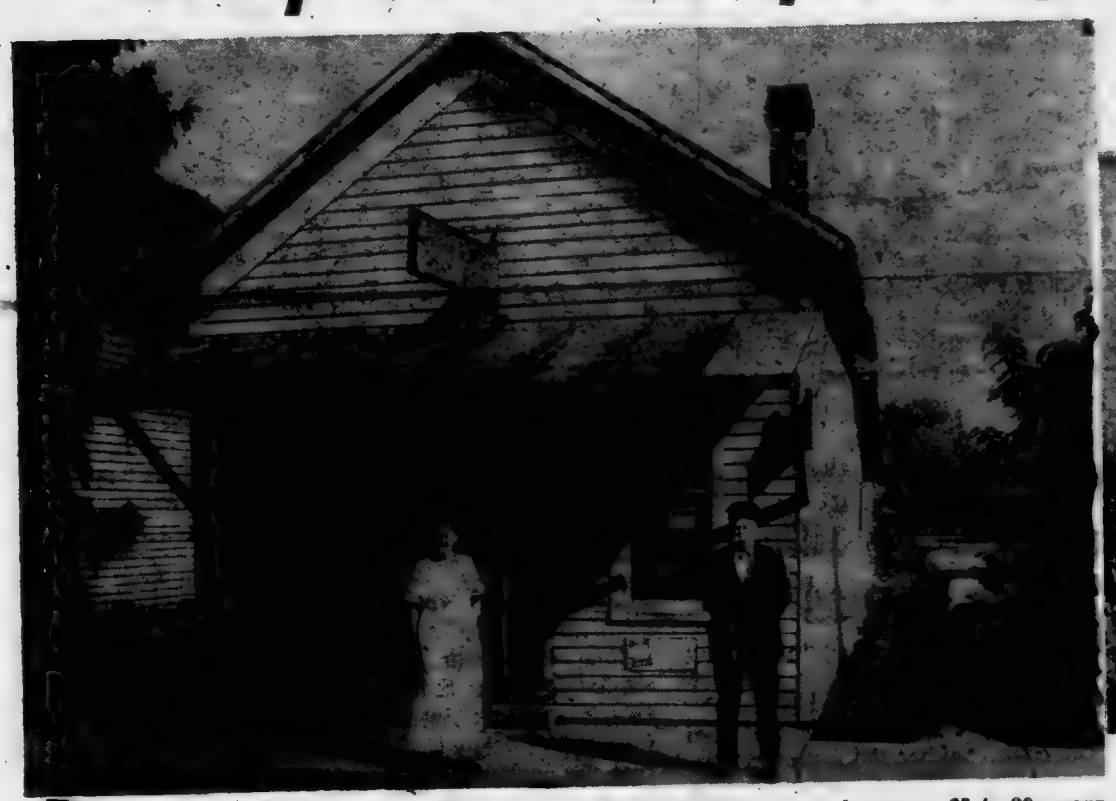
Baileys Ran Creamery-Grocery Many Years on Main Street



From time to time, local residents of past and present bring photographs to the News Office which are clear enough to reproduce for the benefit of other readers. Fern Carr brought in the accompanying photos from her family background.

Fern's and Thelma Hart's grandparents, John Champhor "Champ" Bailey and Mary Mavis Bailey, were owners and operators of a Cloverleaf Creamery and grocery. It was located on the west side of the alley which runs between the present Robinson and Monroe properties across from the local hardware and furniture store. The Baileys ran the business for some 25 to 30 years. Part of the routine of running that business included horse-and-wagon trips to Fort Wayne by Bob Bailey for butchering of meat. Ferns says the above photo was probably taken somewhere around 1920. The Bailey residence is seen partially at left.

A front view of the Bailey home shows Mary posing on the front walk. The home is now owned by MM Joe Robinson. It has been enlarged and remodeled through the years by interim owners. The creamery-grocery building is seen partially at right. The large evergreen in the above picture stood on the property for many years, finally being toppled in the early 1960's by a heavy snowstorm. The small barn seen between the house and grocery building is still in use as a garage.

Three other local residents from "the good old days" are shown above in front of the creamery-grocery building. At left is Tom Abels, next is Morris "Moxie" Curie, then Jay Bleeks and at right, "Champ."

The News appreciates receiving old photos which help the kids in the community of today to know what Saint Joe looked like in years past.

Councilman Kain Makes A Point—or—Can We Afford EMS?

The DeKalb County Council has "reluctantly" approved a 20-year lease agreement for new EMS (Emergency Medical Services) quarters at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. It will cost county taxpayers $9,600 a year for the next 20 years to pay for the EMS portion of planned extensive expansion of total hospital facilities.

I make note of this because the vote was 6-1 in favor of the proposal, although more than one council member expressed concern about the long-term obligation before the vote was taken. The only one who backed his concern with an actual "no" vote was Roger Kain. I think Mr. Kain deserves a pat on the back for standing up for his convictions. Also, I personally am impressed by his stand because he knew the first reaction to his negative vote would be "he's against the EMS." A WIFF-radio interview gave him the opportunity to say that his concern was for the future; he feels a "wait and see" approach would be better.

I am in Mr. Kain's corner because I know from experience that, as soon as a criticism is made about a program or project, you are immediately classed as "against" whatever and whomever may be involved in the program. People are, unfortunately, inclined to take such criticisms personally, especially when they are themselves in some way related to the program. Like Mr. Kain, I am not against EMS or good hospital care. But I am fearful of the cost of certain programs, such as EMS, which have good intent but are so often not considered in the light of actual need or the extent of the need.

Fort Wayne's EMS budget for next year is something over $600,000. The city fathers must come up with that amount of money to fund EMS. They MUST come up with the money; EMS is a mandatory program. Our county council had to appropriate $50,000, as I recall, to keep EMS going after a federal grant started the ball rolling. Now we have a $100,000 liability over the next 20 years — and who can say (as things go now) that the obligation won't become greater within those 20 years? (The $9,600 per year for 20 years is IN ADDITION TO tax money and private fees required for EMS administrative and operational needs.)

I'm not against what EMS is supposed to do. However, I am against increasing the cost of medical care by such a program when the majority of calls answered by EMS are not life-or-death circumstances. It's nice to have trained EMS personnel on call. However, in actual and practical terms, they cannot do much more than the average citizen who has had Red Cross First Aid training. The paramedics on a popular TV program have led the public to think that the emergency care depicted on that show is what we get from the DeKalb County EMS program. The public forgets that the TV-show emergency personnel are in direct contact with a licensed medical doctor when they give treatment beyond basic emergency care. We don't have that in DeKalb County and we can't afford to have it.

My reluctance from the start has been centered on the question: can we afford EMS? It is a good thing when a life is saved. But we cannot provide personnel and facilities for every kind of adversity which may befall the average citizen—though that seems to have been the trend set by our legislators for several years, to provide for every adversity.

There are some things we can't afford, and one of them is EMS as it is now being extended. I personally think it is unrealistic and too costly to pay four full-time salaries in DeKalb County for EMS administration and personnel. And favoritism has crept into the county program, as was noted by Mr. Kain in explaining his "no" vote. Mr. Kain "questioned the fairness of paying for an Auburn facility while not doing the same thing for Butler and Garrett."

Thanks, Mr. Kain, for having the gumption to stick to your guns. It's too bad a few other county councilmen didn't do the same thing and make the entire matter an issue to be noted by the public (if the vote had been 4-3), rather than go along with what they were told about the "needs" of the EMS at Auburn.

Too many programs get a foothold in our society because of the emotional pitch used to "sell" those programs, the selling job done by those whose income is derived from the continuance of those programs. You hear only the "good" part from those individuals. It takes someone like Roger Kain to point out the practical side in terms of dollars and cents relative to actual benefits derived, and to point out the need for caution in expanding "public welfare" programs.

I suggest readers give some thought to Mr. Kain's outlook. EMS is becoming an economic monster — despite the contributions of time made by the several EMS volunteer workers in the county who are on call on a rotating basis and serve you and me without pay—a living example of the brotherhood of man.

Tire Safety Tips for Summer Driving

In the hustle and bustle of planning a summer trip in a recreational vehicle, trailer or family car, don't forget to check your tires. Failure to do so could result in a costly accident or delay which may be avoided.

Excessive road heat is a tire's greatest enemy. This is particularly true for small diameter trailer tires which normally rotate up to 80 percent faster than regular tires.

You don't need to be a tire expert to tell what shape your tires are in. First, look for potential trouble spots — cuts, fabric cracks, uneven or excessive wear. Remove nails, small stones or glass embedded in the tread. Have damaged spots repaired if they are deeper than the tread.

Treads worn below 1/16th inch or to the wear bars molded across the tread, should be replaced. Wear depth can be measured with a penny—if the top of Lincoln's head shows when inserted into the tread, the tire needs replacing.

Abnormal Tread Wear

When tires wear rapidly or abnormally, the problem is often faulty or worn shock absorbers, wheel inbalance, improper wheel alignment, faulty or grabbing brakes, or incorrect tire inflation. The most common problems are:

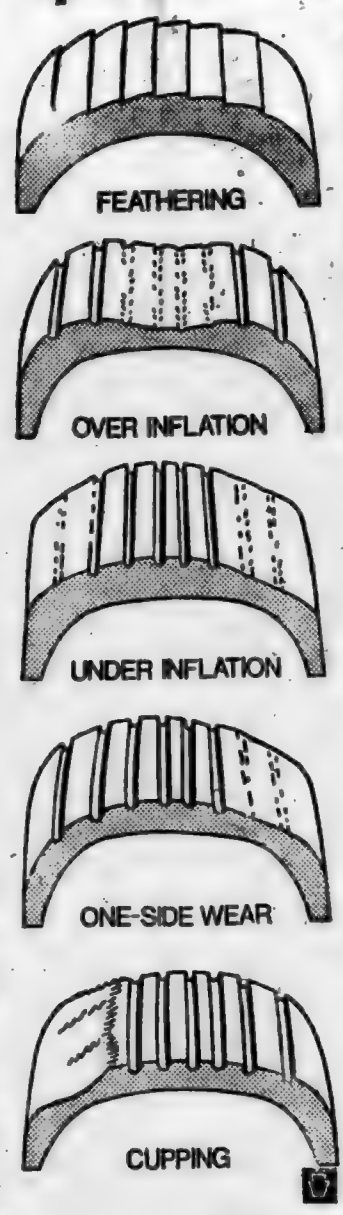
—Underinflation, when most tire contact is on the outer treads, causing the edges to wear faster than the middle.

—Feathering, when the tread ribs actually scrape down the road — common when the tire needs toe-in or toe-out alignment.

—Cupping, when wheels are out of balance or the shock absorbers and ball joints are worn, causing dips or cups to appear in the tread.

—One sided wear, when either the outer or inner shoulder of the tire wears faster than the rest. This is commonly caused by improper wheel alignment camber, often aggravated by underinflation.

If the tire hasn't worn out completely, chances are that proper mechanical adjustment will stop abnormal wear. But if the tire has been severely damaged, it should be replaced.



sider a retread. Many quality retreads on the market today offer wear time equal to that of new tires—and at a fraction of the cost.

With improved, automated processes for retreading, flaws that gave early retreads a bad name have been eliminated. In fact, new tire manufacturers are taking note of retreaders successes and in many cases are using identical processes. For example, AMF's Cushtread process, in which [illegible] rubber is automati-manufacturers for the building of new radial tires.

A booklet titled "What you don't know about retreads" is available free from AMF Tire Equipment Division, 3715 Sunflower Avenue, Santa Ana, California.

Few people realize that any tire—new or retread—needs a breaking in period to adjust to the road. As a rule of thumb, hold your speed to less than 45 mph for the first 100 miles or so, until the tire's elements adjust and work as an integral unit.

The Ups and Downs of Proper Inflation

Correct inflation is the most important rule for tire safety and life. Pressure should be checked before a long trip, and periodically along the way. But be sure the tires are cool when checked — the reading will normally increase six pounds or more if the tires are hot from driving. Don't bleed hot tires to bring the pressure down to a normal level.

Inflate tires only to limits recommended in the auto manual. Never inflate beyond those limits in an attempt to compensate for heavy loads, and never underinflate a tire. Underinflation causes excessive heat build-up, uneven tread wear, and if you're towing a trailer, severe trailer sway, fishtailing and loss of control.

Also important are such factors as load weight and distribution. When packing for a trip, don't exceed the vehicle's rated load capacity. Overloading risks premature tire failure through excessive heat build-up.

Equally critical is load distribution. For maximum efficiency and stability, equalize loads side-to-side, fore-to-aft, following the manufacturer's recommendations. Loose items that might shift during transit should be secured.

While surveys show [illegible] than one percent of all highway accidents are directly attributable to tire failure, in more than half these cases the tires were bald and worn to the cords. The Tire Industry Safety Council cautions that bald tires are 50 times more likely to suffer [illegible]

Teacher Subs Are Needed

Anyone interested in working as a teacher substitute at the elementary level in the DeKalb Eastern School District should contact either the Butler or Riverdale School office after August 16,, Principal Charles Ray has announced.

Principal Ray noted that interested persons should give their names, phone numbers, grades preferred, days of the week that are the most convenient, and whether or not they can work at both elementary schools or just one.

The Riverdale School office phone is 337-5111 and the Butler Elementary School phone number is 868-2123.

What Do You Believe?

One of the trends of the past several years in the literary, movie and television world is to take an incident or a personage and write a book or prepare a production around that incident or personage. Unfortunately, to make the product more acceptable to the public—usually meaning more spectacular—varying degrees of alterations are made. The result is that we have many people under the impression that what they read and what they see is truly "the way it was." Thus, we have a misinformed public.

I didn't see the movie, "Hindenburg," but from spot previews on TV, I have the impression that a story was told in the movie to explain how that aircraft's destruction came about. If this is true, then we have millions of people who consciously or subconsciously think they know the story behind the dirigible's explosion. They're wrong; there never has been an official explanation of the cause of the explosion to my knowledge. The only explanations were speculation about the true circumstances—related to static electricity.

Two newsmen have written a book, "The Last Days," supposedly depicting the final moments of Richard Nixon's Presidency. Among the "facts" presented is that Mr. Nixon turned to drink—heavily—as he saw his administration crumble. Many critics of the book have pointed out that some of the intimate details in the book could not be stated so definitely unless the writers were present—which they were not. But their book is a best-seller. So, we have more people under the impression that they know what was going on in the White House in those troubled days.

A movie, "All the King's Men," is related by the public to Richard Nixon. While they might not admit it, the public is inclined to accept what they see as the "real story about real people." So, again, we have millions of people with definite impressions and opinions about a situation which did not exist, events which did not occur, as depicted on the screen.

The current sex scandal in Washington finds one of the office cuties who spilled the beans about personal relationships and intimacies also the author of a book telling of sex scandals in Washington. The public immediately thinks that one of the Congressional characters is a man currently under fire because of the office cutie's allegations. It doesn't impress the public that the publisher had suggested holding off on release of the book to get more publicity, an obvious plot to prepare the way for the publisher and the office cutie to make millions, literally. What is remembered by the public is that the writer of the book, "telling all" about sex in Washington, is a real person who was on the staff of a Congressman.

In this and other instances of women being "taken advantage of" by their employers, one thing consistently overlooked is—they could have quit any time if it was THAT bad!

I noted in a recent issue that a listing of best-sellers in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel's "Week-Ender" divided the categories as "fiction" and "other." It formerly was common practice to designate "fiction" (made-up stories) and "non-fiction." Such a change does a disservice to the purpose of correctly informing the public. The listings should put such books as "The Last Days" in the fiction category simply because the contents are mostly hear-say or allegations. The writers were not present. "Other" is too general because it allows fiction to become supposed fact.

Fiction has its place in the literary world. However, there are those who are cashing in on the public's gullibility in associating a fictional with a similar factual situation. In the process, the factual situation is distorted because the fictional approach is made more exciting, more palatable, more entertaining. And innocent public figures become characters in a book rather than becoming real persons facing the same basic problem which confronts all others—coping with one's own human nature.

Cigarettes now are packaged with a printed warning of the possible danger to one's health in smoking. A warning ought to be emphasized also on the cover of a book or in advertising to promote a movie that the contents are fictional. Cancer of the mind is worse than cancer of the lungs.

TB X-ray Dates

The Mobile TB X-Ray Cruiser has the following schedule for DeKalb County in coming weeks:

Tuesday, August 17, at Butler, Maxton Motors used car lot, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Wednesday, August 25, at Garrett, Creek Chub Bait Company, 10 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

Thursday and Friday, September 2 and 3, at Auburn, east of courthouse, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday.

Adults are welcome, and no appointment is necessary. The $1.50 fee now charged at the time of x-ray for this service is supplemented with funds from the annual Christmas Seal Campaign to cover the x-ray costs.

A report is mailed to each individual x-rayed. If the physician reading the film decides the chest area is normal, a negative report card is sent. Any abnormality of pathology noted is reported to the person's family physician for medical attention. The films are kept on file for possible future review by the individual's doctor.

The visit of the X-ray unit is sponsored by and is one of the services of the Christmas Seal People, covering a nine-county area, and replaces the familiar DeKalb County TB Association. More visits are planned for DeKalb County later this fall.

Other activities offered by the Association include a county-wide school testing program, education promoted on all phases of respiratory disease, and support of medical research in lung diseases.

Local representatives presently on the directorate of the area association are Charles Davis of Garrett; Mrs. Dale Thomas and L.K. Mason, both of Auburn.

New Student Enrollment

The DeKalb County Eastern offices at the Butler and Riverdale buildings will be open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, beginning Monday, August 16, Charles Ray, principal, announced recently.

New residents in the community who have children of kindergarten through sixth grade age are urged to enroll them at the earliest possible date.

Any child eligible for kindergarten who missed the spring registration should also be enrolled before the starting of school. To be eligible, a child must be five years of age on or before September 1, 1976 and must furnish a birth certificate at the time of registration.

Classes in grades one through six will begin Monday, August 30. Kindergarten will begin Tuesday,, August 31, but parents are urged to bring their children in on August 30 and acquaint them with the teachers and classroom as well as pay the necessary kindergarten fees.

I&M Explains Position In Letter

As you know,I&M has filed a request with the Public Service Commission of Indiana for a $74 million increase in rates and has asked that $36 million of the request be granted immediately because of an emergency that has developed.

As a customer and community leader, I want you to know why this increase is necessary now and especially why it is so critical to our future ability to deliver our product – dependable electric service.

In spite of every effort to adjust our day-to-day operations to cope with rapidly rising costs our financial position deteriorates further and further by the week. In fact, I&M's current bond rating is now at the lowest rung on the investment grade ladder and our debt-coverage ratio has dropped to the point where we are now precluded from raising additional capital needed to construct and maintain essential electrical facilities.

I cannot emphasize enough the seriousness of our continuing in this financial position. It can only result in rapid deterioration of service to our 423,000 customers. To permit this would be totally unacceptable when we consider the dependence all of us place on electricity.

All too frequently these days we hear and read about the denial of a rate increase request or the approval of only a partial increase and the impact of such actions on electric service just a few years ahead.

It is inevitable that if funds are not available, the necessary decisions and capital commitments to construct the required power supply facilities will not be made in a timely maner. This can only initiate an emergency in power supply that will take place at some time in the future.

Denials or partial approvals also can mean delays in completing new power generation facilities such as we experienced in our nuclear generating unit number 2 at Bridgman, Michigan last year. We were forced to stop construction for a period of eight months because of our financial problems. This unfortunate experience added several million dollars to the cost of this new generating unit. When we started construction of this two-unit generating plant in 1968, the cost was expected to be about $300 million. Inflation, design changes by equipment suppliers and revised governmen requirements have boosted the cost of this plant to $1 billion. This is an increase of around 233% in a period of eight years. This is but one example of escalating costs we have been facing without additional revenue to offset them.

In closing, we at I&M are firmly committed to providing reliable electric service to our customers. This will always be our first proirity. I appreciate the opportunity to share with you this information about our needs and objectives. I hope that it will help in your understanding of our urgent need and request for an increase in our electric service rates.

Did you know

—that Roy Bowser of Saint Joe and Ada and Henry Sutter of Highland enjoyed a week of fishing last week in Minnesota. Ada is Roy's youngest sister.

—that Northern Indiana Fuel & Light will be given a hearing September 28 in Indianapolis on its request for a general rate increase.

—that Katherine (Bayman) Schrider and Elizabeth (Bayman) Arnold entertained a group of former Saint Joe High School "girls" at a luncheon in the Town House at Angola recently. The afternoon was spent in Elizabeth's new home on West View Drive. The group included MaDonna (Kinsey) Wade, Catharine (Kinsey) Bowser and Neva (Andress) Hursh of Saint Joe, and Alice (Tustison) Peckhart and Pauline (Andress) Miller of Auburn.

—that resident deer licenses, both archery and gun, are now available in the county clerk's office. This year for the first time, resident muzzle-loading rifle licenses are available. A state law was passed in 1976 which will be effective this fall, requiring all duck and goose hunters to purchase a State Migratory Waterfowl Stamp. This is in addition to the Federal Duck Stamp. The stamp will sell for $5.00 and will also be available in the clerk's office.

—that Marine PFC John D. Ross, 20, son of MM James Anglin of Butler, has completed the infantry comat training course at the Marine Corps Base at Camp Pendleton, California. He is a 1973 graduate of DeKalb Eastside High School.

—that a sophisticated plan to clamp down on "runaway fathers" in Indiana continues to move toward implementation in October with the conversion of the state's existing Aid To Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) child support cases into the Title IV-D program, according to the state welfare department.

—that Cecil Wisler has been confind at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne due to diabetic complications.

—that 8 through 12 year olds (and not in 7th grade) who want to participate in Little League Football should notify Jack Hoffer, 300 East Main in Butler, phone 868-2623. Registration must be in by August 16.

—that a second grand jury investigation of the death of a security guard at Garrett has brought one indictment. The first grand jury failed to bring in any indictments in the beating of Charles Scaffa who became a "human vegetable" as a result of the beating suffered in July of 1975. He died July 1 of this year and a verdict of homicide following Scaffa's death prompted DeKalb County Prosecuting Attorney H. Charles Winans to call for a second investigation by a grand jury.

—that Tom Hollabaugh, son of Connie Hollabaugh of Spencerville, was among 51 transfer students attending orientation on the campus of Tri-State University at Angola. He will be enrolled in business management in September.

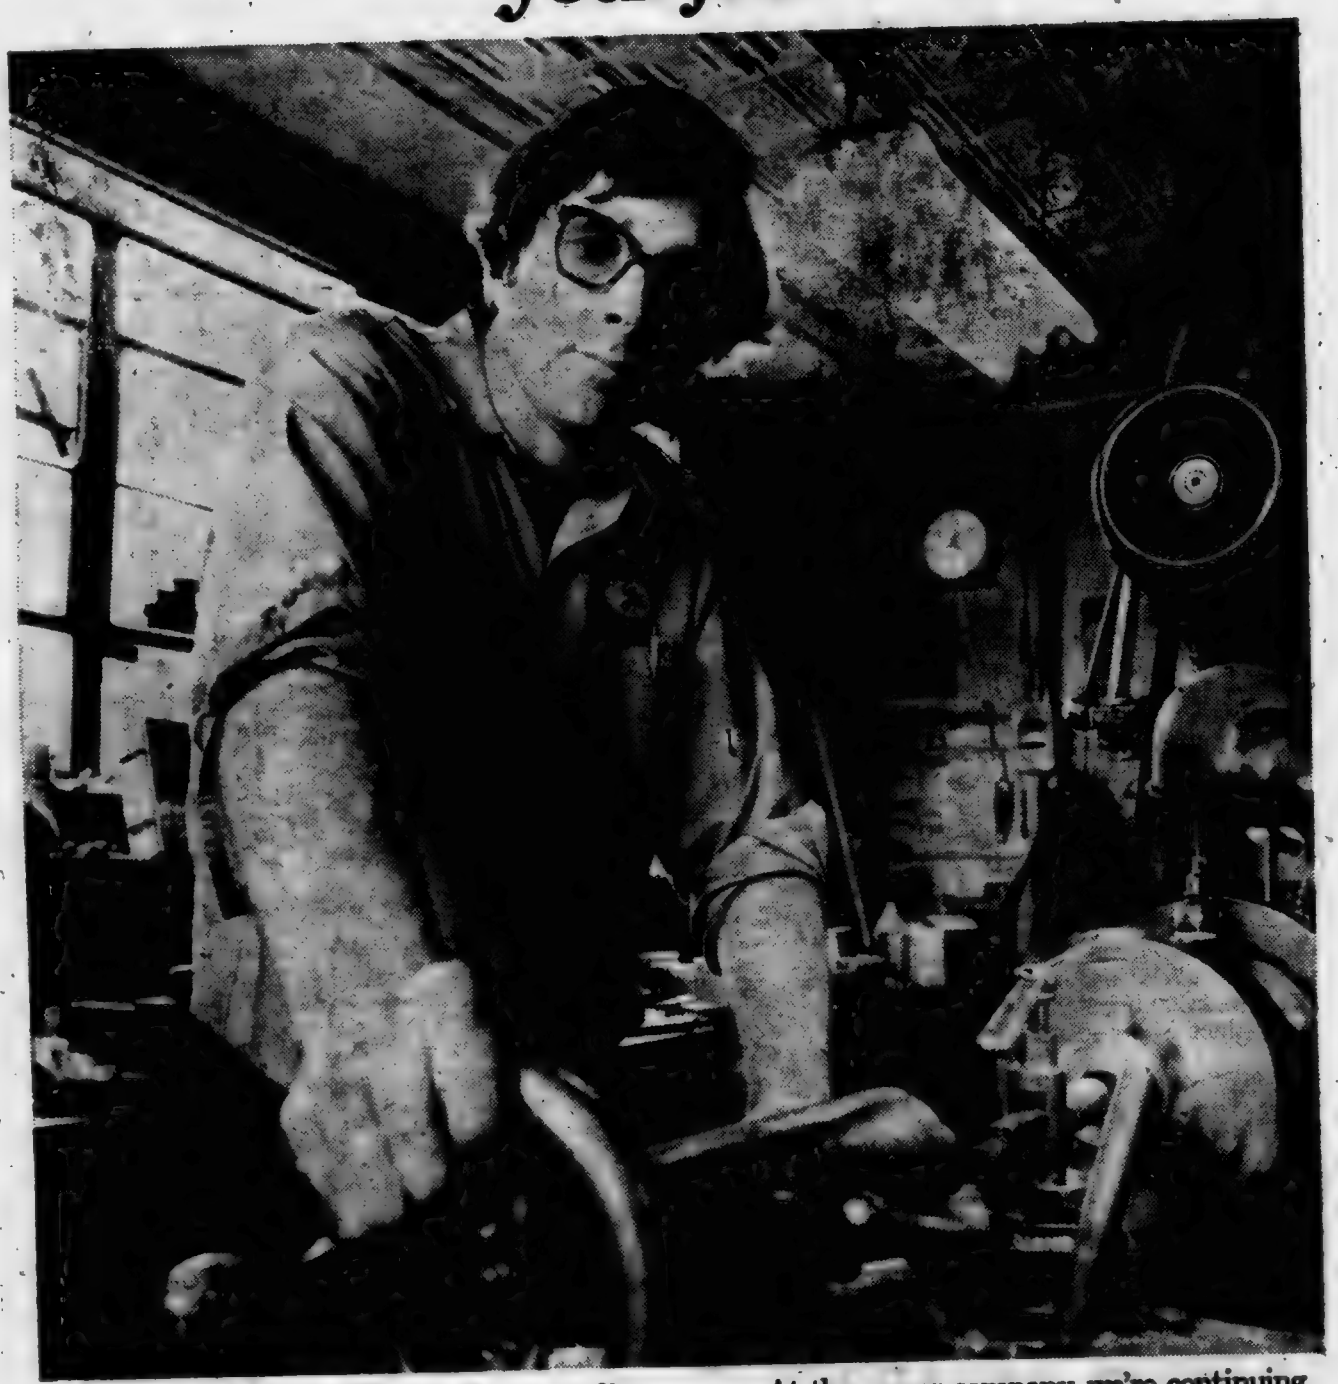
The power company's job is to help you with your job.



All of our jobs, as well as the basic quality of our lives, depend, in part, on a stable supply of electric power.

But the price of electricity has been going up. And a lot of people are worrying about the possibility of shortages in a few years.

These are serious problems. Not just for you. For all of us.

Because without electricity, machines stop. Work stops. Paychecks stop. The economy suffers. And progress stops.

So, how do we deal with this?

By working together.

At the power company, we're continuing to expand our search for economical fuel sources. Planning for new facilities that will be needed in the future. And, we're continuing our efforts to hold our operating costs in line so we can efficiently provide the electricity that helps all of us get our jobs done.

How can you help? By using electricity wisely. On the job. And at home, too.

You can also help by understanding and sharing the joint responsibility we have in assuring our electric supply.

And working together offers the best chance for all of us to get the job done.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I'm sorry we're late getting our check to you for another year's subscription.

I like your newspaper very much. I like the way you print and say the things that most people are afraid to say to each other. It makes us all aware of what is going on around us. Keep up the good work.

Thanks again,
Mrs Richard Freese
Spencerville

Open letter to Congressman J. Edward Roush:

We are writing to you with regard to the Right to Food resolution currently being considered by Congress. The main thrust of the resolution is the assertion that the right of every person to a nutritionally adequate diet become a cornerstone of the U.S. policy.

It is particularly appropriate that this resolution comes before Congress in our bicentennial year. Two hundred years ago, the founders of our country declared that life is an "inaleinable right" granted to all people. Hence, the Congress, by acting favorably in this resolution, can reaffirm one of the basic tenets of our republic.

The Right to Food resolution further declares that over a period of years, the United States should aim toward earmarking one percent of our total national production to development and assistance for the world's poorest people. We cannot view with pride the World Bank's recent estimate that shows the United States ranking 13th among 17 industrialized nations when aid is measured as a percentage of national production. According to that estimate, only 0.24% of our GNP went towards development assistance. While the one percent called for by the resolution may not be achieveable within the next week or month or year, it certainly is not an unreasonable goal when we reflect that following World War II, U.S. aid to Europe reached almost 3% of our GNP.

In closing, we earnestly request that you study the resolution with your mind and with your heart. We feel that you then surely join the more than 70 members of Congress who are already co-sponsors of the Right to Food resolution.

Sincerely yours,
James L. Shearer
Coordinator, and
Members of Bread for the World, 4th Congressional District, Indiana

While we recognize the merit in seeking adequate nutrition for all people, not just Americans, we do not place any confidence in such things as resolutions about the "right to" this or that. Our forefathers, in stating our right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, did so with the first-hand knowledge that a person must deserve the fruits of "inalienable" rights. It isn't automatic; it takes work. Those who can't work do deserve charity. But charity is easy to take advantage of, unfortunately.

As for the World Bank's estimate of what we have done, this is a trick. 13th out of 17?? Let's have the AMOUNTS in dollars and cents rather than percents. The United States and their citizens have given more than any other nation in assistance motivated by HUMANITARIAN rather than political reasons. We are weary of all the criticism heaped on this nation for failing to do this and failing to do that. —Ed.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylen Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building on Thursday evening, July 22 for their regular monthly meeting. Nellie Schaefer, Marcella Sechler, Sylvia Guinther and Leila Rosselot were the hostesses.

The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and after a prayer by Nellie Schaefer, a delicious potluck supper was enjoyed by all present.

Following supper our president, Ida Reed, conducted a short business meeting. Greetings were extended to all present. President Reed then read an article entitled "I am the Nation." This was followed by another article, "I am Liberty" which was read by Karl Hart. The secretary's report was read and accepted. Happy Birthday was sung to Marcella Sechler and birthday offerings were received. Alice Hollabaugh announced the chicken barbeque supper to be held on Saturday evening, July 24, at the Community Building. The meeting was then turned over to the committee for the evening. Leila Rosselot then showed pictures and told of her trip to Egypt. She also exhibited items she had brought back with her. As she concluded her talk we almost felt that we had been there ourselves. Door prizes were given and then we departed for our homes, thanking the hostesses for a very enjoyable meeting.

The next meeting will be Thursday evening, August 19, with Marie Ward, Elizabeth Hart and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart hosting. Same time, same place - see you there!

New Record-Herald Owners Youngest

One of the youngest, if not the youngest, owner-editor combinations in the weekly newspaper field now exists in the city of Butler.

The Record-Herald, is now owned by Steve Grogg, 19, and his wife, Grace, the former Grace Hausbach of Spencerville.

The young couple officially took over the Record-Herald on August 1. The paper had been known as the "Record-Herald for many years under the ownership of three generations of the Powers family. In 1972 the paper was sold to Lee Ellen Ford who then called it the "DeKalb Record-Herald" starting in March of 1975.

Steve has had experience with the Butler paper and the Auburn "Evening Star" as photographer. His wife has been employed at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Butler.

Barbra Ordway of Hamilton is office manager. She has been employed by the newspaper for almost two years.

Steve called the Saint Joe News office just before officially taking over the Butler paper. He made known the acquisition of the Butler paper. Other related matters were discussed and in the course of the conversation he acknowledged that he and his wife would have a "tough time" getting the paper back on its feet to compete with the "Butler Bulletin" which began publication this spring.

The new publication came into existence because of the dissatisfaction within the Butler business and private community with the manner in which Miss Ford operated the Record-Herald. Her temporary position as an administrative advisor to Governor Otis Bowen brought a large amount of space devoted to Indiana legislative matters. There was so much of the outside-the-local-community news that the subscription list dwindled and advertisers dropped their support.

Years ago there were two newspapers in Butler. They merged. Now there are two newspapers once again. And two young people, Steve and Grace Grogg, have their work cut out for them as newcomers to the weekly newspaper world in DeKalb County.

Councilman Kain Makes A Point—or—Can We Afford EMS?

The DeKalb County Council has "reluctantly" approved a 20-year lease agreement for new EMS (Emergency Medical Services) quarters at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. It will cost county taxpayers $9,600 a year for the next 20 years to pay for the EMS portion of planned extensive expansion of total hospital facilities.

I make note of this because the vote was 6-1 in favor of the proposal, although more than one council member expressed concern about the long-term obligation before the vote was taken. The only one who backed his concern with an actual "no" vote was Roger Kain. I think Mr. Kain deserves a pat on the back for standing up for his convictions. Also, I personally am impressed by his stand because he knew the first reaction to his negative vote would be "he's against the EMS." A WIFF-radio interview gave him the opportunity to say that his concern was for the future; he feels a "wait and see" approach would be better.

I am in Mr. Kain's corner because I know from experience that, as soon as a criticism is made about a program or project, you are immediately classed as "against" whatever and whomever may be involved in the program. People are, unfortunately, inclined to take such criticisms personally, especially when they are themselves in some way related to the program. Like Mr. Kain, I am not against EMS or good hospital care. But I am fearful of the cost of certain programs, such as EMS, which have good intent but are so often not considered in the light of actual need or the extent of the need.

Fort Wayne's EMS budget for next year is something over $600,000. The city fathers must come up with that amount of money to fund EMS. They MUST come up with the money; EMS is a mandatory program. Our county council had to appropriate $50,000, as I recall, to keep EMS going after a federal grant started the ball rolling. Now we have a $100,000 liability over the next 20 years — and who can say (as things go now) that the obligation won't become greater within those 20 years? (The $9,600 per year for 20 years is IN ADDITION TO tax money and private fees required for EMS administrative and operational needs.)

I'm not against what EMS is supposed to do. However, I am against increasing the cost of medical care by such a program when the majority of calls answered by EMS are not life-or-death circumstances. It's nice to have trained EMS personnel on call. However, in actual and practical terms, they cannot do much more than the average citizen who has had Red Cross First Aid training. The paramedics on a popular TV program have led the public to think that the emergency care depicted on that show is what we get from the DeKalb County EMS program. The public forgets that the TV-show emergency personnel are in direct contact with a licensed medical doctor when they give treatment beyond basic emergency care. We don't have that in DeKalb County and we can't afford to have it.

My reluctance from the start has been centered on the question: can we afford EMS? It is a good thing when a life is saved. But we cannot provide personnel and facilities for every kind of adversity which may befall the average citizen—though that seems to have been the trend set by our legislators for several years, to provide for every adversity.

There are some things we can't afford, and one of them is EMS as it is now being extended. I personally think it is unrealistic and too costly to pay four full-time salaries in DeKalb County for EMS administration and personnel. And favoritism has crept into the county program, as was noted by Mr. Kain in explaining his "no" vote. Mr. Kain "questioned the fairness of paying for an Auburn facility while not doing the same thing for Butler and Garrett."

Thanks, Mr. Kain, for having the gumption to stick to your guns. It's too bad a few other county councilmen didn't do the same thing and make the entire matter an issue to be noted by the public (if the vote had been 4-3), rather than go along with what they were told about the "needs" of the EMS at Auburn.

Too many programs get a foothold in our society because of the emotional pitch used to "sell" those programs, the selling job done by those whose income is derived from the continuance of those programs. You hear only the "good" part from those individuals. It takes someone like Roger Kain to point out the practical side in terms of dollars and cents relative to actual benefits derived, and to point out the need for caution in expanding "public welfare" programs.

I suggest readers give some thought to Mr. Kain's outlook. EMS is becoming an economic monster — despite the contributions of time made by the several EMS volunteer workers in the county who are on call on a rotating basis and serve you and me without pay—a living example of the brotherhood of man.

Tire Safety Tips for Summer Driving

In the hustle and bustle of planning a summer trip in a recreational vehicle, trailer or family car, don't forget to check your tires. Failure to do so could result in a costly accident or delay which may be avoided.

Excessive road heat is a tire's greatest enemy. This is particularly true for small diameter trailer tires which normally rotate up to 80 percent faster than regular tires.

You don't need to be a tire expert to tell what shape your tires are in. First, look for potential trouble spots — cuts, fabric cracks, uneven or excessive wear. Remove nails, small stones or glass embedded in the tread. Have damaged spots repaired if they are deeper than the tread.

Treads worn below 1/16th inch or to the wear bars molded across the tread, should be replaced. Wear depth can be measured with a penny—if the top of Lincoln's head shows when inserted into the tread, the tire needs replacing.

Abnormal Tread Wear

When tires wear rapidly or abnormally, the problem is often faulty or worn shock absorbers, wheel unbalance, improper wheel alignment, faulty or grabbing brakes, or incorrect tire inflation. The most common problems are:

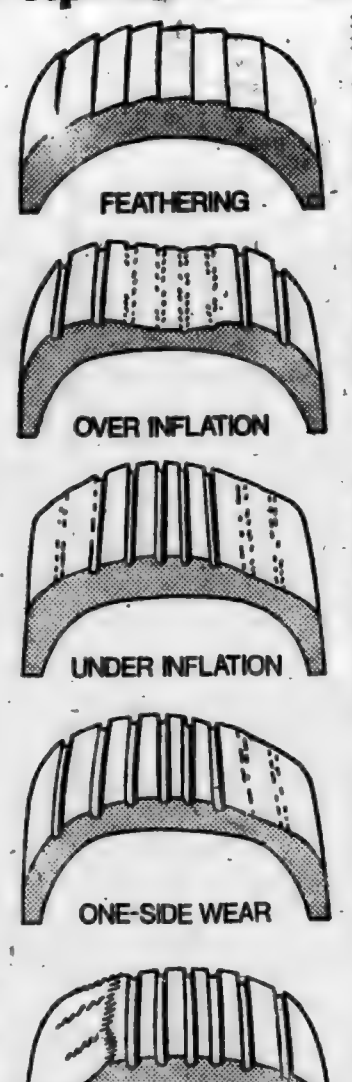
—Underinflation, when most tire contact is on the outer treads, causing the edges to wear faster than the middle.

—Feathering, when the tread ribs actually scrape down the road — common when the tire needs toe-in or toe-out alignment.

—Cupping, when wheels are out of balance or the shock absorbers and ball joints are worn, causing dips or cups to appear in the tread.

—One sided wear, when either the outer or inner shoulder of the tire wears faster than the rest. This is commonly caused by improper wheel alignment camber, often aggravated by underinflation.

If the tire hasn't worn out completely, chances are that proper mechanical adjustment will stop abnormal wear. But if the tire has been severely damaged, it should [illegible]



sider a retread. Many quality retreads on the market today offer wear time equal to that of new tires—and at a fraction of the cost.

With improved, automated processes for retreading, flaws that gave early retreads a bad name have been eliminated. In fact, new tire manufacturers are taking note of retreaders successes and in many cases are using identical processes. For example, AMF's Cushtread process, in which [illegible] manufacturers for the building of new radial tires.

A booklet titled "What you don't know about retreads" is available free from AMF Tire Equipment Division, 3715 Sunflower Avenue, Santa Ana, California.

Few people realize that any tire—new or retread—needs a breaking in period to adjust to the road. As a rule of thumb, hold your speed to less than 45 mph for the first 100 miles or so, until the tire's elements adjust and work as an integral unit.

The Ups and Downs of Proper Inflation

Correct inflation is the most important rule for tire safety and life. Pressure should be checked before a long trip, and periodically along the way. But be sure the tires are cool when checked — the reading will normally increase six pounds or more if the tires are hot from driving. Don't bleed hot tires to bring the pressure down to a normal level.

Inflate tires only to limits recommended in the auto manual. Never inflate beyond those limits in an attempt to compensate for heavy loads, and never underinflate a tire. Underinflation causes excessive heat build-up, uneven tread wear, and if you're towing a trailer, severe trailer sway, fishtailing and loss of control.

Also important are such factors as load weight and distribution. When packing for a trip, don't exceed the vehicle's rated load capacity. Overloading risks premature tire failure through excessive heat build-up.

Equally critical is load distribution. For maximum efficiency and stability, equalize loads side-to-side, fore-to-aft following the manufacturer's recommendations. Loose items that might shift during transit should be secured.

While surveys show [illegible] than one percent of all highway accidents are directly attributable to tire failure, in more than half these cases the tires were bald and worn to the cords. The Tire Industry Safety Council cautions that bald tires are 50 times more likely to suffer [illegible] than new or retread tires. A warning sign of impending tire failure is a sudden rise in heat.

Teacher Subs Are Needed

Anyone interested in working as a teacher substitute at the elementary level in the DeKalb Eastern School District should contact either the Butler or Riverdale School office after August 16,, Principal Charles Ray has announced.

Principal Ray noted that interested persons should give their names, phone numbers, grades preferred, days of the week that are the most convenient, and whether or not they can work at both elementary schools or just one.

The Riverdale School office phone is 337-5111 and the Butler Elementary School phone number is 868-2123.

What Do You Believe?

One of the trends of the past several years in the literary, movie and television world is to take an incident or a personage and write a book or prepare a production around that incident or personage. Unfortunately, to make the product more acceptable to the public—usually meaning more spectacular—varying degrees of alterations are made. The result is that we have many people under the impression that what they read and what they see is truly "the way it was." Thus, we have a misinformed public.

I didn't see the movie, "Hindenburg," but from spot previews on TV, I have the impression that a story was told in the movie to explain how that aircraft's destruction came about. If this is true, then we have millions of people who consciously or subconsciously think they know the story behind the dirigible's explosion. They're wrong; there never has been an official explanation of the cause of the explosion to my knowledge. The only explanations were speculation about the true circumstances—related to static electricity.

Two newsmen have written a book, "The Last Days," supposedly depicting the final moments of Richard Nixon's Presidency. Among the "facts" presented is that Mr. Nixon turned to drink—heavily—as he saw his administration crumble. Many critics of the book have pointed out that some of the intimate details in the book could not be stated so definitely unless the writers were present—which they were not. But their book is a best-seller. So, we have more people under the impression that they know what was going on in the White House in those troubled days.

A movie, "All the King's Men," is related by the public to Richard Nixon. While they might not admit it, the public is inclined to accept what they see as the "real story about real people." So, again, we have millions of people with definite impressions and opinions about a situation which did not exist, events which did not occur, as depicted on the screen.

The current sex scandal in Washington finds one of the office cuties who spilled the beans about personal relationships and intimacies also the author of a book telling of sex scandals in Washington. The public immediately thinks that one of the Congressional characters is a man currently under fire because of the office cutie's allegations. It doesn't impress the public that the publisher had suggested holding off on release of the book to get more publicity, an obvious plot to prepare the way for the publisher and the office cutie to make millions, literally. What is remembered by the public is that the writer of the book, "telling all" about sex in Washington, is a real person who was on the staff of a Congressman.

In this and other instances of women being "taken advantage of" by their employers, one thing consistently overlooked is—they could have quit any time if it was THAT bad!

I noted in a recent issue that a listing of best-sellers in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel's "Week-Ender" divided the categories as "fiction" and "other." It formerly was common practice to designate "fiction" (made-up stories) and "non-fiction." Such a change does a disservice to the purpose of correctly informing the public. The listings should put such books as "The Last Days" in the fiction category simply because the contents are mostly hear-say or allegations. The writers were not present. "Other" is too general because it allows fiction to become supposed fact.

Fiction has its place in the literary world. However, there are those who are cashing in on the public's gullibility in associating a fictional with a similar factual situation. In the process, the factual situation is distorted because the fictional approach is made more exciting, more palatable, more entertaining. And innocent public figures become characters in a book rather than becoming real persons facing the same basic problem which confronts all others—coping with one's own human nature.

Cigarettes now are packaged with a printed warning of the possible danger to one's health in smoking. A warning ought to be emphasized also on the cover of a book or in advertising to promote a movie that the contents are fictional. Cancer of the mind is worse than cancer of the lungs.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I'm sorry we're late getting our check to you for another year's subscription.

I like your newspaper very much. I like the way you print and say the things that most people are afraid to say to each other. It makes us all aware of what is going on around us. Keep up the good work.

Thanks again,
Mrs Richard Freese
Spencerville

Open letter to Congressman J. Edward Roush:

We are writing to you with regard to the Right to Food resolution currently being considered by Congress. The main thrust of the resolution is the assertion that the right of every person to a nutritionally adequate diet become a cornerstone of the U.S. policy.

It is particularly appropriate that this resolution comes before Congress in our bicentennial year. Two hundred years ago, the founders of our country declared that life is an "inaleinable right" granted to all people. Hence, the Congress, by acting favorably in this resolution, can reaffirm one of the basic tenets of our republic.

The Right to Food resolution further declares that over a period of years, the United States should aim toward earmarking one percent of our total national production to development and assistance for the world's poorest people. We cannot view with pride the World Bank's recent estimate that shows the United States ranking 13th among 17 industrialized nations when aid is measured as a percentage of national production. According to that estimate, only 0.24% of our GNP went towards development assistance. While the one percent called for by the resolution may not be achieveable within the next week or month or year, it certainly is not an unreasonable goal when we reflect that following World War II, U.S. aid to Europe reached almost 3% of our GNP.

In closing, we earnestly request that you study the resolution with your mind and with your heart. We feel that you then surely join the more than 70 members of Congress who are already co-sponsors of the Right to Food resolution.

Sincerely yours,
James L. Shearer
Coordinator, and
Members of Bread for the World, 4th Congressional District, Indiana

While we recognize the merit in seeking adequate nutrition for all people, not just Americans, we do not place any confidence in such things as resolutions about the "right to" this or that. Our forefathers, in stating our right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, did so with the first-hand knowledge that a person must deserve the fruits of "inalienable" rights. It isn't automatic; it takes work. Those who can't work do deserve charity. But charity is easy to take advantage of, unfortunately.

As for the World Bank's estimate of what we have done, this is a trick. 13th out of 17?? Let's have the AMOUNTS in dollars and cents rather than percents. The United States and their citizens have given more than any other nation in assistance motivated by HUMANITARIAN rather than political reasons. We are weary of all the criticism heaped on this nation for failing to do this and failing to do that. —Ed.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building on Thursday evening, July 22 for their regular monthly meeting. Nellie Schaefer, Marcella Sechler, Sylvia Guinther and Leila Rosselot were the hostesses.

The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and after a prayer by Nellie Schaefer, a delicious potluck supper was enjoyed by all present.

Following supper our president, Ida Reed, conducted a short business meeting. Greetings were extended to all present. President Reed then read an article entitled "I am the Nation." This was followed by another article, "I am Liberty" which was read by Karl Hart. The secretary's report was read and accepted. Happy Birthday was sung to Marcella Sechler and birthday offerings were received. Alice Hollabaugh announced the chicken barbeque supper to be held on Saturday evening, July 24, at the Community Building. The meeting was then turned over to the committee for the evening. Leila Rosselot then showed pictures and told of her trip to Egypt. She also exhibited items she had brought back with her. As she concluded her talk we almost felt that we had been there ourselves. Door prizes were given and then we departed for our homes, thanking the hostesses for a very enjoyable meeting.

The next meeting will be Thursday evening, August 19, with Marie Ward, Elizabeth Hart and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart hosting. Same time, same place - see you there!

New Record-Herald Owners Youngest

One of the youngest, if not the youngest, owner-editor combinations in the weekly newspaper field now exists in the city of Butler.

The Record-Herald, is now owned by Steve Grogg, 19, and his wife, Grace, the former Grace Hausbach of Spencerville.

The young couple officially took over the Record-Herald on August 1. The paper had been known as the "Record-Herald for many years under the ownership of three generations of the Powers family. In 1972 the paper was sold to Lee Ellen Ford who then called it the "DeKalb Record-Herald" starting in March of 1975.

Steve has had experience with the Butler paper and the Auburn "Evening Star" as photographer. His wife has been employed at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Butler.

Barbra Ordway of Hamilton is office manager. She has been employed by the newspaper for almost two years.

Steve called the Saint Joe News office just before officially taking over the Butler paper. He made known the acquisition of the Butler paper. Other related matters were discussed and in the course of the conversation he acknowledged that he and his wife would have a "tough time" getting the paper back on its feet to compete with the "Butler Bulletin" which began publication this spring.

The new publication came into existence because of the dissatisfaction within the Butler business and private community with the manner in which Miss Ford operated the Record-Herald. Her temporary position as an administrative advisor to Governor Otis Bowen brought a large amount of space devoted to Indiana legislative matters. There was so much of the outside-the-local-community news that the subscription list dwindled and advertisers dropped their support.

Years ago there were two newspapers in Butler. They merged. Now there are two newspapers once again. And two young people, Steve and Grace Grogg, have their work cut out for them as newcomers to the weekly newspaper world in DeKalb County.

Quayle Hits 'Big Spender' Roush

Republican candidate Dan Quayle has criticized his Congressional opponent, Fourth District Representative J. Edward Roush for continually voting for deficit spending. He cited that the incumbent has consistently voted for increasing the national debt and for current fiscal deficits.

Quayle, addressing the Business Forum luncheon at the Fort Wayne Summit Club last week, said "Washington big spenders now consume $1 billion in tax funds daily, inflating our national debt by $1 billion every week."

"As government gains more and more power to tax and spend beyond reason," Quayle charged "it assumes an awesome power to control every other aspect of our lives."

"Liberal big-spenders like our incumbent portray themselves as 'guardians of the American people', yet hit middle income Americans hardest with our $500 billion budget and tolerate absurd loopholes for the wealthy," Quayle said.

Quayle noted that such economic experts as Treasury Secretary William Simon and Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns "warn us that we must quench government's insatiable appetite for workers' and business earnings if we hope to sustain a strong and free economy."

Quayle referred to Secretary Simon's observation that "in every country where government becomes a dominant force in the economy, there has been a tendency to move toward instability, toward minority government and toward a threat to the very continuation of a free society."

Chairman Burns has said that American taxpayers are no longer protected, but threatened by government big spenders who embark on endless projects with total disregard for long range fiscal consequences.

Quayle said taxpayers don't realize that every increase in the federal budget bleeds them one way or another.

"When Washington doesn't pay its debts by raising taxes, it just prints more money," Quayle explained.

"Such a flood of fresh bills may seem harmless, but every dramatic increase in the money supply during the past century has been followed by a significant surge in prices," he said.

"Concerned citizens must unite at the polls this November to throw overboard big spenders who have been in Washington since the 1950's."

Quayle said he hoped "for the sake of ourselves and of our children, that this year Americans will fill Washington with men and women who will join me in a fight for the fiscal responsibility so crucial to the future of this country."

Text Rental Info

Students of Eastside High School are reminded that all textbooks will be rental textbooks this year. The bookstore will be open daily starting August 16, 1976, from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and from 12:15 p.m. to 4 p.m. for students to get their rental textbooks prior to the first day of school.

Students should check their schedule with Mr. Zonker or Mr. Williams before purchasing or renting textbooks to be sure that scheduling permits their taking all of the courses requested. This information will be available August 16, 1976.

Students that are new to the DeKalb Eastern Community School District, and will be enrolling in Eastside Jr.-Sr. High this year, should register at the high school office as soon as possible after August 9, 1976. School will start on Monday, August 30, 1976. This will be a full day of school and it is desirable for students to have textbooks and supplies for opening day.

Special Attractions Offered . . .

For Bicentennial Visitors

A bonus for visitors to the nation's largest indoor-outdoor collection of Americana at Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Michigan, is "The Struggle and the Glory," one of America's major Bicentennial exhibitions which is in Henry Ford Museum through January 2, 1977.

Revealing for the first time a major unpublished collection of Revolutionary period diaries, cartoons, letters, maps and broadsides, "The Struggle and the Glory" also includes a profusion of original weapons, furniture, tools, lamps, dry goods, cookware, transportation devices and other material necessities that depict life in the Colonies from 1755 to 1789. Numerous displays range from household settings of furniture and accessories used by Colonial families to a dramatic seven-screen theater-in-the-round where visitors are encircled by the color and noise of Revolutionary battles. First-hand accounts by Washington, Hancock, Burgoyne, Arnold, Adams, Wayne and others who were actually there give a remarkable authenticity to this expression of the Revolution.

Two other exhibits also are scheduled in the Museum during the Bicentennial year. "The History of Political Parties in the U.S." opening in August will feature colorful memorabilia from past presidential campaigns. In July and August and for the last two months of the Bicentennial year, the traveling exhibit, "Industrial Heritage U.S.A." illustrating 200 years of American progress in industry, returns to the Museum from its nationwide tour.

The 100th anniversary of the building of Thomas Edison's Menlo Park (New Jersey) Laboratory, which is now in Greenfield Village, will be observed this year with a special exhibit tracing the development of two of Edison's most significant Menlo Park inventions—the electric pen which developed into the mimeograph, and the telephone — from their conception in 1876 to their ultimate contemporary use.

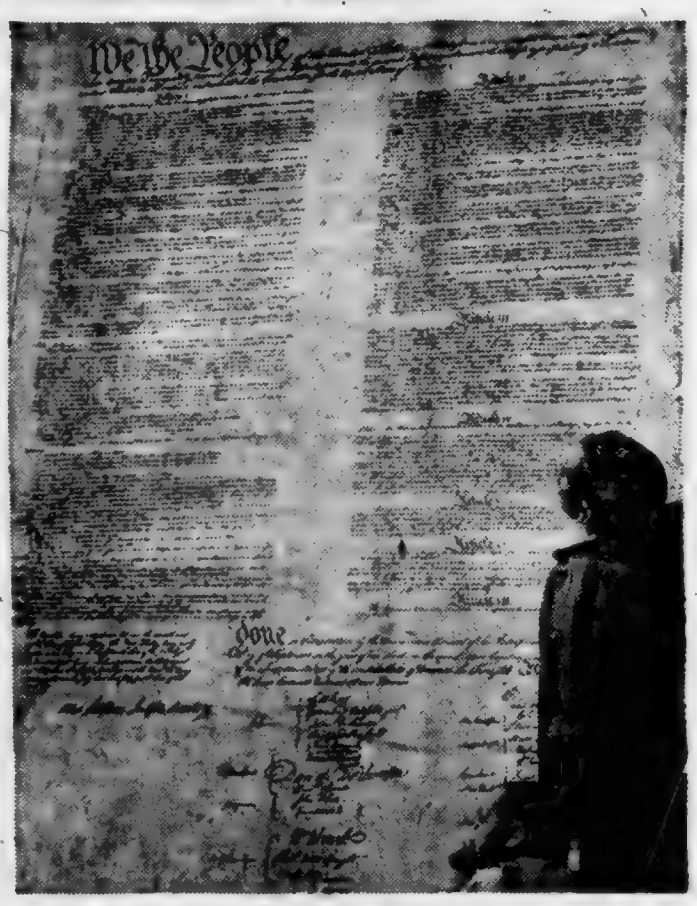
The focus event of the Bicentennial year at the Village and Museum is set to take place, July 3 through 5. The three-day "Independence Weekend" will include flag raising ceremonies, theme parades, Colonial and Loyalist troop demonstrations, concerts, a "Let Freedom Ring" pageant, cannon firing and a mock battle on the Village Green to commemorate the important happenings of July, 1776. Also, antique highwheel bicycle riders will depart from the ceremonies on the 4th on a tour to Philadelphia commemorating the 100th anniversary of the first showing of this machine in America.

In August, more than 1500 participants in authentic Revolutionary period costumes will be at the Village for the third annual Colonial Military Muster. Re-enactment of 18th-century military maneuvers, period campsites, a mock battle and fife and drum music are part of this impressive two-day program August 28 and 29.

As a national center for the observance of the Bicentennial Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum offer visitors the chance to look back not only on 1776, but also on the 200 years of American progress and ingenuity since. On this 260-acre site, highlights from the two centuries since the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the 100 years that preceded America's founding are waiting to be explored.

Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum are open seven days a week the year around with the exception of Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day. A separate admission to either facility is $3.00 for adults and $1.25 for children 6 through 12. Children under six are admitted free. Michigan's famous Dearborn Inn, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Village and Museum, is a conveniently located and charming colonial hostelry for visitors.

For additional information about the Village and Museum and to obtain a free Calendar of Bicentennial Events, write Dept. PR, Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Michigan 48121.



THE CONSTITUTION STANDS TALL for this young visitor to "The Struggle and the Glory" and his sister. The exhibit continues in Henry Ford Museum through January 2, 1977.

Attendances August 8 were 78 in Bible School and 93 in morning worship. The minister is asking all members to be praying that we will have 100 or more every Sunday. Then to invite others, including absent members and to try to be present themselves each Sunday.

Terry Ulm of the Butler Church of Christ and student in Great Lakes Bible College is to speak on Sunday, August 15.

Sermon on August 22 will be, "How Much Freedom?"

Visitors August 8 were the minister's son, Daniel Dean Schantz, his wife Sharon, and their two children Natalie and Teresaa, from Moberly, Missouri. Mr. Schantz is a professor in the Central Christian College of the Bible. He also travels for the school with singing groups. For several years he ministered to the Exline, Iowa, church on Sundays. Dan Schantz brought the message on August 8.

Other visitors were Reed Sauers of County Road 56; Charles and Doris Lamb of Harlan; Mark and Debbie Brown; and Pete and Marcelle Storer.

Promotion Day will be September 5. The youth will have a short program of singing and giving out of certificates.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

One thing I really have trouble keeping straight is family trees. When you get beyond brothers and sisters, I'm lost.

So - I botched last week's writeup with the photos about the Baileys and their store. For one thing, as Bill Hurni pointed out (but this didn't have to do with family trees) the word "creamery" was incorrect. A creamery is where butter is made. The Baileys operated a "cream station," that is a collection point for testing cream samples. Bill himself was in that business for many, many years, running pickup routes for cream and using the Baileys' store for testing purposes.

As for the family tree, Fern Carr says she had a phone call or two asking if she didn't know her grandmother's maiden name. I had it "Mavis" and it should have been "McNabb." Also, Virginia Baker of rural Auburn and Gladys Wasson, formerly of Spencerville and now of Golden Lake, were not mentioned as grandchildren in addition to Fern and Thelma Hart.

—If someone says I still have something mixed up - I'll believe it.

The going-out-of-business ad of the Sisters' Emporium is a matter of concern, not just to me but to others, including Marie Noel at the Nosey Nook.

Sometimes it is difficult to face the facts of life. In business one of them is that local people often drive past a local business to go to another community to shop. And very often they pay more than they would have if they had looked around at home.

True, supermarkets and discount houses in other community DO offer lower prices much of the time on certain items. But it is also true that there are other items on which they must make up for their "bargains" in order to maintain the income needed to stay in business.

A wise shopper can cut the household budget to some extent by shopping elsewhere. But that is true IF a sizeable amount is going to be spent. After all, driving the car 40 or 50 miles round trip involves the cost of gas, wear on tires and additional time. The average trip to Fort Wayne, for instance nowadays means spending around $4 for gas alone, maybe more if you get caught in a traffic jam or drive from place to place to shop.

The Sisters' Emporium has been very cooperative in getting what their customers want in yard goods. They have had a good stock of such goods on hand and have tried to bring such materials to local customers at the lowest cost. In addition, April Davis and Sharon Bowser, along with a few other women who are adept at sewing, have offered the opportunity to get clothing items made for a lot less than you would pay elsewhere.

But for some reason, that service hasn't been enough. Too many people drive past on the way to another community and another store; you can't justify the time the gals put in at their store. And I think it's a shame. It's frustrating. It's disappointing.

An additional attraction has been a selection of antiques on display, with additions made from time to time for public interest.

I wish there were some way to keep the Sisters' Emporium going as it has been in the past. But I recognize the gals' frustrations. They're the same as mine when local people use newspapers in other communities and bypass the Saint Joe, News, whether it's for ads or news items.

But - that's the way it is.

Two County Beatings Under Prosecution

Shelby Amburgey of Kendallville, president of the union local at Stanscrew Distribution Center at Garrett, was arrested Saturday morning by DeKalb County Police in connection with the death of Charles Scaffa, a security guard at the Stanscrew plant who was beaten in July of last year, remained in a coma due to the beating, then died July 1 of this year due to pneumonia.

A grand jury investigation last year failed to return any indictments. However, when Scaffa's death was ruled a homicide by the examining coroner, DeKalb County Prosecutor H. Charles Winans re-convened the grand jury. It brought in an indictment against Amburgey.

The indicted man was to have turned himself in last Friday. When he failed to do so, county police made the arrest. Amburgey was released an hour later on $5,000 cash bond.

Scaffa was struck on the head with a blunt instrument during a labor strike at Stanscrew last year. He never regained consciousness.

Amburgey was fired by the company during the strike. The union is seeking to have him reinstated under grievance procedures in the union contract with Stanscrew.

DeKalb County authorities were criticized by the Zeis Security Company last year for failing to prosecute Scaffa's assailant or assailants. Winans said lack of testimony from Scaffa and conflicting testimony given to the grand jury led to no indictments at that time.

With Allen County Coroner Roland Ahlbrand ruling homicide following Scaffa's death. Winans called for another jury session to hear testimony by the coroner and other persons connected to the beating. The indictment against Amburgey was the result.

In another beating which occurred in August of last year on the parking lot at the local tavern, investigation has been renewed following presentation of pertinent information and prodding of local authorities by the victim's father.

Last August, Michael R. Haberkorn was struck from behind as he conversed with another individual on the tavern parking lot. He suffered a 30-stitch scalp wound, severe concussion and a broken neck. Unemployed at the time, he was under a doctor's care for months following the attack and hospitalization.

Despite the presence of other persons at the tavern, investigation by police brought no results. However, with information recently substantiated through persistent inquiries made by the victim's father, further official investigation has been made and this beating also is in the hands of the prosecuting attorney.

Norris Chapel II Are CL Champs

Determining the champion in the Saint Joe Church League ran right down to the wire with Spencerville United Methodist hanging in there with a 13-3 record as against Norris Chapel II's 14-2 record, going into the Wednesday night game this week. Needed was a win by the Spencerville team over Norris to make a first place tie and make next Tuesday's games the deciding factor, with both teams scheduled Tuesday for makeup of a rainout date. Spencerville is to play Newville Church of Christ and Norris faces Coburntown I.

Faced with a do-or-die situation, Spencerville appeared to have a chance to tie with Norris II for first place. Though down by 9-1 early in Wednesday's game, Spencerville came back to make it 9-7 at the end of five innings.

Then the roof fell in. Norris' power asserted itself and 12 runs crossed the plate in the top of the sixth. Spencerville could get nothing going in their half of the inning and, under the 12-run rule, Norris Chapel came off the diamond with a 21-7 win—and the championship of the church league for the second year in a row.

Next Monday and Tuesday will have re-scheduled rainouts. Monday it's Coburntown I v Hicksville and Coburntown II v Newville Church of Christ. Tuesday finds Newville CC right back again against Spencerville with Coburntown I facing Norris Chapel II.

The season-ending All-Star game is set for Thursday with champions Norris II to face a team made up of players from all the other nine participating teams.

Also, the championship trophy will be presented that night to Norris Chapel II and the winner of the sportsmanship award will receive a team trophy. The sportsmanship award is determined by vote of all participating teams.

The nearest competitor in the closing weeks of the slow pitch softball season were the Coburntown I team with 10 wins and four losses.

Hicksville's power of the last couple of years was missing in the early part of the season. A pair of shutouts were marked against them, one by Coburntown II and another by Norris Chapel II.

Newville United Methodist also dropped off this summer in its success, losing early in the season.

The St. Joe Church of Christ-Lutherans started off as if they would make a run for the championship, having a string of power hitters in its lineup. But lack of players into the second half of the season necessitated one forfeit, although they did win one game using only eight players. They had only one loss, to Hicksville, in the first half of the season, then tailed off to a 10-7 record going into their final game this Friday.

Mt. Pleasant United Methodist, back in the league after a few years' absence, found the competition pretty tough. But they still were dangerous and could surprise an opposing team, as could Coburntown II.

Newville Church of Christ had to forfeit twice. Yet they had a 17-16 win over Newville UM early in the season and downed Norris Chapel I in the first half. Their problem, as in the past, was conflict of games with farm work during the busy ag season.

Dawn Billings 2nd Runnerup In NE-Ind. Pageant

The Miss Northeast Indiana Pageant was held last Saturday night at the DeKalb Central Auditorium and Elizabeth Berry of Columbia City was named the winner. She was also winner in the swimsuit category.

First runnerup was Debra Judd of Columbia City. Second runnerup was Dawn Billings of Butler and third runnerup was Lori Vaughn of Hamilton. Karen Ross of Angola was fourth runnerup.

The Miss Congeniality award went to Sheila King of Garrett. Bernadette Rubalcaba of R1 Butler won the non-finalist talent award for a dramatic monologue, "I Knew Lincoln."

Miss Billings played a piano solo, "Polichinelle," by Rachmaninoff, in the talent contest.

Rhonda Lothamer of Saint Joe was among the ten contestants. She illustrated nursery rhymes with her puppet, Rudy.

Maxtons' 50th

MM C.J. Maxton of Butler will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house for friends and relatives, from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, August 22, at the Auburn Greenhurst Country Club.

The Maxtons have two children, Mrs. Jack (Jane) Bodnar, of Albany, New York, and Jack Maxton, of Columbus, Ohio. They also have seven grandchildren.

C.J. Maxton and Audra Zimmer were married August 17, 1926. He is president of Maxton Motors Inc. in Butler and has been in business 49 years.

The couple requests that gifts be omitted.

HS Reunion

The Saint Joe High School Reunion will be held Sunday, September 19, at the Saint Joe Valley Conservation Club clubhouse located just west of town on County Road 60.

A carry-in dinner will be served at 12:30 p.m. Those attending should bring their own table service. Beverage will be furnished.

Officers of the graduates are Frank Shull of New Haven, president; Joe Shull of Columbia City, vice-president; Evalyn Hamman of Auburn, secretary; and Alice Peckhart of Auburn, treasurer.

Suit Filed Over Sale Of Paper

As an aftermath to the recently announced sale of the Butler Record-Herald to MM Steve Grogg, a lawsuit has been fild in DeKalb Circuit Court by MM Burdette Powers, former owners of the paper. The suit charges that Lee Ellen Ford, who bought the paper from the Powers family, sold the paper without the Powers' consent and that such action was a breach of contract. Miss Ford reportedly still owes $21,000 on the paper and is four months in arrears on payments.

Miss Ford purchased the paper in 1972 for $80,000, according to the Powers' suit. Two sales contract clauses barred resale or allowing others to occupy the real estate without the Powers' written consent, it is said.

In addition to the sale of the paper to the Groggs, the suit contends that the sale of other assets to "persons unknown" also violates the sales contract.

Clipper Editor To Retire

Another DeKalb County newspaper has been sold. The Garrett Clipper, published by Roy R. Williams Sr., since 1950, has been sold to MM Wayne Bartels of Garrett, both of whom have been in the Clipper staff in the past. Mr. Bartels joined the Clipper staff in 1960 while his wife has been a part-time employee for several years.

Mr. Williams will retire August 31. He was associated with the paper from 1940 to 1950 before becoming its owner- publisher. The previous owner was C. B. Hamilton.

Mr. Williams was a director of the Hoosier State Press Association and served as its president in 1953-54. He is a graduate of DePauw University, majoring in English and journalism. He is also a graduate of the American Institute of Banking in Chicago and attended Kent College of Law in Chicago for one year.

In 1940 Mr. Williams was advertising manager and editor of the semi-weekly, later becoming a partner with Mr. Hamilton before buying out the latter's interest in 1950.

EHS In Jamboree

Eastside High School will participate in a football jamboree at Woodlan High School on Saturday, August 21, 1976. The jamboree will start at 7:30 p.m.

The schools participating are Churubusco, Leo, Woodlan and Eastside. Eastside will play the second quarter against Woodlan, and the fourth quarter against Churubusco.

There will be a fan bus for the jamboree. The bus will leave Butler at 6:30 p.m., Saint Joe at 6:45, and Spencerville at 6:50. The cost will be 50 cents. No advance tickets will be sold and there will be only two buses. One bus will leave from Butler and the other bus will leave from Saint Joe and Spencerville. The Butler bus will not go through Saint Joe and Spencerville unless there is room for more passengers. There will be no stand-by busses to take overloads this year.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

Bivere Brush - reporter

The Newville Township Home Ec Club met August 11 at 1 p.m. for their monthly meeting in the home of Lynn Kaiser with Cynthia Sipe as co-hostess.

President Doris Hart called the meeting to order and all repeated club collect. Freida Engle then had devotions on the subject of kindness and loving people.

Guest Doris Ball and seventeen members gave a bright saying of a child for roll call.

The song of the month was "America."

A get-well card was signed for Lucille Nelson.

Tuesday August 16 we will go to Franke Park for the yearly trip.

September 8 at 2 p.m. Ohio time, 1 p.m. Indiana time, we will meet in the Hicksville Bank Room with Judy Morrisson and Myrtle Mills as hostesses.

GS Troop 29

—Nancy Garman, reporter

St. Joe Junior Troop 29 met on Monday August 16 with 9 girls present.

It was decided that our regular meetings, which will begin August 30, will be held from 3:00 until 5:00 every Monday thereafter.

Final plans were made for our bake sale which will be held on Saturday August 28. Watch for posters which will soon be up at Saint Mark's Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Tammy Glasser and Julie Hollabaugh served cookies and kool aid for refreshments.

A game was played and then we worked on badges. Our meeting closed with our Friendship circle and the singing of Taps.

GOP 'Blitz' For Quayle

On Saturday, August 21, the DeKalb County Young Republicans will be sponsoring a Literature Blitz for Dan Quayle. Approximately 100 people will be canvassing Auburn, Garrett, Waterloo, and Butler with information about Dan Quayle. Afterwards, Quayle will speak at a Young Republican Rally in Auburn. Anyone interested in working for Dan Quayle and the Young Republicans is urged to meet at the old Auburn Hotel at 4:00 p.m. Saturday, August 21, or call one of these numbers for more information: 925-2399, 238-4301, 357-4497, or 925-0169.

Dan Quayle, 4th District Congressional candidate, said "It's time for new faces and ideas in Washington," and expounded his major campaign goals to over 100 Republicans at a Wednesday night, August 17, gathering in Waterloo. Quayle attacked present Congressional policies of deficit spending and implementation of excessive federal controls. "I urge you to consider limiting terms of service for Congressmen and Senators to ease seniority problems and give legislators a chance to live as private citizens under the laws they created," he continued. The Huntington newspaper publisher plans to sponsor legislation to reach this goal. He praised DeKalb County's active Republican leaders and workers who are assisting him in campaign efforts.

County Central Committee Chairman Robert Wilder welcomed all to the carry-in dinner which was sponsored by the county's Women's Club. Charles Farrington led a sing-along with Anna Scheurich at the piano. Nathan Warstler, a former "Up With People" cast member, performed several selections.

Wilder announced volunters are needed for clerical work at county headquarters in the former Auburn Hotel lobby. County Vice Chairman Grace Phelps supervises activities there.

Young Republican Chairman Jon Stepp announced plans for the upcoming "Quayle Blitz." Young Republicans will again sponsor a chicken barbeque at the county fair.

Women's Club President Pat Clark displayed patriotic scarves and neckties available for sale. She thanked Loisene Brewer and Ruth Farrington for coordinating the evening's activities. Members plan a September bake sale and a late October ham and bean supper.

Football Tickets

Football season tickets are now on sale at the high school office. The office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. There are six home ball games. Single game admission will be $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Season ticket admission for six home games will be $7.50 for adults and $4.25 for students.

There will also be an All-Sports ticket available for $30.00 which will allow admission to all levels of all sports, both girls and boys. This does not include admission to tournaments. The all-sports ticket could save the individual approximately $20.00.

Your family can give a disadvantaged youth his or her first decent break. Foster parents are needed. Let's talk it over. Call 665-7437, or your local Welfare Office.

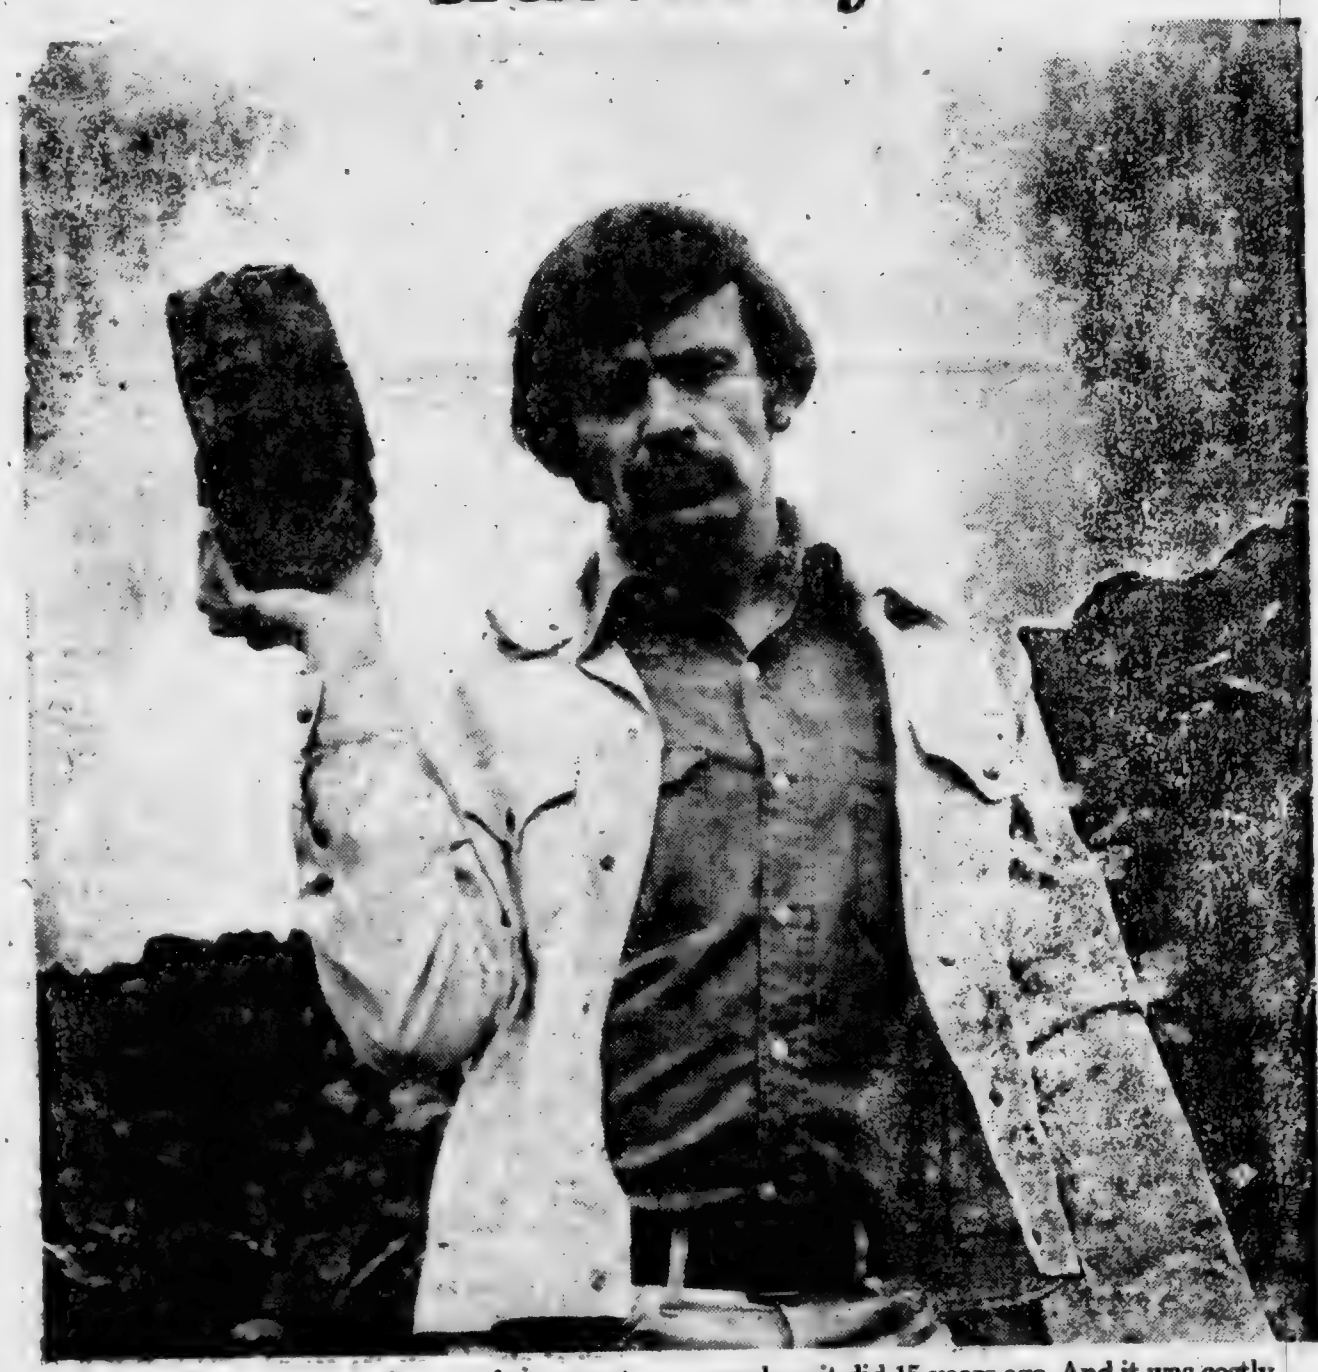
Just because there's plenty of coal, doesn't mean there'll be plenty of electricity.



By now almost everyone knows what a great resource America has in its vast coal reserves. And how important it is in making electricity.

But just having the coal doesn't make it electricity.

It has to be mined, first. Then we have to to convert that coal into electricity and get it to your homes and factories.

Without facilities to do all that, all the coal in the world wouldn't generate the first kilowatt of electric power. The lights wouldn't burn. And the machines that help us do our jobs wouldn't run.

Unfortunately, the cost of building these facilities has gone up drastically. For instance, building a power plant today costs five times as much as it did 15 years ago. And it was costly, even then.

On top of that, building new facilities takes time. And it takes the cooperation and understanding of the people who will benefit from them.

You might say it's a kind of power partnership between you and us that takes a realistic approach to the needs of today. And tomorrow, too.

Without your help and understanding about the needs and the cost, facilities may never get built.

And coal, which can become electricity, will just stay coal.

GS Troop 29

—Nancy Garman, reporter

Junior Girl Scout Troop 29 met on August 30 with 13 girls present. We want to tank everyone who helped make our bake sale a success, especially the mothers who cooperated so beautifully.

We now have the money to decorate our float and the plans are coming right along.

A discussion was held on the Patrol System, which is how a Girl Scout troop is governed. Next meeting we will set up patrols and elect leaders.

Bill Hubbard

William A. Hubbard, 57, of Saint Joe died at 3 a.m. Sunday, September 5, of acute myocardial infarction at his home.

Born March 29, 1919, Mr. Hubbard was the son of Anthony and Mary J. (Hale) Hubbard. He married Flossie Inlow September 17, 1938, in Covington, Kentucky. The family has resided at Saint Joe for the past 20 years.

The deceased was employed as an inspector at Dana Corporation in Auburn.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. Hubbard served a partial term on the Saint Joe Town Board starting in 1972.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Rebecca Lynne Robinson of San Francisco; a son, David William at home; two grandchildren; a brother; and four sisters.

Rev. Larry Carter officiated at the funeral at the Johnson Funeral Home in Butler. Burial was in Alton Cemetery.

James Reed

James Reed, 73, of Auburn, a former Spencerville resident and businessman, died recently at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. He had been in poor health for some time.

Mr. Reed was born in Jackson Township January 28, 1903. He owned and operated a service station in Spencerville, then worked for Baker & Altman Construction Company for 15 years before retiring in 1965.

Survivors include his wife, Cleo (Bowser) Reed; a daughter, Mrs. Jack Adair Shultz of Auburn; a sister, Miss Ida A. Reed of Spencerville; and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were held September 5 with burial in White City Cemetery at Spencerville.

Fire Department Barbecue Oct. 17

The Saint Joe-Concord Township Volunteer Fire Department will serve a chicken Barbecue Sunday, October 17, Serving will begin at 11 a.m. at the local fire hall.

A fire extinguisher will be given as an attendance prize.

Price is $2.50 per person.

Proceeds will go toward purchase of new turnout gear.

Spencer T'ship ClubReorganized

—Marvel Kesler, reporter

The Spencer Township Extension Homemakers Club recently reorganized.

Lois Fisher gave a tea at her home July 20. Mary Rutherford and Marvel Kesler served tea and punch at the table, plus many other goodies.

After refreshments, Lois gave devotions. Marilyn Beal, our county extension agent, gave the lesson "Color In the Home." She showed slides on decorating which were quite interesting.

There were 14 present.

It was decided to meet the second Tuesday in September at the Fisher home.

Larry Mason Named Dog Warden; Water Bill Payment Changed

Town clerk-treasurer Emma Frank announces the following changes related to residents of Saint Joe.

Larry Mason has been officially appointed dog warden to enforce the local dog ordinance. He replaces Ervin Fetters who served the community in that position for several years. The Fetters family has moved to Diamond Lake.

Mr. Mason reminds the public that dogs are not to run loose at any time. They should be tied or kept in an adequate enclosure, or on a leash. The dog warden acts under authority granted by the local Town Board, and strays will be picked up and held under provisions of the ordinance. Owners have three days after posting of a notice of capture of a dog to pay a fee to the clerk-teasurer in order to get release of their dog.

Saint Joe has had a very effective dog control program, due primarily to the conscientious efforts of Mr. Fetters. He was appointed to the job by a past town board composed of Ted Haberkorn, Jack Bowser and Lynn Lake. That board added to the effectiveness of the program by purchasing a dart gun, used with tranquilizers to capture dogs whose temperament may be a threat to the warden and the public.

Due to the closing of The Sisters' Emporium in the near future, where water bills had been payable in the past, payment of water bills will be accepted BY MAIL ONLY effective October 1. Bills are payable on or before the 15th.

Sorority Elects Meredith Storer

—Becky Leas, editor

The Lambda Sigma Chapter of Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority held their August 12 meeting at the home of Deanna Jennings at 8 p.m.

The creed was recited by 13 members. Secretary Lynne Bercaw then read the minutes.

Lyndia Sutken, who was one of the delegates sent to the International Convention this year, gave a report on some of the events that took place in Boston. It sounded like everyone had a good time.

Lyndia also gave a report on Butler Days. We made a profit of $64.00 on tickets that were sold and won $15 for our participation in the parade. Total profit was $79.00.

A hayride is planned for October 23.

Installation of new officers was held August 19. The new officers are:

Meredith Storer, president.
Lyndia Suntken, vice-president.
Becky Leas, treasurer.
Debbie Miller, recording secretary.
Cathy Nichols, service secretary.
Nora Raney, historian.
Sally Bercaw, editor.
Renee Johnson, organizer.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by the hostess, Deanna Jennings.

The next meeting is September 9 at the home of Cathy Nichols.

Letters to the Editor

Reading the "Around the Town" article — in last week's paper (August 19) — I appreate the concern of Marie Noel and others — over the demise of The Sisters' Emporium. However, the people who ignore our local dealers and shop in larger towns are not the predominating factor causing the Sisters' to close—Just one big fat ugly word—CREDIT.

We owned and operated grocery and general stores for over 25 years—and in that business you really learn people. When the Emporium opened, from across the street, I observed every "Dead Beet" within a 50 mile radius going in and out the Emporiums door.

In my 73 years living in this town, I have seen a dozen or more good business places fold or go out before they folded, and the whole cause—credit.

As you say in your article, The Sisters' were cooperative—very. Materials were charged, sewing service charged, and out goes the Happy Customers. They have "rooked" a couple "softies." Let them wait—while "we" go on trips, vacations, out to night clubs. Buy lots of booze and cigarettes with money they owe the Sisters. Many of "these" are sobbing in their beer now for the "poor Sisters"!!!

Several times—I witnessed scenes—to me, unbelievable—a customer buys several articles and says, "Put it on my bill—oh—by the way—how MUCH is my bill?" In being told, they said, "Oh, that's not enough to bother writing a check for!!!" The amount of that bill would have paid the Sisters' water and telephone bill for the month—the Sisters' had all their utilities to pay—plus payments on building—plus taxes—insurance payments for renewal merchandise. But a "trivial thing" like that never bothers a "Beet"—dead one, that is.

Witnessing scenes like that and others similar, my blood pressure would rise and I would have to get out of the Emporium—right now. I would come across the street to my home and think of Big Bill who a short time ago owned and operated a grocery in St. Joe. To several "Beets" he would send statements, courteous and business-like. Then when they were ignored, time after time, he would say to them in that soft voice with its thick southern accent, "Next week you pay your bill. If you don't, you are going to take a 'licking'—or I will."

Very drastic of course, but believe me, it worked.

The Sisters finally—too late—issued the ultimatim—all garments were left at Emporium until faid for. As a result there are still garments hanging there in the store—waiting. Some they have sold, but a tailormade garment is a difficult article to sell, tailored to fit one person.

Of course, I am told that I really am "old hat" in my ideas. I was "raised" to buy what you can pay for, or don't buy. But now I'm told, there are different standards—"Don't pay for anything you can charge." But at least I can sincerely say to my daughters, The Sisters of the Emporium, I am so sorry. It is tragic to lose a "dream"—and oh how those grils dreamed and worked for that store.

I can say this to them and know that I don't have an unpaid bill in their Book of Errors. Have you?

Catharine Bowser

Dear Ted,

I very much enjoyed the front page pictures in the News several weeks ago; the Bailey home, Mrs. Bailey, "Champ," Tom Abel, Rural Mail Carrier; Jay Bleeks and my Dad. (Jennie Abel, Tom's wife, knit red mittens for me one Christmas). Also, when I was two or three years old, I "loved" Bob Bailey's red hair! Dad helped with the butchering and cutting of meat. I spent much time visiting Mrs. Bailey. Thelma and Elwood Hart visited me shortly before the pictures appeared.

I wanted to show that paper to my brother, but someone threw it away with News-Sentinels.

I'll gladly pay for one or two copies of that paper.

And I'll try to send you some old history of Saint Joe.

Sincerely,
Marjorie Ramsey

Crackdown On Absenteeism At HS

Because of increasing absenteeism at DeKalb Eastern Junior-Senior High School a new policy has been adopted concerning school attendance.

Implemented with the opening of school two weeks ago, the procedures have already uncovered the fact that many parents in the district were unaware of their offsprings' unexcused absences. A school official had stated unofficially last spring that the 1975-76 school year had shown a high incidence of absenteeism.

The policy now under effect is as follows:

"In order for teachers to teach, students must be present in school. This policy of attendance is designed to provide a teaching situation that is necessary for the faculty to provide instruction. Regular attendance is a trait that is required for success in the business and professional world, and the habit developed in school is the same habit a student will follow the rest of his life. Therefore, this is a value that Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School will stress for the benfit of the students, parents and the community.

"The process of education requires a regular continuity of instruction, classroom participation learning experiences, and study in order to reach the goal of maximum educational benefits for each student. Absences of students from the classroom disrupt the continuity of the instructional process. The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost, the habit of regular attendance is broken, and make-up work or extra after-school instruction cannot replace them.

"Recognizing that the faculty of Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School cannot teach students that are not present, likewise; Eastside High School WILL NOT GRANT COURSE CREDIT TO STUDENTS THAT HAVE EXCESSIVE ABSENCES.

"Credit will be withheld on any student who misses a course 10 times in one semester. The administration will communicate with the student and/or parents on the 3rd or 4th absence and a record made in the student's file. The administration, guidance personnel or social worker will communicate with the student and the parent on the 6th or 7th absence, and they will also take appropriate action after the 10th absence. Severe illness authenticated by a doctor's verification, hospitalization and family trips approved in advance by the administration, may be allowed as legitimate reason for the administration to deviate from this policy. All absences will count until the maximum number is reached and then if a student believes unusual circumstances prevail and he should have special relief from this policy, he should request a hearing with the administration as soon as possible."

Sechler's, Vulcraft Begin Annual 'All-Star' Softball Series

Some practice games between employees at Sechler's Pickles and the Vulcraft plant early in August culminated in a challenge from Frank Sechler to Keith Busse for an "all-star" softball game between the two teams. This led to the scheduling of the game for the Vulcraft annnual picnic at Bixler Lake at Kendallville.

To add to the interest in the game, Frank obtained a gold-plated pickle, Keith had a miniature 1-foot steel girder made to hold the pickle, and a plaque was obtained on which to mount the symbolic trophy, with space provided to etch the name of the winning team.

It was also decided to make the game an annual affair, with each year's winner to have possession of the trophy for the ensuing year.

The practice games had been close ones. But at the all-star tilt, after Sechler's took a 4-0 lead right off the bat, Vulcraft proceeded to hold Pickles in check thereafter and took a 17-4 win—and the trophy.

The sportsmanship award, a giant inflated plastic pickle, went to Keith Busse.

The Vulcraft All-Stars have a pretty good team, it appears. They defeated Church League champions Norris Chapel 15-3 last weekend.

Vulcraft will participate in a tourney at Ashley this weekend.

In Vulcraft's plant league of three teams, Rick Stiver's "Red Tag Circus" team—or something like that—were 1976 champs.

In 1975 the office force's "Paper Machine" team was tops.

A reported 350 persons attended this year's Vulcraft picnic.

Blazer Football

The DeKalb Eastside Blazer football team won its first game of the season Friday, upsetting favored Woodlan 8-7. The win gained recognition as coach of the week for Al Peugeot by a Fort Wayne newspaper.

Larry McKown continued to be the backbone of the Blazer running game, gaining 79 yards. In one sequence of seven straight carries, McKown got Eastside's only touchdown in the final quarter. Jeff Hudson carried the ball for the extra two points.

Woodlan scored with 11 seconds to go in the first half.

I&M Blamed Unfairly - or - $34.50?-For The St. Joe News?

Indiana & Michigan Electric Company has been getting some lumps in the past several weeks due to an increase in rates charged the cities of Auburn and Garrett. No one likes rate increases, including the utility itself. But it is puzzling how some people can expect their wages to be increased, their fringe benefits to be increased, their income to go up but their output go down — but the electric company and the gas company and the fuel oil company and the telephone company should charge the same old rates and still be able to stay in business.

Part of the public's critical outlook toward I&M is the fault of the news media. I have been gone for three weeks. But the electric company rate increase was a matter of concern before that time in Auburn and Garrett. The public was hearing about the matter almost daily, but they were not getting the complete story. What do I mean? Well, every news report I heard or read was headlined or begun with a reference to a proposed PERCENTAGE increase in electric rates. No figures were given in dollars and cents to tell what the increase meant to an average household. And it's dollars and cents which tell the real story, not percentages. Percentages are tricky.

Why were the reports given in percentages? Well, it's more sensational and attention-getting to say that electric rates will go up 50 or 60 or whatever percent may be involved, than to say that electric rates will go up in a certain community to bring them in line with rates in other communities. And that's what the WHOLE story is about.

The first time I have seen dollars and cents used in the matter of Garrett electric rates occurred with the Monday issue of the Garrett Clipper, although the news article began by stating rates will go up 66.2 percent and this was referred to as a "whopping" increase in the opening paragraph.

Weeks ago I was suspicious that something just wasn't fitting together right, what with all the upset over drastically higher rates percentagewise. I called one Auburn resident and got an indication that my suspicions were well-founded. What suspicions? —that the residents of Auburn and Garrett were paying a much lower electric bill each month than residents in other parts of the county, that even if their rates were doubled, they would not be any worse than what we are paying here in our community. (Auburn and Garrett cities buy power from I&M for their total needs, then the cities bill their residents.)

The second paragraph of the Clipper article Monday confirmed my suspicions. It said in part:

"For a residential user of 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity, the rate (in Garrett) will climb from $17.70 to $32.88."

I dug out my current residential light bill and found that in the latest billing period, we used 1183 kilowatt hours and the cost was $31.55, plus a fuel cost adjustment of 69 cents, for a total of $32.23.

That's close enough to say generally that now Garrett customers are paying the same for electricity as we have been paying here for some time. Their complaining is unreasonable and unrealistic.

But wait — don't we have a rate increase pending for electricity in our area? That would once again put us in a higher rate bracket than Garrett; they already have their rate increase established.

Is this wrong? Should I&M be cited by St. Joe'ers for rate discrimination? I don't think so. The old principle of quantity discounts due to lower handling costs applies here as well as anywhere else in business, it would seem to me. And the rates are controlled by the Indiana Public Service Commission which is considered to be a "watchdog" in behalf of the public in utility matters. Whether you think they are or aren't isn't the point. The point is, I&M is subject to a state agency.

A lot of ruffled feathers could have been avoided from the start in the relationship between the general public and I&M if the news media had presented comparative dollars and cents figures to give a better picture of the situation. Percentages are often misleading and usually frightening.

I'm not trying to embarrass the county news media. I'm pointing out that an informed public—which is the basic reason for having news media—sometimes requires more than just presenting what is contained in official reports or news releases. Sure, the public could find out for itself the dollars and cents involved. But that could take hundreds of phone calls or letters and a lot of public utility and news media time—if the public bothered to investigate. A couple of phone calls AT THE START by news media could provide the additional information and provide a greater public service.

To illustrate how percentages can be used to trick you into an erroneous conclusion, how does this strike you:

Postage charges for mailing The Saint Joe News have increased TWO THOUSAND THREE HUNDRED PERCENT since I took over in 1948. If my income had increased by the same proportion, I would now make OVER $150,000 A YEAR. But I don't; it's less than one-tenth that amount. Therefore, postage rates are grossly out of reason and our legislators (who control the postal system) should pounce upon postal officials to correct the situation.

(To put it another way, if the subscription price of this paper had been raised the same proportion as postage rates, you would now pay $34.50 a year to get this paper.—Like heck you would!)

So—what's wrong with that story? Well, I used the trick approach of percentages in talking about postage costs. And that's what's happened to I&M in the rate matter. They have been put in a bad light by percentages and those who think they are being wronged actually have not known or appreciated how well off they have been, compared to other consumers of electricity.

Conrad Distorts Tax Picture

There isn't any state committee or group set up to officially rule on the truth of statements made by candidates seeking election to political office. There are, however, those groups set up privately to rate officeholders on their legislative efforts as related to what a particular group considers to be right or wrong, good or bad.

It would probably be close to impossible to set up a non-partisan group to rule on accuracy of statements because politics would be bound to arise in its functions. But if there were such a group, I think it could make mincemeat of some of the statements being made by Larry Conrad as he seeks to unseat Governor Otis Bowen.

One point in particular is being made at the present time by Mr. Conrad—or at least he is trying to make a point. It relates to re-assessment of real property subject to taxation. Mr. Conrad is saying that, after promising lower property taxes to get public acceptance of a "tax package" a couple of years ago, Governor Bowen now must face the fact of increased property taxes. Mr. Conrad says the Governor misled the public, because the promised "permanent" property tax relief will disappear with re-assessment and property taxes will increase 25 or 30 percent. That's what Mr. Conrad says and so far I haven't seen anyone challenge him pointedly and directly on that issue. (Note: this article was written in mid-August.)

He ought to be challenged. Because he is misleading the public to the point where I consider his accusations as on the borderline of "lie."

Why?

Because TAXES DON'T GO UP BECAUSE TOTAL PROPERTY VALUATION IS RAISED. TAXES INCREASE BECAUSE OF THE AMOUNT OF MONEY PROPOSED TO BE SPENT IN THE FUTURE AND THAT IS CONSTANTLY INCREASING. Individual taxes do rise if you add a room to your home or build a garage and thus increase your assessed valuation in relation to the property's previous value.

Folks get awfully upset about tax rates, and politicians can get public support by using tax rates alone, when those rates go up. The really important factor in property taxes is: HOW MANY DOLLARS MUST I PAY OUT.

Several years ago, I was talking with my brother-in-law about property taxes. He and my sis reside in Bloomington. This conversation was far enough back that a $10 tax rate was looked upon as almost the end of the world. And, as I recall, Bloomington had a $10 or near-$10 tax rate. In Saint Joe, our tax rate was something like $7 — and it looked as if we in this community were much better off than those in large communities.

However, I knew that rates were not the end means to make any judgments. So I asked him how much his taxes were in dollars and cents. As I recall it was something like $350 or somewhere in that area. I said, "That's just about what I paid here in Saint Joe."

It isn't the rate alone which determines the burden in dollars and cents. But "tax rate" then, as now, frightened a lot of people.

In the current campaign for Governor, Larry Conrad is frightening—or trying to—a lot of people by talking about increases in property taxes and making it the fault of Governor Bowen. He is inferring that re-evaluation automatically means more dollars paid out by everyone. He is wrong—and I think he knows it. But blame-placing gets votes, especially when it comes to taxes.

Mr. Conrad is the same man who pushed the idea of having political candidates reveal their private financial status, as if this was a way to judge honesty and integrity of a candidate. He revealed his finances in getting elected Indiana Secretary of State. Then after he was elected he used public tax money to pay for long distance telephones calls from his office for political purposes. He didn't return the $7,000 or $8,000 until he was caught. And he still got his party's nomination to run for Governor!

Back to taxes.

There are three factors involved in determining how much you and I pay in property taxes and they are interrelated. To have one, you must have the other two. The factors are: (1) the assessed valuation of property, set at one-third of the so-called "real value" of the property; (2) the amount of money required by the particular taxing unit involved (town, city, township, county, school district); and the tax rate. The third factor is determined by the first two. A tax rate cannot be established until the assessed value of property is determined and the amount of money needed to meet the taxing-unit budget is known.

Statements being made in the present campaign by Larry Conrad to discredit Governor Otis Bowen and the tax reform carried out in Indiana during his first term are, at the very least, very misleading, if not false. But it makes good reading and it does get people up in arms enough to go to the polls and vote AGAINST somebody rather than FOR somebody. Unfortunately, when this occurs, it means reason has gone out the window.

The tax reform is not perfect. But when the sales tax went from 2 to 4 percent under the reform, a big step was taken in getting more people to share the costs of education, in particular. With the state distributing more money to school corporations due to increased sales tax revenues, it means those who own real estate have had some of the burden of paying for education taken from their shoulders. The family which owns no real property is now helping to pay for their kids' education through the sales tax. Before, they got off almost scot-free. Despite Mr. Conrad's statements to the contrary, the increased sales tax was the fairest way to spread the cost of education over a larger number of people. "Public education" means every citizen has a right to it. It also means every citizen should help pay for it as equally as possible.

Mr. Conrad has said he will, if elected, cut the sales tax and make other tax changes which will in effect nullify the Bowen tax reform program. But Mr. Conrad does not say where he is going to get the money to make up the lost revenue. It is one thing to arouse the ire of the public over increased taxes. It is quite another thing to explain how the tax burden can be reduced when the cost of government continues to go up.

Mr. Conrad — not Governor Bowen — has some explaining to do.

CARD OF THANKS

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

Thirty-six members and guests of the Fifty-Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building August 19 for their regular monthly meeting. MM Karl Hart and Miss Ida Reed, substituting for Marie Ward and Elizabeth Hart who were unable to attend, were the hosts for the evening.

At 6:30 p.m. the group was called to order and after prayer by Karl Hart, all enjoyed the delicious potluck supper.

President Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. Greetings were extended to those present. She reported on all our sick members. A prayer for Marie Ward and her family and a memorial to Andrew Ward were given by Karl Hart.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to those having August birthdays and their birthday offerings were received.

"Swap Bingo" was played and enjoyed by all.

The beautiful table floral decorations were given as door prizes.

MM Faye Wilmot and MM Arthur Bottoms will host the September 23 meeting. Same time—same place. We'll be looking for you.

Working together is the only way.

Keeping electricity coming is a big job.

It's more than just taking care of the day-to-day problems of supplying power. It's also making sure we have enough fuel and facilities to keep up with the increasing needs of our area.

And the needs are growing. For instance, our electric requirements are almost double what they were ten short years ago. Simply stated, electric power continues to be called upon to do more and more things in our work and in our homes.

Keeping up with this increase is tough. It requires the best of everyone. It also requires planning, new facilities, and unfortunately, a lot of money.

And frankly, we can't do it all by ourselves.

That's why we need your cooperation. You can help by using electricity wisely. And by your understanding of the joint responsibility for supplying our future electric needs. It's a critical ingredient in our power partnership.

We know that asking you to work with us is asking a lot. But when you get right down to it, working together is the only way.

Gifts Sought For Patients

The annual drive for Christmas gifts for patients in mental institutions will be held October 18 through November 27. The drive in DeKalb County is sponsored by the DeKalb County Mental Health Association. Mrs. James Watson of Auburn is again serving as county chairman of the gift drive.

Jean Carpenter of Hopewell, west of Spencerville, is serving as chairman for the Riverdale area this year. Ted Haberkorn had served as local chairman for 13 years, since 1963, until the appointment of Miss Carpenter.

Each area in the county has been given a list of patients' names for whom two $3 gifts are requested. Any surplus of gifts beyond the local quota is used to make up other areas in which a sufficient number of gifts may not be collected.

Miss Carpenter will set up a display in the News Office at Saint Joe, once again the collection depot for gifts from the Riverdale area. Among the items requested on the local list are after shave, cologne, comb and brush set, wallet, coffee, children's adventure books, harmonica and candy.

Additional information can be obtained from Miss Carpenter at 238-4212.

Fire Department Barbecue Oct. 17

The Saint Joe-Concord Township Volunteer Fire Department will serve a chicken Barbecue Sunday, October 17, Serving will begin at 11 a.m. at the local fire hall.

A fire extinguisher will be given as an attendance prize.

Price is $2.50 per person.

Proceeds will go toward purchase of new turnout gear.

Voter Residency Law Changed

Because Indiana's residency requirement has been ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, voters who are in residency in the township by October 4 may register to vote in that township for all offices on all ballots. October 4 is the deadline for voter registration.

The law had required 60 days residency in order to be eligible to vote. A 6-month state residency provision had previously been ruled unconstitutional.

WIFF Country Music Jamboree Planned Oct. 9

In conjunction with the Country Music Association of America, WIFF-radio of Auburn has announced plans for its commemoration of Country Music Month in October.

The local station's special efforts will be climaxed by the second annual WIFF Country Music Jamboree Saturday evening, October 9.

The National CMA observance will be highlighted by a live telecast Monday, October 11, on CBS from the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville, featuring the 1976 country music awards.

WIFF is also conducting a poll of area listeners to determine their favorite country music songs and artists of the year.

The local jamboree will be presented at DJ's Night Club in Auburn at 9 p.m. October 9. Featured performers will include DJ and the Country DJ's, and the Millstones.

WIFF air personalities appearing will include DJ the DJ, Bob Richards, Charlie Walter, "Mighty Mike" Metzger and Tom Smith.

Advance sale of tickets in underway, with tickets priced at $5. Admission at the door the night of the jamoree will be slightly higher. Tickets may be obtained by sending $5 per ticket with a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Country Music Jamboree, WIFF Radio, R2 Auburn, Indiana 46706.

WIFF is presently conducting an on-the-air poll of area country music fans, inviting them to vote for the top hit records and performers during the past year. Ballots must be received by the station no later than Friday, October 8. The winning selections will be featured during the station's broadcast day, Saturday, October 9.

WIFF is located at 1570 on the AM dial.

Kevin Cook Shows Grand Champion

The first year of participation in 4H brought county fair honors this week to Kevin Cook of R1 Saint Joe.

Kevin entered a crossbred barrow in swine competition at the fair and came out with Grand Champion honors.

181 hogs were shown Tuesday at the fair.

No Teacher Contract Settlement

A news release from UniServ director Gerald Goen and Donna Hollabaugh, spokesman for the DeKalb eastern teachers association, reads as follows:

"A seven-hour Saturday bargaining session has brought the Eastern DeKalb Education Association and School Board closer together, but no final agreement was reached.

"Indiana Education Employment Relations Board fact-finder Dr. Dale Brickner returned to assist the parties to narrow their differnces on grievance procedure, sick leave bank, and calendar.

" 'We were not able to get together on the fact-finders compromise recommendation on salary,' stated Association bargaining chairperson Donna Hollabaugh. The Association was asking for 10 percent across the board increase and the School Board was offering 3.6 percent. 'The fact-finding report recommends a modest 4.6 percent, and the Association was willing to accept the recommendation,' emphasized Mrs. Hollabaugh.

"The increases recommended by the fact-finder came after an extensive six-hour hearing and nearly two weeks of study by Mr. Brickner. Each side presented its evidence on monies available and the effect of any increases on the school budget. Dr. Brickner commented in his report 'These figures (his recommended increases) are very close to the average reported by various agencies for contract settlements in the current year.' The full text of the fact-finding report should be releasd by the Indiana Education Employment Relations Board on September 27, 1976.

"In addition to salary, issues of a teacher aide for study hall, and grandfather contract items remain to be settled. Another bargaining session is scheduled for Tuesday evening. 'Our figures would indicate that the school board is incorrect in its calculation of the cost of the fact-finder's recommendation,' added Mrs. Hollabaugh. 'We hope the board will re-evaluate its position and accept Dr. Brickner's fair report so that agreement can be reached,' she concluded."

Immediately after the above statement was made public, the following statement was issued by J. Reynold Johnson, president of the school board:

"The news release from the DeKalb Eastern Education Association is a bit decieving in that if indeed there were agreements, they were very tentative as a part of a whole settlement package.

"Teacher spokemen refuse to acknowledge to the public that there is an increment of increase with each year of service of teaching. This increment amounts to $220 on the master scale and $203 on the bachelor scale. We then have to consider this in our increase offer. Thus, our current money offer is a 6% increase.

"The Fact Finder's Report doesn't call for a 4.6% as reported on the WIFF radio station Tuesday morning. The Fact Finder's Report actually recommends a 10.62% increase for a number of teachers."

Following further deliberations this week, Mrs. Hollabaugh said that teachers would refuse to participate in extra-curricular activities starting Monday in protest over the school board's failure to accept the fact-finder's report. It was stated that all but three or four of the 80 faculty members would support the teachers' move, and they included athletic coaches.

However, it was not stated how many teachers actually attended the meeting at which the extra-curricular ban was discussed, and what the exact vote was.

Then Goen commented later that he was not aware of any possible interruption in school activities by the teachers.

School board attorney H. Charles Winans stated for the board that there is only so much money to spend and the board's offer is the maximum possible.

The teachers also said that a charge of unfair labor practices against the board possibly would be dropped if the board agreed to the fact-finder's report.

Adding to the confusion in the public mind is the fact that percentages are being used by both sides in public statements. But increment increases are not counted by teachers as an actual pay increase while the school board includes the increment increase in its offer to the teachers. Thus, percentage figures vary.

There was a hint of a possible teacher strike in some comments coming from teacher representatives, although teacher strikes are illegal.

Cynthia Sipe

Funeral services were held September 22 for Mrs. Cynthia Mae Sipe, 71, of Newville who died at her home September 18 of an apparent heart attack. She had been in failing health for several years.

Mrs. Sipe was born February 9, 1905, in Jay County, Indiana, the daughter of George and Emma Whiteneck Garinger.

In 1923 she was united in marriage with Carl Sipe at Saratoga, Indiana. They began housekeeping in Fort Wayne and in 1950 moved to the present home.

The deceased was active in church work at the Newville United Methodist Church, United Methodist Women, past member of the Saint Joe Literary Club and the Newville Township Extension Homemakers Club.

Survivors include the husband; three sons, William of R1 Butler, Robert of Fort Wayne and James of Montpelier, Ohio; two daughters, Mrs. Howard (Carolyn) Miller of Morrensville, Indiana, and Mrs. Donald (Betty) Miller of R1 Saint Joe; 19 grandchildren; three great grandchildren; two brothers; and four sisters.

Rev. Philip Lutz, pastor of the Newville UM Church, officiated at funeral services at the Brown Funeral Home in Hicksville. Burial was in Newville Cemetery.

—that the DeKalb Central junior high cross country team defeated Eastside 23-38 Friday.

—that the Eastside reserve football team defeated 'Busco 6-0 Monday. The next game is October 12 at Angola. Their record is 2-1-1.

—that the Eastside junior high football team defeated Fremont 8-6 this week.

—that Jim Burns and Butch McBride broke the Shoaff Park course record this week, but Norwell still defeated the Blazer cross country team 26-34.

—that Lakeland won a cross country meet from Eastside 23-36. Jim Burns finished third and Butch McBride fourth.

—that Eastside girls lost two volleyball matches in an ACAC meet at Butler, losing to Leo 15-13 and 15-2 and 15-6 and 16-14.

—that Gene Tracy, 29, of R1 Saint Joe suffered injuries in a one-car accident on State Road 1 south of County Road 64 recently.

—that teachers in the DeKalb eastern district have filed four counts of improper bargaining procedures against the school board, according to Dave Kurtz in his column in the Auburn Evening Star. One count "concerns a May 18 article in the Star, in which we reported that the board would offer the teachers a six per cent raise (they haven't changed that offer yet). The teachers accuse the board of 'using' the newspaper to aid them in bargaining."

—that the fifth annual Autumn Harvest Weekend will be held at Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan, October 2 and 3.

—that Indiana banks maintained their leadership in agricultural credit services, providing almost $913 million in farm loans to farmers in the state as of January 1, 1976, according to the Indiana Bankers Association reports.

—that David Charles of west of Saint Joe was injured in a car-bike accident at Fort Wayne recently.

—that the Bob Chews are remodeling their home on the main street of Saint Joe.

—that Ken Ray of Butler, a member of the cross country team, is out of action, perhaps permanently as far as running is concerned, due to complications arising from an athsmatic condition.

—that EHS cross country runners Jim Burns, Dennis Drake and Butch McBride finished 6th, 12th and 13th in an invitational meet Saturday at West Noble. 140 runners competed in the race. The junior high team also participated and took 15 out of 20, with Evans the first Blazer runner, placing 30th, and Drake coming in 33rd.

—that Jo Brown, co-proprietor of the Georgetown Grocery on State Road 101, received her U. S. citizenship this past week.

—that October 4-10 is Y-Indian Guide Week in the Auburn YMCA. An organizational meeting for fathers and sons will be held Tuesday, October 5, at 7:30 p.m.

—that Area III of the Indiana School Librarians Association will meet October 7 at Homestead High School near Fort Wayne.

—that widespread presence of phytophthora root rot in DeKalb County alfalfa fields has been reported in a survey conducted by North American Plant Breeders of Mission, Kansas.

—that the Food and Drug Administration recently banned use of carbon black in eyebrow pencils and mascara and once used to color licorice, gumdrops and other candy, because of possible cancer-causing agents. Also banned was the red dye used to color maraschino cherries because of possible association with urinary bladder polyps and atrophy of the adrenals in dogs tested. However, the ban apparently did not indicate how much dye must be used or how many cherries consumed to indicate "possible" associations. 18,000 cherry growers in Michigan, California, Oregon, Washington and New York foresee a ruined market for their produce. Their entire crops end up in cakes, cookies, other confections— and the bottom of whiskey sour and manhattan glasses. The cherries' natural color is described as "dirty orange."

—that 1976 DeKalb Eastside grad Diane Peden has been awarded a scholarship for the current academic year by the Board of High Education and Ministry of the United Methodist Church. She is a freshman at Adrian College, majoring in elementry education. She is the daughter of Coach and Mrs. Bill Peden of Butler.

—that Congressman J. Edward Roush recently voted against a bill to lower excise taxes on beer produced by small, independent breweries in the United States. But the bill passed anyhow, 211-126.

—that the cross country team lost a triangular meet at Shoaff Park last week. Butch McBride and Jim Burns tied for first with 13:12. Dennis Drake was fourth. But 'Busco won with 37 points, Eastside had 40 and Southern Wells 48.

—that Indiana will be one of the first states to complete mainline interstate highways, including October 15 opening of the last portion of the Indianapolis innerloop. A 29-mile section of I-64 was opened to traffic two weeks ago. Indiana ranks 13th in total interstate mileage planned with 1134 miles.

You have an energy-saving device right at the tip of your finger.

In the hands of the right people, the tip of a finger can be an impressive device that helps keep electric costs in line.

Especially when that finger flips off light switches, radios and television sets before it leaves the room.

Or when it nudges refrigerator doors closed between snacks and waits until the dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers are filled before it turns them on.

No one's going to tell you that running around your home turning off lights and things will dramatically lower your electric bill. But it can help. In the battle to keep your bills down, conserving power is an important weapon.

And, while you're fighting on the home front, we're working to help keep your bills in line, too. By continuing to expand our search for economical fuel sources and to hold the line on building and operating costs.

Teachers Violate Contract With Extra-Curricular Boycott, Tell Students NotTo Boycott; Teacher 'Fact Sheet' Misleads Public On School Finances And Comparative Status

—By The Editor

The situation in the DeKalb Eastern Community School District has become alarming to many parents and patrons in the district. With a settlement of teacher pay scales not yet reached, with the school board holding its position of not having enough money available to meet the recommendation of a "fact finder" who himself officially stated that there quite possibly is not enough money to meet his recommendation, and with the teachers insisting that there is enough money, pressure has been brought to bear on the school board through some parents and students when teachers violated their contracts this week by refusing to lead extra-curricular activities starting Monday of this week.

Reaction from some parents was strong enough to bring comments of "blackmail" and "brainwashing the kids." Parents of students participating in athletics were contacted Sunday evening through at least one gathering with teachers and Monday student athletes reportedly were contacted by telephone urging a student "boycott' Thursday of this week. It is not clear whether the boycott was urged to put pressure on the school board to give in to teacher demands or that it was to protest the teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities.

A last-minute petition placed in business places in Saint Joe and Spencerville had some 40 signatures in the few hours prior to Monday night's school board meeting. The petition was in support of the school board. One reaction reported by one of the business places was that several people read the petition but did not sign it. These people were reported to be parents of student athletes who were concerned about possible lack of sports activities and were thus "on the teachers' side."

Since each teacher signed a contract to teach in the school district and perform whatever extra-curricular duties agreed upon for extra pay involved, failure to perform those extra-curricular duties represented a violation of their contract, if not a technical violation, then at least a moral violation. Reportedly, all but three or four had agreed to abide by the teacher boycott of after-school activities.

Parental reaction was especially strong when some students returned home Monday and related to their parents the comments and discussions held during school time or after promoting the position of the teachers in current negotiations. Such actions were looked upon as out-of-place, a violation of classroom ethics, and an invasion of the privacy of the home and family, inasmuch as parents had no knowledge of such discussions.

Pressure increased Saturday with the distribution in the eastern district of a flyer headed "Quality Schools - Eastside Facts." It was prepared, according to Gerald Goen, UniServ Director, by the Eastern DeKalb Education Association (the classroom teachers group), with the approval of the Indiana State Teachers Association through UniServ, and the National Education Association.

Two points came into focus when the flyer appeared: (1) a reported news blackout had been agreed upon last Friday by both the teachers and the school board; (2) the flyer had incomplete and misleading information.

A call to Mr. Goen by the News Office Monday brought an admission from Mr. Goen that the sheet did not contain complete information "due to a lack of space." What information was on the sheet said that the eastern district teachers' salaries "rank last or near last when compared to all other schools" but did not mention even just one example in dollar amounts to substantiate the statement.

At the board meeting, it was noted that being 'last' in the list of pay scales for several school corporations was "not as bad as it sounds." In one category the difference was only $2 more per year in another school corporation compared to Eastside. Placings, percentages and dollar amounts can be misleading when only one is used. And this is the tactic used by the teachers on their "fact sheet."

The sheet also referred to a salary increase for the superisendent of $1,335 while the increase for the average teacher in the district was only $675. It did not state that the superintendent's salary increase was at the same rate percentage-wise as that for teachers, a fact confirmed by Mr. Goen upon question from the News Office. It also did not state that the superintendent's salary increase is not being paid now, nor is any increase being paid to any administrative, clerical or custodial personnel until teacher pay is settled upon. Some teachers and parents have been under the impression that only the teachers have not gotten a pay increase, everyone else is already making more money.

Though the administrative and other personnel pay increase is included in the proposed budget for next year, it has not been in effect. (It should be noted that the school board Monday night deviated from past practice by voting a 7% pay increase for custodial and clerical personnel, due to the feeling that that it was not fair to keep that group waiting because of non-settlement of pay scales for teachers. Bus drivers also were given a raise by the board at Monday night's meeting. Both decisions were by 4-3 votes. Normally, teacher pay is established before other pay scales are decided.)

Lack of communication within the teacher group was apparent at Monday night's school board meeting. School attorney H. Charles Winans pointed out that the board had not anly agreed to most of the teachers' demands. It had also agreed to designate any surplus which might be found to be used for teacher's pay. The budget is up for review Friday by the State Board of Accounts. However, it was apparent from the reaction to that statement that patrons were not aware of the offer and teachers were not aware of the board's willingness to cooperate if at all possible. A question to Donna Hollabaugh, spokesman for the teachers, from a school patron asking if the teachers would be willing to abide by and accept such a condition brought no answer, tentative or definite.

Despite repeated statements by the various members of the school board to the effect that they wanted to give the recommended raise, that the teachers deserved a raise, if the money was available, appeared to have made little if any impression on faculty members. This is reflected in the fact that faculty members have violated their contracts, have given little if any recognition to the concessions made by the school board to teacher requests in other negotiated matters, and have utilized school time and their exposure to students to promote their interests.

Despite teacher declarations of dedication to quality education, to help the student mature in "total education," and to serve the best interests of the student, events which have transpired in the last week or so have brought doubts to the minds of many parents and patrons about such avowed dedication.

A "news blackout" was announced Wednesday of this week on a radio news broadcast. And another teacher "spokesman" said that rumors of a student boycott of classes were not accurate and stated that it would do no good for students to resort to such a tactic, teachers and students should be in school. She did not make any explantion for the boycott of after-school activities by the teachers which threaten in particular a Friday night football game. No mention was made that the school superintendent, principals and perhaps others were providing transportation and leadership for athletic activities starting Monday because teachers refused to perform their duties.

But an original "blackout" was agreed upon last Friday and at least one school board member thought it meant ALL types of information. But Mr. Goen, upon questioning about the point said, "Oh, that was only related to news media."

Thus by trick wording, the door was left open for teachers to (1) distribute a "fact sheet" Saturday, with misleading information; and (2) meet with certain parents to promote the teachers' position in the conflict

The teachers thus gained unfair advantage. And it was obvious at Monday's school board meeting that many parents were primed to "nail" the superintendent and the board, having accepted teacher propaganda as fact. It was not fact. And this became evident from the factual answers given by board members, the superintendent and the board's legal counsel.

One claim by the teachers, pressed by a school patron at the Monday meeting, was that there is $25,000 available for "emergency" purposes. It was then explained that the "operating balance" (not an "emergency fund," not an extra bundle of cash lying in the bank) was a necessary cushion in the flow of money to and from the school corporation. Where $100,000 or more formerly was a reasonable operating balance, it is now only $25,000, due to State Board of Accounts monitoring.

It was noted that on the first day of a recent month, the bank balance of the school corporation was only $542.00. The explanation dispelled, or should have, the teachers' claim that $25.000 extra money was available.

The "fact sheet" distributed by teachers Saturday starts with a quotation from the 1974 Prairie Heights Fact Finder: "The single most important element in the educational process is the TEACHER . . . ."

One irate mother responded, "No it isn't. It's the STUDENT!"

On that difference in outlook seems to hinge the future of education not only at Eastside but also in schools all over the nation.

The most significant factor in the relationship between teachers and school administration representing the public is the obvious inequality regarding the fulfillment of agreed-upon obligations. School boards and administrators are watched very closely for any violations, alleged or real, in obligations to the teachers and the public.

But teachers are not held to the same degree of responsibility in their obligations. This fact of life is apparent in the Eastside teachers' refusal to live up to their extra-curricular commitments this week; they violated their individual contract agreements which they signed before the beginning of the school year.

In addition, the teachers have violated professional theics by taking their salary dispute into the classroom and involving the students.

The American educational process, paid for by the public, was not set up to be used in that way. But the teachers have chosen to do so and have thus added to the public's doubts about teachers' "dedication to quality education."

The saddest part to many students is the betrayal they feel, as heard in this sobering observation by an Eastside student this week:

"I never thought Mr. ..... (a coach) would do something like this."

Zehr Farm Award

Eunice Zehr, owner of a farm located on County Road 51 near Spencerville, has received the Hoosier Homestead Award from the Indiana Department of Commerce. The acreage qualifying for the award was purchased in 1866 by Solomon Shilling, grandfather of the present owner. The farm now produces corn, hay, soybeans, wheat and oats.

The award is sponsored by the Agricultural and Rural Development Division of the Indiana Department of Commerce to honor farms which have been operated in the same family for at least 100 years.

Verifiable proof is reviewed by a certification committee before recognition is granted.

Other farms in this area receiving the same award include those of Oscar S. and Mary K. Noel of R1 Garrett, Ralph E. and Mary Jo Steward on the Michael Reever Farm at R1 Garrett, Robert K. and Lucile H. Cather of R1 Hamilton, and Trevor S. and Olive Frederick of near Hudson.

WIFF Country Music Jamboree Planned Oct. 9

In conjunction with the Country Music Association of America, WIFF-radio of Auburn has announced plans for its commemoration of Country Music Month in October.

The local station's special efforts will be climaxed by the second annual WIFF Country Music Jamboree Saturday evening, October 9.

The National CMA observance will be highlighted by a live telecast Monday, October 11, on CBS from the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville, featuring the 1976 country music awards.

WIFF is also conducting a poll of area listeners to determine their favorite country music songs and artists of the year.

The local jamboree will be presented at DJ's Night Club in Auburn at 9 p.m. October 9. Featured performers will include DJ and the Country DJ's, and the Millstones.

WIFF air personalities appearing will include DJ the DJ, Bob Richards, Charlie Walter, "Mighty Mike" Metzger and Tom Smith.

Advance sale of tickets in underway, with tickets priced at $5. Admission at the door the night of the jamoree will be slightly higher. Tickets may be obtained by sending $5 per ticket with a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Country Music Jamboree, WIFF Radio, R2 Auburn, Indiana 46706.

WIFF is presently conducting an on-the-air poll of area country music fans, inviting them to vote for the top hit records and performers during the past year. Ballots must be received by the station no later than Friday, October 8. The winning selections will be featured during the station's broadcast day, Saturday, October 9.

WIFF is located at 1570 on the AM dial.

Limited Mail Service Monday

Postmaster George Armstrong issued the following announcement this week:

October 11 is Columbus Day and a federal holiday. The post office lobby will be open from 7 to 9 a.m. only. There will be no window service or rural delivery. Mail will be received and dispatched, as usual. After 9 a.m., mail should be deposited in the courtesy box in front of the post office.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

One of the things from which I have had a feeling of accomplishment came a few years ago when the then-town-board members Jack Bowser and Lynn Lake and I (as "Pres") re-estalished a dog control program. We purchased a tranquilizer gun and provided kennel facilities for captured stray dogs. BUT—it wouldn't have been possible to have the effective dog control program had it not been for Ervin Fetters who took the often thankless job of dog warden. Saint Joe has had an effective dog control program under Ervin's conscientious efforts. His community spirit is unmatched, because the money he received was not nearly representative of the time involved on occasion. Because of his desire to help the community without regard for "how much do I get paid," we in Saint Joe have had the most efficient dog control program in the county.

Now that Larry Mason has taken the job of dog warden due to the fact that Ervin has moved to the Fetters' lake home, local residents would do Larry a favor and the community a service by cooperating with him in preserving our stray-dog-free streets. A word to newcomers in the community about the need to keep dogs tied or penned would be helpful to everyone.

Thanks, Ervin, for a job well done. Your willingness to work with dog owners while still seeing to it that the local ordinance was enforced is a bright spot in our town's contemporary history. Saint Joe is a better place to live because of your efforts.

The recent death of Russell L. "Hi" Holben of Auburn revived for me memories of some pleasant conversations with Mr. Holben. He knew my father from Shrine activities, and was a steady advertiser in The News the past few years. Every once in a while he would call, when an editorial particularly impressed him, to express his agreement and his pleasure that "someone is saying something" about things which are often overlooked by the public.

Mr. Holben was described as a business and civic leader for 50 years at Auburn. The efforts he made in the 30's and 40's to bring new industry to that community brought Warner Gear and a company which is now part of Dana Corporation.

I always appreciated and enjoyed his calls. He obviously was strong-willed and independent by nature. I would imagine he "made enemies" on occasion with those who did not at the time recognize that his efforts were for the betterment of others and his community.

Sometimes it's a very lonely road for those with vision, foresight and dedication.

For some time now, I have been living in fear of the day when one of the youngsters who ride bikes around the corner at the News Office gets smeared on the front of a car.

The kids don't always watch where they are riding and often go too fast. But they're not the only ones inviting disaster. Also adding to the danger are the motorists who ignore the stop sign at the News Office and also cut the corner short when coming around. And these are often fine, upstanding, law-abiding citizens who ought to know better.

My concern was echoed this week by Kenny Roberts who noted that the nice smooth pavement on Widney Avenue is great for bicycling, but the kids often do it in the middle of the street and don't get out of the way of cars.

A word to the wise is sufficient, they say. I hope so.

A recent news release from the Area III Council on Aging was devoted to telling about the special menu for September 28 at the 22 senior citizen nutrition sites in nine northeastern counties. The special—Lorrain Stew.

If you want an example of administrative costs of a government program NOT being justified, this is it. Consider:

A thousand or so senior citizens were expected at the 22 sites. That's only about 50 per site.

A thousand or so persons in nine counties is only about 115 per county.

The news release had to be prepared by someone. It had to be mailed. It takes paper to type a news release.

A duplicating machine is needed to make enough copies for distribution.

All this time and expense—just to say something about one day's menu!

All this expense for a fractional segment of the population.

Am I against seeing to it that the elderly get proper nutrition if they are needy? No.

Am I against special menus on occasion for something different, for a treat? Nope.

What I'm against is spending a lot of money to pay for desk jobs of administrators in these assistance programs when part of their time is spent on such trivia as proudcing a news release about a special menu for one day and trying to drum up more business (get more senior citizens to attend, whether they are needy or not) in order to justify the salary these administrators are paid with taxpayers' money.

Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" is an appropriate title for many government jobs. Too many people are busy doing nothing and getting good pay for it.

Remember now, I'm talking about ADMINISTRATIVE procedures and jobs, not the purpose of the program.

Gifts Sought For Patients

The annual drive for Christmas gifts for patients in mental institutions will be held October 18 through November 27. The drive in DeKalb County is sponsored by the DeKalb County Mental Health Association. Mrs. James Watson of Auburn is again serving as county chairman of the gift drive.

Jean Carpenter of Hopewell, west of Spencerville, is serving as chairman for the Riverdale area this year. Ted Haberkorn had served as local chairman for 13 years, since 1963, until the appointment of Miss Carpenter.

Each area in the county has been given a list of patients' names for whom two $3 gifts are requested. Any surplus of gifts beyond the local quota is used to make up other areas in which a sufficient number of gifts may not be collected.

Miss Carpenter will set up a display in the News Office at Saint Joe, once again the collection depot for gifts from the Riverdale area. Among the items requested on the local list are after shave, cologne, comb and brush set, wallet, coffee, children's adventure books, harmonica and candy.

Additional information can be obtained from Miss Carpenter at 238-4212.

Fire Department Barbecue Oct. 17

The Saint Joe-Concord Township Volunteer Fire Department will serve a chicken Barbecue Sunday, October 17, Serving will begin at 11 a.m. at the local fire hall.

A fire extinguisher will be given as an attendance prize.

Price is $2.50 per person.

Proceeds will go toward purchase of new turnout gear.

HalloweenParties

The annual Halloween Party at Saint Joe will again be sponsored by the volunteer fire department. It will be held Saturday, October 30, at the Riverdale cafetorium.

A parade will start at 7 p.m. at the fire hall and proceed to the cafetorium for the party.

The program includes games, judging of costumes, old-time movies and refreshments.

Adults as well as kids are invited to participate in costume.

The Spencerville party will be at the Community Building the same night. The Community Club is the sponsor.

The program will be similar to past programs—judging of costumes, games, treats, etc.

—And young and old are invited to participate.

Letters to the Editor

Editor: St. Joe News

Hi! As a newcomer to the area (we bought the Walters place on County Road 60) we've perused many of the local papers. Just gave up the subscription to one in favor of yours. Please begin our subscription for one year and send us a bill for that as well as a bill for the following want ad.

WANTED—responsible person for occasional overnight babysitting for children of AT&T supervisor. 337-5528.

If you have any suggestions for improving the above, please do so.

Thought you might be interested in our family a bit. Most importantly—we LOVE it here. My husband, John, is a native of Indiana, but my 4 daughters (his step-daughters) were born in California and lived along the southern Calif. coastline. I gained some attention there for my art work. Having been an officer and member of 4 of the more prestigious Calif. art groups, and coordinator of a monthly art exhibit on the wharf at Dana Point Marina. Some notables have my work in their collections, and I've been fortunate enough to be the recipient of some awards. — —

But enough about that, except to say that I hope to continue my art career in Indiana and would love to encourage you and any of your readers to please drop in and say "Hi!" chat, have a cup of coffee and get to know each other.

I have met Jean Cassady at the Studio Gallery in Auburn and she very graciously has accepted several of my paintings to sell. I've met the neat-o fellow who runs the Standard Station in St. Joe and is a volunteer fireman—(that's important to know!)

The St. Joe postmaster always has a serene smile on his face—wonder if it's this gorgeous country living? And I was nearly overwhelmed with friendliness one day when I stepped in the doors of the Knisely Bank. Had my hair done by the very proficient gals in the St. Joe beauty salon—(Calif. stylists have nothing on them!) and, of course, Mr. Browns hardware store—if he ain't got it—no one does!

All in all, I can tell you what makes Indiana so attractive. It isn't jobs—people get jobs anywhere. It isn't the climate—though I like it—: It isn't the countryside—that's pretty too—but lots of places are pretty. No, what makes St. Joe, DeKalb County, Indiana such a marvelous place to live is the PEOPLE. They just don't make 'em like that anymore!

Sincerely
Darla McCammon

For those who make remarks about "this dead town" and for the merchants, the above letter ought to be an eye-opener and a shot in the arm.
As for the postmaster's serene look, who wouldn't look serene, what with all the women in the territory coming to him for all their "mail" needs! —Ed.

Did you know

Blazer Football

The Blazers lost an overtime game to Fremont Friday night 6-3. Neither team could score in regulation time. Fumbles proved costly for both teams.

In the overtime Larry McKown kicked a field goal when the Blazers had first possession. Then Fremont came back and scored a touchdown for the win.

McKown gained 102 of Eastside's 140 rushing yardage.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

The first meeting of the Ladies Literary Club was held at the home of the president. A delicious planned potluck was served at 6:30 p.m.

After dinner, the president called the meeting to order and welcomed everyone. The collect and pledge were given in unison. After a short business meeting, club adjourned and the rest of the evening was spent in visiting.

The club met with Mrs. Forrest Bevington September 22.

Mrs. Harold Hamman had the lesson on "Women of the Revolution," taken from "Patriots In Petticoats" from the National Geographic magazine. She told of their work and many times actually fighting.

For entertainment, Mrs. Roy Baker had a soap quiz and rhyme about kinds of soap.

Mrs. Baker gave the critic's report.

Mrs. Everett Mavis of Auburn was a guest.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

LL Football

—Tim Mershon, reporter

The Eastside Little League football program got underway recently. It involves boys 8 to 12 years old and is a full-tackle type of competition held on the Eastside football field. Games are played every Saturday, ex- this week due to the fair. The schedule runs through November 6. Two games are played, the first starting at 11 a.m.

In the opening game, last year's champion Dolphins defeated the Packers 26-0. Dolphin coach Jon Johnson gave a good deal of credit to the defense in the victory with fine performances turned in by Willie Thacker and Bruce Coburn. Quarterback Steve Hoffer scored two of the three touchdowns on short runs and connected with halfback Aaron Willard on a 20-yard pass play for the third score.

Three successful two-point conversions and a first-half safety accounted for the remainder of the scoring.

The Dolphin defense gave up only 92 yards rushing and did not allow a score despite two pass interceptions by Mike Roselle.

Coach Tony Kaiser credited Mark Salisbury with good all-around defense, including most tackles. On offense it was mostly Roselle and Kerry King advancing the ball.

In the second game, the Vikings took advantage of Rams' inexperience in a 38-0 contest. Quarterback Jeff Vinson rushed for 236 yards, including most of the team's scoring. Halfback Ken Kessler added 106 yards and Linc Haley had a touchdown. The defensive unit worked well, too, getting 6 points on safeties.

Paul Wiley led in tackles with 18 while Vinson and Kessler had 14 and 13, respectively.

Coach Roger Kitchen said "it was one of those days when everything we did turned out good for us."

Vince Freese of the Rams rushed for 70 yards and had 19 tackles. Chuck Astin and Mike Kreig had 13 tackles each, Randy Drake, Glen Emenhiser and Tom DePriest gave good performances.

With only 7 players returning from last year, coach Dave Cather must cope with a shortage of experienced players, but he feels that the team will improve as the season progresses.

Rules For Free Milk, Free Lunch

The DeKalb County Eastern Community School District has announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals, and free milk, for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch and Special Milk Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility:

A—Family Size: Parents, Children and others	B—REQUIRED Income Scale for Free Meals and Free Milk	C—REQUIRED Income Scale for Reduced Price Meals
1	$3,680	$5,730
2	4,830	7,530
3	5,980	9,320
4	7,130	11,110
5	8,190	12,770
6	9,240	14,410
7	10,200	15,910
8	11,150	17,390
9	12,010	18,740
10	12,870	20,090
11	13,730	21,430
12	14,590	22,770
Each Additional family member	860	1,340

Eligibility determinations are made on a family basis, that is, all the children in the same family attending schools under the jurisdiction of the same school food authority are to receive the same benefits, Free Meals and Free Milk or Reduced Price Meals.

Columns A, B and C represent the family-size, income scale below which Free Meals, Reduced Price Meals, and Free Milk must be provided.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced-price meals or free milk. In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms for Free Meals and Free Milk or Reduced Price Meals are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application forms is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals and milk for them, the family should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy either Principal Charles M. Ray, Jr., or Principal Robert E. Williams will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to Kenneth L. Cole, Superintendent, DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, 300 East Washington Street, Butler, Indiana 46721, telephone number 868-2125, for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals and milk if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

Each school office and the office of the school superintendent has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Informational Notice of Proposed Increase In Residential Base Rate Schedules

Notice is hereby given that on August 6, 1976, Indiana & Michigan Electric Company (I&M) filed proposed new residential base rate schedules in Cause No. 34588 presently pending before the public Service Commission of Indiana (Commission). I&M is requesting that the Commission approve and authorize an increase in its residential base rate schedules to produce revenues of 33.88 percent above the level of revenues produced by the present residential rate schedules.

The Commission will in due course hold public hearings on such proposed increase in the residential base rate schedules at a time and place to be designated by public notice duly published in the manner required by law.

I&M's job is generating electricity and delivering it to where it's used and to do both with maximum efficiency and minimum impact on the environment. I&M employees are now, and always have been, dedicated to this responsibility. The unit cost of electricity to I&M's residential customers today—about 3 cents per kilowatt hour—is the same as it was some 30 years ago. And that's a price record I&M does not think any other product or most other electric utilities can equal.

The Company's problem today is no different than that which is affecting the pocketbooks of all Americans—inflation. Every element included in the cost of supplying dependable electric power—line trucks, poles, wire, labor, environmental facilities, interest rates on borrowed maney, power purchased from other companies to compensate for a deficiency in our own generation—all have been subjected to major increases in recent years.

If inflation continues its upward spiral, electric rates will continue to rise. Therefore each customer has an incentive to use electricity wisely, make his contribution to the conservation of this vital commodity and at the same time reduce the impact of rate increases on his own electric bill.

We would appreciate your understanding.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY

It ought to be noted that inflation and the higher cost of living are due basically to paying wages and salaries, and providing fringe benefits, higher in value than work done to receive such rewards. If it weren't for labor unions' extravagant demands, for instance meter readers who get something like $5.27 an hour for an eight-hour day when the quota of meters to be read can be reached in four hours' time, inflation and price increases would be controlled. —Ed.

Dear Ted:

We'd like to set the record straight on the Vulcraft team beating Norris Chapel.

We admit that the Vulcraft team has a pretty good team but they were playing the Norris Chapel team minus "Big Dan," minus their shortstop, Marty, who had gone back to college, and their star centerfielder, Paul, who was playing on the Vulcraft team. Norris Chapel hadn't played since Augst 28th, they were on a strange diamond where Vulcraft practices all the time, and we wondered if you were told that they played a double header and Norris Chapel won the second game with a score of 13 to 3.

Sincerely,
MM Keith Culler

Sorry we didn't have all the information the first time. —Ed.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Dog warden Larry Mason was awakened one night from a sound sleep by someone who had a hunting dog missing. Before he got fully awake, the phone conversation ended, and Larry forgot who the caller was.

Now Larry has the missing dog but doesn't know who to call. So, will the owner please contact Larry. The dog is white with brown coloring.

From Mrs. Millard Gruber in Fort Wayne:

"Mother and I would like to thank each one of you for all your cards, calls and prayers on her birthday and throughout the year. You are very kind and may God bless all of you.

With our love and best wishes, Elizabeth Milliman and daughters."

CC Fish Fry

The Spencerville Community Club will serve a fish fry Saturday, October 23, from 5 p.m. until ? The fry will be held at the Community Building in Spencerville.

Also on the "menu" for the evening will be bingo.

Proceeds will be used to defray expenses of operating the club building.

Cub Pack 3172

The Spencerville Cub Scout Pack 3172 attended the Fall Camporee. The boys attending were Dirk Tejan, Bobby Gettys, Jeff Studebaker and Frank Scott, all Webelos.

The adult leaders were John Scott, Webelos leader; Bob Tejan, Cubmaster; and Mike Abell, assistant leader.

Some of the activities at Haynes woods were: an hour hike, taxidermy demonstration, muzzle-loading, and more. One of the activities included the rain gutter regatta which Frank Scott and Bobby Gettys won.

Lola Jolly

Funeral services were held Sunday at Brown Funeral Home in Hicksville for Lola D. Jolly, 66, of R1 Hicksville who died at her home last Thursday. She had been in failing health for the past two and one-half years.

Mrs. Jolly was born February 15, 1910, in Scipio Township, Allen County, the daughter of John and Dora Nelson Baker. On February 3, 1929, she was united in marriage with Howard Jolly and they began housekeeping at the present home.

Mrs. Jolly graduated from Hicksville High School in 1927. She was a member of the Spencerville United Methodist Church, Spencerville Order of the Eastern Star, and the Hicksville VFW Auxiliary.

Survivors include the husband; a son, Richard Meek of R1 Hicksville; a daughter, Mrs. Lenare Yoder of Saint Joe; and six grandchildren.

Rev. Terry Rhine officiated at the funeral. Burial was in Scipio Cemetery.

Zola Coburn

Funeral services were held at Coburn Corners Church of Christ Wednesday for Zola Adair Coburn, 60, of near Saint Joe, widow of Kenneth Coburn who died in 1974.

Mrs. Coburn was born July 31, 1916, in Dunkirk, Ohio, the daughter of Carroll and Flossie Dycus Wolford. She was a member of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ and the Pythian Sisters of Auburn.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Shirley Mack of R1 Saint Joe; a son, Floyd of Saint Joe; two brothers; and 14 grandchildren.

Brother Larry Carter officiated at the funeral. Burial was in Alton Cemetery.

Salary Dispute Settled At 6.5%

The following news release came from the DeKalb eastern classroom teachers association and the Auburn office of Uni-Serv, dated October 9:

"Members of the Eastern DeKalb Education Association met Friday after school to hear a report from their bargaining committee.

"A school board salary offer in line with the fact-finder's report of 6.5% beginning with the start of the 1976-77 school year was made Thursday and enabled the two parties to reach tentative agreement. A tentative contract initialed by representatives of the two groups Friday morning includes:

—A new sick leave provision for extended illness.

—Improved grievance procedure language including binding arbitration.

—A leave of absence without pay for reasons of health, education, child adoption, and serving in public office.

—A listing of Association rights.

—Payroll deduction for credit union.

—A limitation on the schedule of in-service workshops.

—An increase of major medical coverage to $250,000 costing the Corporation a total of $126.00.

—Two one-half days for parent conferences in the elementary buildings.

—Slight improvement in the extra-duty pay schedule.

—A no-reprisal clause.

"Additional agreements were worked out on a change of the spring vacation period to the end of the third nine-weeks grading period (March 21-25) and the employment of a teacher aide to provide high school teachers a full preparation period.

"A ratification vote should occur the first of next week.

" 'We wish to thank the many parents and citizens who were so understanding during this last week. The support of the community was appreciated,' said Donna Hollabaugh, bargaining spokesperson.

" 'We especially wish to thank the students who all helped us to continue in our classroom activities,' said Iva Scheuring, Association president."

(Note: The reference to the agreed-upon wage increase in the teachers' news release may be misleading. The 6.5% increase is more "in line" with the board's 6% offer than with the fact-finder's and teachers' requested 7.2%.)

Runners Qualify

Eastside's lanky senior, Jim Burns, and sophomore Butch McBride both earned spots on the seven-man ACAC all-conference cross country squad last week. Nine teams participated in the final ACAC meet at the Eel River Golf Course at Churubusco. The top seven runners in the meet received the all-ACAC honors.

Burns came in second with a time of 12:53 to give him his second straight year of all-conference honors.

McBride was fifth with 13:01.

Former all-conference runner Dennis Drake was 10th, Tony Salinas 32nd and Dan Drake 51st.

Coach Bob Brown said he was very pleased with his runners' performances. The team had a winning year despite two meet withdrawals due to injuries.

'Country' Awards

While "renegade" artists Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson dominated the top categories at the 1976 National Country Music Association Awards program Monday evening, more traditional artists received top honors among country music fans in northeast Indiana in a WIFF-radio poll.

Jennings and Nelson received the Single (Hit Record) of the Year and Vocal Duo awards in the nationally-televised CMA program. And the award for Best Album went to "Wanted - The Outlaws" by Nelson, Jennings and his wife, Jessi Colter, and Tompall Glaser.

Nelson, considered the leader of the "Austin sound" movement in country music, was on hand to accept the awards. But Jennings refused to attend the program. He has carried on a long-running feud with the country music establishment, and announced his withdrawal from this year's awards competition for what he termed "personal reasons." However, his announcement came long after the voting among CMA membership had been completed and the winners determined.

The hit single, "Good Hearted Woman," by Jennings and Nelson, was voted the best in 1976, while "Rhinestone Cowboy" received the Song of the Year honor.

Other top winners were Ronnie Milsap, Male Vocalist; Dolly Parton, Female Vocalist; and The Statler Brothers, Vocal Group.

In a poll of area country music fans, WIFF announced that the selections reflected a more traditional taste in music than was apparent from the national awards.

Male Vocalist of the Year in the WIFF poll was Conway Twitty. Dolly Parton won the Female Vocalist honors. The top vocal duo in the local survey was Conway Twitty and Loretta Lynn. The Statler Brothers added the WIFF Vocal Group award to their national honor, sweeping past a field of nominees dominated by "progressive" country music bands, again reflecting the more traditional tastes of local country music fans.

The hit record "Teddy Bear," by Red Sovine was voted the Number One record by northeast Indiana listeners, whose interest pushed it to the top of the local chart several weeks before it gained prominent national status.

The recent award polls by CMA and WIFF were part of the "October Is Country Music Month" national promotion by the music and recording industry.

Did you know

—that the Indiana State Teachers Association "joined hundreds of thousands of colleagues nationally in applauding the endorsement of Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale for president and vice-president," according to a release from the ISTA. The endorsement came from the National Education Association (NEA) and is the first time in the association's 119-year history that such an endorsement has been given. NEA president John Ryor reported that the Carter-Mondal ticket was selected by a 4-1 margin over the Ford-Dole ticket. Of 7,000 ballots from NEA delegates, 5,511 (81%) supported the Democrat ticket while only 1,295 (19%) supported President Ford and his running mate. The NEA president and executive director Terry Herndon said the "American public education is in desperate need of competent, capable and sensible federal leadership." They said that for 7½ years "the men in the White House have said that education is inflationary, that it will just have to wait. We have had enough of that."

—that the Indiana School Boards Association convention this weekend at French Lick will consider resolutions opposing any efforts by teacher groups to expand the scope of collective bargaining. Current law mandates boards to bargain on salaries, fringe benefits, individual contract privileges, days off with pay, sick leave, leaves of absence and other economic matters. It is felt that many such matters are better left to local school communities rather than arbitrarily mandating them by state law.

—that United Telephone Company of Indiana was denied a rate hike recently by the Public Service Commission which also ordered decreases for certain customers.

—that the grades 9 and 10 cross country team will compete Tuesday in the East Noble Invitational meet.

—that Dan Quayle, seeking to unseat incumbent J. Edward Roush, has attacked huge appropriations for daily operations of Congress and cited Roush's votes to approve $827 million for 1976 and $943 million for 1977 for legislative operations. As an example of what he calls "an extravagant Congress," Quayle noted that 63 elevator operators are paid approximately one-half million dollars per year to operate the automatic elevators in Congress.

Blazer Football

Hamilton's homecoming was a success Friday as the Marines defeated Eastside 20-19. A touchdown with just less than five minutes to play brought the victory.

Curtis Best made an 85-yard kickoff return in the third quarter after Larry McKown had scored in the second quarter. McKown also scored in the final quarter on a two-yard plunge.

50-PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

40 members and guests of the Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building September 23. MM Faye Wilmot and MM Arthur Bottoms were hosts for the evening.

The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and after prayer by Mildred Jarrett, a delicious potluck supper was enjoyed by those present.

A short business meeting was conducted by President Ida Reed. Greetings were extended to those present. She read a poem, "September." Birthday offerings were received.

Prizes were given to the oldest and youngest woman present and the oldest and youngest man. Mrs. Wilmot then introduced Mrs. Freida Guilford who showed pictures and told us of her trip to New Zealand and Australia last fall. Her program was very interesting and greatly enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Elva Hoover, Mrs. Lulu Gerig, Barbara Longbrake and Mrs. Kathryn Shockley will be hostesses for the October 28 meeting. Same time—same place. See you there.

Cadette Scouts

Limberlost Girl Scout Council is sponsoring "A Day at Ayres" for its Cadette Girl Scouts and friends. The event is scheduled for Friday, October 29 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at L.S. Ayres in downtown Fort Wayne.

Consultants will share career opportunities with participants and information will be given regarding preparation for a chosen profession.

Following lunch at Ayres, girls will view the latest fashions for 7th, 8th and 9th graders. Participants will be shown the latest fashion tips by the L. S. Ayres staff on hair care and make-up for school and extra-curricular activities.

A $1 fee should accompany each registration. The number of participants is limited. So registration should be mailed before October 23 to Limberlost Girl Scout Council, 227 E. Washington, Fort Wayne 46802.

The Limberlost Council serves Adams, Allen, DeKalb, Huntington, Steuben and Wells counties.

—that the Eastside Junior High Girls Athletic Association is under way. The group meets Monday nights after school and allows any junior high girl to participate in many sports. Officers are Susie Eifrid, president; Jamie Smith, vice-president; Kellie Baird, secretary-treasurer; Tracy McKown, reporter; and Debbie Schindler, sporthead.

—that the Auburn "Y" now has a fathers and six-to-eight-year-old daughters program called the "YMCA Indian Princesses."

—that the varsity cross country team won over Leo 41-61 but lost to Heritage 31-41 in a meet October 5 at Shoaff Park.

—that two vacancies on the Democrat ticket in county election races were recently filled. A. Lee Weathers of Garrett will run for county clerk, opposing Paul Post. And Jo Ann Pulver of Auburn will run for county treasurer, opposing Joan Knepper.

—that incumbent Congressional candidate J. Edward Roush told a North Side High School group of students in Fort Wayne recently that "a decision not to vote in the November 2 election would be a 'cop-out', not a reasonable choice."

—that Monday's school board meeting at 8 p.m. will include minutes; claims and checks; school board consideration of Lynn Fisher's contract; school board submission of two names as nominees for the State Road 1 Committee; school board members to take official action on the newly negotiated contract with the teachers' union; and any other business that should come before the board.

—that the Blazer junior high cross country team finished 3rd in the ACAC final meet October 7 at 'Busco. Eugene Evans was second and Dave Drake 11th.

—that Indiana Senator Vance Hartke missed 24 roll call votes between September 10 and 16 in the U.S. Senate, according to the Bloomington Herald-Telephone. Included in the votes missed were the Public Works Job Appropriations bill, Revenue Sharing Extension bill, the Illegal Corporate Payments Ban bill, the Fiscal 1977 Budget Levels bill, and the Tax Revision bill.

—that Randy Provines of R1 Butler showed the reserve champion Angus steer in the recent county fair.

—that Susan Lee Harter and Ronald Douglas Howard of Butler plan an October 23 wedding at the Butler Chrich of Christ.

—that MM Larry Wineland of R2 Auburn are parents of a son born last week at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that a Court of Appeals ruling has strengthened teacher rights in collective bargaining with school boards. The ruling upheld the Indiana Education Employment Relations Board's power to decide unfair labor practices. The court overruled the Knox Circuit Court which overturned an IEERB hearing decision which ordered three teachers reinstated. The Court of Appeals decision appears to remove the power of school boards to exercise their own judgment in making changes in faculty members.

—that Marine PFC Jeffrey D. Fogleson, 19, of Butler has reported for duty with the 3rd Force Service Support Group on Okinawa.

—that the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) for 1977 began in DeKalb County on October 6. A national funding level of $190 million was set for the program. ACP provides up to 75 percent of the cost of carrying out approved soil, water and woodland conservation practices, including increased acreage of vegetative cover in crop rotation; underground drainage; interim cover; ahimal waste storage; establishing permanent vegetative cover; planting trees; improving a stand of forest trees; water impoundment reservoirs; constructing terrace systems; permanent wildlife habitat; sediment retention, erosion or water control structures; sediment, chemical or water runoff control measures; and windbreaks or shelterbelts.

PastOfficersClub

—Mrs. K. M. Crowe, reporter

Past Officers Club of DeKalb County, IFC, met October 7 for dinner at Platner's Steak House at Garrett.

The meeting opened with the formal opening. At the business meeting Mrs. Raymond Dunn of Waterloo asked that the budget for 1976-77 be read. A monetary gift for the handicapped children's school was allowed. The school is in Auburn. Mrs. Forrest Bevington of Saint Joe was welcomed as a new member of the club. Mrs. Robert Eldrige gave devotions.

The after dinner speaker was a retired school teacher, Mrs. Anna Clark. She told about her July trip to Russia with her husband and 21 other persons. They had American and Russian guides and went from Moscow to Leningrad, Province of Georgia, and into Siberia to Lake Byjcal. The people were friendly, the food in most part was good and they drank tea instead of coffee.

The Soviet Union keeps its country unlittered, as older women are given jobs as sweepers, often working until eleven o'clock at night. They have buses, trains and many planes, but not too many Russians own cars; they are too expensive and the highways are not kept too well. The Day Care Centers in Russia are well organized and very well maintained. Vacations of factory workers are at resorts bought and staffed by the factories. Some churches are on-going and the main one seems to be Russian Orthodox.

Mrs. Clark showed the club women dolls. Sometimes 25 were stacked inside one another in graduated size boxes. She showed medals, toilet tissue, metal boxed green tea, and an amber necklace with gold filigree. According to Mrs. Clark, gold is predominant in the USSR on the buildings which are beautiful and open to the public.

In Russia you go shopping with a string shopping bag. You indicate your purchase at the counter where it is sold, leave it lie, go to another counter to pay for it, and go back to pick it up. No bags are put around the article. Maybe if it is chicken, you are given a paper to put part way around. This method of shopping and paying for each article is very time-consuming and certainly different from the American way of lining up at the store counters.

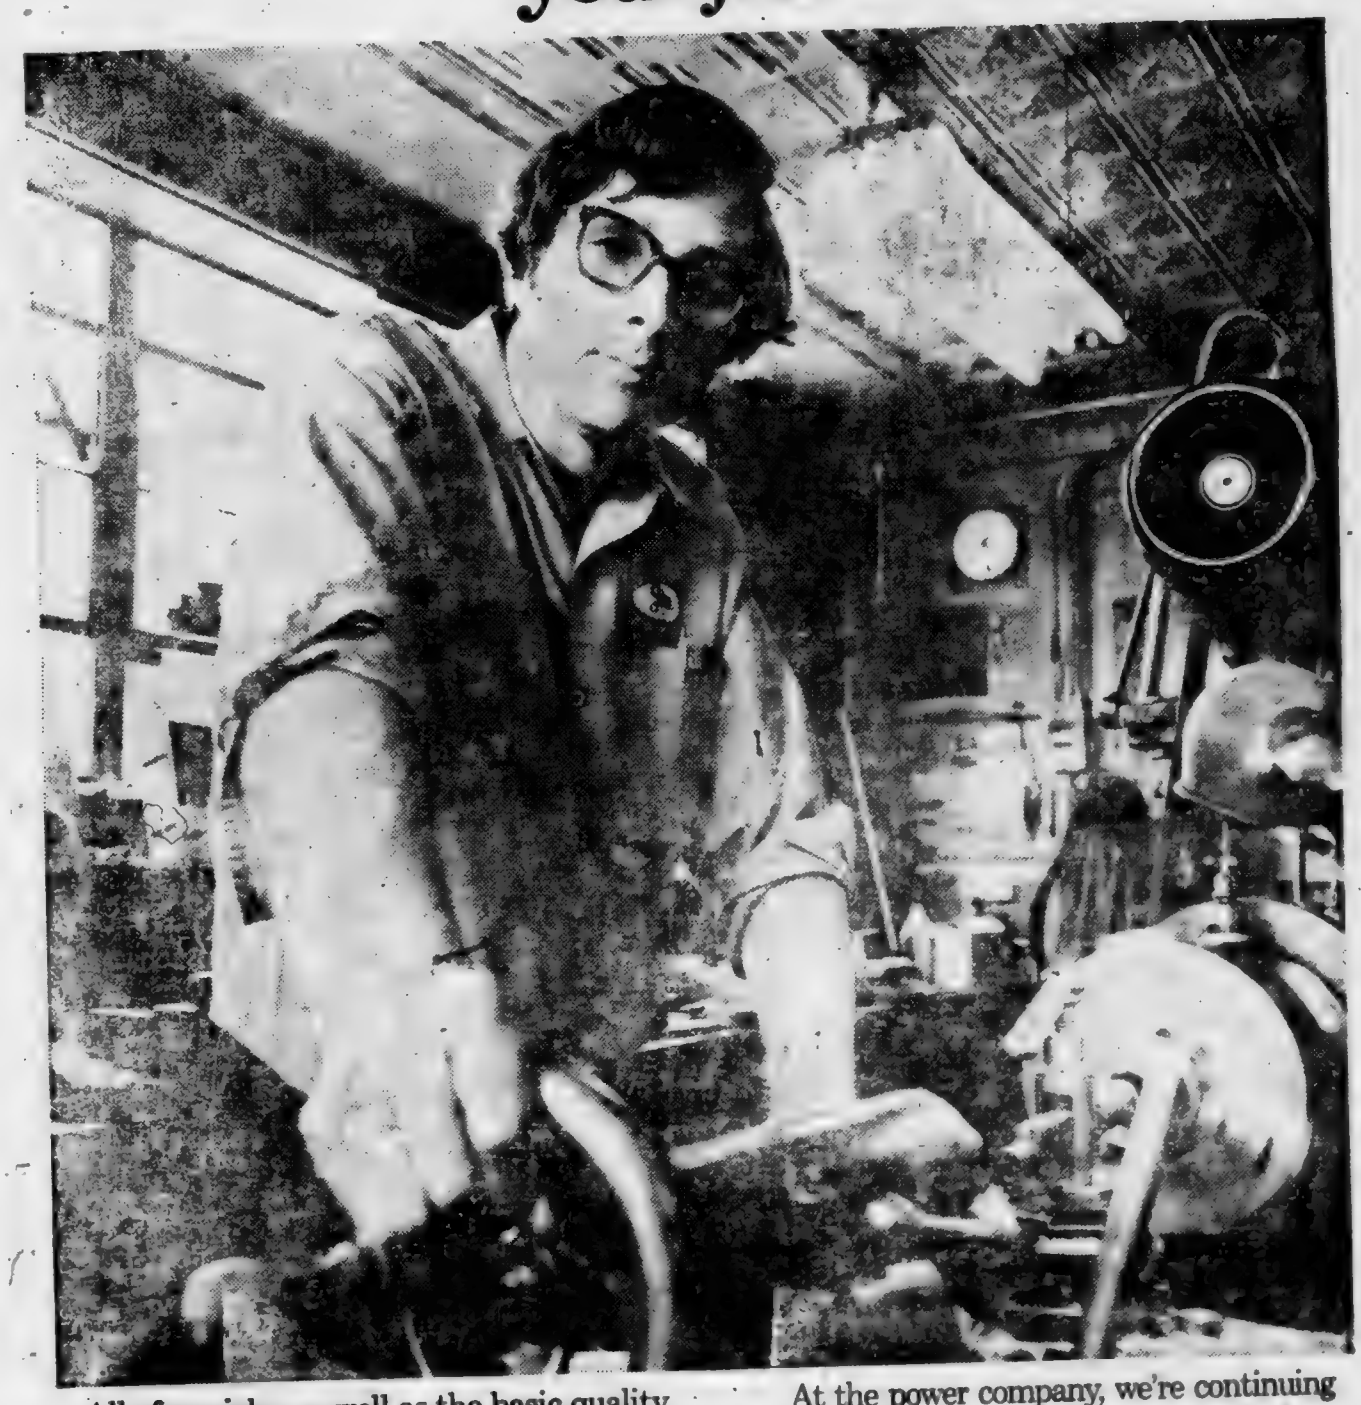
The power company's job is to help you with your job.



All of our jobs, as well as the basic quality of our lives, depend, in part, on a stable supply of electric power.

But the price of electricity has been going up. And a lot of people are worrying about the possibility of shortages in a few years.

These are serious problems. Not just for you. For all of us.

Because without electricity, machines stop. Work stops. Paychecks stop. The economy suffers. And progress stops.

So, how do we deal with this?

By working together.

At the power company, we're continuing to expand our search for economical fuel sources. Planning for new facilities that will be needed in the future. And, we're continuing our efforts to hold our operating costs in line so we can efficiently provide the electricity that helps all of us get our jobs done.

How can you help? By using electricity wisely. On the job. And at home, too.

You can also help by understanding and sharing the joint responsibility we have in assuring our electric supply.

And working together offers the best chance for all of us to get the job done.

October 6, 1976

Dear Ted;

I had the misfortune to be present at the combined meeting of the Teacher's "Union". (they said that) and the DeKalb Eastern School Board. Originally the meeting was supposed to be a sounding board. Concerned parents were to communicate with the School Board and indicate whether they had confidence in the Board's bargaining position with the teachers.

The meeting was in actuality a display of solidarity among the teachers. There were probably three to four teachers present for each parent. The meeting turned out to be a public bargaining session for the teachers who apparently had coached some very impressionable friends. And yet some of their own teachers did not seem to be fully apprised of the facts.

The singularly most important fact presented was the teachers apparent indoctrination of our children to the teachers own personal prejudiced point of view. Even if the indoctrination had not been prejudiced and pointed, it would be for 13-18 year old students to fully comprehend or appraise the situation. Innocents that they are, children believe the first version of a story they hear especially when it comes from a teacher. The coaches pushed the issue so far that they convinced the team to vote not to play without the coaches and the coaches are boycotting extra-curricular activities. "Did You Know" that if the team misses two (2) scheduled events that the Athletic Fund will be bankrupt because of fines levied for the non participation?

Fortunately, my child was not brainwashed by the coaches (too young), but as a parent I am indignant that your child or mine could be subjected to this type of brainwashing at the whim of an obviously thoughtless, insensitive, immature individual or collection of characters. Agreed! My words are not polite, but then neither were the tactics of the coaches and some teachers.

I am not sure that it is possible, but for the above mentioned happening, do we really need these coaches? I say no! We do not need them in our schools, nor in our community. We and certainly our children would be much better off without that kind of influence in our midst. I can see no reason why any school board member would be agreeable to renewing contracts with people like that. Remember Earl Butz tendered his resignation for an offense of a much lesser nature and it certainly did not affect our children.

Neither should we offer to renew contracts with any teacher guilty of conversing in class with the students on anything other than the procedural matters relating to the negotiations. I certainly hope the School Board pursues this matter to a logical and conclusive end.

We, the parents were made aware of the professionalism of our teachers. They used such terms as "total" or "complete" education and began to instruct parents as to their meaning. The words of explanation were misleading, but their meaning was clear. Regardless of how, pay me 6% or 7% now! Never mind that you may have to pay increased costs for drivers education. You don't have to replace school buses at 100,000 miles. You could deficit spend if you really wanted to. I tell you here and now that I shall be accused of misinterpreting. If you really believe that, you, the public, deserve what these people have in store for you.

If these teachers are really so valuable, why didn't they go to a larger school corporation and receive more money. Because they couldn't get the job, for what ever reason. Every working person knows the truth of this.

Before closing, let me acknowledge the few truly dedicated teachers wherever they are. Regardless of salary, they will always be under paid. Regardless of hours, they will always be over worked. And when they are gone, they will always be missed. I venture to say that none of the aforementioned were present at the October 4th School Board Meeting. There might have been some misguided youth in attendance who may yet achieve this goal, I hope so, but they may have to back track a little.

I apologize to the public for taking space which might have been used for more pleasant reading, but when I suspect the rape of children's minds or of my wallet, I get upset and in this case feel the need to speak out and protest.

Yours truly,
Byron C. Richardson

Women's Prayer Breakfast 28th

The fifth annual DeKalb County Women's Prayer Breakfast will be held Thursday, October 28, beginning at 9 a.m. in the First United Methodist Church in Auburn.

Mary Welch is general chairman, assisted by Mrs. L. G. Wellendorf. Nell Souers is advisor.

Other officers include Virginia Finley, treasurer, and Jane Proksa, secretary. Pat Bartels and Lois Cobler are publicity chairmen. Victoria Ort is ticket chairman for the county and has appointed area chairmen. They include Nancy McNabb for Riverdale area; Joyce Buss, Auburn; Phyllis Frank, Corunna; Sonja Schoonover, Waterloo; Mary Ann Black, Hopewell; Helen Silberg, Ashley; and Fara Lee Carr, Garrett.

Those wishing to attend may contact their area chairmen.

A continental breakfast will be served at 9 a.m., followed by the program at 10 a.m. Fran Mefford is in charge of ushers. Joan Wertenberger, dining room, and decorations, Polly Bassett.

Music will be provided by Sylvia Kutchukian of New York, a native of Egypt.

By popular demand, Jill Briscoe of Brookfield, Wisconsin, has been secured to deliver an address. She spoke to the group in 1973. She and her husband are natives of Great Britain and came to the United States a few years ago to minister to the youth of this nation.

The prime purpose of the prayer reakfast is to not only bring women together from all faiths but to pray for government leaders.

P.O. Holiday

Another post office holiday will occur Monday, October 25, when "Veterans Day" will be observed. Though the state of Indiana has restored November 11 as the observance date, an Act of Congress still in effect establishes the October Monday holiday to create a long weekend.

The post office at Saint Joe will be open for lobby service only from 7 to 9 a.m. There will be no window service nor rural delivery. A regular pickup will be made in the afternoon. So letters dropped in the outside courtesy box during the day will be picked up by the star route delivery carrier.

Spencerville UM Harvest Festival Supper Oct. 30

Members of the Spencerville United Methodist Church are planning their third Harvest Festival Public Supper. It will be served Saturday, October 30, starting at 4:30 p.m.

The church is located just off State Road 1 at Spencerville.

The congregation undertook efforts to obtain and support a minister on a full time basis to serve the spiritual needs of the community. Pastor Terry Rhine has been serving the congregation for over a year as full time minister. The congregation is seeking to grow in all ways, including finances, in order to keep its full-time ministry.

The public is urged and invited to attend the Harvest Festival Supper.

Surprise Party

A surprise party was given to honor Willard Maxwell on his birthday Saturday, October 9, in the home of his daughter and husband, MM John Munro of Fairview Park, Ohio.

Guests attending included the Maxwells, MM Paul Maxwell, Julia, Angela, Holli, Paula and David Maxwell of Lexington, Kentucky, Mrs. L. Dean Hightower of Butzbach, West Germany, and Lori, Vicki and Douglas Munro of Fairview Park, Ohio.

On Sunday Mrs. Hightower accompanied the Paul Maxwell family to Kentucky where she visited with relatives and friends in Covington and Erlanger. She then came to the home of her parents, MM Willard Maxwell until October 16 when she returned to her home.

SFC L. Dean Hightower has been stationed in West Germany since 1973. He will return with his wife and children, Gary and Sherri, to the states in May of 1977.

Norris Chapel UM Buffet Supper

Norris Chapel United Methodist Church plans a buffet supper Saturday, October 30, at 5 p.m.

The menu includes turkey and meat loaf, mashed potatoes and gravy, potato salad, green beans, corn, tossed salad, cranberries, jello, pie, cheesecake and beverages.

There will be no price per person charged. Free-will donations will be accepted to pay for the buffet supper.

Rick Rinard Earns Adrian Award

Rick Rinard, 1976 graduate of DeKalb Eastside High School, has been selected recipient of an Adrian College Presidential Award for the current school year.

Rick was presented the award in recognition of special individual achievements and academic accomplishments. This is a $1,000 award, not necessarily given on the basis of financial need. It is renewable for three years if the recipient remains in good academic standing and is a full-time resident student.

Rick is a freshman majoring in business administration. He plans to include intercollegiate baseball and intramural basketball in his campus activities.

Rick is the son of MM Jim Rinard of Spencerville.

To Observe 50th Anniversary

CARL AND EDNA PERKINS

MM Carl Perkins of R1 Saint Joe will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, October 24. They will receive guests from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Spencerville Community Building.

The Perkins family includes a daughter, Mrs. Arnold Oetting of Fort Wayne, and three grandchildren.

Mr. Perkins is a retired farmer. He also was employed with the Farm Bureau Co-op for 11 years before retiring.

The couple asks that gifts be omitted.

Singers Sought For Choir

The choir of St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church at Spencerville again invites interested singers from this community to join them in preparation for the 3rd Annual Community Advent Choral Vespers to be held Sunday, December 19, at 8 p.m. in the sactuary of St. Peter church.

Anyone interested in singing is invited to rehearsals beginning Sunday afternoon, November 7, from 3 to 4:15 p.m. at the church.

For more information, contact Jay Blauser, organist-choir director, at 657-5008.

Cornhusking Contest On 30th

The DeKalb Eastside FFA will host a cornhusking contest Saturday, October 30 at 9 a.m. Rain date is November 6.

The contest will be held at a test plot at the corner of county roads 30 and 71.

Entry fee is $3 and contestants cannot be members of the Eastside FFA. Entries should be given or sent to Mark Richmond, R1 Saint Joe, and contain the name, address and age of the entrant, plus the fee.

Entries are limited to 45 contestants, Prizes will be $100 for first place, $50 second and $25 third. Other prizes may be given by contributing seed corn companies.

Contestants will husk two rows of the same kind of corn over a distance of approximately 20 rods.

FFA members who planted the test plot are Randy Provines, Dwight Myers, Rex Fuller, Chuck Timmerman, Randy Diehl, Gary Sipe, Joe Snyder, David Jennings and Von Timmerman. Adults assisting were Les Nelson, Vic Timmerman and Jack Stemen.

The cornhusking committee includes Dave Jennings, Jim Dove, Len Moughler, Ed Moughler, Terry Keesler, Clyde Trenary. Randy Diehl, Mark Richmond, Ruth Johnson, Alvin Hook and Greg Hook.

Seed corn companies participating include Funks, Sohigro, Crows, Migro, Cargill, Trojan, DeKalb, Coop, Landmark, Pettigrew, Super Crost, Pioneer, Meows, Northrup-King, Pride, Seedkern and Jacques.

Population per acre is 24,500.

Fertilizer was supplied by Rainbow Farm Center at Saint Joe at 175 lbs. per acre.

CC Fish Fry

The Spencerville Community Club will serve a fish fry Saturday, October 23, from 5 p.m. until ? The fry will be held at the Community Building in Spencerville.

Also on the "menu" for the evening will be bingo.

Proceeds will be used to defray expenses of operating the club building.

GOP Plans Rally On 30th

DeKalb County Republicans are planning a rally for Saturday, October 30. It will be held in the assembly room of the court house starting at 6:30 p. m. with a free meal for those attending. Entertainment is also planned for the traditional election year get-together.

Principal speaker will be Dan Quayle, "a bright new face in the Fourth District political arena," as stated by Bob Wilder, DeKalb County GOP chairman. Quayle is seeking to unseat incumbent J. Edward Roush at the November 2 election.

Quayle's campaign has included his proposals to support legislation to limit the terms of Congressmen. He seeks to put a "lid" on deficit spending and balance the federal budget. The GOP candidate is against forced busing of school students and, in the area of welfare, states the need for "common sense" to separate those who really need help from those who abuse the system and live off the taxpayer.

Anna Mae Platt-'Can I Help?'

Employees of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company plan an open house Sunday, October 24, to honor Anna Mae Platt who is retiring after 40 years with the public utility.

Anna Mae's length of employment is noteworthy not just because of the number of years with the company. Also noteworthy is the efficient and courteous manner in which she handled service needs of I&M's customers—plus her community service in such things as the United Fund, the Red Cross, the hospital, and so on.

Too often "little people" are overlooked in the big splashes usually given to "big names" in business as well as community efforts. It is very fitting and appropriate that Anna Mae's fellow employees are making a special effort to recognize her service.

From I&M storekeeper (parts department) to driving a truck in second gear to Leo to get a transformer to "Swede" for an emergency situation to accommodating customers with their service calls, the pattern of Anna Mae's relationship with other people has been one of "can I help?".

If you want to participate in honoring this dependable person known to hundreds of people in this area if not by name then by voice when she has answered the phone through the years for I&M, the time is 2 to 5 p.m., Sunday, October 24, at the I&M Building at the west edge of Butler on US6.

Roush:'You Must-You Musn't'

A major difference in the platforms of the Democrat and Republican parties and the difference reflected in the statements of the two Presidential candidates from those parties is very significant. The difference:

The Democrat Party platform and the statements of candidate Jimmy Carter indicate a commitment to eliminate Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Law, that section protecting the worker from compulsory membership in a labor union as a condition of employment.

On the other hand:

The Republican Party platform and statements of candidate Gerald Ford establish a definite opposition to repeal of Section 14B, an opposition which has been reflected in the Republican Party for many years. Republicans oppose mandatory union membership as a condition of employment.

This difference is especially significant in the election race between incumbent Fourth District Representative J. Edward Roush and his GOP challenger, Dan Quayle. There is a third candidate, Gene Gran, whose statements have an appeal to many voters who don't see too much difference between the two major party candidates. But third party candidates just don't make it with the voters, agreeable as their statements may be.

There is a difference—back to the Roush-Quayle race—made very evident by Mr. Roush himself. He has been able, through his many "walks" and a couple of canoe trips for environmental propaganda, to gain the confidence of Fourth District voters in his "concern" for them as citizens and individuals. But actual circumstances related to his legislative record present a conflict reaching into every home.

It has been shown, by publication of contributions to election campaigns, that Indiana's two Senators, Birch Bayh and Vance Hartke (Mr. Hartke up for re-election in November and opposed by former Indianapolis mayor Richard Lugar) and Mr. Roush are top recipients of support from organized labor. They are, therefore, obligated to labor in legislative matters. They would not receive such significant support from labor if they were not "producing" for labor in legislative matters.

Now — how do you put that together with the fact that Mr. Roush successfully, and with great fanfare, sponsored a bill to prohibit so-called "two percent clubs" as a means of raising funds for financing political parties? Mr. Roush has in no uncertain terms said that it is wrong to have a contribution of two percent from certain public officials paid into the officeholder's party treasury as a condition of employment.

Question: why is it wrong to ask two percent from a public official (who knows when he or she seeks office that the "assessment" is expected) but it is not wrong to force everyone else BY LAW to pay into a union treasury through membership dues as a condition of employment?

What Mr. Roush is promoting by his legislation is destruction of freedom of choice. It is un-American in principle to compel anyone who seeks a job anywhere in American business and industry to belong to a union as a condition of employment. Yet the current Democrat Representative from this district is doing just that by his pro-labor voting record. But — he says at the same time it is wrong to ask for a contribution from certain elected officials to the treasury of their own party.

Indiana Democrat gubernatorial candidate Larry Conrad hopped on the Roush bandwagon in support of the anti-two-percent-club forces last week by saying that Indiana Republicans benefitted because they are in power. Of course they benefitted. So did Democrats when their party dominated, not only at the state level but also at the county level.

Both parties have used two percent clubs as a foundation for election campaign funds. It was a mutual agreement, in a sense. Taking that foundation away opens the door to more conniving to get around new and strict campaign fund laws. It promotes the effort to find "loopholes" by both major parties, and this doesn't eliminate corruption, it promotes corruption.

Labor-controlled legislators have caused farmers a lot of headaches. When there is a money squeeze on, the main target of criticism from a farm community (regardless of party affiliation) is "the labor unions." Crippling strikes and rising costs hurt everyone, including those in agriculture. Yet, the farm vote obviously goes more to the Democrat side of the ballot than to the Republican side.

This is a contradiction. In November's election, voters should keep in mind that it is Democrat J. Edward Roush who is supported by labor and labor wants a "closed shop" (compulsory union membership). Yet he sponsored and got passed a bill to prohiblt both political parties from asking two percent from their successful candidates. Actually, two percent clubs REDUCED the possibility of political favoritism by establishing a foundation of funds for both major parties.

November 2 will tell the tale, whether or not Fourth District voters have listened to what is being said by incumbent Ed Roush as related to what he has done in legislative matters. In this instance, by his position as a major recipient of union backing through the years, Mr. Roush has in effect said, "Freedom of choice to belong or not belong to a union should not be granted the working American citizen." In his legislative effort to ban the two percent clubs, Mr. Roush has said, "Certain public officeholders should not be allowed to support their party by an established assessment, even if they want to and know what is expected."

As the Republican candidate for Fourth District Representative, Dan Quayle does not support compulsory union membership and is not beholden to the "fat cats" of labor union leadership.

S.L. Zimmerman

Funeral services were held Saturday at Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville for Susan Lillian Zimmerman, 94, of Saint Joe who died Thursday in the Butler Hotel Rest Home. She had been ill a week.

Mrs. Zimmerman was born February 28, 1882, at Sand Lake, Michigan, the daughter of Wilson and Lucinda Hawk McClure. Her husband, Roy, preceded her in death, as did four children.

Survivors include three children, Charles of Grabill, Malvin of Butler and Ellen Mooney of Corunna, and 32 grandchildren.

Bro. Edward Schantz of the Saint Joe Church of Christ officiated at the funeral and burial was in White City Cemetery at Spencerville.

EHS To Host Girls' Tourney

DeKalb Eastside High School has been chosen as one of the 48 schools to host a girls' sectional volleyball tourney. Angola, DeKalb Central, Fremont, Garrett, Hamilton, Prairie Heights and Eastside have been assigned to the local sectional.

The sectional starts Thursday, October 28, at 6:30 p.m. with three first round matches. The semi-final and final matches will be held October 30 at 6:30 p.m. There will be two sessions and admission will be $1 per session.

Blazer Football

The DeKalb Eastside Blazer Homecoming Friday night saw the locals take a 38-0 thumping at the hands of the Central Noble Cougars.

The Blazer offense was stopped cold, getting only a total of 34 yards gained in the entire game. They had only 8 first downs. The Cougars gained 389 yards and had 23 first downs.

Central Noble's star quarterback was benched for disciplinary reasons but his absence did not seem to hurt the Cougars too much.

Another possible factor in the Blazers' defeat is the teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities recently, including loss of practice time. Also, comments from fans at the game indicate a lack of communication between his staff and head coach Al Peugeot. He had returned to coaching duties just before the Hamilton homecoming game a week ago Friday, though expressing support of the teachers in their salary dispute with the school administration.

Cross Country Has 10-5 Record

Despite injuries and the midseason loss of one of their top runners, the Eastside harriers under coach Bob Brown completed one of the school's most successful cross country seasons this past week.

The local runners rolled past Angola 18-37 Tuesday of last week to finish the year with a mark of 10 wins and 5 losses.

Sophomore Butch McBride and seniors Jim Burns and Dennis Drake paced all participants in this event by taking the top three places. Junior Tony Salinas followed in the 5th spot with Dan Drake coming in 7th and Sonny Salinas 12th.

Saturday Burns closed out his Eastside cross country career by placing 15th in the talent-packed Fort Wayne sectional. McBride came in 23rd and Dennis Drake, also running his last race, was 67th.

Coach Brown noted that the consistent performances by Burns, McBride and Dennis Drake during the past several months was the key to Eastside's successful season. The Blazer mentor also pointed out that Tony Salinas turned in a number of creditable performances despite a leg injury that bothered him throughout the season. In addition, Coach Brown stated he was particularly pleased with the effort of Ken Ray before he was hospitalized and had to withdraw from competition. The late season running by Dan Drake, Sonny Salinas and Evan Collins also was appreciated by the Blazer coach.

HS Reunion

—Evalyn Hamman, reporter

Sixty-one persons signed the register at the St. Joe High School Reunion September 19 at the Saint Joe Valley Conservation Club building.

After a carryin dinner, President Frank Shull conducted a short business meeting during which the following officers were elected for 1977: Willard Maxwell, president; Doris Yeiser, vice-president; Evalyn Hamman, secretary; Alice Peckhart, treasurer.

A perpetual date and place of meeting was agreed upon, the third Sunday in September at the conservation club. This will be arranged with the club secretary.

Since it is impossible for any officers to know or to get in touch with all or even very many of the former graduates or students who attended this school, won't those of you who know about this reunion take it upon yourselves to spread the word. Notify any you know, tell them what a good time we have and where and when it takes place. Anyone who ever attended school here, or who is interested in the school or community is very welcome. We don't have too many of the students who attended in the later years the school was open. Please come and bring your schoolmates. We need you. Let's see you next year!

Newville Youth Present Drama

Under the direction of Della Farrer, youth from the Newville Church of Christ recently presented a play entitled, "What Does It Really Mean?" The hour-long drama portrayed high school youth meetings for church.

The youth began with a non-serious attitude toward school and youth meetings. Then one of the boys who had a bright future ahead of him was killed in an automobile accident. The boy was associating with a drug pusher, although he himself was free from its use.

In the end the youth became really serious about living the Christian life. Now life had real meaning.

The play was presented before the Newville congregation and to an area-wide youth rally involving eleven churches.

Participants included Steve Smith, Kenda Ginder, Marsha Smith, Kedric Koeppe, Carolyn DePriest, Robert and Rebecca Farrer, Harry Farrer, Ernie Hurni, Ann Washler, Scott Washler, Keith Watson, Walter Prosser and Brenda Koeppe.

Stage and lighting was under the direction of Dan Farrer, Brian Washler and Mark Koeppe.

FFA News

DeKalb County was well represented at the Area IX 4H and FFA Soil Judging Contest hosted by LaGrange County.

Two Eastside FFA teams, coached by ag teacher Dean Halsey, won the right to compete at the area contest by a county elimination. Team members Jim Dove, David Dowden, Miriam Grahm and Jerry Hook placed 6th out of 17 teams in the area and earned red ribbons with a score of 684.

The second highest team at the county contest received white ribbons for their 17th placing with a score of 527. Included were Tom Gettys, alternate Jeff Myers, Scott Washler and Mark Wertman.

Other Eastside participants in the county contest were Jon Bassett, Tom Bassett, Jim Krieg, Traci Loy, Carl Mansfield, Max McDonald, Brian Powell, Kevin Snyder, Charles Stayner, Chris Voirol, James Whitman, Perry Fender, Earl Goldsmith and Dennis Kline.

IF YOU DON'T VOTE TUESDAY, DON'T GRIPE WEDNESDAY

—By The Editor

One of the outcomes of the lowering of the voting age nationally from 21 to 18 years has given me a smug feeling of satisfaction. I didn't like the idea from the start, I didn't think it was based on sound reasoning. One of the main arguments to lower the voting age was, "If they're old enough to fight, they're old enough to vote" — meaning, if we send our under-21 young men to war, they should have a say-so about the matter.

That argument was like adding apples and oranges and come out bananas. There is no connection between a person's physical condition and his or her maturity in judgment. A sweet young thing may have eye-popping physical assets—a young man may have a simply dreamy physique—but to then conclude that they are therefore emotionally mature is just not true.

Disclosure of the poor voting record of the 18-21 age group has brought that "smug feeling of satisfaction."

In my gloating over being "right" about the wrongness in lowering the voting age, after hearing of the terrible voting record shown by the 18 to 21 age group since they got what they wanted, there is also a bit of sadness—and concern. Why? Because that poor voting record means they have succumbed to the idea expressed by many adults that "it doesn't matter who you vote for, it all comes out the same anyhow."

Congressman J. Edward Roush said recently to a group of young people that those who say they aren't going to vote Tuesday are guilty of a "cop-out." For once I agree with Mr. Roush. But at the same time I oppose his candidacy because his party and his methods have constantly harped on solving the nation's and the people's problems; they have "sold" a lot of people on the idea that all problems can be overcome, if you just set up a program, if you just appropriate some money to set up a program.

THERE is the real reason why young people AND adults seemingly grow less interested in elections, if you ask me. It is because they have been led to believe all obstacles can be overcome and right now. The "now" generation is for real. What should be done, what should happen, must be NOW.

Since things don't work that way, and never have, these people become disillusioned, disappointed and frustrated. I can't blame them, can you? When they have been told we CAN eliminate poverty, we CAN eliminate prejudice, we CAN solve all our problems—but it doesn't happen—what can we expect?

I believe the blame for the public's lack of interest in the election—if it's as bad as the public surveys show—lies at the feet of those who promise perfection and can't deliver. Those promises have come from the liberals in both the Democrat and Republican parties. Most of the liberal influence, however, has come from the Democrat side and those liberals include Mr. Roush, Vance Hartke and Birch Bayh.

I have no personal grudge against liberals. My opposition is because I see how they have failed to instill a recognition of reality while speaking of high ideals. I say that they are to blame for making the younger voters so cynical about Tuesday's election. The young people have been conditioned to expect perfection. They apparently think that their elders always had a clear choice at election time, that before Watergate (!) things were clear cut and you could enter the voting booth with no doubts or reservations.

But it just isn't so.

I think it's a shame that a man like Jerry Ford is ridiculed because he loses his balance once in a while. Falling off your skiis is no disgrace. He's human like everyone else. Missing a step on an airplane ramp is no catastrophe, when your attention is directed toward the mass of people, including appropriate dignitaries, waiting to greet you.

But the press, radio and TV pick up on the little things that really show someone is human, then play them up and distort them so it comes out, "He isn't fit for public office."

It's not a shame—it's a crime. And crimes have their penalties. Our nation's penalty, having been misled, is public apathy about Tuesday's election. Our penalty is public frustration because there isn't a "perfect" ticket on the ballot. Our penalty is keeping in office those who promise everything, then put the blame elsewhere because the promises aren't fulfilled.

Young voters haven't had much opportunity to be exposed to facts. What they hear first is what stays with them for the most part—until time passes, occasionally a long time—and they begin to see the other side and give some thought objectively to what's going on around them.

Maybe some young people can understand it, but I can't—why the public says it's better to have the President and the Congressional majority from opposite parties as a "check" on one another. Yet Democrat Presidents in the past 44 years have had Democrat Congressional majorities to work with except for one two-year segment under Harry Truman. But Republican Presidents do not get the same benefit (again except for a two-year segment under Dwight Eisenhower). The polls indicate a Democrat majority — again — in Congress after next Tuesday—and the pollsters say Democrat Carter is leading Republican Ford. But the blame for our inflation is placed on Republicans, our unemployment is due to Republicans, indeed Mr. Carter the other night reached 'way 'way back in order to refer to former President Herbert Hoover as the one who "caused the depression of the 30's." (I wonder how many young voters know that Mr. Hoover served as President for four years and did not accept any pay—and was responsible for organizing a relief program for starving people's of other nations, a program which is still recognized for its efficiency when it was in effect. I wonder how many U.S. government teachers have made students aware that Mr. Hoover established the groundwork for programs to cope with unemployment near the end of his term. But Mr. Roosevelt has been given credit for whatever recovery came about because the programs were more obvious after he got into the Presidency.)

If this year's Presidential election is boring, dreary, lacklustre. and whatever else has been said in a derogatory manner, let's put the responsibility where it belongs—at the feet of the media who expect Oscar-winning performances from political candidates, who lead the public to decide that someone "lost" a debate because of a lack of spectacular responses.

Isn't it strange, young voters? They're still playing up President Ford's one slip about who is in control of European countries. But they pass lightly over the half dozen or more slips by Mr. Carter—especially the one where he says he will achieve a balanced budget at the same time he suggests vast new programs costing billions. Or the slip where he attributes tax loopholes for special interests to Republicans, when it is his own party that has had control of Congress—and the loopholes—for the past 22 consecutive years.

If anyone says they won't vote Tuesday because there is no choice, they have been suckered in by liberals' promises of all things to all people. Jerry Ford went through a Congressional probe, before being approved as a President, that no other human being has ever been subjected to in this nation. He is as down-to-earth as any person could be. He's not perfect. But he is honest, he is aware of people (despite the campaign oratory calling him "insensitive to the needs of the people).

He deserves to be elected President and he deserves to be given a Congressional majority from his own party to work with, and for more than two years. He deserves a Congress of Dan Quayles and Dick Lugars, plus conservative Democrats who have joined traditionally conservative Republicans in expressing fears for the future of this country if we continue with the liberals' programs of government controls, government bureaucracy and high government spending.

If you don't vote Tuesday, don't gripe Wednesday.

Car Falls On Local Resident

The dangers of some do-it-yourself car repairs became evident last week when David Mumma, 26, of Saint Joe, suffered a shoulder separation. He was under a car which was supported by cement block and wood planks and the car fell on him. He was working on the car at his home at Washington and School streets.

Ed Schantz, minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ, and another person freed Mumma and had him resting under a blanket when volunteer firemen arrived to assist.

Mumma was taken to DeKalb Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne.

Fire Guts House

Fire gutted a house on Washington Street at the east end of town Saturday night, October 16.

Joyce Ferguson, occupant of the residence, was not at home at the time of the fire. It is believed that the blaze was caused by faulty wiring.

Public donations were solicited last week to help Mrs. Ferguson until an insurance settlement is received. She is employed at Auburn.

Newville UM Supper-Bazaar

Members of the Newville United Methodist Church are preparing for their Chicken & Ham Supper and bazaar to be held Thursday, November 4, at 5 p.m.

The menu includes chicken and ham, mashed potatoes and gravy, dressing, green beans, corn, squash, rolls, pie and beverage.

A free-will offering will be taken.

Bus Discipline Sought By School Officials

In order to maintain discipline on the school buses, the DeKalb Eastern Community School District has issued letters to all students riding buses whether for curricular or extra-curricular activities. The letter reads as follows:

"Dear Bus Rider:

"So that you will know what is expected of you while you are riding on the bus, the following rules are provided.

1. I shall sit in my own seat.
2. I shall not stand or move from place to place during the trip.
3. I shall not talk in a loud or boisterous voice nor shall I be guilty of using improper language while on the bus.
4. I shall conduct myself in a decent manner.
5. I shall not open or close the windows or doors of the bus unless told to do so by the driver.
6. I shall not tease, scuffle, trip, hold, hit, or use my hands or feet or body in any objectionable manner.
7. I shall not attempt to enter or leave the bus until it has come to a full stop and the door has been opened by the driver.
8. I shall help the bus driver keep the bus time schedule by arriving at the bus stop in the morning before the bus arrives.
9. I shall be denied the privileledge of riding on the bus if I fail to conduct myself properly.
10. I shall read these rules to my parents or have them read to me and give my word to do my best to follow the rules.

Anyone found damaging the school bus in any manner has forfeited all bus riding privileges.

Parents' and students' signatures are required on the registration cards before being returned to the bus driver.

FHA To Show 'Circus of Fashion'

—Carol Rufner, reporter

The FHA Club at Eastside has been busy since school started, electing new officers and getting the program set up for the 1966-67 school year.

The club sold carmel corn and candy apples at the homecoming game, October 15, as a money-making project. The members made all the products themselves.

The group invites all ladies of the school community and other communties as well to attend a "Circus of Fashion" style review November 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafetorium. The "In" Fashion Shop of Butler, managed by Carmen McBride, is co-sponsoring this evening of cards, fashions and door prizes.

Tickets are $2 and are available at the "In" Fashion Shop, Knisely Bank, Red Barn Beauty Salon and the high school at Butler, and The Sisters' Emporium at Saint Joe. FHA members also have tickets to sell.

Lucille Whitman, who owns the "In" Fashion Shop and the Rainbow Boutique of Angola, will narrate the program.

On October 25, the group had a night meeting to install new officers, practice for the style review, and work on the review.

Voting Loses Its Value

One of the oddities of next Tuesday's general election is a referendum vote on a residency requirement related to voter qualifications. But the results willl not mean anything. Why? Because the U. S. Supreme Court just a couple of weeks ago or so ruled that a 60-day township residency requirement is unconstitutional. The court said anyone residing in the township up to the deadline date for registration was eligible for registration for the November 2 election. The effect is that the U. S. Supreme Court has established a residency requirement, not the state legislature.

The fact that the proposed amendment also lowers the voting age to 18 (in Indiana it's still 21) adds to the confusion.

This is an example of the confusion caused by higher courts of the land who, under liberal tendencies, decide what legislation OUGHT to say instead of ruling on what legislation DOES say. There is a movement to make registration by postcard a legal registration. (The House of Representatives passed such a resolution with 228 Democrats for, 11 Republicans for; 36 Democrats against, 111 Republicans against. Fourth District Congressman J. Edward Roush voted for the liberalizing proposal.)

Court rulings and new proposals about registration are doing one thing for certain — they are destroying the ability to oversee voter registration. The door is open even farther now for abuse of voter eligibility. It is becoming easier to establish fictitious persons for the purpose of padding voter lists.

Do most Americans want this to happen? Without taking a national poll, I think the answer is "no," because most Americans, given the facts, recognize the breakdown which can come if regulations are practically non-existent.

It might even be resonably argued that an estimated 50% of the eligible voters in this country today will not vote next Tuesday because it's too easy to vote! If there were stringent regulations on the voting privilege (such as Indiana's former residency requirements), that privilege would be more valuable. It's a fact of life. The things we want the most are those we can't have. Tell a child "no" and he or she immediately wants or wants to do what the "no" denied. It's a part of the human "ego" to rebel against "no."

If we were smart and listened to what the average person's common sense tells us, we would strengthen voting qualifications and regulations by restoring and protecting what has been taken away. Residency and age requirements in the nation, in a state, in a county, in a township and in a precinct MADE VOTING A VALUABLE PRIVILEGE. Our legislators, including Mr. Roush, are destroying that value.

Vote 'No' On Court Justices

Recently a political candidate said his constitutents thought the reason for the increase in the crime rate was the leniency of the courts. I think the observation came from Congressman J. Edward Roush.

The thought expressed by the public is directly related to Tuesday's election in that a "yes" or "no" vote will be asked of state voters concerning two Indiana Supreme Court justices. If the majority of the public votes "yes," justices Roger DeBruler and Dixon Prentice will remain on the court for ten more years. We don't elect Supreme Court and Appeals Court justices anymore. That privilege was taken away in 1970 when the Indiana state legislature (including Republicans and Democrats with a big push from the League of Women Voters) sold the public on the iden that it is best to "take politics out of the courts." That sounded good to some people; it does have an idealistic ring to it.

Unfortunately, the legislators and the public did not realize that such a move virtually took away the public's ability to influence the direction of court decisions. We are now, therefore, subject to court decisions which do not suit a lot of us because those decisions allow a "looseness" to exist in our society which goes so far as to let many law violators off with what the public refers to as "just a slap on the wrist." The public lays the blame on law enforcement personnel and the lower courts. However, the blame rightly belongs on the Indiana Supreme Court whose liberal decisions of recent years have frustrated law enforcement personnel time and time again.

In conversations with law enforcement personnel, from sheriffs to prosecuting attorneys to judges in the lower courts, I have heard the same thing said time and time again in recent years: "The Indiana Supreme Court has us in a bind. We don't follow through on a number of cases because we know they will get thrown out or reversed on appeal of a 'guilty' verdict."

The public has correctly put the responsibility for increasing crime basically at the feet of the higher courts. If you want to change the situation — or at least make a start toward a change — vote "no" on the question of retaining the two Indiana Supreme Court justices up for public approval at this election. Their liberal and ultra-liberal slant on justice has put criminals back on the streets, has prevented law enforcement officials from doing the job they were able to do 10, 15 and 20 years ago.

This is not a personal matter against the two men. It is a matter of disagreement with their approach to judicial decisions (their "philosophy"). The public has not only the right but the responsibility to say "no" and refuse to support these judges, if the public believes that the courts have become too lenient in dealing with law enforcement.

The leniency has not originated at the circuit court level; it has been at the Appeals Court and Supreme Court level where lower-court decisions can be reversed or thrown out.

The start of re-affirming law enforcement in the state of Indiana will begin at Tuesday's election with "no" votes on the two State Supreme Court justices and the one district court justice up for approval.

If you don't want to take my word for it, use the telephone. Ask those in positions of top responsibility in our county law enforcement system.

From The Editor's Desk....

Setting The Record Straight

The word "reform" has been used a lot during this election campaign. It was used extensively right after the Watergate affair.

Who has been using the word so much? Democrats. Why? Because it appeals to the public's resentment at being betrayed by government officials. Because there has been a Republican in the Presidency for the past eight years, the inference by critics is that the betrayal lies at the feet of Republicans because they've had their man in the Presidency.

But let's take a look at what is actual, not inferred.

1. Congress, not the President, passes laws. The executive branch (the President) administers those laws. If the President gets "too powerful," it is because the Congress has allowed it. And the one who assumed power more than any other President since 1932 was Franklin D. Roosevelt. Every President thereafter, with the possible exception of Dwight D. Eisenhower, stepped beyond the intended power of the Presidency.

2. Government reform cannot be accomplished by the President. Government reform can come ONLY BY ACTS OF CONGRESS and approved by the President. Government bureaus and agencies come into being for the most part as the result of a program started by an act of Congress. Jimmie Carter has talked of government reform (which to the average American means less government control and fewer government employees). But he has not said there would be a reduction—simply because the President does not have that much authority. Congress does. Mr. Carter would only "re-shuffle" what we already have.

3. After Watergate, election reform was shouted to the skies by many Democrats. But what did their "reform" bring? For one thing, the Senators and Representatives made it more difficult for an opponent to unseat the incumbent. Limitation on election contributions and financing work to the advantage of the incumbent candidate, no matter what you may hear about compartive campaign spending in the Fourth District and the fact that Dan Quayle has spent more than Ed Roush. He had to. Mr. Roush has the free contact with the Fourth District people through the franking privilege. And while it is illegal to use that franking privilege for campaign purposes, it is also true that any letter from the Congressman concerning legislative matters having popular appeal serve as boosters to the incumbent's campaign.

4. "Special interests" are mentioned in the current election campaign. Democrats traditionally take advantage of that condemning label to embarrass Republicans in general. But what about the special interests who have favored Vance Hartke or his family? A job for his daughter, two jobs, in fact, each one involving little if any productive efforts except to serve as a contact with the Senator, these special interests just happen to be directly related to legislative matters in which the special interests have gained advantage. A lot of campaign expense is not covered by the election "reform" laws because the benefits are in the form of campaign workers and donated time for other election duties —this coming from organized labor to the extent that at least 80% of that assistance goes to Democrat candidates. For good government? No. For special interests.

5. Tax relief is not possible until government expenditures are reduced. The average American is sadly mistaken when he or she believes that increasing taxes on corporations and "big business" will bring tax relief. Nor will a graduated income tax "soaking the rich" bring relief to the average American. Why? Simply because every increase in taxes on corporations, business and high incomes eventually is passed along to the consumer. To pay higher taxes, corporations must take in more money. That means increasing the price of their products or services. An increase in the tax rate for the executive level of income is also paid by the average American. Why? Because the higher standard of living represented by higher incomes will be maintained by increases in income for the executive and administrative levels. To pay higher salaries to maintain the same standard of living for the higher income personnel, a business must, again, raise its prices. Thus, "tax reform" on the basis of a graduated income tax is a myth.

Gubernatorial candidate Larry Conrad and local candidate Vic Timmerman favor a graduated tax.

6. The "merit" system being supported by candidate Vic Timmerman is a threat to the ability of voters to make changes when there is dissatisfaction. The idea that the state license bureau "should be taken out of politics" is the same pitch given in 1970 when politics were "taken out of the courts." As a result, the liberal decisions handed down by the Indiana Supreme Court have made a shambles of law enforcement. A significant segment of the public lays the blame for crime increase on courts that are "too lenient." That doesn't mean local district courts. That means the higher courts because the lower courts are subject to decisions by the higher courts.

The merit system sounds good but what is overlooked oftentimes is that there is an assumption of efficiency by those hired under a merit system. What do you do when an inefficient person is found? You cannot fire them, because the "merit system" (or call it the "civil service") prohibits firing of personnel except for very strong and definite reasons. And the way it is today, it is almost impossible to "prove" any reason for firing.

Mr. Timmerman favors restoring the 70 mile-an-hour speed limit on interstate roads, despite the drastic reduction in traffic accident fatalities, a reduction attributed to the lower speed limit.

Raising the speed limit would appear to be a gamble with lives. In connection with such figurative "gambling," Mr. Conrad would, as governor, seek legalized pari-mutuel betting.

Such an approach suggests taht it is all right to condone gambling if it will help relieve the non-gambler of more taxes. It also suggests an un-Christian attitude, because it involves a temptation to the weak in order to pay everyone's tax bill.

John Graham Named Outstanding Law Officer In Indiana

DeKalb County Sheriff John L. Graham was selected as the "Outstanding Law Enforcement Officer of the State of Indiana" by the Indiana Council of Fraternal Veterans and Social Societies, Inc.

According to Norman Minich, State Vice-President of the organization, the organization is composed of representatives of all clubs and social organizations in the State and is organized on a County, Regional, and State basis.

One year ago the Indiana council elected to honor effective law enforcement by naming one outstanding law officer in each county and three in each region, and three in the entire state. Sheriff Graham was selected as the outstanding law officer of DeKalb County by a local County Committe of the organization. His name was placed in competition with the County Councils of Steuben, DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble, and Whitley, In the spring of this year, he was selected the number one law officer in this five-county area. His name was then placed in competition among the 19 counties of the Northeast District and was selected the number one law officer in the 19 counties in August of this year. His name together with two others from the 19 counties of the Northeast District were forwarded to the State Selection Committee and were investigated. Three outstanding law officers were selected. Sheriff Graham was officer of the year and Sgt. Ronald Perkins, City Police Department of Washington, Indiana, was named second. The third choice was Sgt. Thomas Jack of the Indiana State Police Post in Ligonier. As a result of the selection, Sheriff Graham will receive the first place award and will be honored at the annual fall banquet of the Indiana Council of Fraternal Veterans and Social Societies, Inc., to be held Saturday, October 30, 1976, in Indianapolis at the India Inn. Sheriff Graham will be awarded a $200.00 United States Savings Bond.

Mr. Minich said that Sheriff Graham "embodies and exemplifies the attributes of quiet, effective law enforcement in a humble and firm way. His example helps dispel negative attitudes toward law enforcement in general that persist in increasing proportions. The award, instituted one year ago, is an effort to stem the tide against the negative image of law enforcement in some areas." Mr. Minich indicated that DeKalb County should be particularly proud that its Sheriff was named the number one Law Officer of the Year in the entire state.

Sheriff Graham was born in 1916 and has lived in DeKalb County since he was 11 years old. In 1940, he married the former Helen Holderman, and he and his wife are the parents of two sons, Stephen of Waterloo and D. Michael of Auburn. Sheriff Graham served in the United States Marine Corps in World War II and was an active farmer much of his adult life. He is a member of the Waterloo Lions Club, American Legion Post 97, former member of the DeKalb County Mental Health Association, a former Republican party Precinct Committeeman and a member of the Bible Baptist Church where he currently serves on the Board of Deacons. Sheriff Graham also served 10 years on the Waterloo, Grant Township School Board, the Northwest Consolidation and the combined districts of the DeKalb Central United School Board and was elected to the latter position. He joined the DeKalb Conuty Sheriff's Department January 1, 1967, as Chief Deputy under then Sheriff James Sims. When Sheriff Sims resigned in 1972 to accept the appointment of Governor Bowen as head of the Alcohol Beverage Commission, Mr. Graham was appointed to finish the remainder of the two years of Sheriff Sims' elected term. Sheriff Graham ran on his own in 1974 and was elected by one of the largest margins accorded a Sheriff in many years. He took formal police training at Louisville University in Kentucky. During his term of Sheriff many major criminal investigations have been handled, numerous improvements have been instituted in the Department including extensive radio equipment, K-9 Units, and surveillance security equipment, and better staffed personnel. Sheriff Graham and wife Helen, who serves as Jail Matron, will be in attendance at the fall banquet October 30.

Gerig, Crow Get Approval

Since it is legislators, not the executive branch of government, who make "the law of the land," the election of a state representative for this area comes into focus.

Generally speaking, there are two types of legislators—the type which proposes a lot of legislation and probably gets more headlines, and the type who propose much less but still serves the best interests of the public by being a sort of "watchdog" over the activities of others and serves to steady the direction of the "ship of state."

The legislator who attaches his or her name to many bills as sponsor or co-sponsor is inclined to reflect special interests. That legislator may be inclined on occasion to act too hastily to correct a problem situation, bringing on other problems and the need for more legislation. If there is one gripe heard consistently from the public, it is, "We've got too many laws now without passing more."

Because of his even temperament, because of his cautious attitude about government involvement in private matters, because of his apparent inclination to act cautiously and deliberately, it appears the election of Norman Gerig as state representative would best serve the interest of all segments of citizenry in this area.

For the same reasons, the election of Richard Crow as County Commissioner from the Southeast District would best serve this county. serve this county. In addition, as a businessman and farmer, Mr. Crow knows the need for caution in spending money.

From the Editor's Desk....

To Balance The Scales.....

One of the mysteries about teacher contract negotiations is that the public is, in effect, told, "You don't have a right to know." When a school board is compelled by regulations to consider a "fact-finder's" report in closed session, I think the public is being betrayed. The right to privacy, so eagerly supported by influential educators to the point where publishing of honor roll lists is now subject to question, is rightly related to private matters. However, teacher contract negotiations are NOT private matters, they are public matters simply because the public is paying the bill for education.

This is really weird. Those who have actively proposed and supported the idea that a candidate for public office should make public all his or her financial matters as a supposed indication of the candidate's honesty and integrity are the same ones who also condone or support the idea that teacher contract negotiations should NOT be made public. Things are all mixed up, because of the contradictions in the actions of those who have the support of organized labor. These do-gooders cash in on the emotional appeal of providing no privacy in one instance and absolute privacy in another instance. In the process, they make private matters public and public matters private.

Our school board held an executive session lasting four hours to discuss a fact-finder's report. Regulations required a closed session. Who made those regulations? Who says that what we pay teachers and what they ask to be paid is a private matter? That four-hour session should have been open to the public, because it's public business what the school board does. The public elected the board.

Federal legislation, proposed and/or now in effect, compels governmental units to hold their meetings in public. The idea is: THE PUBLIC HAS A RIGHT TO KNOW WHAT'S GOING ON.

But—in teacher contract negotiations, we have had exactly the opposite condition and it is still in effect—negotiations and reports of negotiations are to be private. How come—it's public money being spent?

Our school board apparently was criticized by the fact-finder for having made information available to the public last spring related to teacher salaries and what was being asked for. That's wrong. The board should be praised for what it did; not many others have had the guts to provide such information.

There is only one reason for secrecy: TO PUT ALL THE MARBLES ON THE TEACHERS' SIDE AND LEAVE SCHOOL BOARDS AND ADMINISTRATORS DEFENSELESS.

If it is "right" to prohibit school boards from telling what is being asked for and negotiated, then it is also "right" to prohibit the Indiana State Teachers Association, the National Education Association, UniServ, and the local teachers' associations from making any public statements expressing an opinion about negotiations. Why? Because the way it is, teachers are ALWAYS getting in their "licks" to place the blame for deadlocks on school boards, and school boards are ALWAYS coming out the culprits.

A recent news release in this paper, coming from UniServ and the local teachers' association, is a good example. Please note that teacher association president Donna Hollabaugh establishes prejudice in the public's mind with just one word ("fair") in the closing statement in the news release:

"We hope the board will re-evaluate its position and accept Dr. Brickner's fair report so that agreement can be reached."

In addition, percentages referred to in the news release ARE IN ERROR, or at least, misleading. (Remember what I said recently about percentages being tricky?)

The said part is that not only does the school board get a "bad name" out of the entire situation, many teachers get tainted by the words and actions of a few "spokesmen." I've been told by a couple of sources who ought to know that some teachers don't know what is or has been negotiated.

This suggests that (1) their "spokesmen" have not made adequate effort to inform them and (2) they are satisfied with what they receive and are too concerned with being a teacher to become involved in union activities which divert their attention from their students.

Errant 'Church' Statements

A recent headline over an Associated Press story read:

"Total Draft Amnesty Called For By Lutherans"

The story told that the policymaking body of the Lutheran Church in America (LCA) had called for unconditional amnesty and pardon for all Vietnam war resisters. The LCA national convention was in progress at that time in Boston.

It was reported that the convention also approved resolutions favoring busing "as a means to equal access to quality education when that end cannot be better achieved otherwise." The convention also called for the U.S. and Canadian governments to work toward a just solution to the Lebanese civil war.

When I saw that headline, I did a double-take. The LCA is MY church body, and I do not recall any opportunity for my congregation to express itself on the matters which the "policymaking body" (whatever that is) spoke about. I object to what was done because a comparatively few individuals made a public commitment which obligates millions of Lutherans. And I do not believe the general membership of the Lutheran Church in America favors amnesty.

This is a good example of the way in which position and power can be used without the consent of or consultation with those who become obligated to an idea expressed by someone else. I am certain that the large majority of members of St. Mark and St. Peter Lutheran churches do not advocate "total draft amnesty" for the Vietnam draft-dodgers. My certainty is based on the knowledge of what has been expressed by members of the two congregations in various matters through the years.

But the main point I want to make is that local individual congregations did not have an opportunity to make their views known prior to the national convention. This is not a trivial matter. It involves principles. It involves this nation. It involves Christians. It involves Jews. It involves atheists. On such an important matter, every effort ought to be made to achieve maximum input into consideration of such declarations. I am not aware of any such effort.

I suspicion that not much was said prior to the convention, so that those who wanted to get the amnesty statement passed could capitalize on the element of surprise and intimidation. Delegates would naturally feel reluctant to raise too much question about a statement presented by the "higher ups" in the church.

If you read the story, keep this in mind. That LCA convention statement does not represent the attitude of all Lutherans. The traditional Lutheran approach to the Christian faith has never taught nor advoated the "do your own thing" idea. That heresy has crept in only in recent years through the younger and liberal element in the clergy.

This matter of church involvement in secular affairs is not related only to the LCA. From conversations I have had in past years with members of other denominations in this community, I have heard the same upset and concern by the layity as I am expressing now, caused by words and actions of church denominational officials who obligate all on the basis of what they, the officials, think.

In other words, I am a "fundamentalist"—I believe the church has enough to do in reaching the people with its message of salvation without getting involved in secular matters. The individual should be allowed to make up his or her own mind and act accordingly, not be obligated by a select group who just might be thinking more highly of themselves and their opinions than they ought.

TO THE EDITOR—

The St. Joe-Concord Township Fire Department would like to express their thanks to the people of St. Joe, Concord Township and surrounding areas for making our Chicken Barbecue a success.

We would also like to express great appreciation to the St. Joe Women's Auxiliary for all of the work they did in preparation for the barbecue.

The winner of the fire extinguisher was Ron Provines of St. Joe.

The department has decided to make the Chicken Barbecue an annual event.

Sincerely,
The St. Joe-Concord Twp.

Did you know—

—that the DeKalb Central reserve football team defeated DeKalb Eastside 22-6 Tuesday.

—that Pvt. Rick Mack, son of MM Franklin Mack of R2 Butler, has completed basic training at Paris Island, South Carolina.

—that unemployment insurance claims for the week ending October 23 rose to 56,134 from 53,298 the previous week. Regular initial claims, however, went down from 7,816 to 7,347.

—that Guy Beerbower of Grabill is among five men returned to the Indiana State Fair Board of Directors.

—that 4,000 persons are expected to attend the 58th annual convention of the Indiana Farm Bureau set for December 5-7 in Indianapolis.

—that Congressional candidate Dan Quayle has repeated his support for legislation to limit terms of a Congressman. Incumbent J. Edward Roush opposes such a measure. Quayle, a Republican, noted that Congressman Andrew Jabobs, a Democrat from another district in Indiana, has already introduced legislation aimed at curbing the power and terms of Congressmen.

—that January 25 is the date of the 1977 Hoosier Barrow Show with an entry deadline of January 17.

—that according to a news release received this week, the Indiana Democrats for Lugar Committee is encouraging the Democrat voters of DeKalb County to split their ticket in the Senate race November 2 and vote for Dick Lugar instead of Vance Hartke. Kurt Flock, director of the group, said "we believe it will be in the best interest of the Democratic party and the political process as a whole to bring Vance Hartke back home."

—that Private Douglas Dilley, whose wife, Sheryl, and parents, MM John Dilley reside on R1 Saint Joe, recently completed seven weeks of advanced training at Fort Benning, Georgia.

—that Dan Quayle expressed his disagreement with Congressman J. Edward Roush at a Magnavox dinner last week, comparing New York City's financial troubles with those of the nation. Noting that Roush voted to give federal aid to New York City, Quayle asked, "Who will bail out the United States" in view of deficit spending due to legislation expanding governmental programs reaching into every home.

—that Ball State University curricular advisors will be in Fort Wayne Monday, November 8, to assist graduate students in this area who are taking off-campus classes They will be at the Holiday Inn on I-69 at Fort Wayne.

—that the 17th annual Hoosier Beef Show has attracted a record 197 entries for the November 4 event at Indianapolis.

—that Marine PFC Jeffery A. Krider, 19, son of MM Joseph Krider of R3 Auburn, has reported for duty at Camp Butler, Okinawa.

—that OSHA (Occupatnonal Safety and Health Administration), an effort by Congress to provide "a better life," is "today's single best example of a federal bureaucracy run wild," according to Senatorial candidate Dick Lugar. He noted that "it takes only five words, 'a passage or way out,' for the dictionary to define 'exit.' OSHA regulations use 130 words to define the same term." Another regulation would require farmers to install toilets within a 5-minute walk of every employee on every farm. Lugar noted "that sounded like a poor joke until an OSHA official stated that the bureaucrats actually intend to enforce the rule. If they do, many farms will become unprofitable overnight."

—that Christopher Howard of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that MM Bud Handshoe of R1 Auburn are parents of a daughter born Saturday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that the Eastside 8th grade football team defeated Garrett Saturday 8-0.

—that Navy Seaman Apprentice Delbert Martin, Jr., son of MM Delbert Martin, Sr., of Butler, has completed recruit training at San Diego, California. He is a 1974 Eastside grad.

—that area wheat growers who have insured their wheat against all natural hazards beyond their control with the USDA Federal Crop Insurance Corporation are reminded that the final date for reporting their acreage of winter wheat planted this fall is November 10.

—that SP4 Kevin Haverstock of Butler recently left for Germany where he will train under the Brigade-75 program. He is the son of Mrs. Alice Seltenright and a 1974 graduate of Eastside High School.

—that WANE-TV will carry seven Indiana Pacers basketball games this season: October 29, December 10 and 17, January 2, 12 and 14, and March 1.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

Bivere Brush - reporter

The Newville Township Home Ec Club met in the Hicksville Bank Rooms on September 8 at 2 p.m. with Judy Morrison and Myrtle Mills as hostesses.

All repeated club collect. Doris Hart gave devotions from "A Gift of Love" by Helen Steiner Rice. All sang the song of the month, "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Sixteen members told what they liked about September. Doris Ball became a member.

Get-well cards were sent to Leila Wright and Lucille Nelson.

Birthday gals were Annabelle Culler and Charlotte Kimmel.

The Hickory Hills Country Club was the meeting place for the Newville Township Extension Homemakers. The hostesses, Bivere Brush and Annabelle Culler, chose the club for the October 13 meeting.

After delicious dinners, President Hart opened the meeting and all repeated the club collect. Mary Platter gave devotions. All sang "Yankee Doodle" and assistant chorister Rozella Mickelson gave the history of the song.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Lela Wright. Berenice Wilder and Kathryn Kreig also had birthdays but were absent.

17 members gave their reason for coming to club for roll call. Get-well cards were signed for Leta Shaffer and Lucille Nelson.

The place for the November meeting will be announced later. It will be a potluck. Roll call will be a suggestion for a Christmas gift you'd like from your secret pal.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 800, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Blazer Football

The injury-plagued DeKalb Eastside Blazer football team took it on the chin Friday night as they lost to Angola 55-0.

Jeff Hudson was injured in the second quarter and was forced to leave the game. Larry McKown, who had an ankle injury previously, sprained the other Friday night And Bill Seltenright, another senior, is another injury victim.

Coach Al Peugeot was forced to rely on freshmen and said there was no time that Eastside had less than six freshmen on the field.

With the Blazers fumbling three times, Angola did not need to punt the entire game.

Despite the loss, Peugeot had praise for his freshmen who were "on their own" without the presence of Hudson, McKown and Seltenright.

Kimes-White

Walter D. Kimes, 70, retired factory worker, and Naomi E. White, 63, coin laundry attendant, were united in marriage Thursday, October 21, by Judge Charles Quinn.

Attendants were MM Willard A. Ely and Mrs. Barbara Sexton of Phoenix, Arizona.

A party was held later at the home of MM Burtis L. Dickman of Auburn. A good time was had by all.

Music was played by Mrs. Neoma Shackle.

The couple will make their home at No. 32, Auburn Mobile Home Park.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

The Ladies' Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Roy Baker on October 6, 1976.

The Collect and Pledge were given in unison.

Mrs. Carl Carpenter had the lesson on Colonial education taken from the book "The Little Red Schoolhouse." She stated that the first schools were started by churches and usually taught by the minister. Many times the only book used was the Bible because it was the only book in most homes.

Mrs. Forrest Bevington had a spelling and then definition match.

The club decided to buy blind material.

After adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Harold Hamman on October 20, 1976.

Mrs. Carlos Church had a lesson on the Pyramids. In the age of the Pyramids, one use for them was to get the people together so government could be organized.

For entertainment, Mrs. Carl Carpenter read poems by James Whitcomb Riley.

An invitation requesting the club's presence at the 50th anniversary party of MM Carl Perkins was read.

Mrs. Roy Baker gave the critic's report and read the poem "New Friends and Old Friends."

Mrs. Lela Northrup, an emeritus member, was a guest.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

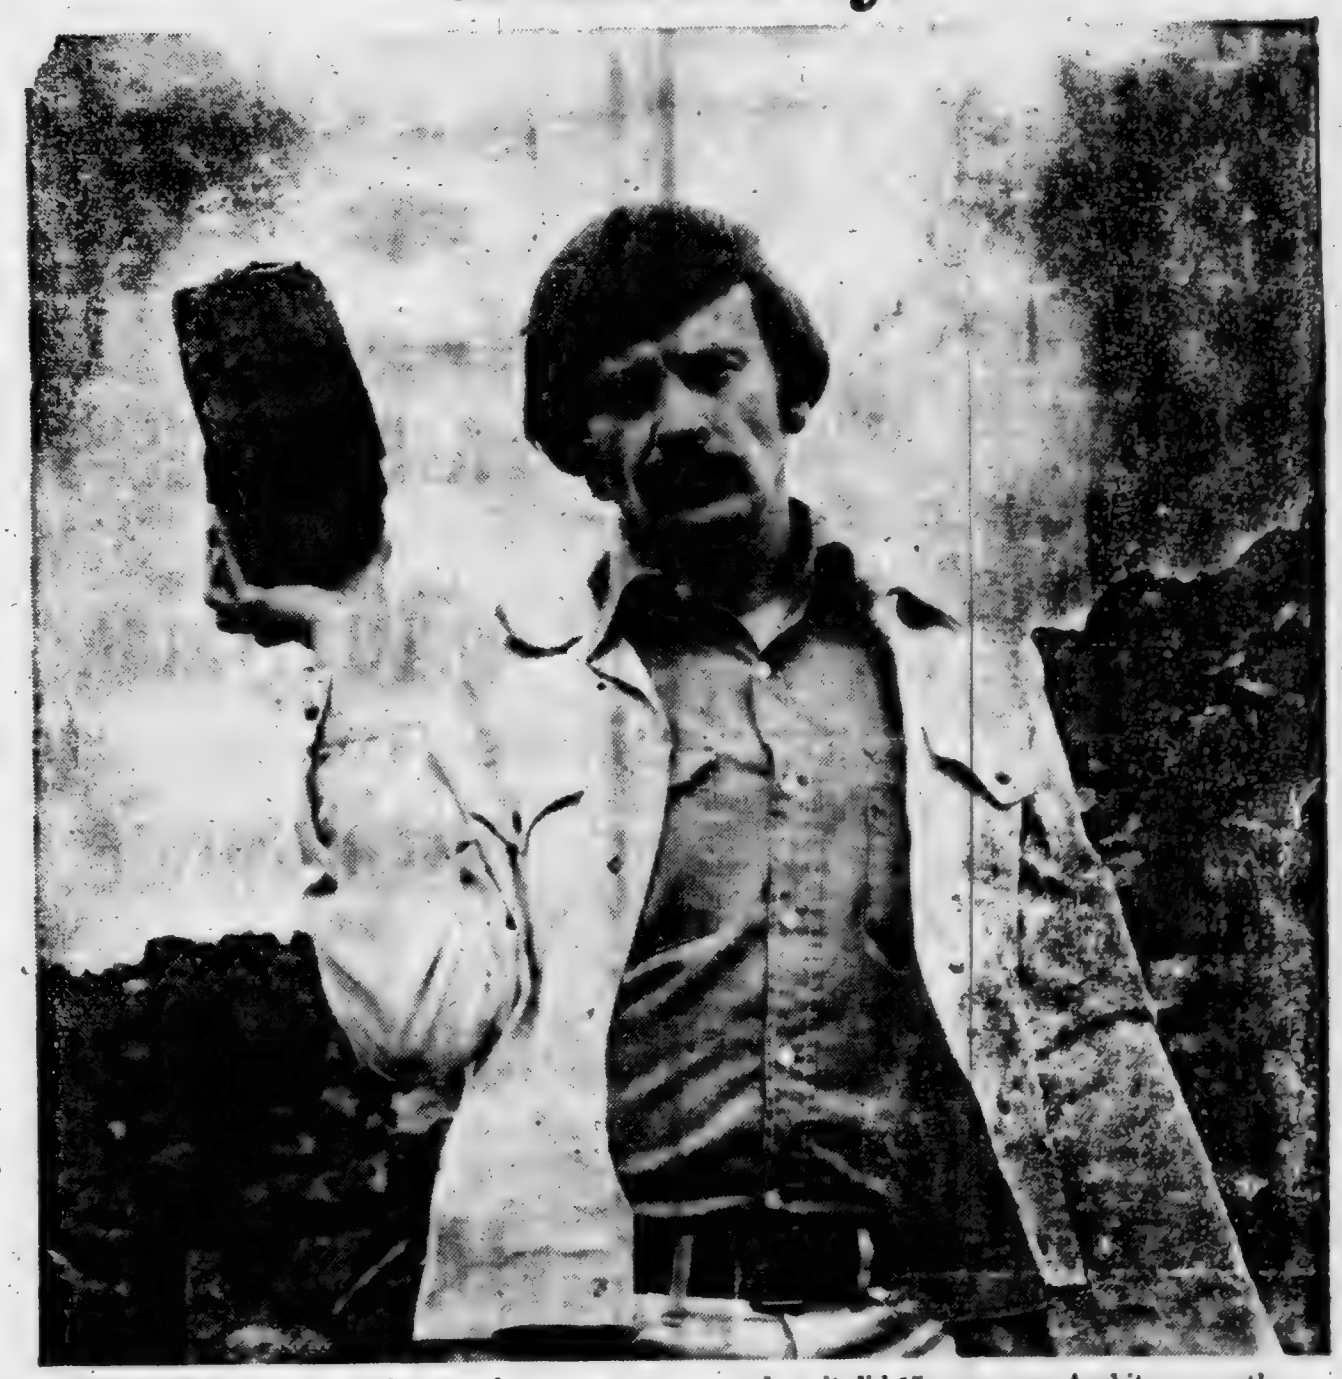
Just because there's plenty of coal, doesn't mean there'll be plenty of electricity.



By now almost everyone knows what a great resource America has in its vast coal reserves. And how important it is in making electricity.

But just having the coal doesn't make it electricity.

It has to be mined, first. Then we have to to convert that coal into electricity and get it to your homes and factories.

Without facilities to do all that, all the coal in the world wouldn't generate the first kilowatt of electric power. The lights wouldn't burn. And the machines that help us do our jobs wouldn't run.

Unfortunately, the cost of building these facilities has gone up drastically. For instance, building a power plant today costs five times as much as it did 15 years ago. And it was costly, even then.

On top of that, building new facilities takes time. And it takes the cooperation and understanding of the people who will benefit from them.

You might say it's a kind of power partnership between you and us that takes a realistic approach to the needs of today. And tomorrow, too.

Without your help and understanding about the needs and the cost, facilities may never get built.

And coal, which can become electricity, will just stay coal.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I don't know why—but "Ferguson" popped in my mind last week when I set type for the story about the house fire in Saint Joe. So Joyce Mitchell had a new name for a while.

Jake Lengacher, Sam Eicher and John Shank just finished some repairs on our house. What started out as a porch rejuvination project ended up a general roof repair and eave-spouting job. Inadequate rain drainage would have made the porch repairs useless.

With a coat of paint on the trim sometime in the future, the old homestead shouldn't look too bad. But it still won't be quite up to Roy and Kate Bowsers place across the street. They have kept things up to snuff year after year while I let things go and weather took its toll.

Jake, Sam and John make a good team. They're good workers.

Oh yes, Jake celebrated his 51st birthday Wednesday of this week—by working at his place instead of ours.

I&M Refunds To Customers

It wasn't much, but it WAS a refund—and from the electric company, too.

With its recent billing, Indiana & Michigan Electric Company notified customers of record from March 1974 to April 1976 that their bill included a credit for overcharges for fuel purchased by I&M to generate electricity.

I&M settled a suit against the American Oil Company for alleged overcharges. The utility then passed the settlement funds back to its customers.

So, for once, I&M isn't "behind the eightball" in energy cost matters, and in fact took obvious steps to protect its customers.

FHA To Show 'Circus of Fashion'

—Carol Rufner, reporter

The Eastside FHA invites ladies to attend a "Circus of Fashion" style review November 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafetorium. The "In" Fashion Shop of Butler, managed by Carmen McBride, is co-sponsoring this evening of cards, fashions and door prizes.

Tickets are $2 and are available at the "In" Fashion Shop, Knisely Bank, Red Barn Beauty Salon and the high school at Butler, and The Sisters' Emporium at Saint Joe. FHA members also have tickets to sell.

Lucille Whitman, who owns the "In" Fashion Shop and the Rainbow Boutique of Angola, will narrate the program.

Gifts For Patients

"Help put the presents under the Christmas tree."

So says the Mental Association in DeKalb County which is currently collecting gifts for patients at the Fort Wayne State Hospital and Training Center, as well as for those in local community-based facilities. The gifts will be collected and assigned to various patients based on their choices and needs.

The local organization has participated for many years in the gift project, an effort to help make the holiday seem brighter for patients in state hospitals.

Collection depots include the News Office, Saint Joe; Boston Store, Auburn; Kandel Insurance Agency, Butler; Boston Store, Garrett; and Henderson Plumbing, Waterloo.

Adm'tor Pay Raise Below That Of Teachers

Steps were taken by the local school board Monday night to prevent another occurrence of last spring's unruliness by students at the junior-senior high school. On next year's calendar, April 11 was made a full school day and May 27 was removed completely as a school day. Also planned is a schedule so that none of the last days of school are shorter than a full half-day.

The union contract with the teachers was then reviewed and it was approved to adopt the collective bargaining agreement.

Salary raises were then approved for the superintendent ($800), high school principal ($800), assistant high school principal ($800), and elementary principal ($1,000). These represented raises of 3.3%, 3.7%, 4.1% and 5.9%, respectively. Teachers recently were given a 6.5% raise. Administrative and other personnel raises are customarily delayed until teachers' pay is established. A number of teachers and patrons had been under the impression that administrators and other personnel were already receiving increased pay at the time of the teacher salary dispute.

The board was informed that the teachers had withdrawn their unfair labor practices complaints filed against the school board.

Cubs Plan Paper Drive

The Spencerville Cub Scout Pack 3172 is planning a paper drive for Saturday, November 13.

If you have papers, call Saint Joe 337-5505, Newville 337-5214 and Spencerville 337-5173 or 238-4276.

Also needed are Cub Scout uniforms. If you have any, call 337-5505.

Com'nity Worship Planned For 24th

The Community Thanksgiving Service will be held Wednesday, November 24, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville.

Rev. Terry Rhine, pastor of the Spencerville United Methodist Church, will present the evening meditation.

Rev. Wilbur Miller, pastor of the St. Peter church, will assist in the evening service.

Residents of the Riverdale community are urged and invited to attend the Thanksgiving Eve service.

Butler UM To Have Bazaar

The Butler United Methodist Church will hold its Women's Christmas Bazaar and Bake Sale November 11, 12 and 13 at the church.

The bazaar will include items at a Bake Shop, Candy Shop, Plant Shop, "Next-To-New" Shop, Sewing Shop, Christmas Shop and Gift Shop. Proceeds will be used to help defray expenses of the congregation's new church building at 501 West Green Street.

Hours will be 7-9 Thursday, 9-9 Friday and 9-1 Saturday.

The public is invited to patronize the bazaar.

Open House At PTO Tuesday

All parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and friends of the students at Riverdale School at Saint Joe are urged by Principal Charles Ray to mark November 16 on their calendars as the date of the annual Riverdale School Open House.

The event is held in conjunction with the regular PTO meeting which will run from 7 to 7:30 p.m. with the Open House following from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The Open House will provide an opportunity for relatives of students, patrons and friends to view what is taking place in the elementary school.

Due in large part to the tremendous parental support evident each year, the open houses at Riverdale and Butler elementary schools last year were given feature story recognition in the National Education Association "Observance Manual" as successful ways to hold open houses.

As a gesture of appreciation for the public's support, the school and PTO will offer free laminating service to those attending the Open House. The laminating film was purchased by the PTO from the proceeds of last year's book sale. Parents may bring items such as photographs, cards for billfolds, etc., to be laminated. All laminating will be done in the library.

In addition, a survey form will be given to those interested in filling it out for the Gallup Poll concerning public attitude toward education. There will be a display with the nationwide results of this survey at the Open House, plus surveys turned back will be compiled as soon as possible and results distributed for the students to take home.

Mrs. William Burton, president of the Riverdale PTO, noted she is very pleased with the response to the membership drive and that memberships will be on sale at the Open House. Refreshments will be served during the evening by members of the PTO.

Principal Ray noted, "We have an elementary school of which we can all be very proud and this is an excellent opportunity to view all the classrooms, see the work being done by the children, as well as meet the staff."

The Butler Elementary Open House will be held Tuesday, November 23, from 7:30 to 9.

Little Hoosiers

—Diane Smith, secretary

The Riverdale Little Hoosiers met October 26 after school in the cafetorium. President Vincent Ferese, presided over the business meeting.

After the business meeting, the Little Hoosiers divided into four groups for Pioneer activities. Freida Guilford helped with whipping cream. Bev Shinaberry demonstrated and allowed the groups to get pumpkins ready for pumpkin pies.

Donna Jewel, Betty Wagner and Jeannie Schmucker had the groups make funnel cakes.

Dorothy Lepper supervised the playing of the Pioneer Games the children had made in past state competition.

Refreshments of pumpkin pie and whipped cream were served.

The next Little Hoosier meeting will be Thursday, November 11, at the Raymond Jewel farm. This will be a cornhusking party and lunch will be served.

75% Voter Turnout Brings GOP Wins

With Dan Quayle scoring an amazing win over J. Edward Roush in seeking incumbent Roush's seat in the United States House of Representatives for the Fourth District, Republicans in DeKalb County fared well in Tuesday's election. The surprise Quayle win was not so much that he won as it was in the wide margin of votes separating the two candidates.

DeKalb County GOP chairman Bob Wilder had predicted a Quayle win last week. But his optimism was not echoed in very many other quarters. The successful efforts of Roush in past campaigns seemed a formidable obstacle in Quayle's effort to run for office. But what has been reported elsewhere as a well-planned campaign run separately by Quayle supporters appears to have been a deciding factor. Also, Roush had been in Congress for 16 years. And Hoosiers have an inclination to "make a change" regardless of party affiliation when Hoosier Senators and Representatives get to or near the 20-year mark in office.

The same factor may be involved in Senator Vance Hartke's sound thumping by former Indianapolis mayor Richard Lugar. However, another factor appears to have been Hartke's general loss of popularity with Hoosiers, even with those in his own party.

Republicans didn't make a clean sweep of it, however, in DeKalb County. In the race for Commissioner from the Southeast District, Democrat John Reinhart defeated Richard Crow by 440 votes.

And in the race for three at-large seats on the county council, two Democrats and one Republican gained the public's favor in some ticket splitting. Ron Feller and John Mason are the Democrats who won and Charles Farrington is the victorious Republican. Losers were Democrat Roger Kain and Republicans Tom Culler and John Foley.

In the approval-disapproval vote on two Indiana Supreme Court justices, both were given yes-majority votes as follows:

DeBruler—
Concord 103 yes, 94 no; Newville 43-22; Spencer 86-81; county 4192-2595.

Prentice had a 107-86 yes margin in Concord Township; 40-24 in Newville; 93-75 in Spencer; and 4219-2532 in the county.

On the approval-disapproval of the judge of the Court of Appeals, Garrard had 107 yes and 85 no in Concord; 44-21 in Newville; 92-69 in Spencer; and 4443-2288 in the county.

On the Indiana constitutional amendment to allow 18 year olds and up to vote after 30 days' residency in a precinct, the results were 121 yes and 42 no in Concord; 48-14 in Newville; 101-37 in Spencer; and 4604-1234 in the county.

In the statewide vote, all of the above judges were given "yes" majorities, meaning they will now serve for 10 years until another public vote is taken on retaining or not retaining them on their respective benches.

Statewide, the constitutional amendment was also approved.

With 18,204 eligible voters in DeKalb County, the turnout of 13,730 represented just over 75% voter participation.

EMS And Liability

(This is a followup to an article appearing here a few weeks ago.)

I know there are some who will think I am obsessed or something about the program called EMS (Emergency Medical Service). I'm not trying to "put down" anyone who is involved in the program to get personal revenge. I am trying to point out that the benefits from the program are very limited because the benefits are related primarily to emergency situations.

"Certainly — that's what the program is for," someone will say. But what they forget is that the other non-emergency use of vehicles to transport a person from one health care facility to another or to home is not available as it was in the past, a service provided either at no cost or at very low cost for the most part by funeral homes. Now it is mandatory that you use EMS for non-emergency purposes because state and federal laws have made it impossible for private interests to bear the cost of 24-hour employment of "trained" personnel as now required by law for ambulance service.

Unfortunately, the "trained" personnel in EMS are mostly volunteers who, despite the training course they take, can provide little more than emergency first aid care — which we already had in the past through volunteers (mostly firemen and auxiliary members) who took Red Cross First Aid courses. The other "trained" personnel who are full-time paid employees go somewhat beyond the "first aid" limitation but still cannot render medical treatment on their own. It is illegal to practice medicine unless you are a licensed medical doctor. Even the "paramedics" depicted on a popular TV program are limited in their abilities to provide emergency treatment. It should be remembered that their efforts are directed through radio contact with a medical doctor at a hospital.

However, the main point stuck in my mind is that EMS has not brought "improved medical care." And improved medical care is what some of the loud voices have used as their rallying cry to institute the mandatory EMS program. The truth is sometimes quite the opposite. EMS has increased the cost of medical care while providing no appreciable benefits. In DeKalb County, it costs a person $35 for an EMS run, plus an additional $5 for an emergency run, plus mileage.

And there are legal questions of liability which are involved. Can a person refuse to enter an EMS vehicle when another person has called EMS? Are EMS volunteers and paid personnel relieved of liability when a person who ought to be transported by EMS to a doctor or hospital refuses such assistance? Is the person who puts in the call for EMS for someone else liable for payment of the fees? Does the knowledge that EMS is going to result in "another bill to pay" influence an injured person to refuse EMS assistance? Can EMS personnel, whether volunteer or paid, morally abide by the wishes of an injured person who may not realize the seriousness of the injuries they have suffered, especially when a head injury is involved?

In an auto accident, uninjured parties involved in the accident ARE REQUIRED BY LAW to render whatever assistance they can to the injured AND contact, someone qualified to see that the injured parties receive treatment. If the average citizen is obligated by law to that extent, shouldn't EMS be obligated to take accident victims to a hospital?

My continued concern is due to actual experience in our family. In one instance $45 was added to medical expenses for an emergency EMS run. Someone else made the call. It took the EMS vehicle a half hour to arrive. Local first aid trained firemen or other willing person could have taken the injured party to the hospital quicker. Since the victim had already been moved, despite obvious loss of considerable blood from a head wound, transporting him to the hospital was no apparent additional risk. Result — medical care costs went up $45. But no improved medical care was involved. In fact, medical care was delayed. The injury was serious. Four pints of blood were transfused. A nurse said, "For a while we didn't know....."

In another instance in our family, an accident in another county brought the EMS. A State Trooper was also present. A head injury was obvious. But on the statement by the victim that he was "all right," the EMS did not transport him to a hospital or doctor and the State Trooper and EMS personnel apparently did not strongly urge such a precaution for the victim's sake. Instead, he was taken to a police station, booked for "driving under the influence" and would not have been given an opportunity to make one phone call, except that he asked and it took the State Trooper's statement that the accident victim had been "cooperative" before the one phone call was allowed. Thereafter, he was put in the "drunk tank" for several hours —with a head injury.

I'm not making excuses about the drinking part of that situation. I'm pointing out that there was an injured party, there was an obvious head injury, the victim did not remember his car spinning three or four times before dropping into a ditch, the result of trying to get back into the right traffic lane after starting to pass a car and trailer unit and the front bumper hit the trailer causing loss of control. It all occurred in an effort to avoid a possible collision with a third car which appeared ready to enter the oncoming lane of traffic from a side road. It was 9 p.m.

Again, there was a head injury. Yet, EMS personnel and a State Trooper took the victim's word that he was "all right." The trooper commented, "You're lucky to be alive."

Not having been there, I cannot say there was total negligence. However, I do say that, although a person cannot be taken to a hospital against their will, technically speaking, there still ought to be a strong—a very strong—suggestion made by EMS and police personnel that such a precaution be taken due to accompanying circumstances. When someone is "talking out of his head" as was the case a year ago, and when someone has a cut and lump on the head as was the recent case in our family, what the victim says cannot be taken as truth because they may not know or realize what happened. Any person in shock is not a rational human being and has no capability to determine the seriousness of his or her injuries. That's where "emergency medical service" and law enforcement officers must take over and strongly and persistently urge immediate medical examination.

James C. Dillon, MD, is Indiana's state EMS Commission Chairman. He was recently named "1976 Man of the Year" by the Indiana Chapter of the American College of Emergency Physicians. In the July 1976 issue of "The EMS Communicator," official publication of the state EMS commission, Dr. Dillon made this significant comment:

"In my own experience, not everyone needs to be a paramedic, and in our experiences here in Indianapolis with paramedics we find that they are utilized only about 32 per cent of the time to their capabilities.

"We've also found from our own experience in Indianapolis that to fully staff a paramedic unit with two paramedics and an EMT driver and to operate that unit around the clock seven days a week for a full year costs about $190,000 a year. I doubt that many communities can afford that expense."

Doctor Dillon's remarks are realistic. He sounds like a good, practical person to "ride herd" on a program which is becoming costly without appreciably improving medical care. That's simply because EMS volunteers, EMT's and paramedics are not able to practice medicine.

If I sound unappreciative or ungrateful, it is my bungling in expressing my thoughts. I appreciate the willingness of the many volunteers in the EMS program. I understand the predicament they are in sometimes when a person says, "I'm all right," but that person quite possibly isn't "all right."

My continued concern is that the EMS program was forced on every community by law, without regard for circumstances prevailing in individual communities. My concern is that the law requires the expenditure of tax money (in addition to the fees collected through EMS) to support the program and thus increase the cost of medical care — but there is reason to doubt that any greater benefits are being derived. My concern is that we have another "social welfare" program under way which is quietly growing into a bureaucratic monster subject to favoritism and misrepresentation.

How effective Dr. Dillon's warnings are about the costs of paramedics remains to be seen. But right now, I would predict that what we have in EMS now is just a start. And the next step will be for our Congress to expand the program, to say "we need paramedics in every county to make the program more effective" and then pass more laws forcing every community to spend more money for medical care.

Boiled down, my concern is that many in positions of authority forget a fact of life — there are some conditions and adversities which cannot be changed; you just must live with them. We can't afford the price to eliminate them.

Junior Troop 29

—Liat Osmun, troop scribe

Junior Troop 29 had a Girl Scout meeting in the basement of the Lutheran Church at Saint Joe on November 1. 17 girls and two leaders were present.

We had a court of honor meeting first and talked about rededication. During court of honor the rest of the troop filled out a card about what we wanted to do this year. They sang three songs, then court of honor was dismissed. Patrol leaders went to patrols to talk about rededication.

We played some games while refreshments were put out by Tammy Vandyke and Tina Scott. We did Indian taps and were dismissed by Nancy Garman.

FARM BUREAU

—Mazie Myers, reporter

62 DeKalb County Farm Bureau members attended the District II meeting at Columbia City October 27.

Rev. Carl Polstra, pastor of the Troy Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation, speaking about the use of farms in the Bible.

During the chicken barbecue dinner, Mrs. Lloyd Yoder of Allen County played music on the piano.

George Neff, District II director, introduced special guests. Mrs. Mildred Gross, District II Woman Leader; fieldmen Marvin Metzger and Richard Lowe; all county Farm Bureau presidents; Wayne Rothgeb of WKJG; county woman leaders; Farm Bureau insurance managers; and young Farm Bureau farmers were among the over 500 present.

Mr. Neff announced that Mrs. Mildred Gross was re-elected District II Woman Leader for another two years. She then presented the Extension Agents Association Award to Steuben County.

A young farmer panel discussed "What Should Be the Role of Farm Bureau In An Urban Expanding Agriculture?" Participants were Dale Naragon, moderator, of Whitley County, David Hess of Elkhart County, Don Bucher of Kosciusko County, John Larimer of LaGrange County and Steven Phares of Noble County.

George Doup, state president, showed slides on "An Evening In China." He and his wife recently returned from China. He gave a very interesting insight of life over there in his comments with the slides.

Gerald Ford – A Steady Hand For A Thankless Job

—By The Editor

I was never particularly impressed by Gerald Ford when he was House Minority Leader before he was put in the Presidency by appointment. It always seemed to me that he was saying what you would expect a minority leader to say in backing and supporting policies of a President trying to work with a hostile Congress. But that's what Mr. Ford was supposed to do; it was my immturity, politically speaking, which dampened my enthusiasm for him.

When he came into the Presidency, I did not always agree with his ideas, as I did not agree with some of the ideas spoken of favorably by President Richard Nixon. The primary objection came when they seemed to lean toward a national health care program, a move which seems to me to be another opportunity for government intrusion into private affairs. The idea also suggests that medical doctors and the dental profession have failed in their responsibilities to the public in the services performed. That negative outlook has been promoted particularly by Senator Ted Kennedy who, in today's typical liberal fashion, emphasizes what we don't have and ignores what we do have. Any so-called "failures" of medical science and today's doctors are far outnumbered by the successes achieved.

But—back to Mr. Ford and the Presidency. When he came into that office, when he had to function under the difficult situation confronting him, he took on a job which would seem to be the last thing anyone would want to tackle (no pun intended). But he accepted the responsibility.

I don't know what many Americans expected within two years—unless it was a miracle. The words used to describe Mr. Ford's efforts in office—"ineffective," "insensitive to the needs of the people," and so on—were used to promote opposition to his election to the Presidency. Obviously, those words had their effect. The negative voices were heard.

I think that is the unkindest cut of all. So many Americans were themselves "programmed" into looking for spectacular actions, spectacular results, spur-of-the-oment measures, by those preparing "news" releases for the wire services and for TV news broadcasts that they forgot the fact—Mr. Ford's deliberate style of functioning was what they said they wanted. "Less government involvement," "stop inflation," these were the concerns of Americans, according to public opinion polls. These concerns can be put into three other words—"slow things down." Mr. Ford acted to do this in the fight against inflation.

But when the liberal press, radio and TV got hold of it, they subtly turned progress under Mr. Ford into fears of a recession and depression. They described his appearances on the TV "debates" as "programmed," and obviously the public was swayed. And the image of a stumbling, bumbling President was projected into the minds of Americans—that is, those who stopped thinking for themselves. The closeness of the national vote for the Presidency indicates that not all Americans were brainwashed. But enough were to bring defeat to Mr. Ford, a man who came into the Presidency under circumstances never before faced by a President of the United States.

What I am saying here was prompted in particular by a couple of columnists in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette. However, there were similar comments occasionally from syndicated columnists in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel.

This week, Virginia Bensheimer, a local columnist, referred to Mr. Ford as follows:

"It's obvious that in a chilling, fought-to-the-last-state presidential race, people decided to go with the potentially exciting unknown instead of the unquestionably mediocre."

Mr. Ford "mediocre"? Hardly. If there is any mediocrity, it is in that columnist's ability to put things into proper perspective—including primarily circumstances and handicaps related to the office of President the past two years.

Tom Wicker, a syndicated columnst in the Journal-Gazette, had this to say:

". . . . Probably no candidate, as a result, ever was more thoroughly challenged in word, deed and appearance than Jimmy Carter."

Speaking of Ford, Mr. Wicker says:

". . . . he was not so stringently challenged by the press as was Carter . . . ."

Mr. Wicker's comments make me wonder if he was watching the same "debates" as I was, if he was reading the same wife services stories as I was which got headlines and references on a continuing basis concerning Mr. Ford's "blunder" about who controls European countries (which wasn't really a blunder but a failure to understand that the President was speaking about the spirit of the peoples involved)—while Mr. Carter's several goofs got one-time mention and that was it, for the most part.

I think it is a shame—if not a journalistic "crime"—that such columnists seldom if ever referred to the fact that Mr. Ford had to function under opposition from a Congress controlled by the opposite party. The Ford vetoes, the majority of which were upheld even by an opposition Congress, were not reported positively as actions to fight inflation, for the most part. Instead, the vetoes were seen by the public, through what they heard and saw from national news sources, as indications of an "ineffective" and an "insensitive" President.

The overall bad result of modern journalism is that the role of government has been so glorified, so emphasized as the cure-all for eliminating life's problems, that even those who say "we have too much government now" turn right around and ask for MORE government by suporting political candidates whose party platform is dedicated to governmental intrusion into private lives.

Gerald Ford gave the people what they said they wanted—the chance to live without fear of Presidential urging further government instrusion into their lives. But instead of giving him more time to prove the value of his, slow, deliberate approach, voters allowed themselves to be "programmed" into further and deeper penetration of government into private affairs by electing another candidate as President. Some, like Virginia Bensheimer, supported an "exciting" unknown while branding another as "mediocre."

Personally, I'm very concerned—and upset—that so many Americans felt free to "play around" with the voting privilege on the basis of such frivolous and irresponsible quantities as "exciting." They are playing around with my welfare and that of every other individual American citizen.

Gerald Ford did a tremendous job in the two years he served as President. But, he lost an election, and Americans lost the strong, firm hand which steadied our "ship of state" during a stormy two-year struggle to recover from the shock of scandal in the White House.

Cadette Trp. 192

—Babette Hershberger, scribe

Cadette Troop 192 held their meeting at the home of Patricia Osmun on November 4. Almost all were present.

We elected new officers: Robin Loy as Patrol Leader, Julie Mishler as treasurer, Babette Hershberger as troop scribe, and Lynette Longardner as co-patrol leader.

We discussed Red Flannel Days to be held at Pokagon on January 28-29. We will be skating, tobogganning, etc., and will stay overnight in cabins.

We also discussed a rededication ceremony and a money-making project.

Junior Troop 29

—Liat Osmun, troop scribe

Girl Scout Troop 29 had a meeting in Saint Marks church in Saint Joe on November 8, 1976. We had 16 girls present. We had rededication, investiture, and candle-lighting ceremonies. Refreshments were brought by Ramona Mooneyhan and Ellen Garman. Ellen brought heart-shaped cookies with our names on them and Ramona brought green kooaid. We played two games, then worked on our trefoil badges. We cleaned up next and had hand-clasp closing.

'Old-timer' Helen Randall Recoups

Sharon and Catharine Bowser of Saint Joe and Pauline Baumgartner of Spencerville drove to Gary last week and were luncheon guests of Marian Carlin, the daughter of Helen and the late Harry Randall.

The afternoon was spent visiting with Helen Randall at the Ross Care Nursing Home at Merrillville. About six months ago, Mrs. Randall had a leg amputated and is in the extensive care and therapy home. She is reported in good spirits and looks well. She sent her "best" to all old acquaintances in Saint Joe, and especially to all the "girls" still playing bunco.

Helen and Jessie Rice (wife of the Saint Joe druggist) started the first bunco club in this area shortly after World War I. Original members included Edith Cole, Avis Staman, Belle Barney, Neva Hursh and Agnes Monroe. Neva is the only member of the original group still living.

Helen has months of extensive care and therapy ahead of her and would be glad to hear from anyone from Saint Joe.

Her address is: Helen Randall, Ross Care Nursing Home, Merrillville, Indiana 46307.

Sgt. Robinson Earns Award

Marine Gunnery Sergeant Stanley E. Robinson, son of MM Joe Robinson of Saint Joe, recently received a plaque designating him the Marine Corps recipient of the 1976 Excellence in Traffic Management Award. Major General H. R. Del Mar, Commander, Military Traffic Management Command, made the presentation at the National Defense Transportation Association Forum in Boston in September.

Major Del Mar's letter notifying Sgt. Robinson of his selection included the following:

"Your consistent outstanding performance as a traffic manager at the Naval Support Activity, Treasure Island, is recognized by your selection as the Marine Corps recipient of the Military Traffic Management Command's annual award for 'Excellence in Traffic Management.'

"Traffic management within the Department of Defense is dedicated to serving our Armed Forces. The translation of that dedication into efficient responsive support is possible only because thousands of professionals at military installations and activities work together with the transportation industry to provide the service that our men and women in uniform deserve. Your contributions to that service are a credit to you and to the entire Defense transportation program.

"I take great pleasure in presenting you this Military Traffic Management Command plaque as a token of our high esteem and deep appreciation for your fine work."

Sgt. Robinson has been in the Marines for 16 years.

Error In Election Stats

A transposition of figures last week in the listing of vote totals in Concord, Newville, and Spencer Townships was misleading, as published in this paper.

In the contest for Commissioner Southeast District, the News gave majority vote totals in the three townships to John Reinhart. Actually, the figures should have been the opposite. The totals given for Reinhart in the three townships were cast for Richard Crow. The totals given for Crow were Reinhart's.

The News regrets any questions which may have arisen due to the transposition. However, the winner countywide was still Reinhart as noted in the county vote total.

Bucket Teams' Open House Next Tuesday

A Basketball Open House is set for Tuesday, November 16, at DeKalb Eastside High School.

From 7 to 7:45 p.m. parents and friends may take pictures of the players. At 7:45 scrimmaging will begin.

Participating will be the girls varsity under coach Robert Brown, boys reserves under Rick Sexson, and boys varsity under Bill Peden.

After the scrimmage, parents will meet with the coaches.

Reserve Special Plate Numbers

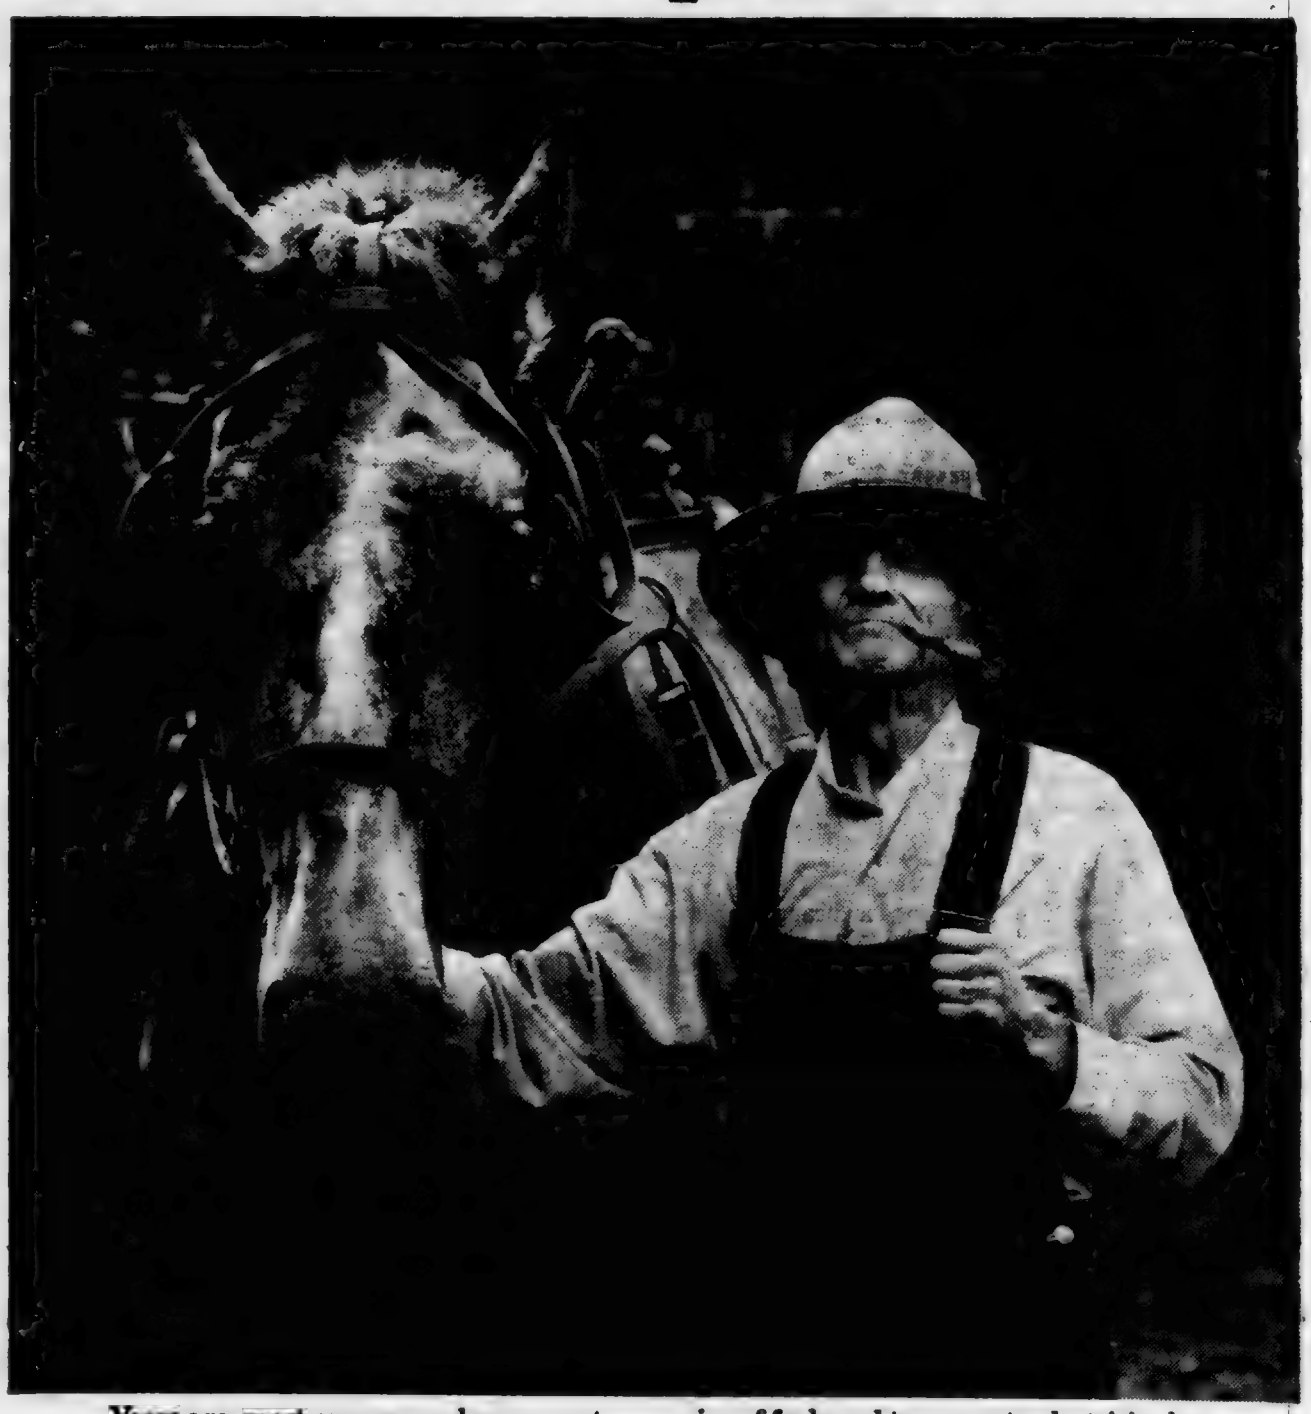
Drivers who want to reserve their special license plate numbers can do so now. The Butler License Branch is now taking reservations for 1977 plates.

Available will be the 17S 1 through 200. Those wanting a number between 17S1 and 100 should notify the branch immediately. 17B plates will be available as always.

As soon as registration slips are received from Indianapolis, motorists may pay for their special plates. For those who may be out of the community, the license branch can type a registration slip.

Public cooperation will be appreciated.

Harnessing energy used to be simple.



Years ago, most energy needs were met by what you had in your right arm. Or by something you kept in a stall, in your barn.

Today, meeting energy needs is a gigantic undertaking. And a complex problem. Because the need is still growing.

Even conservative estimates tell us the demand for electricity alone will double in the next 15 years.

Just keeping up with this increase is going to be tough. It's going to take new facilities. But major facilities take from five to ten years to build.

And a lot of money.

Building a power plant today, for instance, costs five times what it did 15 years ago. And it was costly even then.

Besides that, everyone knows how the price of fuel used to generate electricity has skyrocketed since 1973.

But, while we continue to make every effort to hold down our costs in meeting your future energy needs, there are some things you can do to help conserve that energy and keep your costs in line at the same time.

By using your electricity wisely. Insulating your home properly. Checking into more energy efficient appliances and systems, like the heat pump.

And by understanding that the generation of electricity is a costlier and more complicated process than it used to be.

When you get right down to it, the best way we know to harness the energy we all need for the future is by working together today.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

Thirty-three members of the Fifty-Plus club met in the Spencerville Community Building on Thursday evening, October 28, for their regular monthly meeting. Hostesses for the evening were Elva Hoover, Barbara Longbrake, Kathryn Shockley, and Lula Gerig.

The group was called to order at 6:30 p.m. and after prayer by Harold Stiver all enjoyed a bountiful pot luck supper.

A short business meeting was conducted by President Ida Reed. Greetings were extended to all present. Our November meeting will be one week early, on November 18, due to Thanksgiving on the regular meeting date. President Reed read several poems - "Autumn," and "Apple Picking Time." Birthday offerings were received. There being no further business, the meeting was turned over to the committee for the evening. Leila Rosselot showed pictures and told of her Mediterranean cruise. This was a very interesting program and was greatly enjoyed by all.

Don't forget - the November meeting is one week earlier - November 18. Sarah Amstutz, Margie Dwyer and Ida Reed will be hostesses. Same time - same place.

Rural Housewives

Sarah Amstutz, Sec'y.

The November meeting of the R.H.C. Club was held Tuesday, November 2, with Lizzie Hart as hostess. Ten members were present.

We will miss the three members who leave to spend the winter in Florida, Ellen Hart, Bernice Wilder, and Harriet Hood.

Ida Reed read articles on "Thanksgiving" and "The Landing of the Pilgrims."

The business meeting followed. Roll call was "things we are thankful for." We all decided that we had so much to be thankful for in our country that the response was very nearly the same from all of us.

We were sorry to report that Doris Stuck is sick again.

Collection of dues was ninety-five cents.

This club was organized in 1913 as the first club in DeKalb County consisting of farm women.

The first clubs in the state were farm women - in later years, "The Home Demonstration Clubs" were formed.

Some of the same ladies organized the Spencer Township Club.

Lela Northrup, one of the older members of the R.H.C. Club, is at Betz Nursing Home in Auburn - the club met with Lela at the home for its September meeting.

The Christmas meeting was planned for a pot luck dinner to be held with Sarah Amstutz on December 7 at 12 noon.

Meeting adjourned after a delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

Nov. 27 Deadline For Gifts

Mentally ill and retarded patients throughout the state of Indiana will be able to experience some holiday-season joy because of the generosity of the citizens of our county and the persistent efforts of the DeKalb County Mental Health Association.

The chairman of the Chirstmas Gift Project recently reminded the public of the importance of the suggested gift lists which are available at the collection stations.

If clothing is purchased, it should be made from washable fabric that does not require ironing. Gifts in glass bottles and other items which might be a safety hazard should be avoided.

The campaign chairman for the gift drive has announced that "Let the Love Shine In" is the theme for the program this year. Help make this theme a reality.

Deadline for gifts is Saturday, November 27. They may be left at the News Office in Saint Joe.

'Our Town' To Be Presented

Eastside High School will present Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" on Friday, November 19 and Saturday, November 20, at 3:00 p.m. in the cafetorium. Tickets can be purchased in advance. Adults' are $1.75 and students $1.25.

In the first act the author genially outlines the history of the town, which is Grover's Corners, N.H., and something of the character of its citizens. Wilder then carries the audience into the houses of the Gibbs and Webb families, substantial homes containing substantial folks. Beginning with breakfast time, the audience spends one full day with these good people.

The second act concerns the the love affair between young George Gibbs and little Emily Webb, and thus culminates in a moving wedding scene, which contains all those elements of poignant sorrow and abundant happiness that make for solemnity and impressiveness.

In the third act the audience is led to the cemetery on the hill, where many of the townspeople we have come to know so well are patiently and smilingly awaiting not judgment but greater understanding. Into their midst is led the bride, a little timid at first, a little wishful to go back to life, to live again with her memories. But she is shown how impossible, how futile it is to return. The past cannot be re-lived. living people, humans, occupied with their petty occupations and small thoughts, know little of true job or happiness. Truth is to be found only in the future.

Cast (in order of their appearance): Fred Wagner, Stage Manager; Dave Koch, George Gibbs; Laura Bevington, Emily Webb; Tom Kimmel, Mr. Webb; Becky Webb, Mrs. Webb; Yvonne Miller, Mrs. Gibbs; Ron Ladd, Mr. Gibbs; Susan Yates, Rebecca Webb; Brent Shull, Howie Newsome; Joe Johnston, Simon Stimson; Dan Haverstock, Prof. Willard; Mona Gonzales, Constable Warren; Jody Johnsonbaugh, Sisi Crowell; Cheri Melchi, Josie Crowell; Melissa Pascone, Wally Webb; Margaret McCollough, Sandy Craig; Tammy Tatro, Jody Stoddard; Lisa Feguson, Mrs. Soames; Laura Hook, Tracey McKown, Vivien Ortiz, Joann Mooneyhan, Martha Cannady, Townspeople; Rex Webb, Man in Auditorium; Laura Hook, Tracey McKown, Ladies in Auditorium; Jeff Morr, Craig Zahner, sound; Rex Webb and Jim Fetters, lights.

Parents, Taxpayers Dominated By One-Sided Teacher-Power

—By The Editor

From reports of Monday's school board meeting, it appears our problems are not over, despite the recent agreement on teacher salary schedules. I have a hunch that when the agreement was reached, there were those, maybe even on the school board, who sighed in relief, "Thank goodness, that's settled and we can get back to normal again."

Unfortunately, it isn't over, not only because Monday's board meeting brought the need to decide who's going to coach the girls' basketball team to light. It isn't over, also, because in just four months, the salary negotiations, and whatever else the teachers might cook up in the meantime, will once again get underway.

There is one point I would like to make, after having expressed it informally to some of the school administrators and the board's legal counsel:

I would like to see the DeKalb eastern school board file unfair labor practices with the state committee which hears such grievances. Also, I would like to have our board file charges of unethical conduct against any teacher who held discussions with students about the teacher salary dispute.

It has been far too long that the teachers' lobby and the various organizations they create have run over school administration. It is absolutely contrary to the concept of representative government that those we elect (school board members) cannot exercise THEIR judgment, according to the wishes of school patrons. It is entirely contrary to representative government that those who gain their livelihood in education have every avenue of appeal open to them if they feel agrieved, and they have the upper hand. Court decisions (our liberal unelected courts) have favored teachers far more often than they have favored school administrations.

I didn't vote for our school board members so that they could be mere figureheads. I voted for them because I want THEM to run the school system the way THE TAXPAYER wants, not the way immature, easily-misled, much misinformed teachers want to.

From the recent salary dispute and the public meeting which was held October 4 about the matter, several points stand out to justify an aggressive effort by the school board to neutralize the power of teacher unions and lobbyists, and bring school administration back to the proper authority—the local school board and administrators.

1. Teachers used students for one, two and three days to promote teacher interests. Without conducting a poll or asking parents what they thought, the word "brainwashed" came out in parent opinions about teacher discussions with students.

2. Teachers were uninformed and misinformed BY THEIR OWN SPOKESMEN. At the October 4 public meeting, it became evident that the school board's intent to use any extra monies (which might be found by state examiners) for additional teacher pay WAS NOT CONVEYED TO THE TEACHERS BY THEIR OWN SPOKESMEN, including the local UniServ office which masterminds teacher negotiations.

3. THE SCHOOL BOARD WAS RIGHT and THE TEACHERS WERE WRONG in the matter of funds available for a teacher pay raise. If the board had been in error (and that really means the superintendent and the board attorney who prepare the budget figures), IT WOULD HAVE BEEN MADE KNOWN IMMEDIATELY BY THE TEACHER SPOKESMAN AND THE UNISERV DIRECTOR WHO HAVE NOT HESITATED IN THE PAST TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF ALLEGED SCHOOL BOARD INCONSISTENCIES, to the point of exaggeration and misconception. In fact, the board's budget figures were so correct as to prompt a state examiner to remind the UniServ director that the examiners base their calculations on very reliable information. The UniServ director reportedly questioned or challenged item after item at the budget review held following the October 4 school board meeting. The examiner was irked by the attitude of the teacher representative from the UniServ office.

4. Despite teacher claims of the desire for parental input in education, THERE IS NOT A SINGLE PROGRAM, GROUP, SURVEY, POLL or what have you TO DETERMINE THE PUBLIC'S VIEWS ON EDUCATIONAL MATTERS. "New ideas" are instituted. When they succeed, the public hears about it. When they fail, NOT A WORD IS SAID BY THE TEACHERS. And in the use of "new ideas," THE FAILURES HAVE OUTNUMBERED THE SUCCESSES.

In this area, "new math" flopped and has generally been "modified" (which means they went back to the "old way" more than they kept the "new idea").

"New spelling" flopped and "the old way" has been reinstituted.

"New reading" flopped because "new spelling" flopped. The "right to read" program which sounded so highly motivated a few years ago distracted the public from the question: "Why do we need a concentrated program in reading on the basis of a child's 'right' when that's what they are going to school for in the first place—to learn to read, write and use numbers?"

Separation of students within a grade, according to capabilities, flopped. We heard the idea heralded to the skies. But the change back to "the old way" of mixed talents (teachers learned that "slow" students learned faster from exposure and challenge from "fast" students than from teachers) was quietly made.

But we did hear of "inadequate" teachers' pay, too many duties expected of teachers, too many hours for grading papers outside the classroom, and so on.

Repeat: educators' new ideas flopped more often than they succeeded. And the public's general skepticism proved to be right. The teachers were wrong.

Yes, we have some good teachers. But their voice, like that of parents, has been overridden by selfish unionism which has destroyed dedicated professionalism.

5. Parent, grandparent and taxpayer reaction against teachers as a whole was strong as a result of the recent dispute. The teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities was an attempt by teachers to "blackmail" the school board, force it to give in by getting parents of athletes aroused and fearful of losing, among other things, opportunities for athletic scholarships. Another "blackmail" effort came when the teachers suggested they would drop their unfair labor practices charges against the board if the salary dispute were settled by a certain time.

In this point, the reaction of a patron, expressed in a "letter to the editor" in this paper in which the thought was expressed that some teachers should not be re-hired next year—this idea was expressed to me by several parents who literally said, "Fire the whole bunch." These are not "radicals" speaking. They are good, solid concerned citizens.

6. Deception was used by the teachers to gain advantage. An agreement not to give out any information, thought by at least one member of the school board to mean "no information to ANYONE, " was stated by the UniServ director to involve only the news media. Thus, if you didn't listen closely and were trusting the other party, you as a school board member did not realize that the teachers had left the door open to distribute a "fact sheet" which was incomplete and misleading. In fact, THAT SO-CALLED "FACT SHEET" WAS IN THE PROCESS OF BEING PREPARED AT THE VERY TIME THE "NO INFORMATION" AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE SCHOOL BOARD AND THE TEACHER NEGOTIATORS WAS BEING MADE.

In summary, the atmosphere in public education has reached the point where SOMEBODY must take the initiative IN BEHALF OF STUDENTS, PARENTS AND TAXPAYERS.

That "somebody" could be our own DeKalb eastern school administration, leading the way for many other frustrated administrators by "fighting fire with fire."

There has been a reluctance to take drastic steps, due to the desire of school boards and administrators to keep from creating upset and upheaval in the education system. I suggest that the upset and upheaval are already present and have been for some time now—in the minds of parents who have no "union" through which they can exert influence. There is no "parent lobby" or "taxpayer lobby" confronting our legislators in Indianapolis or Washington.

Furthermore, unless a stand is taken by someone, teachers will continue to dominate the process of education, but not with an improvement in that process.

It is time for a school board and administration to take a stand. It is time to call a halt to the uncontrolled manner in which teachers have intimidated the general public. Their spoken "concern" for quality education is a bluff, a way to shame you and me into silence when we start asking questions about "what are we getting for our educational tax dollar?"

I repeat my informal statement and make it a public statement:

I wish the school board would file charges against the teachers in our school district who violated teaching ethics by using students, classroom time and after-classroom time for discussion of the salary dispute.

Put bluntly, what the teachers were saying was, "The school board, the superintendent and the school attorney are liars. They're trying to cheat us."

You think not? If you were at the October 4 meeting, you heard a coach stand up and say, "You (the school board) have given the administrators a raise, you've given janitors and the bus drivers a raise, but you won't give us a raise." Moments later, that teacher left the room. Whether or not he came back, I don't know. If he didn't, it's too bad, because it was pointed out that NO ONE in the school district was getting more money than last year, that teacher salaries are settled customarily BEFORE ANY OTHER PAY RAISES ARE DECIDED.

And if any teacher in our system claims that an "impartial" discussion was held in his or her classroom or outside the classroom, that the "other side" was given recognition for its merits—I'm sorry, but I can't believe it. Too many students and parents have said the opposite. In addition, the conduct and sneaky tactics by teachers and their spokesmen totally destroyed any faith I might have in claims of "impartial" discussions.

Filing charges against teachers is a drastic proposal? I don't think so—and the board has already had the idea brought to their attention in earlier discussions. It's no more drastic than teachers' violation of their extra-curricular activities agreements by use of a boycott—no more drastic than unannounced discussions of the salary matters by teachers with students—no more drastic than dissemination of incorrect and incomplete information by teachers to get public sympathy—no more drastic than teachers having certain parents gather in order to promote the teachers' cause.

Indeed, the proposal is less drastic than the above simply because it involves action IN BEHALF OF THE PUBLIC BY PUBLIC DECLARATION OF INTENT.

If you're inclined to feel that it's best to let the matter drop, "let bygones be bygones," you are sadly mistaken. You don't realize that the teachers union is geared up for the coming Indiana legislative session, that their lobby is going to be putting pressure on our legislators to legalize horserace betting in Indiana because the Democrat legislator who proposes it has earmarked a portion of the monies gained from such legalization for education (that means more money for teachers). You have forgotten—you read about it in this paper but have forgotten—that teachers will push the legislature to stop publication of teacher salaries in the annual report of the school systems in the state. In other words, teachers don't want taxpayers to know how much the taxpayers are shelling out for teacher salaries. They have already succeeded in making it unlawful for the school board to publicly divulge how much a coach is paid for coaching and how much other teachers receive for other extra-curricular duties. The argument about "right to privacy" has thus successfully been used by teachers to lead our lawmakers to forget it's TAXPAYERS' money being used and it is therefore NOT a "private" matter.

If you are as concerned as I am about the situation, call one or more of the school board members and let them know about it (Reynold Johnson, Lynn Fuller, Vaughn Billings, Earle Kelsey, Connie Hollabaugh, Norman Kinsey and Lloyd McClellan), and/or Superintendent Kenneth Cole, and/or school attorney H. Charles Winans. They need public support in their efforts to protect students, parents and taxpayers from the one-sided domination of education by teachers whose interests in recent years have been more in money than in students.

Did you know—

—that the Indiana Emergency Medical Services Commission (the state EMS governing body) has relaxed a rule that would have required a crew of three for emergency ambulances. The rule required a driver, a certified emergency medical technician and a paramedic. It was changed to require two persons, one a paramedic. The reason for the change was the financial burden on smaller communities.

—that Garrett schools will set their thermostats down from 70 to 68 in order to save energy. Also involved was the cost of energy. Other energy-saving practices include: turning half the hall lights off during school hours, lowering water temperatures where feasible, and lowering hall temperatures.

—that a grand prize of $1000 is being offered in a new poetry competition sponsored by the World of Poetry, a monthly newsletter for poets. In addition, there are 49 cash and merchandise awards. Rules and official entry forms can be obtained from: World of Poetry, 801 Portola Drive, Dept. 211, San Francisco, California 94127.

—that DeKalb County's Rural Youth and Junior Leader clubs took part in a multi-county officer training seminar at Rome City November 9. Attending were Pam Hollinger, Beth Hollinger, Lauri Pontoni, Bill Miles, Linda Jordan, Charlene DeVaux and extension agent Paula Hook.

—that the longest sub sandwich in the city of Lima, Ohio; a diamond ring; skiing lessons; flying instructions; assorted wines; a shopping spree for clothing; a child's party; movie passes; stereo equipment; and other items will be offered by WBGU-TV (channel 39) in the station's second auction, "Hello, Good Buy," to be held during viewing time starting at 4 p.m. November 21. The auction will be held also on the next two following days. Many tri-state area broadcasters will donate their time, including Dugan Fry of WOWO-radio in Fort Wayne, to take call-in bids on items donated by many merchants and corporations.

—that the Christ Child Festival will be held at the Coliseum December 3, 4 and 5. It is one of the largest non-commercial events held in the Coliseum and covers the entire ground floor and arena area. The outside nativity scene will also be included in the festival.

—that MM Joseph Steury of R1 Spencerville are parents of a daughter born Monday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that 12% fewer food stamps were issued to Indiana households in September than a year ago. And, the most needy are now getting more benefits. However, while the Indiana Department of Public Welfare under Director Wayne Stanton is attempting to reduce the cost of the program to the taxpayer, another agency (under the Community Services Act) is trying to get more participants in the program, to the extent that it has installed "hot lines" (toll-free) by which Indiana residents can call to find out if they are eligible. The latter group says the more Indiana citizens using food stamps, the better the business outlook. Mr. Stanton commented, "One wonders whether or not some federal government bureaucrats are dissatisfied and/or unhappy because fewer people now need food stamps, and the level of government expenditure is decreasing. . . . ."

—that MM Allen Holman of R1 Saint Joe are parents of a son born Sunday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that in an effort to serve the community, Kay Smith and Cindy Culbertson of the Saint Joe Beauty Salon attended a three-day cosmetologist seminar in Chicago. They gained further knowledge in chemistry, biology, trichoanology, nutrition, hair cutting, hair coloring, permanent waving, merchandising, cosmetics and makeup application.

—that MM Scott Parker of R3 Auburn are parents of a son born Sunday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that boys basketball season tickets are now available at the high school office and at the Saint Joe Branch of Knisely National Bank. Adult season tickets for nine home games are $10.50. Student tickets are $6.25. Single admissions at the door will be $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

—that tennis star Arthur Ashe will participate in the Second Annual Psi Iota Xi Tennis Classic at the Coliseum at Fort Wayne Tuesday, November 30, at 7:30 p.m. A clinic will be held at 3 p.m.

—that unemployment claims for the week ending November 13 dropped 4.7% from the week before.

—that funeral services were held Wednesday for Julie Hill, 92, of Saint Joe who died Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dwight Koch. She had resided here the past four years, having been born in Union County, Tennessee.

Mary Bopp Gets 2nd Adrian Scholarship

Mary Bopp of Saint Joe is the recipient of an Adrian College Scholarship for the second consecutive school year. The scholarship is presented in recognition of continued academic excellence.

Mary is a sophomore physical education major. She is a veteran of the college volleyball and field hockey teams and a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha social sorority.

Mary graduated from DeKalb Eastside in 1975. There she was an athlete, involved in volleyall, basketball, track and softball; president of the Girls' Athletic Association; and belonged to the yearbook staff and Spanish Club.

Asked who was most impressive during her high school studies, Mary selected Linda Newman, former Eastside phys ed instructor. "Miss Newman give me much moral support, encouraging me in physical education activities and college plans. She also helped me a great deal with school and personal problems," the coed explained.

Mary is the daughter of John Bopp, of Saint Joe, and the late Alice Bopp. About her father she says: "I respect him very much, particularly because he has shown faith in my judgement and decisions. I appreciate all my father does for me, from encouraging me in my studies to sending and planning thoughtful little surprises for me while I'm away from home."

Mary belongs to the Immaculate Conception Church in Auburn. She also has been active in the Waterloo YMCA summer softball league and, last summer, served as a director for a recreation program sponsored by the Saint Joe Lions Club.

The above news release came from the News Bureau at Adrian College, Adrian, Michigan.

EHS FHA

—M. M., reporter

The FHA Club at Eastside recently held a style review with "Circus of Fashions" as our theme on November 9 at the Eastside High School.

The attendance was great with quite a few people winning door prizes, and just having an all-around good time.

The FHA members were dressed as circus characters to highlight the evening as well as create a "Big Top" atmosphere. After the style review, their was plenty of refreshments along with our own bake sale which was a great success.

The FHA memers and Mrs. Rufner and Mrs. Parshall would like to thank everybody who attended the style review for making it an success.

We also would like to thank all the Downtown Merchants in Butler, Spencerville and in Saint Joe for helping us sell tickets. But a "special thanks" to the "In Fashion shop of Butler and Lucille Whitman, our narrator for making this night very enjoyable, as well as a big success.

Coburn Corners CC Seeks Funds For Korean Orphans' Christmas

Two orphanages in South Korea will for the third year in a row benefit from fund-raising efforts of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ through its members and Pastor Larry Carter.

Each year "Operation Christmas Cheer" attempts to raise $2,700 to send to orphanages at Geon and Incheon, South Korea. Missionaries there then purchase warm clothing, school uniforms, school supplies and shoes for the near-200 orphans in the two orphanages.

This year the orphanages are once again appealing to their friends abroad because the children are still there and they have no one to remember them at Christmas except concerned Christians in other parts of the world. Successful fund-raising drives were conducted the past two years.

Anyone wishing to help may send donations to: "Operation Christmas Cheer," Coburn Corners Church of Christ, R1 Saint Joe, Indiana 46785. Donations must be received by December 1. They will be greatly appreciated by all involved in the program.

Missionary Juanita M. Corry said in a letter to the local congregation:

"All of you helped to cloth and feed and love not only orphans at Incheon, but that same Babe long ago who became our Savior. As the Wise Men followed that star to bear gifts . . . you followed the light of love and through us clothed and loved the Christ Child."

L.E.T.T.E.R.S—

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

The "letter to the editor" is not my way of doing things, as you know. But your editorial in the November 11th edition was so sound that I can't resist saying "Amen." The sad thing is that so few will ever read it, and none of us will broadcast it. The great proportion of our people who are willing to permit the mass media to make their conclusions for them and who demand that what they accept must be entertaining and "exciting"—the increasing number in this category of voters surely waves a warning that this experiment in a democratic form of government may very well fail after all.

My personal thanks to you for the wise and objective viewpoint you presented.

Faithfully yours,
Jay Gould
Director of Farm Services
WOWO Fort Wayne

'Our Town' To Be Presented

Eastside High School will present Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" on Friday, November 19 and Saturday, November 20, at 8:00 p.m. in the cafetorium. Tickets can be purchased in advance. Adults' are $1.75 and students $1.25.

In the first act the author genially outlines the history of the town, which is Grover's Corners, N.H., and something of the character of its citizens. Wilder then carries the audience into the houses of the Gibbs and Webb families, substantial homes containing substantial folks. Beginning with breakfast time, the audience spends one full day with these good people.

The second act concerns the the love affair between young George Gibbs and little Emily Webb, and thus culminates in a moving wedding scene, which contains all those elements of poignant sorrow and abundant happiness that make for solemnity and impressiveness.

In the third act the audience is led to the cemetery on the hill, where many of the townspeople we have come to know so well are patiently and smilingly awaiting not judgment but greater understanding. Into their midst is led the bride, a little timid at first, a little wishful to go back to life, to live again with her memories. But she is shown how impossible, how futile it is to return. The past cannot be re-lived. living people, humans, occupied with their petty occupations and small thoughts, know little of true job or happiness. Truth is to be found only in the future.

Cast (in order of their appearance): Fred Wagner, Stage Manager; Dave Koch, George Gibbs; Laura Bevington, Emily Webb; Tom Kimmel, Mr. Webb; Becky Webb, Mrs. Webb; Yvonne Miller, Mrs. Gibbs; Ron Ladd, Mr. Gibbs; Susan Yates, Rebecca Webb; Brent Shull, Howie Newsome; Joe Johnston, Simon Stimson; Dan Haverstock, Prof. Willard; Mona Gonzales, Constable Warren; Jody Johnsonbaugh, Sisi Crowell; Cheri Melchi, Josie Crowell; Melissa Pascone, Wally Webb; Margaret McCollough, Sandy Craig; Tammy Tatro, Jody Stoddard; Lisa Feguson, Mrs. Soames; Laura Hook, Tracey McKown, Vivien Ortiz, Joann Mooneyhan, Martha Cannady, Townspeople; Rex Webb, Man in Auditorium; Laura Hook, Tracey McKown, Ladies in Auditorium; Jeff Morr, Craig Zahner, sound; Rex Webb and Jim Fetters, lights.

School Board

At Monday's school board meeting, Guy Mausteller of west of Saint Joe was named head custodian for the school system following interviews by the board with two other applicants.

It was voted to continue the nine-week grading period schedule after junior-senior high faculty members showed 30 teachers in favor, eight preferring a six-week grading period, and two teachers having no preference.

It was decided to set up a meeting with the teachers' negotiating team to determine the salary for the newly-assigned girls' basketball assistant varsity coach.

Information from various sources indicates that the prospects for the girls' team are so good ("just about as good as the boys" was one description of the girls' playing capabilities) that an experienced coach was needed. Since no female faculty member was qualified for the job, Robert Brown was named girls' coach. Because IHSAA rules require a female attendant to be present at all times when a male is coaching a girls' team, it was necessary to add another extra-curricular position and salary.

Seven board representatives, including Superintendent Kenneth Cole, expressed intent to attend a December 1 Region III Indiana School Boards Association meeting at Northrup High School.

Norman Kinsey volunteered to be a member of the about-to-be-formed High School Guidance Advisory Committee.

The board will hold a special meeting Tuesday, November 23, primarily for the purpose of signing teacher contracts rewritten to include extra-curricular assignments.

Reserve Special Plate Numbers

Drivers who want to reserve their special license plate numbers can do so now. The Butler License Branch is now taking reservations for 1977 plates.

Available will be the 17S 1 through 200. Those wanting a number between 17S1 and 100 should notify the branch immediately. 17B plates will be available as always.

As soon as registration slips are received from Indianapolis, motorists may pay for their special plates. For those who may be out of the community, the license branch can type a registration slip.

Public cooperation will be appreciated.

Humane Shelter Group To Have Hoiiday Bazaar

The DeKalb County Humane Society Craft Division will meet each Thursday afternoon during November at the home of Mrs. Gerald Felenz at 916 East 5th Street in Auburn.

The Craft Division is busy creating items to sell at the Humane Society's Christmas Bazaar to be held the first Saturday in December in the large meeting room at People's Federal Savings and Loan in Auburn.

Christmas tree ornaments and home baked bread will be the outstanding offerings at the bazaar. And there will be many gift items offered as well. Monies raised will go toward the effort now being made in DeKalb County to establish a Humane Society that will be responsive to the predicament of unwanted and mistreated animals here.

Persons and organizations of all ages and talents are being sought to contribute ideas and skills to this fund-raising effort. Anyone who would like to begin working on a project to donate to the Christmas Bazaar, or organization who would like to establish a craft group, can telephone 925-3477 for the information. All persons in DeKalb County are also welcome to join the Thursday Afternoon Craft Sessions at the home of Mrs. Felenz. Coffee, conversation and good fellowship are all free bonuses for the artists each Thursday when they join the humanitarians of DeKalb County.

Com'nity Worship Planned For 24th

The Community Thanksgiving Service will be held Wednesday, November 24, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville.

Rev. Terry Rhine, pastor of the Spencerville United Methodist Church, will present the evening meditation.

Rev. Wilbur Miller, pastor of the St. Peter church, will assist in the evening service.

Residents of the Riverdale community are urged and invited to attend the Thanksgiving Eve service.

School Boards Exec Warns: Local Boards Lose School Control

(Editor's note: The following news release, received last week, confirms comments made in these columns in last week's issue concerning the imbalance of power in the operation of schools. By coincidence, both articles were apparently being written at the same time, reflecting concern for the program of education in the state of Indiana.)

The citizens of Indiana are in danger of losing control of their local public school systems, suggests Dr. Charles E. Fields, Executive Secretary of the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents.

This warning note was sounded in anticipation of the strong push to expand the collective bargaining process which will be made by school employee lobbying groups during the 1977 General Assembly.

Efforts were made in this direction throughout the 1976 Indiana General Asembly when House Bill 1395 was introduced. The legislation called for mandated bargaining of "fringe benefits; procedures for the promotion, demotion, transfer, assignment and retention of employees; school calendar; class size; pupil-teacher ratio; curriculum development and revision; preparation time; extra curricular activities; student discipline, expulsion or supervision of students; agency shop; and general working conditions."

This bill passed the House of Representatives by the vote of 65 to 30 but, "fortunately for the people of Indiana, died on the Senate Education Committee. Unfortunately, however, similar legislation will be introduced during the 1977 session," Fields observed.

National and state school employee groups have pushed hard for legislation which will expand the scope of collective bargaining, because such legislative action is in line with their major objective of "self-governance."

"This concept basically calls for teacher (professional) control of our public school systems and would seriously erode public control. 'Self-governance' means 'professional (or teacher) governance'," the IAPSS Executive Secretary stated.

The IAPSS believes that staff members should have input into the areas which will affect their ability to carry out their responsibilities as school employees. The present collective bargaining law (Public Law 217) provides for such input through the "discussible" process. All of the areas cited above (with the exception of agency shop) are, under the present law, mandated areas for DISCUSSION between local teacher groups and local school officials. They are not, however, mandated as bargainable items.

Local school boards must retain the final decision-making authority and determine whether or not they will bargain over these important areas, said Dr. Fields. "If the public is to retain control of the educational process in Indiana, this is absolutely essential," he said.

"School board members are elected or appointed representatives of the people; they must have the authority to act on behalf of the citizens of each local school community. Local pblic control of our schools is the keystone of the American public school system," Fields noted.

"School officials have voiced their opposition to this erosion of public control for many years. Their unified voice in opposition has not, however, been loud enough to hold back the forces lobbying for expansion of the collective bargaining process for school employees. The general public must become concerned and vocal in opposition to expansion of that process," the IAPSS Executive Secretary said.

He concluded, "Each citizen of this state, with a concern regarding the public control of education, has an obligation to become informed regarding the issue of expanded collective bargaining rights for school employees. Those citizens should then communicate their concerns in this area to their representatives in the 1977 Indiana General Assembly. The members in both the House of Representatives and the Senate will respect the will of the people regarding this important issue. They cannot respond, however, until the general public makes its voice heard. Who will control Indiana's public schools tomorrow? Will it be the public or will it be the teaching profession? The decision rests with the citizens of this state."

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

You meet the nicest people at the dump!

A couple of weeks ago, I made two trips to the county landfill operated by John Merritt. His friendly and helpful staff includes Carl Murray who recognized me after we conversed a few minutes. He is a mechanic at the landfill, but was assisting during the noon and early afternoon in directing customers to the proper place to dump their refuse.

I had gotten lost in looking for the landfill, then followed a pickup truck loaded with trash. I figured the lady driving was going to the landfill and I'd get un-lost.

I was right. And as I passed her at the pay window, I said. "I was lost and had to follow you to get here."

Out back, when I was dumping my trash, the lady in the pickup started unloading hers. Every so often she would stop, take a deep breath, and dig in again with a shovel.

In the meantime, a trash collection truck from Auburn pulled in, and the driver got out and gave me a hand with my heavy trash cans. The young man said, "Don't you live in the big brick at Saint Joe? I used to be in there when I was little."

It was Gene Woodring, grandson of Oscar and the late Maude Harris from whom we bought the house 19 years ago.

When I finished unloading, I turned around and began shoving and throwing the trash from the young woman's pickup. She was getting nowhere fast and needed help. Gene also helped in unloading the pickup. And just as we were about finished, I was wracking my brain for some remark to make about helping the young lady out. The saying goes that great minds run in the same chanel—and Gene came out with, "It's a good thing male chivalry isn't dead."

The young lady said, "Yeah—and I'm a women's libber!"

I dropped my shovel, stopped and exclaimed, "You are! Oh h—!" Then went back to unloading the trash in the pickup. I was trying to get a rise out of her—but she wouldn't rise.

Anyhow—I enjoyed the whole episode — re-met a man who tried to sell me insurance several years ago and is now a mechanic for Merritt's (and he said "keep it up" in connection with my editorializing which he commended, and that made me feel good)—met a young man who had enjoyed in the past the same house our family has enjoyed in recent years—and had a chance to lend a hand to a good-looking young lady who wouldn't ask for help, but her huffing and puffing were a subconscious signal in my book. (That oughta get a rise out of Auburn Star-columnist Jane Kempf who has responded in irritation to my "male chauvinism" in the past in her column without identifying me as the source of her irritation).

As I said at the beginning, you meet the nicest people at the dump.

EHS Gals Win 2

The DeKalb Eastside girls basketball team got off to a rousing start last week with a 75-44 win over Prairie Heights. They followed up with a win over Angola 40-34 Monday.

Lisa Johnson led scorers for the Blazers in both games, getting 24 in the opener and 18 in the Angola game. Connie Oberlin had 17 in the Prairie Heights game. Amy Hampel netted 11 and 16 points in the two games.

Miss Oberlin is Eastside's oldest player, a junior. All the remainder of the squad are freshpersons and sophomores.

Janette Wolfcale Named Queen

—Mrs. John Crothers, reporter

MM John Crothers of near Saint Joe recently visited their daughter and family, the Richard Wolfcales, in Mt. Vernon, Missouri, where they minister at King's Way Christian Church.

They also attended the two-day county festival held annually, known as "Apple Butter Makin' Days." The festival is unique in that all concessions which are all around the courthouse square are operated by local people and consist of arts, crafts and refreshments of all kinds. Two large copper kettles of apple butter in the making are of course the main attraction. The tantalizing smells of spice tea, funnel cakes, and so on, are still in our memory.

All kinds of contests take place including log sawing (ladies, too), spelling bees, fiddle playing, adult tricycle races, style shows, tobacco spitting, quartets, high school choirs and bands. A greased pig contest (poor little piggies) and the grand parade with the Governor's wife present are among other attractions.

The highlight was the queen contest. Janette Wolfcale, granddaughter of the Crothers', was crowned queen of the festival. She was sponsored by one of the local merchants. She was beautiful in a Colonial gown which she designed. She and her sister, Shawn, are students at Ozark Bible College in Joplin, Missouri.

The Ozark Mountain Festival was a refreshing change from all the carnival noises at most fairs that rob a community of much wealth. These wonderful mountain folk are like a page from the past when life was less hectic. And everybody had so much fun.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Carlos Church November 3.

The collect and pledge were given in unison. Mrs. Roy Baker had the lesson of Colonial Teas taken from Early American Life magazine. She told of the many different things it was made from after the Boston Tea Party and the special social tea hour as Love and Scandal are the best sweeteners of tea.

Mrs. Robert Musser conducted a quiz for Mrs. Harold Hammon who was absent.

The blind material is for sale.

Mrs. Roy Baker gave the critic's report.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

Mrs. Wilbur Miller was a guest.

The club met November 17 at the home of Mrs. Carl Perkins.

For her lesson, Mrs. Perkins talked of the problems women have of getting certain jobs and showed a film, The Women's Game.

Mrs. Carlos Church had a contest on remembering items.

Mrs. Roy Baker gave the critic's report and read a poem, Be Thankful.

After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

Blazers Lose

The Blazers' basketball team dropped a close 46-43 game to Angola Wednesday night in the opener of the current season.

The locals outscored Angola from the field. But they could make only 7 of 14 free throws to make the difference in favor of the Hornets.

Deception Leads To Presidency

Two headlines in the past week point out the deception practiced by Jimmy Carter to gain the Presidency. The headlines were:

"Carter Not Optimistic About Jobless" — and

"Carter Lauded For Waiting On Economy"

During the debates between Mr. Carter and Gerald Ford, a repeated reference was made by Mr. Carter to the need to create jobs. He was constantly critical of Mr. Ford's administration because of the alleged 8½ million unemployed. The voter was led to believe Mr. Carter was going to do something about the problem.

But—in a news conference last week, Mr. Carter said the American public must endure unemployment of 5 to 7 per cent for at least another three years.

Isn't that what President Ford was saying, in effect, when he did not offer any promises of significant reduction in unemployment? Mr. Ford doted on the positive side, the fact that the vast majority of Americans are working. He was branded as "insensitive to the needs of the people," and one of those supposed "insensitivities" had to do with unemployment.

In the matter of inflation, Mr. Carter emphasized the deterioration of the dollar, especially related to the elderly retired and others on fixed income. He did not acknowledge that the rate of inflation had been slowed. Mr. Ford during his two years consistently refrained from undertaking any program involving a speedup of business activity, fearful of the inflationary consequences. For his deliberate style, for his several veloes, he was criticized directly by Mr. Carter.

But— a story this week from Mr. Carter's aides indicates he will not adopt any economic policies that would commit his Cabinet to a course of action it didn't have a hand in shaping. Mr. Carter's attitude was described as "wait and see."

Isn't that what President Ford has been doing during his two years in office? Hasn't he exercised a "wait and see" attitude, to give the private sector of the economy an opportunity to find its own healthy level"

It took only two weeks or so for the facts of life to become obvious concerning the Presidential election. Mr. Carter, had a "vision of a greater America," he was giving a lot of Americans the idea that he was going to do something about our problems, he was "exciting" though unknown to some voters who supported him.

And what does he come out with? The very same outlook and approach he criticized to defeat Gerald Ford who dealt in realities in his term in office and during his campaign. Mr. Carter, the idealist, won the election. But he changed his tune very quickly.

One of the implied criticisms of Mr. Ford prior to the TV debates was that he was "programmed." Comments by those in the media echoed the idea that Mr. Ford is some sort of mechanical object that gets wound up and does the same thing over and over again. His preparation for the debates was made to sound like an unfair advantage over Mr. Carter. It did not seem to get to the American people that, if a President is going to be asked questions about government, he must prepare for those questions. He wasn't "programmed" he was PREPARED. It was the best thing he could do in seeking to answer questions as factually as possible. And he did answer factually, to a far greater degree than did Mr. Carter.

It wasn't the President who was "programmed"—it was the public who was "programmed" into believing that Mr. Ford is a stumbling, incompetent, incapable personality unfit for the Presidency.

Remember?—Mr. Carter said "trust me"? He said: we want to restore trust in our government.

I wonder how the Carter voters feel about him now, since he has made two statements EXACTLY OPPOSITE those he made during his campaign. I wonder how "exciting" he is now to some younger voters who supported him, now that he indicated intentions of following exactly the same approach to unemployment and inflation as President Ford has followed.

"Trust me" said Mr. Carter. Then, two weeks after he is elected, he says the opposite of what he said (or implied) during his election campaign.

Isn't it "exciting"???

I&M Seeks New Plant Approval

Indiana & Michigan Electric Company has announced plans to file a series of applications for permits and other approvals required for the construction of a major new power plant on the Ohio River in Spencer County, Indiana.

Jack F. Stark, I&M executive vice-president, disclosed that the new plant, if built as presently contemplated, would have a generating capacity of 2.6-million kilowatts and an estimated cost of over $1.3 billion, not including an estimated $200 million for associated transmission facilities. First of the plant's two 1.3-million-kw, coal-burning generating units would be scheduled for commercial operation by 1981, the second by 1982.

The plant would be the largest in Indiana and, from the standpoint of power generation and environmental acceptability, one of the most modern and efficient in the world. In full operation, it would generate an estimated 18.2-billion kilowatt-hours a year.

The new Spencer County plant would be built on a site of approximately 6,000 acres, which I&M has been acquiring since 1973. The site is located between Grandview and Rockport, about 12 miles northeast of Owensboro, Kentucky.

Among the initial filings y I&M are applications required by the U.S. Corps of Engineers and Indiana's Department of Natural Resources, Air Pollution Control Board and Stream Pollution Control Board. These are among 17 federal, state, regional and county agencies with which the company must file a total of 52 applications involved in the project.

It takes about one pound of coal and a few hundred people just to bake a meatloaf.

Baking a meatloaf is simple. But making the electricity that bakes it isn't.

It only takes about a pound of coal to generate enough electricity to operate one oven for one hour. But, when you figure in the hundreds of other ways electricity works for you each day, and multiply that by the thousands of other homes and businesses where electricity is working around the clock, the job of supplying power takes on a different perspective.

Behind all the plugs, switches, lights, appliances, tools and machines in our area is a gigantic and complex power system.

Where thousands of tons of coal are burned every day to make the steam that turns the turbines that generate your electricity.

But that's only the beginning. Getting that electricity where you need it, when you need it, also requires thousands of miles of power lines, transmission towers, substations, poles and transformers.

And people.

The hundreds of specially-trained people who manage and maintain this vast network that serves you 24 hours a day.

We're not offended if you take electricity for granted, though. Because that means we're doing our job; keeping the power coming.

But there's a job you can do, too.

Make sure the electricity we provide isn't wasted.

How? Turn off lights and appliances when you're not using them. Wash only full loads of clothes and dishes.

Or, better yet, make sure your home is properly insulated. And look into appliances that have the new energy-saving features.

Working together this way we can make something even better than meatloaf.

Progress.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

School Supt's Exec Warns: Class Size Not 'Negotiable'

(Second in a series of four articles from the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents)

A warning regarding the possible loss of public control of Indiana schools, recently sounded by the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents through Executive Secretary Dr. Charles E. Fields, includes some of the rationale behind opposition to expansion of the collective bargaining process for school employees.

The organizations lobbying for open scope in the bargaining process have indicated that the school calendar should become a bargainable issue. The school calendar effects the lives of an entire local school community and school system employees are not the only people who must adjust their personal schedule to comply with that calendar.

"School officials should consider input from school employees, parents, students and other community members when they determine the days that school will be in session," Fields suggested. "This important issue should be resolved by the elected or appointed school board members who represent the general public, and not by a few individuals at the bargaining table," he continued.

Negotiation of class size is always a high priority item for those who push for the open scope concept. The number of pupils within a classroom is a flexible item controlled by many variables such as room size, the nature of the subject taught, the ability of the students, and the number of students within a building's attendance area.

Fields cited three alternatives which are open to a school administrator with 32 students at the third grade level in an elementary district where the bargained agreement mandates that there shall be no more than 26 students in the class. The three alternatives are:

(1) The class may be divided into two classes of 16 each. This course of action will necessitate employment of an additional teacher (an expensive process), and locating an additional room in the building is frequently an impossible task.

(2) The school corporation can bus 6 of those third grade students to another elementary school district across town where the third grade class is smaller. This is also an expensive process and parents frequently object to the busing of their young children into another elementary district.

(3) A split class, composed of students in two different grade levels could be used. Most educators consider this practice to be detrimental to the child's educational welfare.

"School officials cannot and should not control where people reside and the number of children they might choose to have. A mandate that those officials must bargain class size forces them to bargain an item which is totally beyond their control," Fields pointed out.

Curriculum development and revision is also on the list of mandated bargainable items proposed by the supporters of open scope. The curriculum of a local school system lies at the very heart of the educational process within that system. A student's progress through the learning process is determined by the course content offered, the course sequence, the learning materials available, and the teaching methods utilized.

Collective bargaining is, at the best, an adversary position, a process which involves compromise on the part of both sides to arrive at an agreement. The IAPSS contends that the selection of course content, teaching materials, course sequence, and methods utilized in teaching should not be determined through adversity and compromise. The local school system's curricuulum should be determined by the educational needs of the students residing within the local school community. "Those needs should be ascertained and resulting curriculum programs developed through a cooperative effort involving the professional staff, parents, students and concerned citizens of a local school community," the IAPSS Executive Secretary suggested.

Determination of school calendar, class size, and the student's curriculum by professional educators are stated goals of the organizations lobbying for open scope bargaining. "Those goals should not be acceptable to citizens throughout this state who wish to retain public control of their local school ysstem," Fields said.

"School employee lobbying groups will make a strong push to expand the collective bargaining process for school employees during the 1977 session of the Indiana General Assembly. Citizens in Indiana must ask their representatives in the state legislature one vital question: where do you stand on the issue of open scope in the bargaining process for school employees?

"Those citizens who favor public control of their schools against school employee control should vigorously request their representatives to vote against expansion of the collective bargaining process for school employees," the IAPSS Executive Secretary concluded.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

A reader stopped in last week and offered comments about the November 2 election. In their comments, they noted a personal opinion about my staunch Republican attitude in my editorials—to which I replied that I had probably voted a split ticket in the past more often than straight Republican and that I had voted a split ticket just last November 2.

But the main point of the conversation was that the reader had taken my "advice" about the approval or disapproval of two Indiana Supreme Court justices and a district court judge; the reader voted "no" as I suggested in these columns, if the public wants to start changing "justice" back to protecting the victim instead of the criminal.

The reader noted that they had "lost" their vote on the judges because all three received a substantial vote of approval state-wide.

I have heard that expression used before—"losing" a vote when the candidate you vote for doesn't win—and I hope it's just a figure of speech. You don't lose your vote when you vote for a loser; you have instead exercised your right and privilege to express your opinion of candidates within the privacy of the voting booth.

Instead, the real losers are those who don't vote, plus the nation as a whole—because a large number of non-voters means in effect that the candidate with a winning "majority" has actually received support from less than half the eligible population. So, a winning candidate is actually elected by a minority of the total population.

We had an enlightening conversation, that reader and I. They may still think I'm a diehard Republican—unbending, uncompromising, set in my ways, and so on. Maybe our conversation erased part of that picture. I know I learned some things from it. And I also became aware—once again— of the importance of being accurate in what's in these columns of opinions and viewpoints. When a reader says, "I took your advice" concerning a voting matter, it is a compliment—and a strong reminder of responsibilities to the public to be factual and fair.

Dr. Balser Shows Techniques In Animal Care

On Wednesday, November 10, fourth graders at Riverdale Elementary School enjoyed the presentation of Dr. Gene Balser who is a veterinarian at Butler. The presentation was in conjunction with a unit on Career Education studied by the fourth graders.

Dr. Balser showed the girls and boys various instruments used in treating animals. He showed them x-ray equipment and the surgical outfit he wears when he operates on an animal. He explained how broken bones are set. His display included bottles of tape worms, heart worms and unborn kittens.

Dr. Balser concluded the program by showing the boys and girls how shots are given to animals. The shot was given to his dog, Brandy.

Blazers Win In Overtime

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers took an overtime win from the Norwell Knights last Friday by a 59-57 score. The win came on two free throws by Jim Burns, the only points scored in the overtime period.

The Blazers led 17-12, 31-26 and 46-40 at the end of the first three quarters. Then Norwell outscored the Blazers 17-11 in the final period for the tie.

Penny Sechler Heads 'Mothers Walk For M-D'

Penny Sechler of Saint Joe is local chairman for the Mothers' Walk for the March of Dimes. Homes in Saint Joe and Spencerville will be contacted during the week January 15-23 to receive donations for the March of Dimes.

Penny is currently organizing the campaign. And if anyone wishes to volunteer to help in the solicitation, they should contact her as soon as possible so that block assignments can be made for the solicitation.

Blazer Games On WIFF-FM

Butler merchants are making possible the broadcast of six DeKalb Eastside basketball games over radio station WIFF of Auburn, with Dave Martin doing the play-by-play.

The six games include:

Friday, November 26 at Norwell.

Saturday, December 18—Sothern Wells at Eastside.

Wednesday, December 22—Westville at Eastside.

Friday, January 14 at Adams Central.

Saturday, February 5 at Fremont.

Saturday, February 12—DeKalb Central at Eastside.

WIFF will also broadcast the ACAC tourney from the Coliseum at Fort Wayne January 19, 20 and 22.

All games of the state basketball tourney in March will also be broadcast by WIFF.

The broadcasts will be in the FM station at 105.5 on the dial.

Mt.Pleasant UM Benefit For Todd Grogg

Mt. Pleasant United Methodist Church will sponsor a benefit rummage and bake sale, and a luncheon to be held at the church Saturday, December 11, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Proceeds will go to Walter (Pete) and Carol Grogg, parents of 4-year-old Todd Grogg who has leukemia. The youngster has been confined at Riley Children's Hospital at Indianapolis but is to return home in the next few days. The benefit is to help pay expenses for the care of Todd in recent months.

Donations of items for the rummage and bake sale will be welcomed and cash donations will be accepted. Further information can be obtained from Mrs. Howard Troyer at 925-3668 or Mrs. Phil Lutz at 337-5437.

The church will be open the Friday before the benefit for those who may wish to deliver their items at that time.

Meanwhile, it is suggested that Todd loves to get cards from well-wishers. Cards may be sent to him at R1 Butler.

Joe Woodcox

Funeral services were held at Garrett Wednesday for Joe H. Woodcox, 68, who died Sunday in Jackson, Kentucky.

Born at Saint Joe in 1908, the son of Cornelius and Daisy Woodcox, the deceased lived near Garrett thereafter before moving to Bethany, Kentucky, about 20 years ago. A retired minister, Mr. Woodcox served the Lost Creek Brethren Church at Bethany.

Survivors include his wife, the former Demerice Kelham; two sons, Arlyn of Valparaiso and Donald of Milford, Kansas; two daughters, Mrs. Martha Foster of Arizona and Mrs. Carolyn Moore of McDowell, Kentucky; a brother, Gray Woodcox of Garrett; a sister, Mrs. Arnold Olson of Kendallville; and 13 grandchildren.

Burial was in Embrey Cemetery.

Com'ity Vespers December 19

The public is invited to attend the Third Annual Community Christmas Choral Vespers (Service of Lights) at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville. The service will be held at 8:00 p.m. Sunday, December 19.

The mass community choir will perform: Bach's "Wake, Wake, For Night Is Flying"; Gregorian chants; Billings' "The Prince of Peace"; and selections from Handel's "Messiah": "And the Glory of the Lord," "Glory To God" and "Hallelujah." There will also be congregational Christmas carols.

Jay Blauser is organizer of the annual event and serves as organist-choir director. Mrs. Kathleen Emme-McMaken will be guest accompanist and will be joined by brass choir instrumentalists from area high schools. Mrs. Terry Rhine will be guest soloist. Rev. Wilbur Miller and Rev. Terry Rhine will lead the service.

School Board

The agenda for Monday's school board meeting at 8 p.m. at the superintendent's office is as follows:

Minutes.

Claims and checks.

Baseball coach Rex Bollinger to have an audience with the school boatrd.

Report from High School principal Robert Williams regarding his attempt to improve communications between the high school and parents during nine-week grading periods. The board requested such a report.

Board action on superintendent's request for a resolution to permanently transfer appropriation potential from a number of major budget accounts to other major budget accounts in order to best balance the 1976 school budget.

Need for school board members to sign the Amendment to the Collective Bargaining Agreement necessitated by an error on the teacher salary schedule.

Sign contracts as necessary.

Any other business to come before the board.

Were Recent Comments Useless?

Some readers may be aware of the fact by now that my comments two weeks ago (urging the school board to file unfair labor practices and unethical conduct against some of our teachers) was a waste of time and space. Why? Because the board CAN'T file such charges. Why? Because at the time of the recent salary settlement for teachers, the teachers asked for (and the board agreed to) a no-recrimination clause. That is, the board agreed not to do anything about the teachers' boycott of extra-curricular activities and teachers' abuse of the classroom and after-school time to promote the cause of the teachers in the recent salary dispute.

After spending several hours in preparing that article two weeks ago, writing, changing, correcting, re-writing three galleys of type, I found somewhat accidentally that what I was suggesting was impossible because the school board had agreed not to do what I was suggesting. So—wasted time and effort— — for now.

I had a decision to make—to "junk" the article or to publish it even though knowing the impossibility of my suggestion —for now. I chose to run the article because there will be another time around on the salary matter again pretty soon. And I reasoned that if parents and taxpayers DO contact the school board and express their concern about the abuses being practiced by some teachers not only here but all over the nation, then maybe the next time around the board will stiffen its backbone and not sign away some of its responsibilities to the public.

The fact that our school district has had such successful elementary open houses the past couple of years should not distract parents and patrons from the fact that, despite the impressive crowd, despite the impressive display at the schools, despite the apparent "progress" in education in our local schools—despite all these things, our students are coming out just as un-educated as anywhere else in the educational basics. Don't ask the educators, ask business, ask the professions, ask industry—and the comment you get is persistent about today's high school graduates: "They can't read, they can't write, they can't spell." Just this week, Sunday School teacher in this area said, "They can't spell," in commenting about a near-teen class and its Sunday School lessons. The comment came voluntarily; I didn't bring the matter up.

One of the biggest contradictions in our society today is the awarding of honors to students on the basis of several qualities, including "good citizenship." I think it is a crime that any award given a student on the recommendation of a teacher includes "good citizenship." Teacher strikes, teacher boycotts of extra-curricular activities AFTER they have begun such activities at the start of the school year and are being paid for such extra duties, the discussion of teacher salaries with students without taxpayers' and parents' knowledge and permission—all these circumstances make it a mockery to have any teacher exercise judgment of a student's "good citizenship."

Our school board signed away its responsibility to parents, taxpayers AND STUDENTS by agreeing to a no-recrimination clause. If you and I let the board know we don't like what is going on, the next time around, they may act otherwise. But they need to know how you feel; they need the support of the people who are fed up with the costly experimenting going on with the minds of their offspring.

FARM BUREAU

—Maxie Myers, reporter

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau held its 1976 annual meeting in the assembly room of the courthouse.

Irene Nelson led the group in singing "Indiana," "America" and "How Great Thou Art." Donna June Knox accompanied her on the piano.

Pastor Archer from St. Mark Lutheran Church of Butler gave an interesting talk on "Concept of Service and Commitment." He stated that our number one aim in life should be service.

Francis Nelson, president, introduced guests. They included George Neff, director of District II, and his wife; Mildred Gross, District II Woman Leader; District II Fieldman Marvin Metzger and his wife. There were three past presidents present: Clyde Husselman, Floyd Pfierman and Robert Blech.

Francis Nelson and Roger Stebing were re-elected president and vice-president, respectively, for another two years.

John Reinhart, county councilman, was introduced and was asked for his comments on several of the county policies that were voted in.

George Neff presented a five-star award plaque for DeKalb County.

Marvin Metzger and Mildred Gross installed the county and township officers.

Francis Nelson introduced the speaker for the evening, Marion Stackhouse, from the state commodity department, who discussed various phases of marketing and regulations as they relate to farmers.

Cider and doughnuts were served after the business meeting.

Did you know

—that the 58th annual convention of the Indiana Farm Bureau December 5-7 will feature a variety of activities, speakers and special interest conferences.

—that Hollis Akins is back in Saint Joe after confinement at DeKalb Memorial Hospital for medical tests.

—that four area men have been arrested, charged with possession of stolen property. They are: Dale Jones, 37, of R1 Spencerville, Gary Myers, 28, of R2 Hamilton, Jack Kruger, 30, of Garrett, and Allen Parker, 23, of Garrett. The arrests were made in connection with the theft of TVs, stereos, tillers, welders, lawnmowers and other items, taken from semi-trailers piggybacked on railroad cars. The investigation covered a two-year period.

—that Garold Cook and Kathryn Jump of Hicksville and Lucille Fredericks of Fort Wayne called on Inez Girardot, a houseguest in the Roy Bowser home, last Tuesday afternoon. The ladies are former "Curie Girls" and Mr. Cook is the husband of Grace Curie Cook (deceased).

—that MM Randy Staley of Butler are parents of a son born Sunday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that one of every four Hoosiers is a volunteer contributing to the high quality of social services in the state, claims Linda Kolb, director of the Indiana Governor's Voluntary Action Program. The program was created in 1974 by Governor Otis Bowen to enhance volunteerism in Indiana.

—that MM Jack Bowser and daughter, Kitty, entertained Jack's parents, MM Roy Bowser, and their houseguest, Inez Girardot of Naubinway, Michigan, to Sunday evening dinner at "The Wharf" in Fort Wayne. Inez was very much astonished at the "change" in Times Corner west of Fort Wayne. Her husband, Bert Girardot, a G-E executive, retired twelve years ago and they moved to the Upper Penninsula of Michigan. At that time, Times Corner was "a filling station and a small drive-in"—some change!!!

—that Marine Private Henry M. Whitman, 19, of Saint Joe has completed recruit training at San Diego, California.

—that Edna Quinn of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that Hazel Baltz of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that nearly 140 exhibits were displayed by 54 4-H'ers at the Anuual Crops Show at Auburn.

—that Ruth Lee of New Haven was a luncheon guest in the Roy Bowser home Wednesday of last week.

—that Marine Private First Class Daniel H. Wagner, son of Mrs. Judy Wagner of R2 Auburn, has completed recruit training at San Diego, California.

—that State Representative-elect Norman Gerig of Aburn has been appointed Ranking Member of the House Elections and Apportionment Committee by Speaker Kermit Burrows. He will also serve on the House Aged and Aging, Labor, and Natural Resources committees.

—that the Roy Bowser family held their annual Thanksgiving Dinner at the home of Robert and April Davis on the County Line Road east of Spencerville. Present were MM Jack Bowser, Kim and Kitty Bowser, Michael Davis and son, Stephen, of Leo, Michele Davis and Frank Burns of West Lafayette, MM Roy Bowser and Inez Girardot.

—that the remodeled Gala Theater at Garrett re-opened last week.

—that Marine Private First Class Jay DePriest, son of MM Gene Mann of R1 Spencerville, has completed recruit training at San Diego, California.

—that the Garrett Community Hospital benefit bazaar raised $2,345 on a recent weekend.

Little Hoosiers

—Diane Smith, secretary

The Riverdale Little Hosiers had a cornhusking party on November 11 at the Raymond Jewel farm. The group divided into two teams and raced to see which team could pick the most corn in an allotted time. The teams then removed the husks from the corn and bagged these for a future project.

The group enjoyed riding in a horse-drawn wagon as they picked up the corn and took it to the barn. Lunch of sloppy joes, donuts, potato chips and hot chocolate was served.

On November 23 the Riverdale Little Hoosiers held their November business meeting. Vincent Freese, president, presided over the meeting. The group discussed their plans for the December 14 meeting. The group will be trimming the large Christmas tree which they bought for the school several years ago. A 79-cent gift exchange will be held.

After the business meeting, the group saw the movie, "A Time Out of War" and "United States Expansion." Refreshments of popcorn and pop were enjoyed as the group watched the movies.

Hospital Shows 'Good Year'

At the recent annual meeting of the DeKalb Memorial Hospital corporation and board of directors, 12 new members were elected to the corporation and seven were added to the 24-member board.

Administrator L.C. Baker, board president Theo Webb and Dr. Clifford Shultz, chief of the hospital's medalical staff, reported a "good year" and that the hospital continues to provide excellent care for the community.

The hospital operated at a net profit of near $100,000 despite an occupancy rate of just over 60%. The profit was due to an increase in the room rates which are reported to be still less than many other hospitals in the area.

An increase in the hospital's malpractice insurance premium of 198% was noted. And it was stated that such costs are becoming a greater problem for hospitals as well as doctors. An increase from $3,000 to $11,000 for one local doctor's malpractice insurance premium was noted. That doctor reportedly is considering the elimination of hospital calls and emergency room duty in an attempt to reduce his insurance costs.

The Emergency Medical Service (EMS) was reported to have made 1,137 runs with billings of over $49,000 in the last year.

The expansion of the hospital now underway should be competed by the fall of 1977. Half the cost of the $1.8 million project will come from funds in the DeKalb Memorial Hospital Foundation. $900,000 will be provided by the creation of a DeKalb County Hospital Authority which will sell tax-free bonds to area financial institutions at a favorable interest rate.

The new medical arts building will provide space for 12 doctors. Dr. Shultz noted that a shortage of doctors exists in the area, there being 20 physicians in DeKalb County but several with less than full practices. The ratio is about one doctor to every 2,500 in population, he said, and there should be one doctor for every 750 to 1,000 persons.

Thelma Baker of Saint Joe, chairman of the hospital guild, reported 200 members gave a total of 11,543 volunteer hours of work. The group also raised more than $11,000, purchasing a fetal heart monitor and a new snack bar grill for the hospital. The guild also provides scholarships and loans for students studying for careers in medicine.

Elected to the board of directors were: Sam Hood, Russell Housel, Sandra Phillips, Ken Metzger, Steve Carlson, Phil Allison and Dave Liddell.

Named to the 100-member corporation board were: Oscar Deetz, Fairfield Township; John Merritt, Smithfield; Steve Carlson and Phil Allison, Union; Paul Headley, Franklin; Jerry McNerny, Wilmington; Paul Moore, Saint Joe; and Frank Bartos, Bill Rediger, David John, Jeanne Wildermuth and Pete Kempf, all at-large.

Enrollment Down

Total nerollment for the 1976-77 school year for grades K-12 is 1,690, according to a recent announcement by Superintendent Kenneth Cole.

This represents a drop of 55 students from 1975-76 when a total of 1,745 were enrolled.

The 7th grade is the largest ever, 160 students. Lower enrollments in the other grades 7-12 make the total junior-senior high school enrollment the same as last year, 830 students.

Enrollment in grades 9-12 is down 20 students. This could conceivably cost the school corporation money in loss of state reimbursement, if it should prove out that the loss of those 20 students lowers the total enrollment in high school vocational classes. Those classes give a special "weightedness," according to Mr. Cole, in the state formula for reimbursement to schools.

The breakdown of enrollment figures is as follows, listing the grade, 1976 enrollment, and 1975 enrollment.

County Had $20 Million In Ag Products

The market value of all agricultural products sold by the 1,276 farms in DeKalb County in 1974 amounted to $20,649,000, according to a preliminary report of the 1974 Census of Agriculture released recently by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census. Production expenses on these farms totalled $14,022,000 in '74.

The figures are for farms qualifying under the definition first used for the 1959 Census of Agriculture: "A farm includes all agricultural operations conducted at any time during the census year under the control of an individual management, provided that sales of agricultural products amounted to, or normally would amount to, at least $250 for places of less than 10 acres or $50 for places of 10 acres or more.

Figures for farms with sales of $2,500 or more are shown for 1974 and 1969. These farms accounted for $20,238,000 of all agricultural products sold in 1974 and $9,779,000 in 1969.

There were 1,012 of these farms in 1974 compared with 716 in 1969. The average size decreased from 211 to 169 acres during the five years. The value per acre increased from $320 to $579 raising the average value per farm from $87,629 to $97,859.

The market value of livestock and their products on farms of $2,500 or more of sales was $7,772,000 in 1974; poultry and crop sales, including nursery products, hay and forest products, $11,864,000.

Farms reporting less than $1,000 in sales numbered 40 in 1974. The value of agricultural products sold on these farms totalled $16,000.

School Supt's Exec Warns: Collective Bargaining A Threat

(Third in a series of four articles dealing with the public's loss of control in local school administration.)

Proponents of open scope bargaining for school employees maintain that matters pertaining to student discipline, teacher personnel practices and student extracurricular activities should be resolved at the bargaining table.

Dr. Charles E. Fields, Executive Secretary of the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents has set forth the asociation's opposition to an expansion of the collective bargaining process for school employees.

Open scope advocates maintain that issues surrounding student discipline, expulsion, and supervision of students should be resolved through negotiations. The IAPSS believes that a majority of these matters are the subject of students due process legislation, recently passed by the Indiana General Assembly.

The superintendent's organization strongly suggests that procedures established by an Indiana statute should not be bargainable items. Student discipline and supervision is based upon a series of rules and regulations developed at the corporation level or at the school building level. These rules and regulations should be developed through cooperative input from teachers, administrators, parents, students and school board members. They should not, in the opinion of Fields, be developed through the adversary atmosphere which exists between teachers and administrators at the bargaining table. "The general public must question the advisability of establishing rules and regulations for student supervision through the compromise process of collective bargaining," he emphasized.

School employee organizations also argue that decisions regarding the promotion, demotion, transfer, assignment and retention of employees should be bargainable items. The IAPSS, which represents 91% of the public school superintendents in the state, firmly contends that such decisions must be made by school officials.

The IAPSS official pointed out that school administrators and school board members are responsible for providing a qualified staff. They must, therefore, have the authority to act in the area of promotion, demotion, transfer, assignment and rentention of school staff members.

Present laws set out exacting procedures concerning dismissal of a teacher. These laws provide adequate protection for the teacher, including hearings, if requested.

The IAPSS contends that practically all school employees carry out their job assignments in a satisfactory manner and therefore a very small percentage of the total are ever dismissed. However, school administrations should not find these procedures so restrictive that dismissal is virtually impossible.

The public's voice will be muffled if the 1977 Indiana General Assembly passes a due process bill regarding the dismissal of teachers. Fields said. Making related actions bargainable items will hinder school administrations in fulfilling their duty as elected and appointed representatives of the public.

Fields also said that making extracurricular activities bargainable items, including pay schedules for such activities, will force curtailment of some of those activities. Fields noted that some teachers are willing to supervise some extracurricular activities without pay because of strong professional interest in students. But teacher organizations discourage this type of volunteer service, he noted.

Fields suggested that citizens of Indiana who wish to maintain public control of public schools contact their legislative representatives to express opposition to the expansion of the collective bargaining process for school employees. Local school administration, not school employees, should control the schools—that is the issue at stake in legislative matters for 1977, according to remarks from the IAPSS official.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

From the "look how good I am" department:

Senator Birch Bayh sent out a news release this week which begins:

"When I became chairman of the Senate Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee at the beginning of the 94th Congress the nation's rail transportation system was on the verge of collapse.

"The past two years, however, have seen the beginning of a revitalization of rail transportation and the Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee played a critical role in bringing both short-term and long-term advances in rail transportation which directly affect the conomic health of Indiana and the nation...."

Gee, from what Vance Hartke said in the May primary campaign, I thought HE was the one who was getting the railroads back in shape (despite the occurrence several months ago of a series of derailments in the state of Indiana).

—Remember, those are your tax dollars being spent to improve the railroads. That means the government has in effect taken over the railroads—and your tax dollars help pay railroaders' pensions.

—And some people scoff anytime you mention "socialism is here" in the United States.

A couple of girls brought in a shoe they found at the local cemetery. It's a "Robinson Cruse" brand, all brown with a lace. The owner can claim it at the News Office.

—Someody musta got cold feet—or a cold foot.

Did you know

—that Doris Stuck of Saint Joe was taken to Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne Tuesday of this week for surgery Thursday.

—that Clarence Clifford Shaffer, 86, former Butler resident, died Sunday at Lawton Nursing Home in Fort Wayne where he had resided the past five years.

—that the Blazer freshman basketball team lost Tuesday to Woodlan 50-36. Blazer wrestlers were defeated by Woodlan 52-18.

—that MM Monte Nicholls of Hicksville are parents of a son born Monday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. He's an 8-pounder.

—that winter hours for the Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg Museum at Auburn are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week. New displays have been opened at the museum and more than 10 new cars added, ranging from a 1915 Overland to a 1933 Chevrolet.

—that Corky Herschberger of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that a new grade warning system has been established at DeKalb Eastside Junior-Senior High School. Parents are sent notices at the end of four weeks of a grading period if a student is doing D or F work or underachieving by one grade letter. Another notice is sent at the end of six weeks if there is no improvement. Notices are sent to parents of students who have dropped by one grade letter since the fourth week.

—that Governor Otis Bowen has declared December 12-18 as Christmas Seal Week in Indiana.

—that the U.S. Office of Education has granted $117,900 to the Indiana Department of Public Instruction to support the state's 1977 Right To Read Program.

—that last week's unemployment insurance claims total increased by 20,524 from the week before. The rise was attributed to layoffs due to inventory adjustment, lack of work, seasonal factors and bad weather affecting construction.

—that William C. Douglas, 48, of R1 Auburn died Sunday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital after an illness of 1½ years.

—that Tonda Miller of Saint Joe asked the school board Monday night to investigate the possibility of better coordination of marching band activities with the departure time of the activities bus in the evening.

—that Russell Kelham will resign December 17 as DeKalb County Democrat Central Committee chairman. He took the post in May on a temporary basis.

—that David Sechler, 17, of Saint Joe was injured in a one-car accident Friday night on State Road 8. He was a passenger in a car driven by Robert Rosenbury, 17, of R1 Butler, who was not injured. Dave was taken to DeKalb Memorial Hospital for treatment.

—that Tom Hollabaugh of Spencerville is a member of the Tri-State University basketball squad this school year. He is a business management major at the Angola university.

State Road 1 To Be Improved

State Road 1 will be widened and resurfaced from the Allen-DeKalb county line to its junction with State Road 8 north of Saint Joe.

Announcement of "Phase II" of the State Highway Department's annual bituminous resurfacing program came from Indianapolis this week. Contracts for this phase are expected to be let in the January 1977 highway bid letting, according to Richard A. Boehning, chairman of the State Highway Commission. This is ahead of the usual schedule of bid letting to get additional work completed while time remained and also to take advantage of this season's prices.

Phase II involves 32 projects in six districts. It includes 21 contracts for nearly 172 miles of resurfacing at an estimated cost of over $5.5 million.

Projects include one or more of the following: resurfacing, widening, reconstruction of shoulders, wedging and leveling. Not all projects are limited to resurfacing but not all include more than resurfacing. While the local project is not identified for widening as well as resurfacing, The News has unofficial information that widening is part of the project. The portion of State Road 1 from Saint Joe south to the county line is especially narrow, as compared to other state highways.

DAR Awards Announced

Susan Gingery, Garrett High School's DAR Good Citizen representative, has been named the county winner of the Good Citizens Contest. She achieved the highest score on a writen examination administered by the respective school principals of DeKalb Eastern, DeKalb Central and Garrett high schools.

Susan is the daughter of MM Raymond Gingery of R1 Garrett.

The DAR Good Citizens Contest is now open to girls and boys. They must be seniors in high schools of good standing with the State Board of Education or accredited public and private high schools. Contestants must be citizens of the United States.

The aim of the DAR is to stress the qualities of good citizenship among senior high students. Considered are qualities of leadership, dependability, service and patriotism to an outstanding degree.

Eastside's representative was Becky Sue Webb, daughter of MM Donald Webb of Butler.

DeKalb Central's winner was Susie Lenhard, daughter of MM Martin Lenhard.

Com'ity Vespers December 19

The public is invited to attend the Third Annual Community Christmas Choral Vespers (Service of Lights) at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville. The service will be held at 8:00 p.m. Sunday, December 19.

The mass community choir will perform; Bach's "Wake; Wake, For Night Is Fl ing"; Gregorian chants; Billings' "The Prince of Peace"; and selections from Handel's "Messiah": "And the Glory of the Lord," "Glory To God" and "Hallelujah." There will also be congregational Christmas carols.

Jay Blauser is organizer of the annual event and serves as organist-choir director. Mrs. Kathleen Emme-McMaken will be guest accompanist and will be joined by brass choir instrumentalists from area high schools. Mrs. Terry Rhine will be guest soloist. Rev. Wilbur Miller and Rev. Terry Rhine will lead the service.

'Chairperson'—Language Corruption

I think one of the worst destructive "crimes" against today's society is the degree to which our language is being "murdered." There are many examples to point out. But for the moment, I am going to pick out just one—but that one covers a lot of ground.

I refer to the extremism being exercised in changing words which, according to proponents of "equal rights," eliminates a condition called "sexism". You are supposed to use such words as "chairperson" instead of "chairman," "spokesperson" instead of "spokesman," for instance to avoid an inference of inferiority regarding women in leadership rolls.

You may have noted in a report in this paper of the high school varsity girls' basketball game, the word "freshpersons" was used instead of "freshmen" to indicate the makeup of part of the team (oops—excuse me—I shouldn't have said "makeup" in talking about the girls' team—that is identifying them with a certain "role"—I should have said "composition of the team").

Obviously, these remarks are intended to bring a smile—as was the use of "freshpersons" in the basketball story. Unfortunately, it is no joking matter, because the government has established so-called proper terminology of employees, publishers of textbooks are changing their texts to remove "man" from every kind of word construction (I almost said "makeup" again) so that our children will have "proper" training in the use of words.

The truly unfortunate thing is that educators are participating in and encouraging this word change. AND THEY ARE WRONG!

Language experts have noted that the root meaning of such words as "chairman," "salesman," "spokesman," and so on never included inference of sex superiority of the male. The word "mankind" does not ignore women. It is not a word used to denote sex superiority. It is a word which, when properly used, refers to all human beings. And it doesn't include only times present—it includes times past and times future.

In all of the hullabaloo about equality, some learned people have allowed themselves to be misled. Women activists supposedly intent on establishing their "equality" with the male of the species have, in the process, shown either total ignorance of what they are talking about, or else they have failed to do their own thinking.

The widespread use of the word "chairperson" by those who ought to know better—including those working in the news media—shows how little true education we are imparting to the younger generations.

There has been a lot of concern about corruption in government, corruption in business, corruption in politics. In my book, the worst corruption is that infiltrating our language. In the other areas, comparatively few people are involved. But in the use of our language, EVERYONE is involved.

Unfortunately, the worst offenders in the corruption of our language are teachers—not all of them, but a major portion of the younger teachers. They have been captivated by such prestigious new identifications as "learning experience" for instance, when in the old days we just called it a field trip and the teacher didn't pat himself or herself on the back for being so inventive.

Sports, especially football, have had their influence made evident in the corrupting of the language. I cringe everytime I hear a football broadcaster refer to the "DE-fense" and the "OF-fense." I shudder when I hear newscasters, including those on the major networks, put a "see" instead of a "she" in "negotiate." And a young lady on WOWO the other night turned "decade" into "deck-ud," as if there is something "decadent" about a 10-year period of time.

I'm getting somewhat off track, it seems. This was supposed to concentrate on the one glaring error being made in the use of words, that error invented by advocates of "women's liberation."

The point is—our language is being corrupted, words are being given associations which were not intended to have such associations.

And the prime offenders of our language in that respect are those who substitute "person" for "man" in those words which traditionally have referred to position or authority, as in "chairman" and "spokesman." Such a change in word structure is uncalled for. Worse, the effort is teaching our young people incorrect use of our language.

There is, however, another more basic point, a more meaningful point. If you analyze the problems which people run into in their daily living, the predominant factor is a lack of communication, a lack of understanding among people. If we allow every generation to give its own meaning to a word or phrase, the result is a generation gap, for one thing. Words have definite basic meanings when they are formed; that meaning should be left alone. I am talking about words which make up the foundation of our language, not slang words or words to fit a particular time or place or condition. I refer in the latter sense to the fact that a reference to going to a gay party nowadays brings suspicious glances. I refer to the fact that one cannot use the word "mother" in public without having someone snicker. The permissiveness we allow in such corruptions of the language bring wider gaps of misunderstanding. So, while it may seem to some people—especially young people—that insistence on the use of words according to an unchanging standard of meaning is old-fashioned, out-of-date and unprogressive, in reality such insistence helps to establish a foundation of greater understanding. When people use a word only in its "proper" sense generally speaking, better communication results and better understanding prevails.

Meanwhile—keep in mind that whenever you hear or read about a "chairperson" or a "spokesperson," the individual using the word is either trying to be "uppity"—like "to-MAH-toes" and "po-TAH-toes"—or is the victim of erroneous influences. Whatever it may be, they — are — wrong.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

The women of the United Methodist Church in Butler would like to thank you very much for printing our Bazaar notice in your paper.

We raised $2500.00 this year which will go to the Church Building Fund.

It always amazes me to see how well everyone co-operates with this project. We even have several men donate items made out of wood. Our ladies also make such good food and baked items that we never seem to have enough to go around.

This year, we boxed up most of our unsold items, and donated them to the Todd Grogg Benefit at the United Methodist Mt. Pleasant Church. We hope the people in this area will help this needy family.

Again, thank you so much for helping our Bazaar, and God Bless You.

Helen Jane Billings

You're welcome. —And the cake we bought at the bazaar must have been good—it went pretty fast at our house. —Ed.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

A Pastor Miller from Florida sent me a copy of a clipping from your newspaper which took issue from some of the statements adopted by the recent convention of the Lutheran Church in America. I read it with great interest, as I have read the other copies of the "Saint Joe News" which have come to me. I wonder, however, if you had access to the material which was presented to the Boston convention. The matter of amnesty came as a result from memorials or petitions from several synods. In those synods, congregations surely had a chance to express their views. You may wish to obtain a copy of the minutes of the convention (not yet issued) from the secretary of the church in order to have the full picture.

With warm good wishes to you, I am

Yours very truly,
Albert P. Stauderman
Editor, "The Lutheran"
2900 Queen Lane
Philadelphia, Pa 19129

The clipping was sent by Pastor Ivan O. Miller who served the local Lutheran parish several years ago. My comments in the article were critical of the fact that lay members of church denominations often are confronted with requests and decisions which they have little if any knowledge of prior to a church convention. It was noted that laymen are often obligated by a public statement of policy announced by church officials but have had no say-so in adopting such statements. Perhaps our comments may serve to make church officials aware of something they assumed to be fact but "tain't so."

A practical illustration—we have served our congregation as church organist and Sunday School pianist for some 25 years. Not once in those 25 years did we ever receive any type of communication or questionnaire concerning music in the church—yet a new hymnal was published in the 1960's and another new hymnal is well along the way. We have read that the new one had congregational input. But we have never been aware of such lay participation or church musician participation. As a matter of fact, for several years, an outline of committee duties was tacked on our church bulletin board. In listing duties and qualifications of the "Worship and Music Committee," is was stated that the church organist and choir director SHOULD NOT be members of the committee. That was very puzzling. We mention it to point out that such inconsistencies come up without any opportunity for laymen to make suggestions or ask questions. It certainly would seem inconsistent to give someone certain responsibilities, then deny them any opportunity for leadership in those responsibilities.

Pastor Miller recently sent us a page from a bulletin issued by the Division For Mission In North America (Lutheran Church in America). It concerns the oppression of people in Namibia, Africa. Receipt of the bulletin at the News Office indicates that, though retired officially from the ministry, Pastor Miller continues to minister in whatever way he can. The bulletin reads:

"In the sixteenth century, Martin Luther addressed the German nobility, admonishing them to perform their God-given work of securing civil peace and justice.

"Today, Lutheran church leaders in Namibia are calling for the end of tyrannical rule and the establishment of justice and peace in their land.

"Lutherans the world over are standing with their Namibian sisters and brothers during a 'Week of Solidarity' that begins this Reformation Day.

"Namibia, the former trust territory of South-West Africa, IS OCCUPIED AND ADMINISTERED ILLEGALLY by the Republic of South Africa. The United Nations Security Council and the INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE have called for the replacement of the South Africans by a genuinely representative government established under international supervision.

"In answer to this call, the Republic of South Africa has imposed a severe yoke on the Namibian people. The black majority is not permitted to participate in the governing of the whole territory. Political imprisonment and torture are commonplace. BLACK PERSONS ARE FORCIBLY REMOVED FROM THEIR HOMES AND TRANSPORTED LONG DISTANCES TO ARTIFICIALLY CREATED 'HOMELANDS'.

"Living in this situation of anguish, one Namibian Lutheran body has declared: 'The Church has the task of constantly reminding its members to make use of the opportunity which is granted them by the Gospel to continue the fight for liberation. . . Political neutrality, unconcern and indifference in a congregation towards oppression and brutality is just as sinful as murder, because it leads to the growth of such unjust practices. . . .'

"Lutherans in North America are urged to express concern for their brothers and sisters in Namibia through prayer, study and communication with their elected officials. Write the President or Prime Minister, Senators and Members of Congress or Parliament urging active support for the aspirations of the Namibian people. "The following petition may be used in the Prayer of the Church:

"Especially do we pray for all the people of Namibia, that they may live together in a climate of freedom and justice. Rescue those who suffer oppression; free the prisoners; comfort the suffering. Turn the hearts of those who rule unjustly, and let dignity and peace prevail in that land."

Pastor Miller wrote a line at the bottom—"Ted—wonder if this might shed a small beam of light on a dark picture. IOM"

Our thanks to ALL who share their thoughts and concerns in this column. —Ed.

50 PLUS CLUB

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club held its regular monthly meeting in the Spencerville Community Building Thursday, Novemer 18. 35 members were present.

Sarah Amstutz, Marjie Dwyer and Ida Reed were hostesses. At 6:30 p.m. the group was called to order and after prayer by Sarah Amstutz, all enjoyed the delicious potluck supper at tables beautifully decorated for Thanksgiving.

Ida Reed then conducted a short business meeting. After greetings were extended to those present, she read a poem, "November," then read a story of "Pilgrims Thanksgiving." Sarah Amstutz read an article, "It was a Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day," which was very amusing. It was announced that we should bring a $1 gift for the Christmas exchange at the December 16 meeting. The business meeting was then adjourned and the committee for the evening took charge.

Those present were divided into groups of four and dominoes in the round was played, with prizes for the winners.

Mildred McKinley, MM Earl Hodges and MM Maurice Smith will host the next meeting to be held Thursday, December 16. Same time—same place. Don't forget your Christmas exchange. We'll be looking for you.

Blazers Lose 2

Leo defeated the Eastside Blazers Friday night 70-60 with the winning margin coming at the free throw lane. Leo made 20 of 25 free throw atempts but the Blazers had 6 of only 8 attempts. The Blazers outscored the Lions from the field 27-25.

EHS Gals Split

Eastside's young ladies' varsity basketball team lost to Leo Friday 50-46. They came back after being behind 16-4 at the end of the first quarter. But Leo hung on for the win.

Monday the gals held Homestead scoreless in an overtime period while getting 7 points for a 48-41 win. The Blazers had a hefty lead 32-16 at halftime but ran into foul trouble thereafter.

Running a power plant is a lot like flying a 747.

It takes a lot of experience.

And just like pilots who have been flying for years, power plant operators must keep on learning and training so they can continue to perform quickly and efficiently in any emergency.

That's why we have a control room simulator in our power plant training center that works much like a pilot's flight simulator.

It helps our people sharpen their skills by simulating totally realistic equipment failures that, if not handled quickly, could wind up being power failures.

Why do we go to this extreme?

Because keeping the power coming is a complex and demanding responsibility.

It takes hundreds of experienced, specially-trained, highly-skilled people throughout our company.

Engineers, technicians, power plant personnel, line crews, dispatchers, computer experts, people who man the consoles at the control centers. . .everybody plays a critical role in making sure the power keeps flowing to our homes and factories.

But, while we're doing everything we can to maintain dependable service and electric supply, there's one thing we can't do.

Make sure none of that electricity we make is wasted.

That's your job.

Turning off unused lights and appliances, making sure refrigerator and freezer doors aren't left open, and washing only full loads of clothes and dishes will not only conserve electricity, it can help you keep your bills in line.

Properly insulating your home and energy-saving devices like an electric heat pump can help even more.

Working together. It's the best way we know to see that you continue to get the power you need, when you need it. And the most out of it when you get it.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Working together is the only way.

Lack Of Information Surrouunds Addition-Construction Project

--by The Editor

Construction began this week on an addition to the local fire hall. According to information obtained from town clerk Emma Frank, Lutterbein Company was the successful bidder for a shell and roof. Bids were advertised for early this year but the town board did not decide to proceed until recently. Bids were not advertised in this paper, for some reason. Thus, the general public in Saint Joe was not aware of the board's procedure by either official or unofficial local public notice.

Revenue sharing funds are being used to construct the fire hall addition, according to the clerk. It is not clear, however, if bids were sought just for a shell and roof, or whether the current construction is a portion of a bid received early in the spring or thereafter. Rumors at that time were that a new addition would cost somewhere between $35,000 to over $40,000. When The News asked then Board President Roger Coburn and also board member Loretta Loy how much the bids amounted to, no answer was given at the moment due to "too many other things." No further information was forthcoming.

The News was relying on the board for news of interest to the public after Mrs. Loy indicated she volunteered last January or February to prepare news releases for this paper. Nothing came to The News thereafter.

This paper questioned as early as last year the decision to construct the addition. Involvement of the fire department was criticized in town affairs, and the local fire department also thereafter practiced a "news blackout" related to this paper. The latest instance is the fact that a county fire meeting was held Wednesday of last week at Saint Joe, Guy Mausteller named president for the second straight year and Fred Rayle and Joe Robinson also named officers. All are members of the Saint Joe fire department. But no report of the meeting was given to this paper. However, the meeting was reported at length this week in the Butler Bulletin.

The News' past concern about the matter is due to the fact that an amount of money never before available is involved in the project. Also, the turnover in town board members has been excessive in the past five years and thus decisions are being made by one board but carried out by a changed board. In the 1972-75 term of the town board, no less than seven people served on the board. All of the board members elected in 1971 resigned at some time during the next four years. And one of the interim appointees also resigned. Change of residence location or dissatisfaction with board procedures were the causes of the resignations.

In the current four-year term of the board, another change has already occurred. President Roger Coburn resigned effective September 1, according to the clerk, due to change of residence. Floyd "Butch" Coburn was named as his replacement. But no special meeting was held for the replacement, as stipulated in state statutes covering the filling of a vacancy. Also, no public input was sought or considered in naming a replacement.

Saint Joe therefore has had 11 town board members in the past five years. No similar record of instability has ever occurred before. During that five year period, the town has had more money available than ever before, and it is being spent by town officials who, as noted by a few local citizens, "are never around during the day" due to other commitments.

Two incumbent candidates were defeated in 1971 despite the fact that they had:

installed a total new streetlighting system to help in protecting the public and property against vandalism;

re-instituted a dog control program, hired an efficient and effective dog warden and purchased a tranquilizer gun for dog control, a protection for the dog warden and the public;

enacted a mobil home ordinance to control such installations but still allowed a negotiating process for temporary use of mobile homes;

enforced the "junk car" ordinance to a degree possible through the cooperation of local residents; made a beginning in establishing cemetery lot markers to ease past confusion encountered because of guesswork;

purchased two lots on the main street which, though intended for a site for a hoped-for new town hall, were readily available to Knisely National Bank for the new branch bank located in Saint Joe; honored Willard Hurni for his countless hours of free labor at the local park by naming the pavilion "Hurni Pavilion."

The four-year term of the defeated 1971 town board candidates was marked by a stream of information from the board to the public, including publication month by month of town expenditures.

What brought defeat for two board members? Exaggerated claims that a "coliseum" was sought for a new town hall, enough to scare any taxpayer—opposition from firemen who, though contacted in writing to present their needs at any time, still considered the board "anti-fire department" because in particular, the board would not appropriate a $50 or $75 clothing allowance for every fireman, whether they had a clothing loss or not—one or two influential voices, doting on negative thoughts and overlooking the more numerous progressive results.

It has not helped that Fire Chief Fred Ravle is also town board president. It has not helped that personal animosity has been allowed to influence the actions of public officials. It has not helped that, though a number of fire department members have expressed their concern in private conversations, they have not had the guts to express themselves at their official meetings, have backed off from "getting involved." It has not helped that the "anti- Saint Joe News" attitude has been instilled in the minds of new and younger members of the fire department in spite of the fact that there has never been anything but praise for the department and its efforts in fire protection and prevention. This paper has never, in the past 28 years, criticized the fire department's efforts in fire fighting—and "department" means each individual member, people, persons. The criticism has come when they have been led to go beyond their area of responsibility.

In contrast to the defeated board's policies, the past five years have been marked by secrecy and favoritism. And each thunk-thunk of the backhoe at the present time, as it labors to break through frosty ground in a last-minute effort, serves as a reminder of how town board administration has deteriorated in Saint Joe.

Those who pass the situation off as merely a "personality conflict" between this paper and the fire department-town board combination are wrong, at least as far as The News' involvement is concerned. They forget that these are PUBLIC matters. The public are the losers—not a lone weekly newspaper editor.

WITH THE EDITOR

A Christmas card and a note from Leota Gruber of Fort Wayne: "Mother (Lizzie Milliman) is better again. Thanks for everything."

A change of address and note from Roscoe Moore: "Keep up the god work Ted!! God bless!"

In 1961 there was a feature story about Ralph and Frank Sechler and the pickle factory in a Fort Wayne newspaper. It noted that 1961 was the 35th anniversary for the firm.

A few weeks ago I mentioned to Frank that this year is the 50th anniversary. He was a bit hesitant and said he wasn't sure about the exact dates involved.

But—whether or not the exact date is available, it's close enough that I think 1976 should be "Happy 50th Anniversary" for Saint Joe's long-time industry.

And—Ivan and Betty Brown took over the hardware and furniture store in November of 1961. So it's "Happy 15th Anniversary" for them.

And it was a year ago, in July of 1975, that the Knisely Branch Bank opened in Saint Joe.

1976 sure saw a lot of things happen — — —a lot of things.

And August this year marked the fourth anniversary of the start of production at the Vulcraft plant.

Engaged To Wed

SUSAN E. KIMMEL

A New Years Eve wedding is planned by Susan E. Kimmel and Steven A. Fetters. Susan is the daughter of MM Daniel Kimmel of Huntington. MM Wayne Fetters of R1 Saint Joe are parents of the groom-to-be.

Susan is a 1973 graduate of Huntington North High School and a December 1976 graduate of Purdue University in Food Science Research.

Steve is a 1972 graduate of DeKalb Eastside High School and a May 1976 graduate of Purdue University School of Engineering. He is employed by Thorlief Larsen & Son, Inc., of Fort Wayne.

The marriage vows will be solemnized December 31 at 7 p.m. at St. Peter United Church of Christ in Huntington.

EHS Music Dep't To Present Season's Music

The Eastside Instrumental Music Department will present a program of Christmas music Sunday, December 19, at 2:00 p.m. in the high school cafetorium.

The high school band will play music taken from traditional Christmas literature as well as some from more recent times. Included are Jingo Jango, A Processional March, Joy To the World, Christmas Music for Winds, and others.

The junior high band will play three numbers: Deck the Halls, O Little Town of Bethlehem, and We Wish You a Merry Christmas.

The public is invited to attend.

LCW Meets

—Parlia Hull, secretary

30 members and visitors responded for the joint meeting of the St. Mark and St. Peter LCW (Luheran Church Women) at St. Mark church December 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Harriet Oberlin very ably and interestingly gave a picture tour of Alaska and told of her experience in serving as Dorm Mother and counselor in the Dean's Office for girls at Methodist University of Alaska.

Fire Guts House

The Albert L. Smith family found itself without a home or clothing last Friday when fire engulfed their residence located on State Road 8 just east of County Road 59. No one was in the house at the time of the fire.

Saint Joe volunteer firemen answered the call for help and notified the Butler fire department since the home lies within the Butler fire district. Both departments fought the blaze for over five hours. Only a back porch was left standing. The house was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived.

The Red Cross immediately put out a call for clothing for the family. Donations were then handled by the Saint Joe fire department.

'Star' Editor Gets Award

Jim Kroemer, editor of the Auburn "Evening Star," won a first place award Saturday at United Press International's annual Indiana Newspaper Editors Conference at Indianapolis. His award was for the best news story for newspapers of 10,000 or less circulation. The story was printed in October of 1975 concerning the discovery of mastadon bones on a farm near Helmer.

The "Evening Star" was honored for its more than 60 years of continuous association with UPI. The county daily is one of UPI's oldest clients.

Christmas Program Tuesday

The Riverdale Christmas Program will be given next Tuesday, December 21, at 7 p.m.

The first graders will sing songs about toys: drums, jack-in-the-boxes, robots, dolls and trains.

The third graders will sing Christmas songs about children: The Joys of Christmas, O Come Little Children, We Wish You a Merry Christmas, and Little Bitty Baby.

The fifth graders will sing favorite carols: What Child Is This, Silver Bells, Hark the Herald Angels Sing, and Little Drummer Boy.

The sixth grade chorus will present a short playlet about a shepherd boy who is visited by the three kings on their way to Bethlehem. The chorus will sing: Do you Hear What I Hear, Go Tell It On the Mountain, The March of the Three Kings, and Joy To the World.

The program will be directed by Mrs. Dorothy Whitney.

Parent Action Needed

The Saint Joe News is the only paper in DeKalb County which has published the news releases from the executive secretary of the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents thus far. There may be publication of some of the articles elsewhere hereafter, but it has taken some phone calls to do it.

Why should I be so concerned about whe ther or not the articles are published? Because I am concerned about the one-sided picture portrayed by headlines and news stories related to school matters. I'm not just a know-it-all editor filling up space with sensational comments about teachers and teaching. I AM A PARENT —and I believe there are those who have forgotten that fact.

I am tired of having business administration, city administration, school administration, and what-have-you, constantly getting knocked about because they don't jump in with both feet immediately when those under their authority (public and private employees) make a demand. I'm tired of coming out on the losing end as a taxpayer, as a voter, as a parent, because organized labor can get so much support from the news media (by using sensationalism instead of established fact) to gain advantage.

To be fair, I have published elsewhere in this issue a news release from the Indiana State Teachers Association containing criticism of the superintendents' informative series. I believe the ISTA news release is tragically funny. Executive secretary Ron Jensen attempts to put fault on school administration when in actual fact, it is his organization (the teachers) who have been guilty of misrepresentation.

Keep these circumstances in mind:

(1) Teachers have doted on money for many years in their union efforts, constantly harping on being underpaid even now when a starting teacher makes almost $1,000 a month.

(2) the average classroom teacher's pay is now at the $12,000-$14,000 range, and some of those still not satisfied are above that range;

(3) while all the turmoil has occurred about pay, the achievements of the average high school graduate have dropped, as shown by tests for the past 10 or 11 years, giving credibility to the idea that teacher agitation over salary is to divert attention from the drop in student achievement;

(4) the real loser is the student who brings home A's and B's but they do not represent the same level of achievement as the A's and B's of 10 and more years ago.

The articles released by the superintendents are legitimate statements of conditions as they exist in the matter of control of public schools. Taxpayers are the "employers" and should have primary say-so in the operation of local school systems. Teachers are the employees, and if they don't like the working conditions, they should find something else.

—But where are you going to find another setup in which, after five years, you have a guaranteed income and a guaranteed job? Where else are you going to find three months' vacation? Where else are you going to find a five-hour or less work day plus some extra money for extra-curricular activities?

The differences in opinion over the school calendar which have occurred recently in the DeKalb Central and the Garrett school systems are EXACTLY what the superintendents' news releases were all about. "Collective bargaining" and "binding arbitration" in more and more school matters HAVE INCREASED PROBLEMS for school administrators. And if you think this is making much over nothing, keep in mind—in both instances of calendar dispute in DeKalb County, THE TEACHERS WON!—despite a recommendation from the school principals in one instance to set an after-Labor Day starting date, and despite a petition from parents in the other instance for an after-Labor Day starting date.

Parent-taxpayers are at a disadvantage. There is no "Parent Lobby" in Indianapolis to counteract the powerful teacher organization and lobby. So, any reversal of current trends in school control MUST come from individual efforts to contact the Governor and members of the State Legislature. Letters from parents are far more effective than petitions, generally speaking, although the latter do have some effect on occasion.

If you're as upset as I am about footing the bill for education but having no say-so through our elected school board members, write:

Governor Otis Bowen, State House, Indianapolis 46204.
State Representative Norman Gerig, State House, Indianapolis 46204.
State Senator Joan Gubbins, State House, Indianapolis 46204.

—or clip this article, write "I agree", sign your name and send it to one of the above. If you want extra copies, just holler.

ISTA Says Articles Lead To 'Panic'

The Executive Director of the state's largest teacher organization charged the Indiana Association for Public School Superintendents and the Indiana School Boards Association with planned misrepresentation and public scare tactics in the administration's appeal to stop changes in the teachers collective bargaining law.

Ron Jensen, Executive Director of the Indiana State Teachers Association, charged that both management associations are attempting to "scare the public into believing that schools will be taken away from public control if teachers are allowed to bargain anything other than salary, fringe benefits and hours."

Jensen said the Indiana State Teachers Association plans to propose several amendments to the bargaining law to the General Assembly. "Open Scope" will be a top priority for teachers, he said. Open scope is the term applied to negotiating all matters affecting the ability to successfully conduct an educational program in the classroom.

" 'Open Scope' is already working smoothly and efficiently in a number of school corporations with the net result of teacher satisfaction and more parental involvement," Jensen countered. Currently a broad range of topics for negotiations of "open scope" is permissable under P.L. 217, the teachers bargaining law, but not mandatory. At least ten corporations in the state now have contracts with teachers which include the process of establishing and revising curriculum, class size, vacancies reassignment and dismissal procedures —the usual topics covered by "open scope." Several of the contracts date back to 1968.

According to Jensen, the amendments would make the process of establishing curriculum, class size, and other items subject to the impasse machinery. Currently they are not unless the two parties agree to bring them to impasse. "School boards still maintain their power because they have the right to say 'no.' If they feel that, for example, a smaller class size would be detrimental to education in their community and can prove it, all they have to say is 'no,' " Jensen pointed out.

"Both the ISBA and the IAPSS have tried to gain support by being less than candid," Jensen said. "They have waved a red flag of loss of local community control but both of their spokespersons have told parents there is no real way now for parents to get involved. We believe parents would have a better chance for involvement under a more open negotiations situation because of the close contact teachers and parents have through teacher parent conferences, open houses and parental membership on curriculum committees established under 'open scope'."

500 Gifts Given

EHS Gals On Win Streak

Eastside's girl varsity team under coach Bob Brown ran its record to 5-1 the past week. The gals stomped Hamilton last Thursday 74-11 and then took an overtime 39-38 thriller from Heritage Tuesday.

Lisa Johnson scored 23 points against Hamilton and 15 in the Heritage game to lead scoring. Amy Hampel had 14, Connie Oberlin 13 and Sunda Obendorf 11 against Hamilton. Miss Hampel and Miss Obendorf each had 8 points in the Heritage game.

The gals face 'Busco there Thursday of this week. Next Tuesday they face Garrett at Garrett at 6 p.m.

The gals face Fort Wayne South at noon December 28 in a holiday tourney at DeKalb Central. DeKalb Central faces Garrett at 1:30 p.m. Admission will be $1 per session. The consolation game begins at 7 p.m. with the championship game at 8:15.

Student Effort Being Monitored

The Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School faculty is making an all-out effort to keep parents informed when their children are not achieving as well as they should in school, according to a news release from the school.

Unsatisfactory progress reports were sent home with the children on December 1 for all students making D or F in class or not progressing satisfactorily according to their potential.

Parents were expected to return a slip indicating that they had received the information. If the parent slip was not returned, a copy of the report was mailed to the parents December 7.

On December 15 unsatisfactory reports were sent home with any student having a definite drop in achievement after the first unsatisfactory reports were sent out. Anyone who received a report December 1 did not receive another report December 15.

Parents are urged to communicate with the teachers to determine the best method of helping students do better work.

School Supt's Exec Warns: Collective Bargaining A Threat

(Last in a series of four news releases from the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents)

A resolution of school collective bargaining issues through binding arbitration or fact finding represents a clear threat to the public control of local schools, states Dr. Charles E. Fields, Executive Secretary of the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents.

Continuing to voice the IAPSS opposition to open scope bargaining for school employees, Fields stated that the "Association strongly opposes any binding third-party decision making. We also object to any law which provides for the agency shop."

Indiana statutes have placed the local control of public schools within the state in the hands of elected or appointed representatives of the people. These public representatives (local school board members) at the present time have the authority to make important decisions regarding the operation of their respective school corporations.

Binding arbitration and/or binding fact finding would take that important decision-making power away from the public representatives and place it in the hands of a third party. Thus, the actual control of the school would move from the public to an arbitrator or fact finder who might, or might not, have the public's interest at heart. Dr. Fields stated that "the IAPSS strongly opposes the loss of public control of our schools to a third party authority." He expressed hope that citizens throughout the state shared this concern of the superintendents' organization to the extent that they will contact their representatives in the Indiana General Assembly in opposition to binding arbitration or binding fact finding as a method of resolving issues between school officials and school employees.

The agency shop concept, as it pertains to school employees, may also be placed before the 1977 General Assembly. The IAPSS opposes this concept because school officials believe that school employees should not be forced to financially support any organization which they, the school employees, do not wish to financially support. Passage of any agency shop provision in the collective bargaining law for school employees, would restrict the employees' freedom of choice.

School employee organizations contend that the expansion of the collective bargaining process for school employees would be inexpensive for the taxpayers. They suggest that many of the items which would become bargainable through the expansion of the bargaining process would cost little or no money. "The IAPSS strongly contends that experience at the bargaining table has taught management that everything in a negotiated contract has a price tag of either time or money, and time is money," Fields said.

The association, according to the Executive Secretary, believes there is a significant difference between collective bargaining in the public sector and collective bargaining in the private sector. "Management in the private sector can control its revenues while management in the public sector must depend upon the taxpayer for its revenues. Control of a private sector operation rests in the hands of management; in the public sector such control rests, and rightfully so, with the public," he said.

School boards cannot, under present tax laws, raise the level of the school corporations income to meet concessions made at the bargaining table. Therefore, they must hold down those concessions. "Such action angers the school employee bargaining representatives. School officials recognize that it is possible to negotiate a public agency into bankruptcy; therefore, they exercise fiscal responsibility and put forth every effort at the bargaining table to avoid such a financial catastrophe," the IAPSS Executive Secretary stated. (Editor's note: deficit budgeting—that is, obligating the school corporation for more than its actual income— makes each school board member personally responsible for his or her proportionate share of the deficit, as pointed out at the October 4, 1976, meeting of the DeKalb eastern school board, a fact not generally known by the public or teachers).

The bargaining law (PL 217) for school employees does not prohibit school boards from bargaining any item placed on the bargaining table by school employee organizations. Those boards are not, however, mandated to bargain items other than those set forth in the present bargaining law. "The IAPSS strongly contends that local boards of school trustees must have this choice," Fields said.

"The basic concern of the IAPSS regarding the whole process of collective bargaining for school employees is the issue of control. Who should actually control the public schools of this state? Should it be the public through its appointed or elected representatives (members of the local school boards) or should it be the employees through their union? Public control of our local school systems has been the keystone of the American school system and the superintendents' organization in Indiana strongly believes that citizens of this state are in danger of losing that public control," Fields said.

"One only need study the 'self-governance' principles set forth by the National Education Association (NEA) to determine the dangers the public faces regarding this issue. Those principles clearly spell out the premise that the control of our school system should be placed in the hands of those who teach in the schools. We can legitimately ask two basic questions in response to this position. Whose children are enrolled in our public schools? Whose tax dollars finance our public schools? The answer is clear. The public furnishes both the children and the dollars. Therefore, the public must have final authority to control the process," Fields noted.

The superintendents' executive secretary concluded by saying that the public must make its will known by contacting members of the state legislature. School board members and school administrators alone cannot stop the trend away from local public control of schools.

Blazers Lose

Lakeland downed the DeKalb Eastside Blazers last Friday at Lakeland 73-55.

The locals led 8-5 at the end of one quarter. Then Lakeland exploded and ran to a 32-17 lead at halftime. At the three-quarter mark it was 53-35 Lakeland.

The Blazers cut the lead to 7 points at 60-53 with a little over four minutes to go. But they couldn't sustain the drive.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Mark has become a tennis fan of the first order. The past summer he rode his bike on several occasions up to Butler to play tennis with Kenny Ray or Amy Hampel. He and Kenny also play a lot of table tennis—or ping pong—"table tennis" seems more appropriate.

Anyhow, when a Fort Wayne sorority had a tennis exhibition recently featuring Arthur Ashe and Manuel Orantes, Mark and I went. The prices were pretty steep, so the crowd was only fair in size.

The first match was between Kathy May and Julie Anthony. Kathy is 20 years old and her opponent 30. They are exact opposites in mannerisms though both are good tennis players.

What I noticed most—as did MC-announcer Hilliard Gates (I happened to notice what was getting his notice) was the lithe, graceful—and feminine!—movements of tall, good looking Kathy. Her mannerisms, her presence, her femininity, all exude into — "nice."

Her opponent was the opposite, but still "nice." By "opposite," I mean that Julie has the walk of an athlete, the stride of a male—and I don't mean that as an insult. It's just that when she walks out onto the tennis court, she's all business and moves that way—quick and definite and just this side of running. (Kathy sorta floats out.)

Julie is far from short on good looks. And both young ladies were attired in fetching tennis outfits. But just from seeing the two walk and their mannerisms, I figured Julie was going to be the winner. Her "athletic" appearance seemed to indicate superiority, since this WAS an athletic event.

And Julie did win the first four games and the die appeared to be cast.

But then Kathy took over and won the set 8-6.

I've thought a lot about that since for several reasons—most of them obvious from what I've said. But the basic reason is that appearances aren't everything. And I get a good feeling over the fact that a woman can retain her femininity in actions, looks, mannerisms—and still be an outstanding athlete. They don't need to imitate or emulate a man, in order to be noteworthy for reasons other than to please "male chauvinism."

This might sound like a "put-down" for Julie. It isn't intended to be. I'm just making an observation about the differences in people and the errors a person can make in judgment based on appearances. After all, with all my bubbling over about Kathy and her femininity, maybe she cusses like a trooper!

Appearances were misleading in the Ashe-Orantes match. It appeared Ashe would overwhelm his opponent who had just arrived in Fort Wayne after a plane trip from a tennis tourney in Tokyo. Orantes was obviously tired and at times appeared "on the ropes."

But he didn't quit, and the two played as close a match as you could get, Orantes winning.

Orantes is fifth seeded and Ashe is sixth. Orantes is short, solid (like Julie!), and Ashe is tall, lithe (like Kathy!).

I think the most impressive part of the men's match was the devastating serve of Ashe, especially right on the court centerline. Several times all Orantes could do was watch the ball bound past him from an Ashe serve of such blinding speed that Orantes was caught flat-footed.

One thing. If you go to a tennis match, be prepared to sit. The crowd was ready for an intermission a couple of times during the men's match and some people got up and went out for refreshments or a smoke.

But tennis isn't played that way, intermissions injected at times through the match. And if you get into a close battle, as did Ashe and Orantes, you can be sitting for quite a while. —And it's distracting to the players to have people moving in and out—almost impolite on the fans' part. But since we in the Fort Wayne area are not accustomed to the pattern of big time tennis, I hope the stars who appeared at the Coliseum have forgiven us for our unfamiliarity with tennis protocol from a spectator standpoint.

As I said, the prices were steep, but I guess it was worth it. —Let's see now—where is it Kathy plays next???

Missed Anniversary—Ball Diamond's 25th In '76

In listing anniversaries relative to this community in last week's issue, another anniversary was overlooked—the 25th anniversary of the installation of lights at the local ball diamond.

But before lights were installed, a major regrading project was carried out at the site. Ball games at that time were played in somewhat of a "hole," the infield being lower than the outfield. There was a noticeable rise in elevation in right field.

Some photos taken during the regrading in 1951 were resurrected recently from the old desk at the News Office and tell part of the story of that momentous occasion for the town of Saint Joe which at that time had a population of 479, as noted on the town limits sign.

One of the hardest workers was "Red" Heyman who is shown in the top photo at right on the Heymans' Ford tractor. He plowed the ground for easier moving of earth toward the infield.

In the background can be seen the "old" and "new" school buildings now no longer standing.

Earth-moving was done by Carl Carpenter with his bulldozer and Abie McCann with the grader at right, shown in the second photo. Tons of earth were thus relocated. DuWayne Goings also assisted in the earth-moving.

At that time two big trees stood in the proposed left field area. One had to go—and it took some huffing and puffing to get the job done. Carl Carpenter stands at left watching. The News isn't certain about the identity of the two men on the saw, but it looks like it might have been Bud Shockley at right and Rol Shockley at left. Anyone remember???

The old backstop had to be removed and one of the young men who helped was Arnold Fetters, shown below, as he dug dirt from the base of the old backstop screen. That's his '36 Ford in the background.

The entire project began after the formation of the St. Joe Valley Recreation Club. After a January meeting in 1951 with temporary officers appointed, a meeting February 1 named the permanent officers: Ted Haberkorn, president; D.B. Ridgway, vice-president; Frank Sechler, secretary; Lloyd Dunten, treasurer; board of directors: Ralph Sechler, chairman, Ed Storer, Walter Morr, Wayne Wagner and C.O. Duker.

The Recreation Club established a goal of $3500 to pay for the complete lighting system. The organization sold non-interest-bearing bonds, held an auction, sponsored a square dance, held a scrap metal drive, had a bake sale, and so on during 1951 to reach its goal. Outright donations were also received.

So, when anyone attends a kids' ballgame or a softball game nowadays at the diamond, they are watching activities which began 25 years ago—Little League and Church League in particular—and have continued for the past 25 years.

The News carried a slogan on its front page during that year. At top left was: "Goal to be won in '51..", and at top right, "—a lighted softball diamond.

The goal was won.

The editor even missed publishing a paper one week in that summer when light poles, light fixtures, wire, etc., started coming in and someone was needed at the diamond to take care of such arrivals.

The light poles then cost about $100 each. Today, they are at the $1,000 mark—each. And in those "good old days," Indiana & Michigan Electric Company set the poles and mounted the fixtures at no cost to the community. And its employees were making a good living, the company had a steady advertising program, had adequate financial resources to meet energy demands—and still provided public service efforts for free. I&M also donated a lighted scoreboard for the local diamond.

Today—with increased labor costs, with increased interest rates on expansion capital, with what some people consider "progress," such community service efforts as noted above are beyond the utility's capabilities.

The 25th anniversary of the installation of lights at the ball diamond brings fond memories to those who have been associated with the diamond through the years. It also brings a puzzling question to mind—has our society progressed, or has it gone backwards in the abilities of public utilities to contribute to community improvement???

Reagan's Solid Answers On TV

A segment of "60 Minutes" Sunday-recent was devoted to an interview by Mike Wallace with Ronald Reagan.I thought the answers Mr. Reagan gave to some of the questions were indicative of the honesty and stability of a genuinely conservative mind.

For instance, Mr. Wallace referred to John Connally, Senator Jacob Javitts and three or four other Republican members of Congress and the opinions they had expressed about Mr. Reagan. Those GOP Congressmen are of the "liberal" philosophy and their voting record is not indicative of sticking to traditional Republican philosophy. Instead of jumping on the opportunity to lash back, Mr. Reagan instead said something like, "Well, we've all been misquoted at one time or another. Did they really say those things about me?"

Mr. Reagan also said he thought he could have won the recent Presidential election because Watergate was associated with Mr. Ford. Mr. Reagan also said he was not being critical of Mr. Ford, just pointing out a condition which apparently influenced some voters.

I suppose the association with Watergate related to Mr. Ford had to do with his pardon of the former President, Richard Nixon. There are those who will not rest until they get Mr. Nixon's hide. Resignation from the Presidency in disgrace isn't enough; the vultures want blood, and Mr. Ford suffered for it.

I couldn't help comparing situations. Watergate and Richard Nixon are still unforgiven parts of the political disaster we experienced a couple of years ago. Yet the same people who will not forgive the former President voted for Jimmy Carter who says his first action will be to pardon those who fled from the country to avoid the draft. And deserters apparently will even be given a break, rather than face court-martial procedures.

Wrong as it was, Watergate still did not involve walking out on the nation in a time of distress. Indeed, if you want to stretch a point, the attempt to cover up the Watergate affair was "admirable" in that it would have (if successful) prevented the strife which did come when the coverup failed. It was, in a rather strange sense, an effort to protect the nation, though its ovbious purpose was to protect certain individuals.

Yet, here we have voters electing a man who will forgive several thousand men who, when the chips were down, ran from their duty as citizens, who in effect said, "I'll only help when I think you're right, but I won't help just because you need help."

If Mr. Carter is going to follow through with his intent to pardon those who fled the draft and grant hearings to deserters, as an act of forgiveness from a "born again Christian," it would seem that he should also, at the same time, as President, re-affirm the pardon given to Mr. Nixon by President Ford. This would be a significant act. True, a lot of Americans wouldn't go along with it —they might even wish they could withdraw their vote for Mr. Carter cast November 2.

But it would be an act to lead the nation to forgive an errant President—who, by the way, was responsible for saving the lives of hundreds of Americans by getting us out of the Vietnam conflict. Unfortunately, the public has a very short memory when it comes to Mr. Nixon.

How inconsistent these people are. Mr. Nixon can't be forgiven in their minds. But they can forgive Mr. Roosevelt who promised the mothers of America that their sons would never be snet to fight a battle on foreign soil. Then came World War II—and the United States got into it and American sons were sent to fight on foreign soil. (It was a stupid promise, because no one can foretell the future circumstances. But—Mr. Roosevelt DID make that statement and he had to go back on it. But he was forgiven and even was named "the great humanitarian.")

There are those who will say, "Yes—but we were forced into World War II by the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor."

In connection with that December 7, 1941, attack, a photo appeared just this week in a Fort Wayne daily, showing an older man who was a telegrapher in the 1940's. He has trying for years to get someone to listen to his story that the attack on Pearl Harbor was known in advance to American authorities, but nothing was done about it.

Where are all the investigative reporters on that one???

Those who won't forgive Mr. Nixon have, however, forgiven the late President John Kennedy for the double-cross of Cubans seeking to overthrow the dictatorship of Fidel Castro. Those freedom-fighters were gunned down on the beaches in the Bay of Pigs disaster, when planned and expected U.S. support was withdrawn at the last minute—and those poor devils were mowed down in their tracks.

Obviously, Mr. Kennedy has been forgiven because he is so admired by young people.

Where were the investigative reporters on that one???

Those who won't forgive Mr. Nixon can find it in their heart to forgive the late President Lyndon Johnson who was involved in the Bobby Baker influence-peddling scandal (remember?), but somehow came out without a scratch.

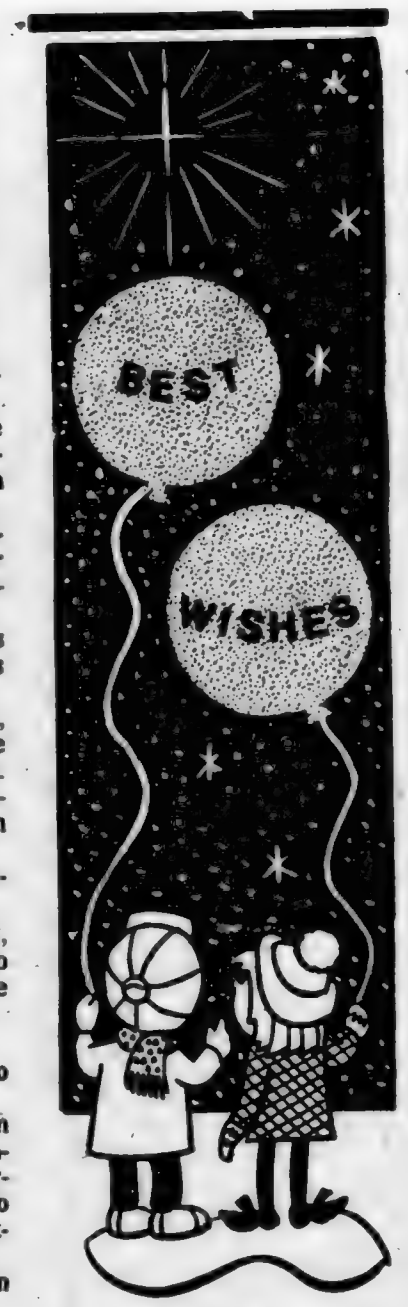
Those people can also forgive Mr. Johnson's obvious use of the Presidency for personal gain—he became a millionaire while in the Presidency, yet it is Republicans who have been painted in the image of "fat cats," "big money" and so on —and the image still sticks.

Where were the investigative reporters during Mr. Johnson's term in office???

Those same people who won't forgive Mr. Nixon can at the same time overlook the coverup which came after Senator Ted Kennedy was involved in the drowning death of a young woman. True—he avoided any involvement in the recent primary campaigns for nomination for President. But he's still young. And it's almost a probability that he will seek the Presidency in years to come—and win.

Where were the investigative reporters on that one???

Getting back to Mr. Reagan —his answers to Mike Wallace were impressive because: (1) he would not answer a question based on what he had "heard"; (2) he showed no bitterness nor condemnation toward the man who just barely beat him for the GOP nomination for President; (3) he made a very definite statement that the Republican Party must stick to principles, even it it offends some people; (4) he recognized the fact that there are some Democrats who are fighting for the same principles as conservative-minded Republicans and there must be a re-alignment of individuals and parties; and (5) such re-alignment means changing parties, a very difficult move to make, he observed, from his own experience.



Joy and peace to everyone. "Thanks" to our many friends.

For entertainment Mrs. Maurice Kline read two humorous articles.

Mrs. Roy Baker gave the critic's report and read "Fuzziness of Speech." After adjournment, the hostess served light refreshments.

The ladies motored to Lucky Steer for a 6:00 p.m. dinner for their Christmas party. After dinner they went to the home of Mrs. Harold Hamman.

Each one contributed something to the program with a story, poem or reading.

A Christmas exchange was held. The committee and the hostess served a delicious dessert.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Carlos Church, Mrs. Roy Baker, and hostess Mrs. Harold Hamman.

Mrs. Lela Northrup, an emeritus member, was a guest.

A gift exchange and the drawing of "secret pal" names was highlight of the December meeting of the Newville Home Ec Club on December 8 at the home of Lela Collins with Rozella Mickelson as co-hostess.

After a delicious dinner, President Doris Hart called meeting to order, and several carols were led by chorister Dorothy Meek. Devotions were given by Gladys Impton. After the business meeting, Christmas gifts were opened and 1976 secret pals revealed, and secret pal names were drawn for 1977. Twenty members gave a useful or homemade gift idea for roll call.

January 12 is the date for the next meeting, to be held in the home of Dorine Singer with Gladys Impton as co-hostess.

UniServ Seeks Legislative Meets

The following was released to county news media this week by the ISTA UniServ office at Auburn.

"Would you like to make regular contact with and have input to your State Legislator?

"The UniServ Northeast NEA—ISTA Coordinating Council desires to make contact with other groups (community or employee) interested in developing a "Third- House-Back-Home" Legislative sessions. The sessions will probably be Saturday morning breakfast ones.

"The purpose of the Third House sessions will be to hear from the legislators on a regular basis starting in late January about the progress of bills.

"A time would be allotted to the public during each program for questions and answers. "Third House" sessions have been very successful around the state in keeping citizens in tune with their government.

"If your organization is interested or desires more information, you are urged to call: Gerald R. Goen, UniServ Director; UniServ Northeast NEA—ISTA; 100 N. Clark; Auburn,IN 46706; office phone: 219-925-2420; home phone: 219-925-4107.

"The UniServ office will be closed beginning noon December 22 through January 2. However, Mr. Goen can be reached at his home."

No Homework—Part of 'Conspiracy'?

Several years ago, I had a conversation with a member of our high school faculty who is now teaching elsewhere. I mentioned that I was glad our first three sons had been students in his English class because I knew that he did not tolerate any "monkey business" in his classroom efforts. That doesn't mean he was boring, had no sense of humor. On the contrary, he was and still is endowed with a very perceptive sense of humor and shares it with students. But only to a point, then enough is enough and it's down to business.

The conversation got around to the fact that high school students were not taking books home for overnight study as had been the traditional practice in the past. In reply to my concern about this change, the teacher replied something like: "We are told — or perhaps I should say it is strongly suggested (I got the message) — not to make assignments requiring study at home. The work should be done in class or in study hall."

You will recall that a year or so ago, there was a lot of discussion and controversy around the nation concerning the content of certain textbooks now in use in public schools. A lot of parents and clergymen (and some teachers, I might add) got upset over crude and vulgar literature, discussions of sex, downgrading of this nation and its patriots, and so on. In recent months, the matter seems to have simmered down. But I don't believe that means the questionable texts or practices have been eliminated.

For many people, revelation of the content of public school textboks was almost beyond belief. They could not believe that publication houses, schools and teachers had allowed such a thing to happen. It was obvious from that situation that the public had little input into textbook content and selection. Why should they? They had always been safe in trusting educators to maintain examples of respect for God, country and parents' precious possession—children. We, the public, were not aware that a "new generation" of educators in a rebellious era had asserted their will, quietly but very effectively. In our colleges and universities, a revolution had occurred, and a sizeable number of those to become teachers in public and private schools had effectively been "brainwashed" concerning American society, America's governmental and economic system and morals in general. "Do your own thing" was the battle cry.

I have given some thought to those two seemingly unrelated matters—my conversation with a teacher several years ago and the upset over textbook content a year or so ago. I have come to the conclusion that the two are directly related. I even have a suspicion that the word "conspiracy" may be very appropriate to describe what has happened to teaching materials and methods. I recognize that whenever someone uses the word "conspiracy," they are subject to condemnation as being "some kind of nut" or radical or reaching 'way out in left field (no pun intended).

But — consider this:

Those who are dedicated to the destruction of America's independent idealism are very patient in their work. Those dedicated to communism, or socialism, or whatever -ism there might be which deprives people of their individual liberty are not bothered by time. When you read about Lenin and Marx, you realize that the steps which they propose in reaching their ultimate goal can involve ten, twenty and more years. They are in no hurry; they are more concerned about reaching a goal no matter how long it takes. Their one commendable attribute is that they truly are unselfishly dedicated—but to the wrong thing.

With this in mind, and with the realization that drastic social changes are implanted and nurtured in our colleges and universities, isn't it possible that the quiet transition from traditional homework assignments to "no homework" was a basic step in keeping the public ignorant of what was being put in textbooks, what was being taught by teachers? That transition was made in the past ten to twenty years. Then it took a while before someone got onto what was being put in textbooks—and the public became aroused, as it should have and should continue to be.

I didn't realize any more than anyone else what was going on. But, I did have a puzzling question come to mind a few years ago. Now it's not so puzzling. That question was: if the dropout rate of first semester college and university students is so high and it is attributed for the most part to students' inability to adjust to an entirely new pattern of study based on self-discipline, why are high school teachers giving less and less homework? They are "double-crossing" their own students.

I had conversations over the years with local young men and women about university life. One young man, now back in this community, who was no "slouch" in high school but flunked an English course in his university freshman year, told me (and my teenage Sunday School class at that time for whose benefit I had invited the young man to share his experiences): "You need to study seven hours outside of class to make it in university work."

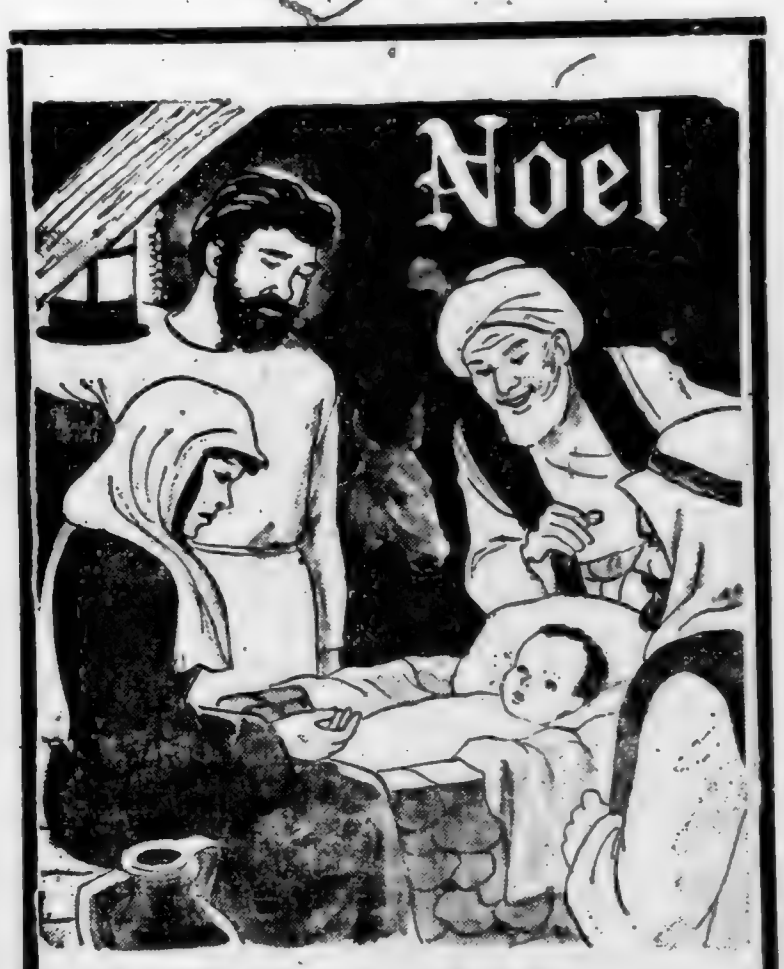
If university work is so demanding, why do high school teachers short-change their students in the pattern of study at the high school level? Shouldn't high school be a preparation for university-bound students in their method of study?

The answer obviously is "yes" but there now is another factor involved. That is, university work is not as demanding as it was in the past. If lack of publicity is an indication, the dropout rate is no longer at a high level. The only conclusion, then, is that university work is easier. "Higher education" is no longer "higher," generally speaking. Noted columnist Paul Harvey frequently expresses conditions in and his concern for higher education. He recently stated that some colleges and universities are doing away with the traditional "Dean's List" of honor students because the lists became so lengthy. In one instance, he noted that two-thirds of a certain student body were "honor" students. The reason wasn't smarter students. The reason was lower academic standards.

The overall result is that college or university degrees have become an expensive status symbol. And we have an educator-economic-elite class arising out of the declining overall quality of education. This minority "upper class" is dictating to the majority what standards are to be established.

You don't have to be an intellectual genius or a student of history or philosophy to recognize what this all means. Anyone who reads the newspapers knows that the establishment of an elite and controlling class and the control of education for the masses at a lower level is the foundation of a socialist-communist take-over of an independence-inspired nation such as ours.

The sad part is that so many well-meaning individuals in this nation are part of the—yes, I'll use that word again—conspiracy, but don't realize what they are doing to our young people, this nation—and themselves.



Our most sincere wish is for you—
A Christmas of great joy and peace.

Lady Blazers Now Have 7-1 Won-Lost Record

The "femme fatales" from DeKalb Eastside High School continued in their winning ways Tuesday night with a close 39-38 overtime win over Heritage.

The girls also won Thursday last week, downing Churubusco 59-38 at 'Busco.

The young ladies have now attained a 7-1 record in the current season under coach Bob Brown.

Next Tuesday the gals face Fort Wayne South Side in a holiday tourney at DeKalb Central at noon. Admission is $1 per session.

DeKalb Central faces Garrett at 1:30 p.m.

Fire Leaves 6 Homeless

Roger and Susan Thimlar and their four children were burned out of house and home early Wednesday morning of this week. Fire gutted the residence owned by Leon Kees and located on Saint Joe's main street, just east of the Enco station.

It is reported that Thimlar, who works second shift, was attempting to thaw frozen water pipes with a blow-torch when the wood walls caught fire. The flames spread rapidly and firemen fought the blaze for several hours. Saint Joe volunteer firemen were summoned at about 2 a.m. They called for assistance from the Spencerville fire department. But the old house, reported by one source as being the oldest house in Saint Joe, was gutted by flames despite the efforts of local firemen.

The Red Cross immediately put out a call for clothing. And a cannister is located in Hep's Dairy Store to receive financial assistance from those who wish to contribute.

Blazers Take 3 In Row

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers won a pair over the weekend, then took another win Wednesday night this week.

Friday night against Hamilton, the Blazers scored 19 in the third quarter to the Marines' 9 to break up what had been a close game in the first half, the Blazers then leading by only 31-30.

Saturday night, the locals had a big first quarter, leading 22-10 over Southern Wells. The visitors tried to play catch-up thereafter, but Eastside came out with a 74-69 win.

Another big first quarter this week brought the Blazers a 64-63 win over Westville Wednesday night.

The locals saw a 20-10 first period lead slowly dwindle. And it took 2 free throws by Chris Sipe with 9 seconds remaining to bring a 64-63 win.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Old-Time Mill Was Located At Orangeville

The Old Water Mill, St. Joe, Ind.

In pioneer days, one of the first essential businesses in a rural agricultural community was a feed and grinding mill.

With settlements made first along the course of a river in new terrritory, power was no problem; the flow of the river was utilized to operate mill grinding wheels.

The photo above, from an old postcard, indicates St. Joe as the location of the mill. It actually was located at "Orange" or "Orangeville," located between today's State Road 101 and Newville on County Road 56. Only remnants of the dam and the foundation of the mill remain today.

The John Houlton Chapter of NSDAR held its regular Christmas luncheon-dessert at the home of Mrs. Wayne Beuret in Auburn. Mrs. Beuret was assisted by Mrs. Alan Hardenbrook, Mrs. Donald Hartman, and Miss Mary Ann Beuret. As the guests entered, the gifts they brought for the veterans were placed under a Christmas tree.

After the luncheon, Mrs. L. D. Roberts opened the regular meeting with the regular ritual followed by the Pledge of Allegiance To the Flag. The group remained standing while Mrs. Hardenbrook led in prayer in memoriam for Mrs. Margaret Wappes McComas, a member who passed away since the last meeting.

Mrs. Beuret passed out the revised section to the constitution concerning dues. Mrs. Roberts passed around a brochure on money-making project, a coloring book. Little interest was shown.

Mrs. Harter gave a National Defense report by Maurice Ross from Purdue University on the True Spirit of '76. She also read material from a geneology research on the Carr family. She read from a family Bible and a diary dated in the 1620's. Roger Williams was the captain of the ship on the way to America, and later settled with them in Rhode Island.

After closing the meeting with the American's Creed, Mrs. Roberts turned the meeting over to Mrs. Allan who described the program as "An Early American Christmas." The group thoroughly enjoyed the medley of Christmas songs Mrs. Beuret led by playing them on the piano.

Following the group singing, Miss Eldrige explained the procedure of selecting Good Citizens. Miss Becky Webb, Eastside's Good Citizen, and her mother were introduced.

Miss Eldrige read a letter from Miss Susie Lenhard, thanking the group for the invitation to attend the meeting and expressing regrets that she would be unable to attend the meeting due to a previous commitment. Susie Gingery, the county winner, was taking a national nursing test in Fort Wayne. She and her mother arrived later and met those still present.

The next meeting will be held January 8 at the home of Mrs. Marlin Yoder.

As our life changes, so does the way we use electricity.

A lot of people believe that higher electric bills are caused by higher electric rates.

In part, that's true.

But a big reason many electric bills are up is because the amount of electricity we use is up.

Today, for instance, an average family uses about four times more electricity than in 1950. And for a lot more things.

In 1950, most of the electricity used in the home was for lighting, cooking, refrigeration and washing clothes.

Now, less than half a family's electricity is used for that. Instead, more than 50% is used for air conditioning, color TV, dishwashing, clothes drying and hundreds of other electrical conveniences you wouldn't want to be without.

Unfortunately, inflation has drastically increased the cost of supplying the electricity needed to meet this steady growth in demand.

And with new families continuing to join the ranks of our customers every day, the demand is going to keep on growing.

So, keeping the power coming, and finding ways to keep its costs down, is getting tougher every day.

But, while we continue to do everything we can to hold down our costs as we keep up with this growth, there are some things you can do to help keep your costs in line, too.

Use the appliances you have more efficiently. Make sure your home is properly insulated. And, when it comes time to buy new appliances and systems, look into energy savers like the heat pump.

If everyone makes an effort to do just a few of these things, we'll have a brand new source of energy to rely on.

Ourselves.

The Gals' Bitter Defeat

I didn't attend the games. But comments from those who did attend (whom I consider to be fair-minded, generally speaking) indicates that our young ladies from DeKalb Eastside got "took" in the four-team holiday tourney at DeKalb Central. I don't mean the host school was at fault. No—it was the inconsistency of the referees that left a bad taste.

The male referees are reported to be regular licensed basketball referees. But their attitude towards the girls' games was described by one fan as "acting as if it was all a joke."

When you have a team with an 8-1 record (Eastside) play another team which has lost six straight games prior to the tourney (Central) and the team with the losing streak wins the championship game by 13 points, there is reason to wonder. Ordinarily, when I hear someone complain about the umpiring or the refereeing after a loss, I consider it just "sour grapes"—blaming someone else for the loss.

But in this instance, it sounds a bit different. When strategy calls for fouling late in the game by the trailing team in order to regain possession of the ball for a possible field goal—and the referee doesn't toot his whistle when a player not only commits a foul but knocks the opponent down in the process—something is out of whack.

And when a young lady fan, who has a background of dedication, common sense and all-around good qualities, is moved to holler, "You dumb a - -" at a referee because of the manner in which the officiating is being carried out—well, I just have to believe that our Blazer gals got "took" this week.

It's rather strange. The refs have the authority to call technicals for what they consider poor conduct by players and coaches—and spectators. But there is no way to hold those same refs responsible for THEIR actions. And THEIR actions can lead to ill feeling between competing players and competing schools.

(One of the officials is reported to be president of the Northeast Indiana Officials Association.)

It's a shame. Our Eastside kids have been taking their lumps—have been caught in the middle—and I don't mean just in athletics. Now when they have a winning team—a winning GIRLS team with more determination than size—they must bear another setback, at the hands of supposedly trained and competent referees.

Though the Blazers were "cold" in field goal shooting, hitting on but 29%, DeKalb Central wasn't too much better at 32% but taking 14 more shots.

It's a shame—but if they're as good as they seem to be, as determined as they seem to be—they'll come back.

—Hang in there, gals!

Meanwhile—if the Indiana High School Athletic Association has a carpet, I think those tourney refs ought to be called on it to explain their conduct.

UniServe Proposal Suspicious

The ISTA-UniServ office at Auburn announced last week that it is trying to set up regular meetings so that local citizens can make their views known to state legislators. An invitation has been extended to other groups and organizations to participate.

The idea is commendable. Anything which brings citizens in closer contact with their elected representatives certainly has merit.

But—isn't it strange that a teachers' organization is promoting the idea? It is to me, at first glance. It is strange because UniServ (a branch of the Indiana State Teachers Association) was organized primarily to promote teachers' interests—not classroom interests but teachers' personal interests. Several months ago I quoted here the objectives of UniServ AS SPELLED OUT BY THE ORGANIZATION'S OWN LITERATURE. It wasn't an expression of my opinion, it was a statement of fact—that UniServ is not directed toward student and parent interests, or toward improved education. UniServ is directed toward more teachers' pay, more teachers' bargaining power, more teachers' benefits and less work.

Thus, it is not really so "strange" that UniServ is promoting legislative "bull sessions" at home. Though the announcement of the effort states that it is for public benefit, you can bet your boots that UniServ is already planning to have teachers well-represented in numbers at those planned meetings. UniServ doesn't promote anything unless teachers are going to get something—it's right there in their own statement of purpose.

I believe the ISTA and UniServ have gone outside their proper area of function. Any meetings between legislators and their constitutents OUGHT TO BE SET UP BY THE LEGISLATORS. This would avoid a feeling of obligation on the part of a legislator to whatever group might set up such meetings; he wouldn't "owe" anything to anybody.

And the situation makes me wonder. While "Doc" Coleman was serving as State Representative, he set up several public meetings—so that the public could talk to him in person. He also issued several questionnaires. The meetings were not too-well attended, considering the number of people in his district. Also, when he took a vote on this or that subject at the meeting, at the start of the meeting and at the end of the meeting on certain subjects, it was apparent that those attending were influenced on the spot by what was said at the meeting. On at least one occasion, the vote went from a majority "yes" to a majority "no" on the basis of comments and information given between votes. Thus, "public opinion" as expressed at a given meeting might be more accurately called "spur of the moment" opinion, which is not good. It wasn't Doc's fault; he wanted more people to attend, he wanted more opinion surveys returned to him. But it didn't work out as planned for and hoped for.

One of the reasons, possibly, is that when "Doc" Coleman sought to improve public input into his legislative efforts, THE UNISERV OFFICE DIDN'T SAY A WORD, DIDN'T HELP PROMOTE LEGISLATOR- CITIZEN DISCUSSIONS, DIDN'T ISSUE NEWS RELEASES URGING THE PUBLIC TO ATTEND. The reason: "Doc" was not a "friend" of education—that is, he did not say to teachers, "I'll help get you more money."

But, now that it's "their idea" and they will "run the show," teachers through ISTA-UniServ want everyone to participate—now it's a great idea and everyone should cooperate.

I think UniServ anticipates public apathy at their planned meetings, anticipates spotty public attendance so that teachers can dominate the meetings and subtly exert influence and pressure on any legislators attending just by teachers' presence. I wouldn't be surprised if UniServ has a tentative schedule already set up denoting how many teachers are to attend the legislator-public meetings from each school district.

UniServ and the ISTA are out of bounds in their efforts to set up local legislator-public meetings. Past teach-organization efforts justify public suspicion of their intent. And our legislators ought to say "thanks but no thanks" as far as their own participation in such meetings is concerned. There is yet to be any public meeting promoted by any union for the benefit of the public.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The dissenters of the 1960's-70's sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor his teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The "things I think are ridiculous department":

President-elect Jimmy Carter turning his family business over to a "manager" and his getting rid of investment stocks to avoid "conflict of interest."

There's no reason why any political officeholder or appointee should have to dispose of their business interests. Such moves are demanded today on the reasoning that it will make more certain an "honest" and unbiased approach to governmental matters is followed.

Tain't so—simply because, if you examine the matter closely, it becomes obvious that it is IMPOSSIBLE to eliminate all "influence" which might determine an officeholder's outlook or opinion.

It is also unfair to demand that, as a qualification for public office, a person must sacrifice personal wealth.

Should I sell my house and business when I vote for school board members, just because my vote might be influenced by my ownership of property, and schools are run partly on revenue from property tax?

Should school board members be required NOT to have children of school age, because such a situation might influence the manner in which they make decisions?.

Obviously the answer is no—because we consider a parent as having particular interest in school BECAUSE OF their offsprings' presence in school. And taxpayers have an interest because it is their money being spent.

I think the same situation applies with higher officeholders. Having business interests ADDS TO the interest of a legislator, gives the legislator insight into the effects of much of the legislation brought to a vote.

Our bureaucracy is a heavy burden on our society because those in it are engaged in giving orders and issuing directives without much concern about costs and overhead increased by their decisions. A "career" government worker has the least concept of business. Yet, Washington is loaded with career government workers and their authority reaches right into the heart of business.

I have little use for disclosure of finances or disposal of personal assets as an implied or actual requirement of those in high public office. It doesn't mean a thing as far as honesty and integrity.

The other day at the barber shop, Dave Hagar related that on one occasion when Lynn Duke got a haircut, he came back to the shop a few minutes later and said, "Either give me a dollar back or finish my haircut."

Dave got so interested in the conversation going on during the haircut that he did only one side of Lynn's head and left the other side untouched.

Petition Seeks To Stop Release Of Psychopath

A petition was placed in public places in DeKalb County at the end of last week seeking support of an effort to keep Kenneth Pierce of Waterloo confined in state mental institutions. Two years ago Pierce admitted the kidnapping and slaying of Brenda Mathes. His plea of not guilty by reason of insanity brought court-ordered confinement in a state mental hospital.

The petition is being circulated by Kenneth Mathes of Concord, having been prepared by a Mathes attorney. The petition seeks to bring the matter to the attention of Governor Otis Bowen due to the fact that Pierce has evidently been released on weekends from the state institution and there are indications he may be released outright in the not-too-distant future.

Testimony by a psychiatrist at the Pierce trial included the opinion that Pierce would require extended psychiatric treatment and counseling before he would be able to function properly in society. The doctor also indicated that Pierce might not ever be adjusted sufficiently to allow his release. Another psychiatrist said treatment was necessary but did not indicate an extended period of time.

Current laws apparently provide an almost inpenetrable shield of protection for those charged with a serious crime but gaining a court decision of "not guilt/ by reason of insanity." Pierce's weekend releases were not made known to any local law enforcement officials. Even a letter from Judge Harold Stump of the DeKalb Circuit Court where the case was tried, reportedly received no reply in an official request for information.

Mathes' concern, and that of the many signers of the petition thus far, is due to the record of Pierce's involvement in early life truancy matters and later incidents involving young women. Though there had not been any formal charges filed in the past, prior to the death of Brenda Mathes, Pierce had been brought before law enforcement authorities due to involvement with young women approached by Pierce for a certain degree of sexual satisfaction. He had been confined in an institution in the past and was released as "rehabilitated."

A far-reaching purpose of the current petition is to bring about enactment of legislation which will give law enforcement officials access to information concerning the disposition of cases placed in the hands of state institutions. A vast majority of law enforcement officials and those in the legal profession recognize the handicap under current laws which place mental institutions above the law.

The response of the public at one place of business was overwhelming. Despite the New Year holiday last weekend, a copy of the petition placed in Hep's Dairy Story Thursday was filled with signatures by Monday, three pages, both sides. Mathes has other copies being circulated elsewhere in the county, also, and in Fort Wayne.

Demise Of A Newspaper

A special report by The Editor

The Butler Record-Herald, until a few years ago a thriving widely-read newspaper in DeKalb County, is now but a shadow of its former self. Its circulation droped from the 1200 mark to less than 500 in the past few years. Formerly, it contained 12 to 16 pages regularly. Now it is down to four pages and is being published only to protect its second class mailing privilege.

MM Steve Grogg, who purchased the paper early in 1976, have given up on their effort to revive the publication. They bought it from Lee Ellen Ford who had bought it from MM Burdette Powers. However, a suit filed against Miss Ford by the Powers' last summer stated that the sale to Groggs was not valid because Powers had not been consulted about the sale. The contract agreement between Powers and Miss Ford is said to contain a provision that any such sale must be approved by Powers.

The decline of the Record-Herald began before the sale-suit, however. Miss Ford, a retired teacher, served as an assistant to Governor Otis Bowen in his first three years in office. Much of her time was spent in Indianapolis and much of her editorial comments were so oriented to legislative matters that local public interest began to drop. Though there was a staff of several young women primarily, support continued to fall away.

In the meantime, Butler business and professional people urged MM Max Gray and MM Joe Shelton to start another newspaper. They began publication of the Butler Bulletin in the spring of 1976. It appears to be a successful venture thus far, with the Gray-Shelton combination seemingly attuned to the wants of the Butler community and apparently fulfilling the wants and needs of residents of that community.

The Record-Herald was published by three generations of the Powers family. When John Powers died at an early age a few years ago, his retired father put the publication up for sale.

The paper is being prepared for printing and publication by the Bulletin staff, reportedly at the request of the three former editors.

However, who actually owns the Record-Herald appears to be a question yet to be answered by a court decision.

There is the possibility that the Record-Herald will make a comeback and continue but that seems improbable to impossible with today's costs of production in the newspaper field. And Butler just isn't a large enough city to support two newspapers. In "the good old days," yes—but today, "no way."

The other possibilities are: the complete demise of the Record-Herald; or (after legal problems are straightened out concerning ownership) a takeover by the Gray-Shelton combination and shelving of the infant Bulletin to gain the second-class status of the Record-Herald.

But, for now, it appears that the Butler Bulletin is "the" newspaper, and continues the tradition of a good newspaper serving the Butler community.

EHS Gals Win 2; In ACAC Tourney At W'dlan

They did it

After suffering a questionable defeat in a recent tourney, the DeKalb Eastside girls varsity bounced right back with a 66-14 shellacking of the Southern Wells Raiders Tuesday at Butler, then took another win Wednesday night at Woodlan, defeating the Warrior-esses 53-42.

The team now has a 10-2 record under coach Bob Brown.

The gals now will participate in the ACAC tourney at Woodlan to be held Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, January 10, 12 and 15.

Doors open at 5 p.m. Monday, 6:30 p.m. Wednesday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday morning and 1:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

The schedule:

Monday, January 10, 5:30 p.m.—Leo v Norwell; 7:00 p.m., EASTSIDE v Southern Wells; 8:30 p.m., Carroll v Woodlan.

Wednesday, January 12, 7:00 p.m., Churubusco v Adams Central; 8:30 p.m., Heritage v winner game 1.

Admission will be $1 per session.

'Doc's' Team, Wagon To DC

Doc Guinther's horse team and wagon will be in the inaugural parade January 20 at Washington, D.C. Two Eastside FFA boys will accompany the ag instructor on the trip. They will leave January 13, driving to the nation's capitol by truck.

When the National FFA convention was held in November at Kansas City, 34 FFA District III boys rotated in driving the team and wagon from Trafalgar, Indiana, to the convention, a distance of over 500 miles. That trip began October 16.

Lynn Fuller, "an interested adult and parent," passed the information along to The News.

New Number For Sp'ville Fire Calls

Robert E. Moore, chief of the Spenceryille Fire Department, has announced that there is a new number for fire calls in that area. The department is now being dispatched through the DeKalb County sheriff's office. The number to call is 925 3365.

The old number should not be used for fire emergencies.

The new number again is—925-3365.

EHS Adult Boosters Buy Equipment

The Eastside Adult Booster Club is continuing its sale of "Blazer Backers" T-shirts as a fund-raising project. The shirts come in sizes medium, large and extra large and are priced at $4.

The shirts are on sale at every home game. Or orders may be placed by calling 238-4389.

The club recently bought rifles for the girls' drill team. A piece of equipment for basketball practice was also bought by the club, such projects made possible by fund-raising efforts including the current T-shirt project.

FHA Cheers Elder Shut-Ins

—Mark Mansfield, reporter

On December 10 we had an FHA meeting to decide what we were going to do to help get the community into the holiday spirit. President Barb Mumma suggested that we go to Glen Oaks Nursing Home in Auburn and entertain the patients. It was agreed on. And on the following Monday, all the FHA members were driven to Glen Oaks.

While there we entertained approximately 72 patients. We made cookies and punch and played several games.

The FHA would like to thank Alice Yarian, activities director, and Thomas Muzillo, administrator, for letting us brighten up the holiday season for the patients.

Gambling Incident Raises Question: Today's Teachers 'Teach' Morals???

It has been my contention for some time that parents and other adults don't know what is going on or being said in school classrooms—unless a student happens to volunteer information to his or her parents.

The school board had a report of a rumor at its Monday meeting this week. The rumor was that a faculty member or members were participating in betting activities on athletic events. The superintendent was authorized to investigate and report later to the board.

It isn't just a rumor; it is a fact. A faculty member HAS been participating with students in betting activities. However, it appears the practice has stopped "because some parents objected," according to a report from an involved parent.

I had a conversation this week with a teacher who is not on the Eastside faculty. The teacher's response to my observations about the matter indicated that, as far as the teacher was concerned, "if it's only 25 or 50 cents, I don't think there's too much wrong about it."

My answer was: "If a teacher is involved in gambling activities with students, that teacher wouldn't be teaching tomorrow, if I had my way."

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Harold Negley recently issued a news release stating that, because Indiana parents had expressed the desire for more activity in our schools in teaching morals, a program to fulfill that wish was a possibility.

I'm dumbfounded. How can teachers "teach morals" when such things as our local gambling situation exist? Gambling is immoral. It poses a threat to the welfare of young people if it is condoned within the confines of our schools. You can't stop kids from betting on their own initiative and with one another, unless it gets out of hand and becomes a big operation. It's a different matter, however, when faculty members promote and condone gambling activities with and between students. I don't mean a spur-of-the-moment bet between a teacher and an older student—such as "Betcha a buck the Vikings lose the Super Bowl game" after a discussion about the merits of both teams. I mean a situation where a teacher involves several students, inside the classroom or outside the classroom.

The situation illustrates how little concern younger teachers have for the opinions of parents. It illustrates how far afield the civil rights and human rights movements have gone. The younger generation of teachers has obviously been indoctrinated by colleges and universities with the idea that they know better than parents of the students what should or should not be allowed. They have lost a very necessary attitude in carrying out their teaching duties. That attitude is: "I must be careful of what I say and do. This is someone else's child who has been entrusted to my care."

I wish the state superintendent would direct his efforts away from "teaching of morals" in the schools. What should be of greater concern is the lack of fundamentals in the educational program today.
